 - 18 As to a company's articles of association see PARA 228 et seq. As to model articles of association prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, and their application generally, see PARA 228 et seq. Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'limited company', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230.
- The Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 provides that shares may be transferred by means of an instrument of transfer in any usual form or any other form approved by the directors, which is executed by or on behalf of the transferor: art 26(1). No fee may be charged for registering any instrument of transfer or other document relating to or affecting the title to any share: art 26(2). The company may retain any instrument of transfer which is registered (art 26(3)); and the transferor remains the holder of a share until the transferee's name is entered in the register of members as holder of it (art 26(4)). If title to a share passes to a transferee, the company may only recognise the transferee as having any title to that share: art 27(1). As to the register of members see PARA 335 et seq.
- The Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 3 provides that certificated shares may be transferred by means of an instrument of transfer in any usual form or any other form approved by the directors, which is executed by or on behalf of the transferor, and (if any of the shares is partly paid) the transferee: art 63(1). No fee may be charged for registering any instrument of transfer or other document relating to or affecting the title to any share: art 63(2). The company may retain any instrument of transfer which is registered (art 63(3)); and the transferor remains the holder of a certificated share until the transferee's name is entered in the register of members as holder of it (art 63(4)).
- For companies still using the 'legacy articles' (ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805), it is provided that the instrument of transfer of a share may be in any usual form or in any other form which the directors may approve and must be executed by or on behalf of the transferor and, unless the share is fully paid, by or on behalf of the transferee: Table A art 23. No fee is to be charged for the registration of any instrument of transfer or other document relating to or affecting the title to any share: Table A art 27. The company is entitled to retain any instrument of transfer which is registered, but any instrument of transfer which the directors refuse to register must be returned to the person lodging it when notice of the refusal is given: Table A art 28. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but arts 23-28 are applied by Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital), and Table E

(an unlimited company having a share capital) but are disapplied by Table C art 1 (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital). As to the meaning of 'unlimited company' see PARA 102. As to the meanings of 'company having a share capital' and 'share capital' see PARA 1042.

As to the power to refuse to register a transfer see PARA 392.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(9) CERTIFICATION AND TRANSFER OF SECURITIES/(i) Shares/C. TRANSFER OF CERTIFICATED SHARES/(C) Formalities required by Transfer/400. Simplified form of transfer of securities.

400. Simplified form of transfer of securities.

Certain registered securities¹ may be transferred by means of an instrument under hand in the statutory form² known as a 'stock transfer'³. The transfer is executed by the transferor only, but specifies the full name and address of the transferee⁴. Particulars of the consideration, of the description and number or amount of the securities, and of the person by whom the transfer is made are also to be specified⁵.

In the case of a transfer to a stock exchange nominee⁶ neither particulars of the consideration nor the address of the transferee need be inserted⁷. A form used to transfer securities from a stock exchange nominee which is a body corporate need not be executed under hand but will be sufficiently executed if it bears a facsimile of the corporate seal of the transferor authenticated by the signature (whether actual or facsimile) of a director or the secretary of the transferor⁸.

The execution of a stock transfer need not be attested⁹. Where a stock transfer has been executed for the purpose of a stock exchange transaction¹⁰, the particulars of the consideration and of the transferee may either be inserted in that transfer or, as the case may require, supplied by means of separate instruments in the statutory form¹¹ known as 'brokers' transfers'¹². A brokers' transfer must identify the stock transfer and specify the securities to which each instrument relates and the consideration paid for the securities¹³.

The provisions described above¹⁴ have effect in relation to a transfer of specified securities notwithstanding anything to the contrary in any enactment or instrument relating to the transfer of those securities¹⁵. However, any right to refuse to register a person as the holder of any securities on any ground (other than the form in which the securities purport to be transferred to him) is unaffected¹⁶. Also unaffected is any enactment or rule of law regulating the execution of documents by companies or other bodies corporate, or any articles of association or other instrument regulating the execution of documents by any particular company or body corporate¹⁷.

1 The securities which may be so transferred are fully paid-up registered securities of any description which are: (1) securities issued by any company as defined in the Companies Act 2006 s 1(1) (see PARA 24) except a company limited by guarantee or an unlimited company; (2) securities issued by any body (other than a company as so defined) incorporated in Great Britain by or under any enactment or by royal charter except a building society within the meaning of the Building Societies Act 1986 (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 50 (2008) PARA 1856) or a society registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 50 (2008) PARA 2394); (3) securities issued by the government of the United Kingdom, except stock or bonds in the National Savings Stock Register, and except national savings certificates (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 1335 et seq); (4) securities issued by any local authority; (5) units of an authorised unit trust scheme or a recognised scheme within the meaning of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt XVII (ss 235-284) (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 603); (6) shares issued by an open-ended investment company within the meaning of the Open-Ended Investment Companies Regulations 2001, SI 2001/1228 (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 623); Stock Transfer Act 1963 s 1(4) (amended by the Finance Act 1964 ss 24, 26(7), Sch 8 para 10, Sch 9; the Post Office Act 1969 s 108(1)(f); the Companies Consolidation (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 s 30, Sch 2; the Building Societies Act 1986 s 120(1), Sch 18 Pt I para 5; the Financial Services Act 1986 s 212(2), Sch 16 para 4(a); SI 2001/1228; SI 2001/3649; SI 2009/1941). For these purposes, 'securities' means shares, stock, debentures, debenture stock, loan stock, bonds, units of a collective investment scheme within the meaning of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 603), and other securities of any description: Stock Transfer Act 1963 s 4(1) (amended by the Financial Services Act 1986 Sch 16 para 4(b); SI 2001/3649). 'Registered securities' means transferable securities the holders of which are entered in a register (whether maintained in Great Britain or not): Stock Transfer Act 1963 s 4(1). As to the meaning of 'company limited by guarantee' see PARA 102. As to the meaning of 'unlimited company' see PARA 102. As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24. As to the meanings of 'Great Britain' and 'United Kingdom' see PARA 1 note 5. As to incorporated bodies in Great Britain generally (other than a company within the meaning of the Companies Act 2006) see PARAS 1-2. For these purposes, 'local authority' means: (a) a billing authority or a precepting authority as defined in the Local Government Finance Act 1992 s 69; (b) a fire and rescue authority in Wales constituted by a scheme under the Fire and Rescue Services Act 2004 s 2 or a scheme to which s 4 of that Act applies; (c) a levying body within the meaning of the Local Government Finance Act 1988 s 74; or (d) a body as regards which the Local Government Finance Act 1988 s 75 applies: Stock Transfer Act 1963 s 4(1) (definition amended by the Local Government Finance Act 1992 s 117(1), Sch 13 para 12; the Police and Magistrates' Courts Act 1994 s 93, Sch 9 Pt I; SI 1990/776; the Fire and Rescue Services Act 2004 s 53(1), Sch 1 para 18). As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 1 note 5.

2 References in the Stock Transfer Act 1963 to the forms set out in Sch 1 and Sch 2 (see note 11) include references to forms substantially corresponding to those forms respectively: s 3(1). For the prescribed form of stock transfer see Sch 1 (amended by SI 1974/1214; SI 1996/1571). For the prescribed forms for use as alternatives where the transfer is to a stock exchange nominee or from a stock exchange nominee see the Stock Transfer Act 1963 Sch 1 (amended SI 1974/1214; SI 1990/18). 'Stock exchange' means the London Stock Exchange, and any other stock exchange (whether in Great Britain or not) which is declared by order of the Treasury to be a recognised stock exchange for the purposes of the Stock Transfer Act 1963: s 4(1). Any such order must be made by statutory instrument, and may be varied or revoked by a subsequent order: s 4(2). As to an order so made see the Stock Transfer (Recognised Stock Exchanges) Order 1973, SI 1973/536, which specifies the Stock Exchange as being a recognised stock exchange for the purposes of the Stock Transfer Act 1963. As to the London Stock Exchange see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 75. The Treasury may by order amend the forms either by altering them as they are set out in Sch 1 or by substituting different forms for those forms or by the addition of forms for use as alternatives to those forms; and references to the forms set out in the Stock Transfer Act 1963 Sch 1 (including references in s 3) must be construed accordingly: s 3(2). Any such order must be made by statutory instrument, and may be varied or revoked by a subsequent order; and any statutory instrument so made is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 3(4). As to the provision which may be made by any order made under s 3 see s 3(2), (3), (5) (added by the Stock Exchange (Completion of Bargains) Act 1976 s 6). As to the orders made see the Stock Transfer (Amendment of Forms) Order 1974, SI 1974/1214; the Stock Transfer (Addition of Forms) Order 1979, SI 1979/277; the Stock Transfer (Substitution of Forms) Order 1990, SI 1990/18; the Stock Transfer (Addition and Substitution of Forms) Order 1996, SI 1996/1571. As to the Treasury see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARAS 512-517.

3 See the Stock Transfer Act 1963 s 1(1). Nothing in s 1 is to be construed as affecting the validity of any instrument which would otherwise be effective to transfer securities: s 1(3). Any instrument purporting to be made in any form for which the form set out in the Stock Transfer (Substitution of Forms) Order 1990, SI 1990/18, Schedule, or in any other form otherwise authorised or required for that purpose, is sufficient, whether or not it is completed in accordance with the form, if it complies with the requirements as to execution and contents which apply to a stock transfer: Stock Transfer Act 1963 s 1(3) (amended by SI 1990/18). In relation to the transfer of securities by means of a stock transfer and a brokers' transfer: (1) any reference in any enactment or instrument (including in particular the Companies Act 2006 s 770(1)(a): see PARA 399) to the delivery or lodging of an instrument, or proper instrument, of transfer, is to be construed as a reference to the delivery or lodging of the stock transfer and the brokers' transfer (Stock Transfer Act 1963 s 2(3)(a) (amended by the Companies Consolidation (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 Sch 2; Finance Act 1999 s 139, Sch 20 Pt V(5); SI 2008/948)); and (2) any such reference to the date on which an instrument of transfer is delivered or lodged is to be construed as a reference to the date by which the later of those transfers to be delivered or lodged has been delivered or lodged (Stock Transfer Act 1963 s 2(3)(b)). Subject to this, the brokers' transfer (and not the stock transfer) is deemed to be the conveyance or transfer for stamp duty purposes: s 2(3)(c). Section 2(3)(c) is repealed, as from a day to be appointed, by the Finance Act 1990 s 132, Sch 19 Pt VI. However, at the date at which this volume states the law, no such day had been appointed.

4 See the Stock Transfer Act 1963 s 1(1). Where the transfer is executed for the purpose of a stock exchange transaction (see note 10) by the donee of a power of attorney, it is conclusively to be presumed in favour of the transferee that the power had not been revoked at the date of the instrument if a statutory declaration to that effect is made by the donee of the power on or within three months after that date: Powers of Attorney Act 1971 s 6. As to statutory declarations see the Statutory Declarations Act 1835; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 1024. As to the meaning of 'month' see PARA 1625 note 10. As to the position where the terms of an offer for all or any uncertificated units of a participating security provide that a person accepting the offer creates an irrevocable power of attorney in favour of the offeror, or a person nominated by the offeror, in the terms set out in the offer see the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 43. As to the meaning of 'participating securities' see PARA 421. As to the transfer of uncertificated securities see PARA 420. As to uncertificated securities generally see PARA 421.

5 See the Stock Transfer Act 1963 s 1(1). Section 1 has effect: (1) subject to the amendment that a sold transfer form, and a stock transfer form used to transfer securities to a stock exchange nominee, need not specify particulars of the consideration or the address of the transferee (Stock Transfer (Addition of Forms) Order 1979, SI 1979/277, art 3(1)); and (2) in relation to the form set out in the Stock Transfer (Substitution of Forms) Order 1990, SI 1990/18, Schedule, subject to the amendment that that form need not specify particulars of the consideration or the address of the transferee (art 4).

6 For these purposes, 'stock exchange nominee' means any person whom the Secretary of State designates by order made by statutory instrument as a nominee of the Stock Exchange for the purposes of the Stock Exchange (Completion of Bargains) Act 1976: see s 7(2); and the Stock Transfer (Addition of Forms) Order 1979, SI 1979/277, art 4. As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 311 note 2. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6.

7 See the Stock Transfer (Addition of Forms) Order 1979, SI 1979/277, art 3(1); and note 5.

8 Stock Transfer (Addition of Forms) Order 1979, SI 1979/277, art 3(2).

9 See the Stock Transfer Act 1963 s 1(2).

10 'Stock exchange transaction' means a sale and purchase of securities in which each of the parties is a member of a stock exchange acting in the ordinary course of his business as such or is acting through the agency of such a member: Stock Transfer Act 1963 s 4(1).

11 For the prescribed form of brokers' transfer see the Stock Transfer Act 1963 Sch 2 (amended by SI 1974/1214). A form substantially corresponding to the prescribed form is permissible: see Stock Transfer Act 1963 s 3(1); and note 2.

12 See the Stock Transfer Act 1963 s 1(2). As to the prohibition of circulation of blank transfers see PARA 401.

13 See the Stock Transfer Act 1963 s 1(2).

14 See the Stock Transfer Act 1963 s 1: see the text to notes 1-13.

15 Stock Transfer Act 1963 s 2(1).

16 Stock Transfer Act 1963 s 2(1)(a).

17 Stock Transfer Act 1963 s 2(1)(b). Any enactment or instrument relating to the transfer of securities specified for the purposes of s 1 applies with any necessary modifications to a transfer authorised by s 1: see s 2(2) (amended by the Companies Consolidation (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 Sch 2).

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(9) CERTIFICATION AND TRANSFER OF SECURITIES/(i) Shares/C. TRANSFER OF CERTIFICATED SHARES/(C) Formalities required by Transfer/401. Transfer in blank.

401. Transfer in blank.

Where shares are transferable only by deed, a blank transfer, although executed by the shareholder, gives no security to an equitable mortgagee, because the filling in of the transferee's name would be a material alteration in the deed rendering the instrument void unless made under an authority conferred by a deed¹. The same principle is applied where blank spaces are left in the deed for the purchaser's name², the consideration and name of the transferee³, and the names of the transferees and attesting witnesses⁴. Where, as is the usual position, transfers are not required to be made by deed, an equitable mortgagee has an implied authority to complete the blank transfer for the purpose of protecting his security, and to procure it to be registered⁵, although he cannot delegate such authority to another person to be used for a different purpose⁶. If the company refuses to register a transfer so completed, the court may direct an account of what is due, and, if the borrower declines to have the account taken within the time limited, may rectify⁷ the register by substituting the name of the transferee⁸. The delivery by executors to a broker of a blank transfer signed by them with the certificates, so that the shares may be registered in their own names, does not estop them from setting up their title against persons who advance money to the broker on a deposit of the certificates, although in good faith and without notice of any fraud⁹.

Where a transfer in blank relating to registered stock of any description has been delivered, pursuant to a sale or gift to or to the order of the purchaser or any person acting on his behalf, or to the donee, any person who in Great Britain parts with possession of that transfer, or who removes it or causes or permits it to be removed from Great Britain before it has been duly completed is liable to a fine¹⁰.

Such repeal will apply where the sale is made on or after the abolition day, being such day as may be appointed by the Treasury by order made by statutory instrument: see ss 109(3), 111(1). However, at the date at which this volume states the law, no such day had been appointed.

Non-execution by transferee.

402. Non-execution by transferee.

When a company's articles of association¹ provide that the instrument of transfer must be executed or signed both by the transferor and transferee², non-execution by the transferee only makes the transfer irregular and not a nullity; and, if it has been acted on for a long period, it cannot be impeached³. In the absence of such a provision, a transfer executed by the transferor only passes the property in the shares, subject to the transferee's right, on discovering any defect, to repudiate the shares⁴. If it is the practice of the company, the directors may decline to register a transfer where it has not been executed by the transferee⁵, and it is their duty not to permit registration of a transfer of shares on which there is any liability except when satisfied that the consent of the transferee has been given. They may refuse to register a bona fide transfer to a minor because he is unable to accept it⁶, but not a bona fide transfer to a person who is destitute⁷.

2 See the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 4, Sch 3 Pt 4 art 63(1) which provides, in the case of a public company, that an instrument of transfer be executed by or on behalf of the transferor and, if any of the shares is partly paid, the transferee. Similar provision is made in the Companies (Table A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 23. In the case of a private company the model articles provide for execution by or on behalf of the transferor only: see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1 Pt 3 art 26(1). 404. Production of share certificate.

A company's articles of association¹ generally require a transfer of shares lodged for registration² to be accompanied by the certificate of such shares³. The articles generally also provide for the granting of a new certificate on proof of the loss or destruction of the old certificate, or upon a satisfactory indemnity being given⁴. Where the articles provide that transfers must be registered on presentation of the transfer accompanied by such evidence as the company may require of the transferor's title, the directors may refuse to register if the certificate is not so produced⁵.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(9) CERTIFICATION AND TRANSFER OF SECURITIES/(i) Shares/C. TRANSFER OF CERTIFICATED SHARES/(C) Formalities required by Transfer/405. Certification of transfers of shares.

405. Certification of transfers of shares.

Where a shareholder¹ sells some only of the shares comprised in one certificate², or sells some to one person and the rest to another, on the deposit of the transfer and certificate with the company³, the secretary⁴ generally indorses a note on the transfer or transfers that the certificate has been lodged. This practice, called 'certification of transfers', arose from the difficulty felt by members of the Stock Exchange⁵ in settling their accounts as buyers and sellers of shares where the seller's certificate does not accompany his transfer.

The certification by a company⁶ of an instrument of transfer of any shares⁷ in the company is to be taken as a representation by the company to any person acting on the faith of the certification that there have been produced to the company such documents as on their face show a prima facie title to the shares in the transferor named in the instrument⁸. The certification is not to be taken as a representation that the transferor has any title to the shares⁹. Where a person acts on the faith of a false certification by a company made negligently, the company is under the same liability to him as if the certification had been made fraudulently¹⁰.

These provisions impose very serious liabilities upon a company, which, however, is not bound to certify transfers at all.

If the company by mistake returns the share certificate to the transferor, and the transferor is thereby enabled to obtain money on another transfer of the shares, the company is not liable to the second transferee, as it has no duty to the public with regard to the custody of the certificate¹¹.

406. Issue of certificates on transfer of shares.

A company¹ must, within two months² after the date on which a transfer³ of any of its shares⁴ is lodged with the company, complete and have ready for delivery the certificates of the shares transferred⁵. However, this duty does not apply:

- 705 (1) if the conditions of issue of the shares provide otherwise⁶;
- 706 (2) in the case of a transfer to a financial institution⁷;
- 707 (3) in the case of a transfer of shares if, following the transfer, the company has issued a share warrant⁸ in respect of the shares⁹; or
- 708 (4) in the case of a transfer to a person¹⁰ where he is not entitled¹¹ to a certificate or other document of or evidencing title in respect of the securities transferred¹².

If default is made in complying with this duty¹³ an offence is committed by every officer¹⁴ of the company who is in default¹⁵.

Transferor's liability after registration of transfer of shares.

408. Transferor's liability after registration of transfer of shares.

When a transfer of shares has been duly registered¹, the transferor ceases to be a member of the company² in respect of the shares transferred. Thereupon he becomes a 'past member' of the company, and in case of a winding up is liable to contribute towards the payment of its debts and liabilities and the expenses of the winding up and for the adjustment of the rights of contributors among themselves³, to the extent of the amount remaining unpaid on the shares, where it appears to the court that the existing members are unable to satisfy the contributions required to be made by them under the Insolvency Act 1986⁴, unless the debt or liability was contracted after he has ceased to be a member⁵, or unless he has ceased to be a member for a year or upwards before the commencement of the winding up⁶.

Where a limited company is re-registered as unlimited⁷, a person⁸ who, at the time when the application for it to be re-registered was lodged, was a past member of the company, and did not thereafter again become a member, does not have his liability increased⁹.

Where an unlimited company is re-registered as limited¹⁰, a past member of the company who was a member of it at the time of re-registration is, if the winding up commences within a period of three years from re-registration, liable to contribute to the assets of the company without limit in respect of debts and liabilities contracted before such re-registration¹¹. Where no persons who were members of the company at that time are existing members of the company, a person who at such time was a present or past member of the company will (unless he has ceased to be a member for one year or upwards), if the winding up takes place within a period of three years from re-registration, be liable to contribute without limit notwithstanding that the existing members have satisfied the contributions required to be made by them under the Insolvency Act 1986¹².

409. Stamp duty reserve tax.

Until a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹.

Stamp duty reserve tax is charged in respect of agreements to transfer certain securities for money or money's worth and in respect of arrangements involving depositary receipts and clearance services². The principal charge in respect of agreements is deferred and will not arise if certain conditions are satisfied³; but there is also an immediate and unconditional charge in respect of agreements to transfer chargeable securities which are constituted by or transferable by means of certain renounceable instruments as soon as they are made, without regard to whether or not the agreement is implemented by an instrument of transfer⁴. In each case, tax is imposed at the rate of 50 pence for every £100 or part of £100 of the amount or value of the consideration⁵. A higher rate charge of £1.50 per £100 or part of £100 of the amount or value of the consideration is imposed in respect of certain transactions involving depositary receipts or clearance services which do not give rise to a transfer chargeable with ad valorem stamp duty in the same amount as the tax⁶.

1 The Finance Act 1986 Pt IV (ss 86-99) is repealed by the Finance Act 1990 s 132, Sch 19 Pt VII as from a day to be appointed in accordance with s 110: see Sch 19 Pt VII; and STAMP DUTIES AND STAMP DUTY RESERVE TAX vol 44(1) (Reissue) PARA 1119. 410. Issue of certificates etc on allotment.

A company¹ must, within two months after the allotment of any of its debentures² or debenture stock³, complete and have ready for delivery, the debentures allotted⁴, or the certificates of the debenture stock allotted⁵. This requirement does, however, not apply: (1) if the conditions of issue of the debentures or debenture stock provide otherwise⁶; or (2) in the case of allotment to a financial institution⁷.

If default is made in complying with the requirement to complete and have ready for delivery the debentures allotted, or the certificates of the debenture stock allotted, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default⁸. A person guilty of such an offence is liable (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale⁹ and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine¹⁰ not exceeding one-tenth of level 3 on the standard scale¹¹.

B. TRANSFER OF DEBENTURES

(A) TRANSFER IN GENERAL

412. Transfer of debentures by delivery.

Being a negotiable instrument¹, a bearer debenture² is transferable by delivery so as to pass the property in it to a holder for value in good faith, and entitle him, upon delivery of it to the company, to obtain payment of the principal secured when due, and to sue in his own name upon the debenture³.

Cf Goodwin v Roberts (1876) 1 App Cas 476, HL, apparently overruling Crouch v Crédit Foncier of England (1873) LR 8 QB 374 (where it was held that the company might lawfully refuse to pay the bona fide transferee for value of a stolen debenture payable to bearer, even though he had no notice of the theft). 2 As to debentures payable to bearer see PARA 1304. As to the meaning of 'debenture' see PARA 1299.

3 In certain cases decided before the negotiability of bearer debentures had been fully established (see note 1), the holder for value in good faith of a bearer debenture was held entitled to prove on the debentures without being subject to equities between the company and the persons to whom the debentures were originally issued: see Re Blakely Ordnance Co, ex p New Zealand Corpn (1867) 3 Ch App 154; Re General Estates Co, ex p City Bank (1868) 3 Ch App 758 (where the question arose whether the instrument was not in fact a promissory note); Re Imperial Land Co of Marseilles, ex p Colborne and Strawbridge (1870) LR 11 Eq 478 at 490-491, 494 per Malins V-C (question whether the instrument was a promissory note). COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(9) CERTIFICATION AND TRANSFER OF SECURITIES/(ii) Debentures/B. TRANSFER OF DEBENTURES/(A) Transfer in general/413. Transfer of debentures by instrument.

413. Transfer of debentures by instrument.

According to the ordinary form, a registered debenture¹ is legally transferable only by an instrument of transfer duly executed or signed and by registration in the company's books. The conditions of registered debentures usually provide that the company must keep a register of the debentures at its registered office, containing the names, addresses and descriptions of the registered holders and particulars of the debentures held by them respectively; that every transfer must be in writing under the hand of the registered holder or his legal personal representatives; that, upon delivery of the transfer at the registered office with the prescribed fee and such evidence of identity or title as the company may reasonably require, the transfer is to be registered, and a note of the registration is to be indorsed on the debenture; and that the company will be entitled to retain the transfer². The simplified form of transfer introduced by the Stock Transfer Act 1963 applies to debentures³.

When the principal and interest secured by the debenture are to be paid to the registered holder for the time being without regard to any equities subsisting between the company and the original or any intermediate holder, and the conditions as to transfer are similar to those mentioned above, a liquidator is bound to register the transfer, even if made after the liquidation commenced, and after judgment in a claim by debenture holders, but before any notice of a claim by the company against the transferor⁴.

1 As to which see PARA 1277 et seq. As to the meaning of 'debenture' see PARA 1299.

2 Under such provisions, a person entitled by transmission is not bound to produce a transfer before registration: Edwards v Ransomes and Rapier Ltd (1930) 143 LT 594.

Necessity for proper instrument of transfer.

(B) FORMALITIES REQUIRED BY TRANSFER

414. Necessity for proper instrument of transfer.

A company¹ may not register a transfer of debentures² of the company unless: (1) a proper instrument of transfer has been delivered to it³; or (2) the transfer is an exempt transfer⁴ or is in accordance with regulations⁵ relating to the evidencing and transfer of title to securities without written instrument⁶. However, this requirement⁷ does not affect any power of the company to register as debenture holder a person to whom the right to any debentures of the company has been transmitted by operation of law⁸.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(9) CERTIFICATION AND TRANSFER OF SECURITIES/(ii) Debentures/B. TRANSFER OF DEBENTURES/(B) Formalities required by Transfer/415. Procedure on transfer being lodged.

415. Procedure on transfer being lodged.

When a transfer of debentures¹ of a company² has been lodged with the company³, the company must, as soon as practicable and in any event within two months after the date on which the transfer is lodged with it⁴, either register the transfer⁵, or give the transferee notice of refusal to register the transfer, together with its reasons for the refusal⁶. If a company fails to comply with these requirements⁷, an offence is committed by the company and by every officer of the company who is in default⁸. A person guilty of such an offence is liable (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale⁹ and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine¹⁰ not exceeding one-tenth of level 3 on the standard scale¹¹.

If the company refuses to register a transfer of debentures, it must provide the transferee with such further information about the reasons for the refusal as the transferee may reasonably request¹². If a company fails to comply with these requirements¹³, an offence is committed by the company and by every officer of the company who is in default¹⁴. A person guilty of such an offence is liable (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine not exceeding one-tenth of level 3 on the standard scale¹⁵.

A company's articles of association¹⁶ usually require that securities are to be transferred in any usual form or any other form approved by the directors¹⁷.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(9) CERTIFICATION AND TRANSFER OF SECURITIES/(ii) Debentures/B. TRANSFER OF DEBENTURES/(B) Formalities required by Transfer/417. Certification of instrument of transfer of debentures.

417. Certification of instrument of transfer of debentures.

The certification by a company¹ of an instrument of transfer of any debentures² of the company is to be taken as a representation by the company to any person acting on the faith of the certification that there have been produced to the company such documents as on their face show a prima facie title to the debentures in the transferor named in the instrument³. The certification is not to be taken as a representation that the transferor has any title to the debentures⁴. Where a person acts on the faith of a false certification by a company made negligently, the company is under the same liability to him as if the certification had been made fraudulently⁵.

These provisions impose very serious liabilities upon a company, which, however, is not bound to certify transfers at all.

If the company by mistake returns the debenture to the transferor, and the transferor is thereby enabled to obtain money on another transfer, the company is not liable to the second transferee, as it has no duty to the public with regard to the custody of the debenture⁶.

2 As to the meaning of 'debenture' see PARA 1299. As to transfers of debentures see PARAS 412-416. For these purposes: (1) an instrument of transfer is certificated if it bears the words 'certificate lodged' (or words to the like effect) (Companies Act 2006 s 775(4)(a)); (2) the certification of an instrument of transfer is made by a company if the person issuing the instrument is a person authorised to issue certificated instruments of transfer on the company's behalf (s 775(4)(b)(i)), and if the certification is signed by a person authorised to certificate transfers on the company's behalf or by an officer or employee either of the company or of a body corporate so authorised (s 775(4)(b)(ii)); (3) a certification is treated as signed by a person if it purports to be authenticated by his signature or initials (whether handwritten or not) (s 775(4)(c)(i)), and if it is not shown that the signature or initials was or were placed there neither by himself nor by a person authorised to use the signature or initials for the purpose of certificating transfers on the company's behalf (s 775(4)(c)(ii)). Issue of certificates etc on transfer.

418. Issue of certificates etc on transfer.

A company¹ must, within two months after the date on which a transfer² of any of its debentures³ or debenture stock⁴ is lodged with the company, complete and have ready for delivery, the debentures transferred⁵, or the certificates of the debenture stock transferred⁶.

However, this duty does not apply:

- 709 (1) if the conditions of issue of the debentures or debenture stock provide otherwise⁷;

- 710 (2) in the case of a transfer to a financial institution⁸;
 711 (3) in the case of a transfer to a person where he is not entitled⁹ to a certificate or other document of or evidencing title in respect of the securities transferred¹⁰.

If default is made in complying with this duty¹¹ to complete and have ready for delivery, the debentures transferred, or the certificates of the debenture stock transferred, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default¹². A person guilty of such an offence is liable (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale¹³ and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine¹⁴ not exceeding one-tenth of level 3 on the standard scale¹⁵.

420. Provision to allow securities to be evidenced without certificate and transferred without written instrument.

Provision may be made by regulations¹ for enabling title to securities to be evidenced and transferred without a written instrument². The regulations must contain such safeguards as appear to the authority making the regulations appropriate for the protection of investors and for ensuring that competition is not restricted, distorted or prevented³. The regulations may:

- 712 (1) make provision for procedures for recording and transferring title to securities⁴, and for the regulation of those procedures and the persons⁵ responsible for or involved in their operation⁶;
- 713 (2) for the purpose of enabling or facilitating the operation of the procedures provided for by the regulations, make provision with respect to the rights and obligations of persons in relation to securities dealt with under the procedures⁷;
- 714 (3) include provision for the purpose of giving effect to (a) the transmission of title to securities by operation of law⁸; (b) any restriction on the transfer of title to securities arising by virtue of the provisions of any enactment⁹ or instrument, court order or agreement¹⁰; (c) any power conferred by any such provision on a person to deal with securities on behalf of the person entitled¹¹;
- 715 (4) make provision with respect to the persons responsible for the operation of the procedures provided for by the regulations as to the consequences of their insolvency or incapacity¹², or as to the transfer from them to other persons of their functions in relation to those procedures¹³.

Regulations¹⁴ may also make provision: (i) enabling the members of a company¹⁵ or of any designated class of companies¹⁶ to adopt, by ordinary resolution¹⁷, arrangements under which title to securities is required to be evidenced or transferred (or both) without a written instrument¹⁸; or (ii) requiring companies, or any designated class of companies, to adopt such arrangements¹⁹. Such regulations may make such provision in respect of all securities issued by a company²⁰, or in respect of all securities of a specified description²¹. The regulations may prohibit the issue of any certificate by the company in respect of the issue or transfer of securities²², require the provision by the company to holders of securities of statements (at specified intervals or on specified occasions) of the securities held in their name²³, and make provision as to the matters of which any such certificate or statement is, or is not, evidence²⁴.

Regulations under these provisions²⁵ may:

- 716 (A) modify or exclude any provision of any enactment or instrument, or any rule of law²⁶;
- 717 (B) apply, with such modifications as may be appropriate, the provisions of any enactment or instrument (including provisions creating criminal offences)²⁷;
- 718 (C) require the payment of fees, or enable persons to require the payment of fees, of such amounts as may be specified in the regulations or determined in accordance with them²⁸;
- 719 (D) empower the authority making the regulations to delegate to any person willing and able to discharge them any functions of the authority under the regulations²⁹.

Before making regulations³⁰ under these provisions³¹, or any order³² enabling or requiring arrangements to be adopted³³, the authority having power to make regulations must carry out such consultation as appears to it to be appropriate³⁴.

The Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001³⁵ enable title to units of a security³⁶ to be evidenced otherwise than by a certificate³⁷ and transferred otherwise than by a written instrument by means of a relevant system³⁸, and make provision for certain supplementary and incidental matters³⁹. Where a title to a unit of a security is evidenced otherwise than by a certificate by virtue of these regulations, the transfer of title to such a unit of a security is subject to the regulations⁴⁰.

1 The power to make regulations under the Companies Act 2006 Pt 21 Ch 2 (ss 783-790) is exercisable by the Treasury and the Secretary of State, either jointly or concurrently (s 784(1)); and references to the authority having power to make regulations must accordingly be read as references to both or either of them, as the case may require (s 784(2)). Any such regulations are subject to affirmative resolution procedure (ie the order must not be made unless a draft of the statutory instrument containing it has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament) (ss 784(3), 1290); and, before making such regulations, the authority having power to make such regulations must carry out such consultation as appears to it to be appropriate(s 789). In exercise of the powers so conferred, the Treasury has made the Companies Act 2006 (Consequential Amendments) (Uncertificated Securities) Order 2009, SI 2009/1889. As to the making of regulations under the Companies Act 2006 generally see ss 1288-1292. As to the Treasury see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARAS 512-517. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6.

2 Companies Act 2006 s 785(1). In Pt 21 Ch 2 (ss 783-790): (1) 'securities' means shares, debentures, debenture stock, loan stock, bonds, units of a collective investment scheme within the meaning of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 603) and other securities of any description (s 783(a)); (2) references to title to securities include any legal or equitable interest in securities (s 783(b)); (3) references to a transfer of title include a transfer by way of security (s 783(c)); (4) references to transfer without a written instrument include, in relation to bearer securities, transfer without delivery (s 783(d)). As to the meaning of 'share' see PARA 1042. As to the meaning of 'debenture' see PARA 1299. As to bearer securities see PARA 1304.

15 As to the meaning of 'member of a company' see PARA 321. As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24.

16 In the Companies Act 2006 s 786, references to a designated class of companies are to a class designated in the regulations or by order under s 787 (s 786(5)(a)); and 'specified' means specified in the regulations (s 786(5)(b)). The authority having power to make regulations may by order: (1) designate classes of companies for the purposes of s 786 (s 787(1)(a)); (2) provide that, in relation to securities of a specified description in a designated class of companies (s 787(1)(b)(i)), or in a specified company or class of companies (s 787(1)(b)(ii)), specified provisions of regulations made by virtue of s 786 either do not apply or apply subject to specified modifications (s 787(1)(b)). In this context, 'specified' means specified in the order: s 787(2). Such an order is subject to negative resolution procedure (ie the statutory instrument containing the order being subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament)(ss 787(3), 1289); and, before making any order under s 787, the authority having power to make regulations under Pt 21 Ch 2 must carry out such consultation as appears to it to be appropriate (s 789). As to the making of orders under the Companies Act 2006 generally see ss 1288-1292. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such order had been made under s 787.

17 As to the meaning of 'ordinary resolution' see PARA 613. The Companies Act 2006 Pt 3 Ch 3 (ss 29-30) (see PARA 231) applies to a resolution passed by virtue of regulations under Pt 21 Ch 2 (ss 783-790): see s 790.

18 Companies Act 2006 s 786(1)(a). The arrangements provided for by the regulations making such provision as is mentioned in s 786(1): (1) must not be such that a person who but for the arrangements would be entitled to have his name entered in the company's register of members ceases to be so entitled (s 786(3)(a)); and (2) must be such that a person who but for the arrangements would be entitled to exercise any rights in respect of the securities continues to be able effectively to control the exercise of those rights (s 786(3)(b)). As to the register of members see PARA 335 et seq.

- 36 'Unit', in relation to a security, means the smallest possible transferable unit of the security (for example a single share): Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 3(1).
- 37 'Certificate' means any certificate, instrument or other document of, or evidencing, title to units of a security: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 3(1). As to share certificates see PARA 381.
- 38 As to the meaning of 'relevant system' see PARA 421 note 1.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(9) CERTIFICATION AND TRANSFER OF SECURITIES/(iii) Uncertificated Securities/421. Uncertificated shares.

421. Uncertificated shares.

Where an operator¹ permits title to shares² of the appropriate class³, or in relation to which a directors' resolution duly passed⁴ is effective, to be transferred by means of a relevant system⁵, and the company in question permits the holding of shares of that class in uncertificated form and the transfer of title to any such shares by means of a relevant system⁶, then title to shares of that class which are recorded on an operator register of members may be transferred by means of that relevant system⁷. Such securities are known as 'participating securities'⁸; and the issuer of such a security is known as a 'participating issuer'⁹.

Any requirements in an enactment or rule of law which apply in respect of the transfer of securities otherwise than by means of a relevant system do not prevent an operator from registering a transfer of title to uncertificated units of a security¹⁰ upon settlement of a transfer of such units in accordance with his rules¹¹, or an operator-instruction from requiring a participating issuer to register a transfer of title to uncertificated units of a security¹². Notwithstanding any enactment, instrument or rule of law, a participating issuer must not issue a certificate in relation to any uncertificated units of a participating security¹³; and a document issued by or on behalf of a participating issuer purportedly evidencing title to an uncertificated unit of a participating security is not evidence of title to the unit of the security¹⁴. Any requirement in or under any enactment to endorse any statement or information on a certificate evidencing title to a unit of a security does not prohibit the conversion into, or issue of, units of the security in uncertificated form¹⁵; and, in relation to uncertificated units of the security, must be taken to be a requirement for the relevant participating issuer to provide the holder of the units with the statement or information on request by him¹⁶.

1 'Operator' means a person approved by the Treasury under the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, as operator of a relevant system: reg 3(1). As to the continuing effect of the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, see PARA 420 note 35. As to the Treasury see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARAS 512-517. As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 311 note 2. 'Relevant system' means a computer-based system, and procedures, which enable title to units of a security to be evidenced and transferred without a written instrument, and which facilitate supplementary and incidental matters: see reg 2(1). 'Relevant system' includes an 'operator-system', that is to say those facilities and procedures which are part of the relevant system, which are maintained and operated by or for an operator, by which he generates operator-instructions and receives dematerialised instructions from system-participants and by which persons change the form in which units of a participating security are held (see PARAS 422-423): reg 3(1). As to the meaning of 'securities' see PARA 420 note 2. As to the meaning of references to title to securities, to a transfer of title, and to transfer without a written instrument, see PARA 420 note 2. As to the meaning of 'unit' see PARA 420 note 36. 'Operator-instruction' means a properly authenticated dematerialised instruction attributable to an operator; and 'dematerialised instruction' means an instruction sent or received by means of a relevant system: reg 3(1). 'Instruction' includes any instruction, election, acceptance or any other message of any kind: reg 3(1). For this purpose, a dematerialised instruction is properly authenticated if it complies with the specifications referred to in reg 5(1), Sch 1 para 5(3) (reg 3(2)(a)); and a dematerialised instruction is attributable to a person if it is expressed to have been sent by that person, or if it is expressed to have been sent on behalf of that person, in accordance with the rules and specifications referred to in Sch 1 para 5(4) (reg 3(2)(b)). A dematerialised instruction may be attributable to more than one person: reg 3(2)(b). As to properly authenticated dematerialised instructions see also reg 35. As to liability for forged dematerialised instructions and induced operator-instructions see reg 36. 'System-participant', in relation to a relevant system, means a person who is permitted by an operator to send and receive properly authenticated dematerialised instructions: reg 3(1). 'Generate', in relation to an operator-instruction, means to initiate the procedures by which the operator-instruction comes to be sent: reg 3(1). The settlement service for the London Stock Exchange is provided by CRESTCo: see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARAS 75-76. Nothing in the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, prevents an operator from charging a fee for carrying out any function under Pt 3 (regs 14-34) (reg 39(1)), except that an operator may not charge a fee to a participating issuer (see note 9) for maintaining or keeping and entering up an operator register of securities (see note 3) (reg 39(2)).

2 'Share' means share (or stock) in the share capital of a company: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 3(1). As to the meaning of 'share' generally see PARA 1042. As to the meaning of 'share capital' see PARA 1042. As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24.

3 In relation to which the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 15 applies. Regulation 15 applies to a class of shares if the company's articles of association are in all respects consistent with: (1) the holding of shares of that class in uncertificated form; (2) the transfer of title to shares of that class by means of a relevant system; and (3) the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755: reg 15. As to a company's articles of association see PARA 228 et seq. As to companies whose articles of association in any respect are inconsistent with these requirements see note 4. As to the provision made in the model articles as to uncertificated shares see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 4, Sch 3 Pt 4 arts 50, 64. As to the model articles see PARA 228. 'Uncertificated', in relation to a unit of a security, means (subject to the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 42: see PARA 1516) that title to the unit is recorded on the relevant operator register of securities, and may, by virtue of the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, be transferred by means of a relevant system; and 'certificated', in relation to a unit of a security, means that the unit is not an uncertificated unit: reg 3(1). 'Operator register of securities', in relation to shares, means an operator register of members: reg 3(1). As to the meaning of 'operator register of members' see PARA 340. As to liability for induced amendments to operator registers of securities see reg 36. For the purposes of regs 15, 16 (see note 4) and 17, any shares with respect to which share warrants to bearer are issued under the Companies Act 2006 s 779 (see PARA 382) are regarded as forming a separate class of shares: see the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 18 (amended by SI 2009/1889). A class of shares in relation to which, immediately before 26 November 2001 (ie the date on which the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, came into force: see reg 1), the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 1995, SI 1995/3272, reg 15 (now revoked) applied is taken to be a class of shares in relation to which the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 15 applies: reg 17(1)(a). As from 26 November 2001, a company's articles of association in relation to any such class of shares, and the terms of issue of any such class of shares, cease to apply to the extent that they are inconsistent with any provision of the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755: reg 17(2).

4 In accordance with the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 16. Regulation 16 applies to a class of shares if a company's articles of association in any respect are inconsistent with: (1) the holding of shares of that class in uncertificated form; (2) the transfer of title to shares of that class by means of a relevant system; or (3) any provision of the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755: reg 16(1). See also as to what constitutes a class of shares reg 18; and note 3. A company may resolve by resolution of its directors (a 'directors' resolution') that title to shares of a class issued or to be issued by it may be transferred by means of a relevant system: reg 16(2). As to the meaning of 'director' see PARA 478. Upon a directors' resolution becoming effective in accordance with its terms, and for as long as it is in force, the articles of association in relation to the class of shares which were the subject of the directors' resolution do not apply to any uncertificated shares of that class to the extent that they are inconsistent with heads (1)-(3) above: reg 16(3). Unless a company has given notice to every member of the company in accordance with its articles of association of its intention to pass a directors' resolution before the passing of such a resolution, it must give such notice within 60 days of the passing of the resolution: reg 16(4). As to who qualifies as a member of a company see PARA 321. In the event of default in complying with reg 16(4), an offence is committed by every officer of the issuer who is in default: reg 16(7) (reg 16(7) substituted, (7A) added by SI 2007/2194). A person guilty of such an offence is liable on conviction on indictment, to a fine; or on summary conviction, to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 16(7A) (as so added). As to the statutory maximum see PARA 1622. An officer of a participating issuer is in default in complying with, or in contravention of, reg 16(4) if, and only if, he knowingly and wilfully authorised or permitted the default: see reg 47(1). 'Officer', in relation to an operator or a participating issuer, includes: (a) where the operator or the participating issuer is a company, such persons as are mentioned in the Companies Act 2006 s 1173(1) (see PARA 607); (b) where the operator or the participating issuer is a partnership, a partner or, in the event that no partner is situated in the United Kingdom, a person in the United Kingdom who is acting on behalf of a partner; and (c) where the operator or the participating issuer is neither a company nor a partnership, any member of its governing body or, in the event that no member of its governing body is situated in the United Kingdom, a person in the United Kingdom who is acting on behalf of any member of its governing body: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 3(1) (definition amended by SI 2009/1889). As to companies and partnerships etc see PARAS 1-4. As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 1 note 5. Notice given by the company before 26 November 2001 (ie the date on which the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, came into force: see reg 1), of its intention to pass a directors' resolution which, if it had been given after the coming into force of the regulations would have satisfied the requirements of reg 16(4), are taken to satisfy those requirements: reg 16(5). In respect of a class of shares, the members of a company may by ordinary resolution:

- 158 (i) if a directors' resolution has not been passed, resolve that the directors of the company may not pass a directors' resolution;
- 159 (ii) if a directors' resolution has been passed but not yet come into effect in accordance with its terms, resolve that it may not come into effect;
- 160 (iii) if a directors' resolution has been passed and is effective in accordance with its terms but the class of shares has not yet been permitted by the operator to be a participating security, resolve that the directors' resolution ceases to have effect; or
- 161 (iv) if a directors' resolution has been passed and is effective in accordance with its terms and the class of shares has been permitted by the operator to be a participating security, resolve that the directors must take the necessary steps to ensure that title to shares of the class that was the subject of the directors' resolution cease to be transferable by means of a relevant system and that the directors' resolution ceases to have effect, and the directors are bound by the terms of any such ordinary resolution: reg 16(6). The Companies Act 2006 Pt 3 Ch 3 (ss 29-30) (resolutions affecting a company's constitution: see PARA 231) applies to a directors' resolution passed by virtue of the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 16(2), or a resolution of a company passed by virtue of reg 16(6) preventing or reversing such a resolution: reg 16(8A) (added by SI 2007/2194; amended by SI 2009/1889). As to the meaning of 'ordinary resolution' see PARA 613. A company may not permit the holding of shares in such a class as is referred to in the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 16(1) in uncertificated form, or the transfer of title to shares in such a class by means of a relevant system, unless in relation to that class of shares a directors' resolution is effective: reg 16(8). A default in complying with, or a contravention of, reg 16(8) is actionable at the suit of a person who suffers loss as a result of the default or contravention, or who is otherwise adversely affected by it, subject to the defences and other incidents applying to claims for breach of statutory duty: reg 46(1). However, this does not affect the liability which any person may incur, nor affect any right which any person may have, apart from reg 46(1): reg 46(2). As to breach of statutory duty see TORT vol 45(2) (Reissue) PARA 395 et seq. Regulation 16 must not be taken to exclude the right of the members of a company to amend the articles of association of the company, in accordance with the articles, to allow the holding of any class of its shares in uncertificated form and the transfer of title to shares in such a class by means of a relevant system: reg 16(9). A class of shares in relation to which, immediately before 26 November 2001, the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 1995, SI 1995/3272, reg 16 (revoked) applied is taken to be a class of shares in relation to which a directors' resolution passed in accordance with the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 16 is effective: reg 17(1)(b).

6 Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 14(b).

7 Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 14. References in any enactment or rule of law to a proper instrument of transfer or to a transfer with respect to securities, or any expression having like meaning, is taken to include a reference to an operator-instruction to a participating issuer to register a transfer of title on the relevant issuer register of securities in accordance with the operator-instruction: reg 37. As to the meaning of 'issuer register of securities' see PARA 422 note 20. As to the transfer and registration of uncertificated securities other than shares see PARA 425.

8 'Participating security' means a security title to units of which is permitted by an operator to be transferred by means of a relevant system: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 3(1). Where the terms of issue of a participating security which is a share, or the articles of association of the company in question, provide that its units may only be held in uncertificated form, and title to them may only be transferred by means of a relevant system, that security is known as a 'wholly dematerialised security': reg 3(1). As to the conversion of securities into certificated form, by means of a rematerialisation notice, see PARA 422. As to the conversion of securities into uncertificated form see PARA 423.

9 'Participating issuer' means, subject to certain provisions relating to general public sector securities (ie the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 3(3)), a person who has issued a security which is a participating security: reg 3(1).

10 As to the transfer of uncertificated shares see PARA 420.

11 'Settlement', in relation to a transfer of uncertificated units of a security between two system-members by means of a relevant system, means the delivery of those units to the transferee and, where appropriate, the creation of any associated obligation to make payments, in accordance with the rules and practices of the operator; and 'settle' is to be construed accordingly: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 3(1). 'Rules', in relation to an operator, means rules made or conditions imposed by him with respect to the provision of the relevant system: reg 3(1). As to the meaning of 'system-member' see PARA 422 note 9.

13 Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 38(2). This provision is expressed to be subject to reg 32(7): see PARA 422 note 21.

14 See the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 38(3). In particular, the Companies Act 2006 s 768 (see PARA 381) does not apply to any document issued with respect to uncertificated shares: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 38(3)(a) (amended by SI 2009/1889). Nor do the provisions of the Law of Property Act 1925 s 53(1)(c) (see DEEDS AND OTHER INSTRUMENTS vol 13 (2007 Reissue) PARA 24) or s 136 (see CHOSES IN ACTION vol 13 (2009) PARA 72 et seq) (which impose requirements for certain dispositions and assignments to be in writing) apply, if they would otherwise do so, to any transfer of title to uncertificated units of a security by means of a relevant system; and any disposition or assignment of an interest in uncertificated units of a security title to which is held by a relevant nominee: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 38(5). For this purpose, 'relevant nominee' means a subsidiary undertaking of an operator designated by him as a relevant nominee in accordance with his rules and practices: reg 38(6). As to the requirements to be met by an operator's rules and practices see Sch 1 paras 25-27.

16 Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 38(4)(b).

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(9) CERTIFICATION AND TRANSFER OF SECURITIES/(iii) Uncertificated Securities/422. Conversion of uncertificated securities into certificated form.

422. Conversion of uncertificated securities into certificated form.

Except as provided for by the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001¹, a unit of a participating security² must not be converted from uncertificated³ form into certificated⁴ form unless an operator⁵ generates an operator-instruction⁶ (known as a 'rematerialisation notice') to notify the relevant participating issuer⁷ that a conversion event has occurred⁸. A conversion event occurs:

- 720 (1) where such a conversion is permitted by the operator's conversion rules⁹; or
- 721 (2) following receipt by an operator of a system-member instruction¹⁰ requiring the conversion into certificated form of uncertificated units of a participating security registered in the name of the system-member¹¹; or
- 722 (3) following receipt by an operator of written notification from a participating issuer which is a company¹² requiring the conversion into certificated form of uncertificated units of a participating security, issued by that participating issuer and registered in the name of a system-member, and containing a statement that the conversion is required to enable the participating issuer to deal with the units in question in accordance with provisions in that participating issuer's memorandum or articles¹³ or in the terms of issue of the units in question¹⁴.

An operator may generate a rematerialisation notice following a conversion event occurring in the circumstances specified in head (1) above¹⁵; he must generate such a notice following a conversion event occurring in the circumstances specified in head (2) above unless the participation in the relevant system, by the system-member in whose name the uncertificated units in question are registered, has been suspended pursuant to the operator's rules¹⁶; and he must also generate such a notice following a conversion event occurring in the circumstances specified in head (3) above¹⁷.

On the generation of a rematerialisation notice, the operator must delete any entry in an operator register of securities¹⁸ which shows the relevant system-member as the holder of the unit or units specified in the rematerialisation notice¹⁹.

On receipt of a rematerialisation notice, the participating issuer to whom the rematerialisation notice is addressed must, where relevant, enter the name of the system-member on an issuer register of securities²⁰ as the holder of the unit or units specified in the rematerialisation notice²¹. Such sanctions as apply to a company and its officers in the event of a default in complying with the provisions of the Companies Act 2006 if a company refuses to register a transfer of shares or debentures²² apply to an operator and his officers in the event of a default in complying with the above requirement²³ to delete entries in an operator register of securities²⁴, and apply to a participating issuer and his officers in the event of a default in complying with the above requirement²⁵ to enter the name of the system-member on an issuer register of securities²⁶.

During any period between the required deletion of any entry in an operator register of securities and the required making of the entry in an issuer register of securities, the relevant system-member retains title to the units of the security specified in the rematerialisation notice notwithstanding the deletion of any entry in the operator register of securities²⁷; and, where those units are shares, the relevant system-member is deemed to continue to be a member of the company²⁸.

Nothing in the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, requires an operator or participating issuer, or their officers, to take any action to change a unit of a wholly dematerialised security from uncertificated form to certificated form or vice versa: reg 45(b). As to the meaning of 'officer' (in relation to an operator or a participating issuer) see PARA 421 note 4. As to the meaning of 'wholly dematerialised security' see PARA 421 note 8.

9 Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 32(2)(a). 'Operator's conversion rules' means the rules made and practices instituted by the operator in order to comply with Sch 1 para 18: reg 3(1). As to the meaning of 'rules' (in relation to an operator) see PARA 421 note 11. A relevant system must enable system-members: (1) to change the form in which they hold units of a participating security; and (2) where appropriate, to require participating issuers to issue certificates relating to units of a participating security held or to be held by them: Sch 1 para 18. As to the meaning of 'relevant system' see PARA 421 note 1. 'System-member', in relation to a relevant system, means a person who is permitted by an operator to transfer by means of that system title to uncertificated units of a security held by him, and includes, where relevant, two or more persons who are jointly so permitted: reg 3(1). As to the meaning of 'certificate' see PARA 420 note 37. As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 311 note 2. As to the meaning of references to title to securities, and to a transfer of title see PARA 420 note 2.

10 'System-member instruction' means a properly authenticated dematerialised instruction attributable to a system-member: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 3(1). As to the meaning of 'dematerialised instruction' see PARA 421 note 1.

19 Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 32(4).

20 'Issuer register of securities', in relation to shares, means an issuer register of members: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 3(1). As to the meaning of 'issuer register of members' see PARA 340.

21 Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 32(5). A default in complying with, or a contravention of, reg 32(5) is actionable at the suit of a person who suffers loss as a result of the default or contravention, or who is otherwise adversely affected by it, subject to the defences and other incidents applying to claims for breach of statutory duty: see reg 46(1). However, this does not affect the liability which any person may incur, nor affect any right which any person may have, apart from reg 46(1): reg 46(2). As to breach of statutory duty see TORT vol 45(2) (Reissue) PARA 395 et seq. Following the making of an entry in an issuer register of securities in accordance with reg 32(5) or registration of a transfer of title to units of a security in accordance with reg 28 (see PARA 427), the relevant participating issuer must, where the terms of issue of the security in question provide for a certificate to be issued, issue a certificate in respect of the units of the security to the relevant person: reg 32(7). The Companies Act 2006 s 776(1) (duty of company as to issue of certificates: see PARA 406) applies in relation to the issue of a certificate by a participating issuer pursuant to the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 32(7) as it applies in relation to the completion and having ready for delivery by a company of share certificates, debentures or certificates of debenture stock: reg 32(8) (amended by SI 2009/1889). The reference in the Companies Act 2006 s 776(1)(b) (as it so applies) to the date on which a transfer is lodged with the company is a reference to the date on which the participating issuer receives the relevant rematerialisation notice in accordance with the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 32, or the relevant operator-instruction in accordance with reg 27(7) (see PARA 426): reg 32(8) (as so amended). Such sanctions as apply to a company and its officers in the event of a default in complying with the Companies Act 2006 s 776(1) (see PARA 406) apply to a participating issuer and his officers in the event of a default in complying with the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 32(7) in accordance with the requirements laid down in reg 32(8): reg 32(10) (amended by SI 2009/1889). For the purposes of the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 32(10), an officer of a participating issuer is in default in complying with the Companies Act 2006 s 776(1) if, and only if, he knowingly and wilfully authorised or permitted the default or contravention: see the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 47(1). However, reg 32(9) (see the text to notes 22-26), (10) does not apply to any of the following or its officers: (1) the Crown; (2) any person acting on behalf of the Crown; (3) the Bank of England; (4) the Registrar of Government Stock; (5) any previous Registrar of Government Stock; or (6) in respect of a security which immediately before it became a participating security was transferable by exempt transfer within the meaning of the Stock Transfer Act 1982 (see PARA 430), a participating issuer: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 48 (amended by SI 2004/1662). As to the Bank of England see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 793 et seq. As to the Registrar of Government Stock see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 1336.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(9) CERTIFICATION AND TRANSFER OF SECURITIES/(iii) Uncertificated Securities/423. Conversion of certificated securities into uncertificated form.

423. Conversion of certificated securities into uncertificated form.

A unit of a participating security¹ must not be converted from certificated² form into uncertificated³ form unless the participating issuer⁴ notifies the operator⁵ by means of an issuer-instruction⁶ (referred to as a 'dematerialisation notice') that any of the following circumstances have arisen⁷, namely that:

- 723 (1) where the unit of the participating security is held by a system-member⁸, the participating issuer:
- 29
52. (a) has received a request in writing from the system-member in the form required by the operator's conversion rules⁹ that the unit be converted from certificated form to uncertificated form¹⁰; and
53. (b) has received the certificate¹¹ relating to that unit¹²; or
- 30
- 724 (2) where the unit of the participating security is to be registered on an operator register of securities¹³ in the name of a system-member following a transfer of the unit to him, the participating issuer:
- 31
54. (a) has received (by means of the operator-system¹⁴ unless the operator's conversion rules permit otherwise) a proper instrument of transfer in favour of the system-member relating to the unit to be transferred¹⁵;
55. (b) has received (by means of the operator-system unless the operator's conversion rules permit otherwise) the certificate relating to that unit¹⁶; and
56. (c) may accept by virtue of the operator's conversion rules that the system-member to whom the unit is to be transferred wishes to hold it in uncertificated form¹⁷.

Upon giving a dematerialisation notice, a participating issuer must delete any entry in any issuer register of securities¹⁸ which evidences title to the unit or units of the participating security in question¹⁹; and following receipt of a dematerialisation notice, an operator must enter the name of the relevant system-member on an operator register of securities as the holder of the relevant unit or units of the participating security in question²⁰.

When a dematerialisation notice is given, the relevant system-member, or the transferor of the unit or units of the security in question, as the case may be, retains (without prejudice to any equitable interest which the transferee may have acquired in the unit or units in question) title²¹ to the units of the security specified in the dematerialisation notice notwithstanding the deletion of any entry in any issuer register of securities that is required²² to be made²³ and, where those units are shares²⁴, is deemed to continue to be a member of the company²⁵. Where a dematerialisation notice is given in the circumstances specified in head (2) above, such title is retained, and (where appropriate) such membership is deemed to continue, until the time at which the operator enters²⁶ the name of the relevant system-member on an operator register of securities²⁷.

Within two months²⁸ of receiving a dematerialisation notice, an operator must generate an operator-instruction²⁹ informing the participating issuer whether an entry has been made in an operator register of securities in response to the dematerialisation notice³⁰.

Such sanctions as apply to a company and its officers in the event of a default in complying with the provisions of the Companies Act 2006 if a company refuses to register a transfer of shares or debentures³¹ apply, in the event of a default, to a participating issuer and his officers³² or to an operator and his officers³³ (as the case may be)³⁴.

424. New issues in uncertificated form.

For the purposes of an issue of units of a participating security¹, a participating issuer² may require the operator³ to enter the name of a person in an operator register of securities⁴ as the holder of new units of that security in uncertificated⁵ form if, and only if, that person is a system-member⁶; and compliance with any such requirement is subject to the rules of the operator⁷. Such a requirement made by a participating issuer may be made by means of an issuer-instruction⁸ and must specify the names of the persons to be entered in the operator register of securities as the holders of new uncertificated units of the security, and the number of such units to be issued to each of those persons⁹.

An operator who receives such a requirement made by a participating issuer must notify the participating issuer, by operator-instruction¹⁰ or in writing, if he has not entered the name of any one or more of the persons in question in the operator register of securities as the holder of new units of the security¹¹.

425. Transfer and registration of uncertificated securities.

Where an operator¹ permits title to a security² other than a share³ to be transferred by means of a relevant system⁴, and the issuer permits the holding of units⁵ of that security in uncertificated⁶ form and the transfer of title to units of that security by means of a relevant system⁷, title to units of that security which are recorded on an operator register of securities⁸ may be transferred by means of that relevant system⁹. However, in relation to any security other than a share, if the law under which it is constituted is not the law of England and Wales¹⁰, Northern Ireland or Scotland, or if the current terms of its issue¹¹ are in any respect inconsistent with:

- 725 (1) the holding of title to units of that security in uncertificated form¹²;
- 726 (2) the transfer of title to units of that security by means of a relevant system¹³;
- or
- 727 (3) the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001¹⁴, an issuer of that security must not permit the holding of units of that security in uncertificated form, or the transfer of title to units of that security by means of a relevant system¹⁵.

Where a participating issuer¹⁶ is required by or under an enactment¹⁷ or instrument to maintain in the United Kingdom¹⁸ a register of persons¹⁹ holding securities (other than shares, general public sector securities²⁰ or eligible debt securities²¹) issued by him²², then in so far as the register in question relates to any class of security which is a participating security²³:

- 728 (a) the operator must maintain a register (an 'operator register of corporate securities'²⁴); and
- 729 (b) the participating issuer must not maintain the register to the extent that it relates to securities held in uncertificated form²⁵, but must maintain a record of the entries made in any operator register of corporate securities (a 'record of uncertificated corporate securities')²⁶.

Where an operator of a relevant system is required to maintain an operator register of corporate securities, that register must comprise, and the operator must enter on it, the names and addresses of the persons holding units of the relevant participating security in uncertificated form and how many units of that security each such person holds in that form²⁷. The same particulars must be entered in a record of uncertificated corporate securities by a participating issuer, so far as practicable²⁸, and he must, unless it is impracticable to do so by virtue of circumstances beyond his control, ensure that the record of uncertificated corporate securities is regularly reconciled with the operator register of corporate securities²⁹.

Where a participating issuer is not required by or under an enactment or instrument to maintain in the United Kingdom in respect of a participating security (other than an eligible debt security) issued by him a register of persons holding units of that participating security, the operator must maintain a register in respect of that participating security and record in that register the names and addresses of the persons holding units of that security in uncertificated form, and how many units of that security each such person holds in that form³⁰.

In respect of every participating security which is an eligible debt security, the operator must maintain a register (an 'operator register of eligible debt securities') and record in that register the names and addresses of the persons holding units of that security and how many units of that security each such person holds³¹.

11 On 26 November 2001 (ie the coming into force of the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755: see reg 1), the current terms of issue of a relevant participating security ceased to apply to the extent that they were inconsistent with any provision of the regulations: see reg 19(3). For these purposes, a relevant participating security is a participating security (other than a share) the terms of issue of which, immediately before 26 November 2001 (ie the coming into force of the regulations), were in all respects consistent with the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 1995, SI 1995/3272 (revoked); and the terms of issue of a security is taken to include the terms prescribed by the issuer on which units of the security are held and title to them is transferred: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 19(4). 20 'General public sector security' means a public sector security that is not an eligible debt security (see note 21): Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 3(1). 'Public sector securities' means UK Government securities and local authority securities; and 'UK Government security' means a security issued by Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom or by a Northern Ireland department: reg 3(1). 'Local authority security' means a security which is either (1) a security other than an eligible debt security which, when held in certificated form is transferable in accordance with the Local Authority (Stocks and Bonds) Regulations 1974, SI 1974/519, reg 7(1) and title to which must be registered in accordance with reg 5 of those Regulations; or (2) an eligible debt security issued by a local authority: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 3(1) (definition substituted by SI 2003/1633; and amended by SI 2004/2044). As to the meaning of 'certificated' see PARA 421 note 3. 'Local authority', in relation to a security referred to in head (1) of the definition of 'local authority security', has the same meaning as in the Local Authority (Stocks and Bonds) Regulations 1974, SI 1974/519; and in relation to a security referred to in head (2) of that definition has the same meaning as in the Local Government Act 2003 s 23 (see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 23): Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 3(1) (definition added by SI 2003/1633; and amended by SI 2004/2044). As to the registration of general public sector securities see the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 21 (amended by SI 2003/1633; SI 2004/1662; SI 2004/2044; SI 2009/1889). Notwithstanding the repeal of the enabling authority, ie the Local Government Act 1972 Sch 13 para 4(1), by the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 s 194(2), Sch 12 Pt I, the Local Authority (Stocks and Bonds) Regulations 1974, SI 1974/519 continue in force in relation to stock issued before 1 April 1990, by virtue of the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 (Commencement No 5 and Transitional Provisions) Order 1990, SI 1990/431, art 4, Sch 1 para 3.

21 'Eligible debt security' means: (1) a security that is constituted by an order, promise, engagement or acknowledgement to pay on demand, or at a determinable future time, a sum in money to, or to the order of, the holder of one or more units of the security and the current terms of issue of the security provide that its units may only be held in uncertificated form and title to them may only be transferred by means of a relevant system; (2) an eligible Northern Ireland Treasury Bill; or (3) an eligible Treasury Bill: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 3(1) (definition added by SI 2003/1633). 'Eligible Northern Ireland Treasury Bill' means a security constituted by a Northern Ireland Treasury Bill issued in accordance with the Exchequer and Financial Provisions Act (Northern Ireland) 1950 (as modified by the Uncertificated Securities (Amendment) (Eligible Debt Securities) Regulations 2003, SI 2003/1633, Sch 1 Pt 2) and whose current terms of issue provide that its units may only be held in uncertificated form and title to them may only be transferred by means of a relevant system: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 3(1) (definition added by SI 2003/1633). 'Eligible Treasury Bill' means a security constituted by a Treasury Bill issued in accordance with the Treasury Bills Act 1877 and the Treasury Bills Regulations 1968, SI 1968/414 (as modified by the Uncertificated Securities (Amendment) (Eligible Debt Securities) Regulations 2003, SI 2003/1633, Sch 1 Pt 1) and whose current terms of issue provide that its units may only be held in uncertificated form and title to them may only be transferred by means of a relevant system: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 3(1) (definition added by SI 2003/1633). As to Treasury Bills see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 730.

24 Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 22(2)(a)(i). The operator register of corporate securities must be kept and entered up in accordance with Sch 4 para 14 (see the text to note 27); reg 22(2)(a)(ii). Such sanctions as apply to a company and its officers in the event of a default in complying with the Companies Act 2006 s 113 (see PARA 335) apply to an operator and his officers in the event of a default in complying with the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 22(2)(a)(i); reg 22(4) (amended by SI 2003/1633; SI 2009/1889). As to the meaning of 'officer' for these purposes see PARA 421 note 4.

25 Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 22(2)(b)(i).

26 Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 22(2)(b)(ii). The record of uncertificated corporate securities must be kept and entered up in accordance with Sch 4 para 15: reg 22(2)(b)(iii). In the case of a participating issuer which is a company, the record of uncertificated corporate securities must be kept at the same place as the part of any register of debenture holders maintained by the company would be required to be kept: Sch 4 para 15(4). As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24. As to the keeping of the register of debenture holders see PARA 1321. The Companies Act 2006 ss 744(1)-(4), 746 (see PARA 1322) apply in relation to a record of uncertificated corporate securities maintained by a participating issuer which is a company, so far as that record relates to debentures, as they apply or would apply to any register of debenture holders maintained by the company; and references to the Companies Act 2006 in the Companies (Fees for Inspection and Copying of Company Records) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/2612, and in the Companies (Fees for Inspection of Company Records) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3007 must be construed accordingly: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, Sch 4 para 15(5) (amended by SI 2009/1889). Any provision of an enactment or instrument which requires a register of persons holding securities (other than shares or public sector securities) to be open to inspection also applies to the record of uncertificated corporate securities relating to any units of those securities which are participating securities: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, Sch 4 para 15(6). Such sanctions as apply in the event of a default in complying with the requirement to maintain a register imposed by the relevant enactment or instrument referred to in reg 22(1) (see the text to notes 16-22) apply to a participating issuer and his officers in the event of a default in complying with reg 22(2)(b)(ii): reg 22(5). In reg 22(5), an officer of a participating issuer is in default in complying with, or in contravention of, the provision mentioned there if, and only if, he knowingly and wilfully authorised or permitted the default or contravention: reg 47(1). Such sanctions as apply in the event of a default in complying with the requirement to maintain a register imposed by the relevant enactment or instrument referred to in reg 22(1) apply to:

162 (1) a participating issuer other than a company;

163 (2) a participating issuer which is a company, in relation to so much of the record of uncertificated corporate securities as does not relate to debentures, and to his officers in the event of a default in complying with Sch 4 para 15: Sch 4 para 19(3). However, this provision does not apply to any of the following or its officers: (a) the Crown; (b) any person acting on behalf of the Crown; (c) the Bank of England; (d) the Registrar of Government Stock; (e) any previous Registrar of Government Stock; or (f) in respect of a security which immediately before it became a participating security was transferable by exempt transfer within the meaning of the Stock Transfer Act 1982 (see PARA 430), a participating issuer: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, Sch 4 para 19(4) (amended by SI 2004/1662). As to the Bank of England see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 793 et seq. As to the Registrar of Government Stock see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 1336. An officer of a participating issuer is in default in complying with, or in contravention of Sch 4 para 15 if, and only if, he knowingly and wilfully authorised or permitted the default or contravention: Sch 4 para 20.

27 Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, Sch 4 para 14(1). The Companies Act 2006 ss 743-748 (see PARAS 1321-1323) do not apply to any part of an operator register of corporate securities: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, Sch 4 para 14(2) (amended by SI 2009/1889). An entry on a register of corporate securities which records a person as holding units of a security in uncertificated form is evidence of such title to the units as would be evidenced if the entry on that register were an entry on the part maintained by the participating issuer of such register as is mentioned in the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 22(1) (see the text to notes 16-22), and, where appropriate, related to units of that security held in certificated form: reg 24(6). This is subject to the proviso that any purported registration of a transfer of title to an uncertificated unit of a security other than in accordance with regs 27, 28 (see PARAS 426-427) is of no effect: regs 24(6), 29. Such sanctions as apply to a company and its officers in the event of a default in complying with the Companies Act 2006 s 113 (see PARA 335) apply also to an operator and his officers in the event of a default in complying with the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, Sch 4 para 14: Sch 4 para 19(1) (amended by SI 2009/1889). An officer of an operator is in default in complying with, or in contravention of, the provisions referred to in the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, Sch 4 para 19(1) if, and only if, he knowingly and wilfully authorised or permitted the default or contravention: Sch 4 para 21.

28 Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, Sch 4 para 15(1).

29 Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, Sch 4 para 15(2). Provided that it has complied with Sch 4 para 15(2), a participating issuer is not liable in respect of any act or thing done or omitted to be done by it or on its behalf in reliance upon the assumption that the particulars entered in any record of uncertificated corporate securities which the participating issuer is required to keep by the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, accord with particulars entered in any operator register of corporate securities relating to it: Sch 4 para 15(3).

30 Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 22(3) (amended by SI 2003/1633). Subject to the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 29 (see note 27), an entry on a register maintained by virtue of reg 22(3) is (where the units are capable of being held in certificated form) prima facie evidence, and in Scotland sufficient evidence unless the contrary is shown, that the person to whom the entry relates has such title to the units of the security which he is recorded as holding in uncertificated form as he would have if he held the units in certificated form: reg 24(7). Such sanctions as apply to a company and its officers in the event of a default in complying with the Companies Act 2006 s 113 (see PARA 335) apply to an operator and his officers in the event of a default in complying with the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 22(3): reg 22(4) (amended by SI 2003/1633; SI 2009/1889). In the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 22(4), an officer of an operator is in default in complying with, or in contravention of, the provision mentioned in that regulation if, and only if, he knowingly and wilfully authorised or permitted the default or contravention: reg 47(2).

31 Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 22(3A) (added by SI 2003/1633). Subject to the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 29 (see note 27), an entry on an operator register of eligible debt securities is prima facie evidence, and in Scotland sufficient evidence unless the contrary is shown, of any matters which are by those regulations directed or authorised to be inserted in it: reg 24(8) (added by SI 2003/1633). Such sanctions as apply to a company and its officers in the event of a default in complying with the Companies Act 2006 s 113 (see PARA 335) apply to an operator and his officers in the event of a default in complying with the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 22(3A): reg 22(4) (amended by SI 2003/1633; SI 2009/1889).

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(9) CERTIFICATION AND TRANSFER OF SECURITIES/(iii) Uncertificated Securities/426. Registration by an operator of transfers of uncertificated securities.

426. Registration by an operator of transfers of uncertificated securities.

Except where relevant units of a security¹ are transferred by means of a relevant system² to a person³ who is to hold them thereafter in certificated form⁴ (and subject to the provisions relating to refusal of registration⁵), an operator⁶ must register on the relevant operator register of securities⁷ the transfer of title⁸ to those units of that security⁹:

730 (1) upon settlement of a transfer of uncertificated units of a security in accordance with his rules¹⁰;

731 (2) following receipt of an issuer-instruction¹¹ notifying him that the circumstances allowing conversion of securities into uncertificated form¹² have arisen in respect of a transfer of units of a participating security¹³; or 732 (3) following receipt of an issuer-instruction informing him of the name of the transferee¹⁴.

An operator must refuse to register a transfer of title to units of a participating security in accordance with a system-member instruction¹⁵ or an issuer-instruction (as the case may be) if he has actual notice that the transfer is¹⁶:

733 (a) prohibited by order of a court in the United Kingdom¹⁷;

734 (b) prohibited or avoided by or under an enactment¹⁸;

- 735 (c) a transfer to a deceased person¹⁹; or 736 (d) where the participating issuer²⁰ is constituted under the law of Scotland, prohibited by or under an arrestment²¹.

Notwithstanding that an operator has received such notice in respect of a transfer of title to units of a participating security, the operator may register that transfer of title on the relevant operator register of securities if at the time that he received the actual notice it was not practicable for him to halt the process of registration²².

Without prejudice to his rules, an operator may refuse to register a transfer of title to units of a participating security in accordance with a system-member instruction or an issuer-instruction (as the case may be) if the instruction requires a transfer of units:

- 737 (i) to an entity which is not a natural or legal person²³;
 738 (ii) to a minor (which, in relation to a participating issuer constituted under the law of Scotland, means a person under 16 years of age)²⁴;
 739 (iii) to be held jointly in the names of more persons than is permitted under the terms of the issue of the security²⁵; or 740 (iv) where, in relation to the system-member instruction or the issuer-instruction (as the case may be), the operator has actual notice of any specified²⁶ matters²⁷.

An operator must not register a transfer of title to uncertificated units of a security on an operator register of securities otherwise than in accordance with the provisions described above²⁸ unless he is required to do so by order of a court in the United Kingdom or by or under an enactment²⁹; however, this must not be taken to prevent an operator from entering on an operator register of securities a person who is a system-member to whom title to uncertificated units of a security has been transmitted by operation of law³⁰.

Immediately upon:

- 741 (A) the registration by an operator of the transfer of title to units of a participating security in accordance with the above provisions³¹, or an order of a court in the United Kingdom³², or a requirement arising by or under an enactment³³; or 742 (B) the making or deletion by an operator of an entry on an operator register of securities following the transmission of title to uncertificated units of a security by operation of law³⁴, or upon the transfer of uncertificated units of a security to a person who is to hold them thereafter in certificated form³⁵, the operator must generate an operator-instruction³⁶ to inform the relevant participating issuer of the registration, or of the making or deletion of the entry (as the case may be); and where appropriate the participating issuer must register³⁷ the transfer or transmission of title to those units on an issuer register of securities³⁸.

If an operator refuses to register a transfer of securities in any of the circumstances specified above³⁹, the operator must, within two months of the date on which the relevant system-member instruction or issuer-instruction (as the case may be) was received by the operator, send an operator-instruction, or written notification, informing the relevant system-member or participating issuer (as the case may be) of the refusal⁴⁰.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(9) CERTIFICATION AND TRANSFER OF SECURITIES/(iii) Uncertificated Securities/427. Registration of transfers of uncertificated securities to be held in certificated form.

427. Registration of transfers of uncertificated securities to be held in certificated form.

Where uncertificated units of a security¹ are transferred by means of a relevant system² to a person³ who is to hold them thereafter in certificated form⁴, a participating issuer⁵ must (where appropriate) register a transfer of title⁶ to uncertificated units of a security on an issuer register of securities⁷ in accordance with an operator-instruction⁸ unless he has actual notice⁹ that the transfer is:

- 743 (1) prohibited by order of a court in the United Kingdom¹⁰;
- 744 (2) prohibited or avoided by or under an enactment¹¹;
- 745 (3) a transfer to a deceased person¹²; or
- 746 (4) where the participating issuer is constituted under the law of Scotland, prohibited by or under an arrestment¹³.

A participating issuer may refuse to register a transfer of title to uncertificated units of a security in accordance with an operator-instruction if the instruction requires a transfer of units:

- 747 (a) to an entity which is not a natural or legal person¹⁴;
- 748 (b) to a minor (which in relation to a participating issuer constituted under the law of Scotland means a person under 16 years of age)¹⁵;
- 749 (c) to be held jointly in the names of more persons than is permitted under the terms of the issue of the security¹⁶; or
- 750 (d) where, in relation to the operator-instruction, the participating issuer has actual notice from the operator of any of the specified¹⁷ matters¹⁸.

A participating issuer must notify the operator by issuer-instruction¹⁹ whether he has registered a transfer in response to an operator-instruction to do so²⁰. A participating issuer must not register a transfer of title to uncertificated units of a security on an issuer register of securities unless he is required to do so by an operator-instruction²¹, an order of a court in the United Kingdom²², or by or under an enactment²³.

As to the meaning of 'operator-instruction' see PARA 421 note 1. As to the meaning of 'operator' see PARA 421 note 1. If a participating issuer refuses to register under reg 28(2) a transfer of securities in any of the circumstances specified in reg 28(3) and reg 28(4), the participating issuer must, within two months of the date on which the Operator-instruction was received by the participating issuer, send to the transferee notice of the refusal: reg 28(8) (substituted by SI 2009/1889). Such sanctions as apply to a company and its officers in the event of a default in complying with the Companies Act 2006 s 771(1), (2) (see PARA 415) apply to a participating issuer and his officers in the event of default in complying with that provision as applied by the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 28(8): reg 28(9) (amended by SI 2009/1889). For the purposes of the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 28(9), an officer of a participating issuer is in default if, and only if, he knowingly and wilfully authorised or permitted the default or contravention: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 47(1). However, reg

28(9) does not apply to any of the following or its officers: (1) the Crown; (2) any person acting on behalf of the Crown; (3) the Bank of England; (4) the Registrar of Government Stock; (5) any previous Registrar of Government Stock; or (6) in respect of a security which immediately before it became a participating security was transferable by exempt transfer within the meaning of the Stock Transfer Act 1982 (see PARA 430), a participating issuer: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 48 (amended by SI 2004/1662). 428. Registration of linked transfers of uncertificated securities.

Where an operator¹ receives two or more system-member instructions² requesting him to register two or more transfers of title³ to uncertificated⁴ units of a security⁵, and it appears to the operator⁶:

751 (1) either that there are fewer units of the security registered on an operator register of securities⁷ in the name of a person⁸ identified in any of the system-

- member instructions as a transferor than the number of units to be transferred from him under those system-member instructions⁹, or that it has not been established¹⁰, in relation to any of the transfers taken without regard to the other transfers, that a settlement bank has agreed to make a payment¹¹; and
- 752 (2) that registration of all of the transfers would result in each of the persons identified in the system-member instructions as a transferor having title to a number of uncertificated units of a security equal to or greater than nil¹²; and
- 753 (3) that the combined effect of all the transfers taken together would result in the necessary condition¹³ being satisfied¹⁴, the operator may either register the combined effect of all the transfers taken together¹⁵, or register all the transfers simultaneously¹⁶, unless: (a) one or more of those transfers may not be registered by virtue of the fact that the operator has actual notice¹⁷ of any of the circumstances specified¹⁸; or (b) one or more of those transfers is to be¹⁹ refused registration²⁰.

Notwithstanding that an operator has received such actual notice, in respect of two or more such system-member instructions as are referred to in head (1), (2) or (3) above, the operator may register all the transfers in question or their combined effect if at the time that he received the actual notice it was not practicable for him to halt the process of registration²¹.

Position of a transferee prior to entry on an issuer register of securities.

429. Position of a transferee prior to entry on an issuer register of securities.

When an operator¹ deletes an entry on an operator register of securities² in consequence of which:

- 754 (1) the operator must generate³ an operator-instruction⁴; and
- 755 (2) by virtue of that instruction a participating issuer⁵ must register, on an issuer register of securities⁶, a transfer of title to units of a participating security⁷ constituted under the law of England and Wales⁸ or Northern Ireland⁹, then, subject to any enactment¹⁰ or rule of law, the transferor¹¹, notwithstanding the deletion of the entry in the operator register of securities, retains title to the requisite number of units of the relevant participating security until the transferee¹² is entered on the relevant issuer register of securities as the holder thereof¹³, and the transferee acquires an equitable interest in the requisite number of units of that security¹⁴.

When an operator deletes an entry on an operator register of securities in consequence of which:

- 756 (a) the operator must generate¹⁵ an operator-instruction¹⁶; and
- 757 (b) by virtue of that instruction a participating issuer must register, on an issuer register of securities, a transfer of title to units of a participating security constituted under the law of Scotland¹⁷, then, subject to any enactment or rule of law, the transferor, notwithstanding the deletion of the entry in the operator register of securities, retains title to the requisite number of units of the relevant participating security until the transferee is entered on the relevant issuer register of securities as the holder thereof¹⁸, and the transferor holds the requisite number¹⁹ of units of that security on trust for the benefit of the transferee²⁰.

These provisions have effect notwithstanding that the units to which the deletion of the entry in the operator register of securities relates, or in which an interest arises by virtue of these provisions²¹, or any of them, may be unascertained²². Subject thereto, these provisions must not be construed as conferring a proprietary interest²³ in units of a security if the conferring of such an interest at the time specified²⁴ would otherwise be void by or under any enactment or rule of law²⁵.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(9) CERTIFICATION AND TRANSFER OF SECURITIES/(iv) Special Provisions relating to Certain Transfers/430. Computerised transfer of certain government and public authority securities.

(iv) Special Provisions relating to Certain Transfers

430. Computerised transfer of certain government and public authority securities.

In the exercise of the appropriate power¹, provision may be made permitting a transfer in certain cases of specified securities² to which the power extends through the medium of a computer-based system to be established by the Bank of England and the London Stock Exchange³. Such a transfer effected in this way is referred to as an 'exempt transfer'⁴. However, no provision may be made, in the exercise of the appropriate power, for the application of the procedure of an exempt transfer to any securities or securities of any class except with the agreement of the person issuing the securities or, as the case may be, securities of that class or, if the liability for those securities or securities of that class has vested in another person, of that other person⁵.

The Treasury may by regulations made by statutory instrument make provision in connection with the operation of such a system⁶. Such regulations may provide⁷:

- 758 (1) that, for the purposes of any provision made by or under any enactment or contained in any prospectus or other document and requiring or relating to the lodging or deposit of any instrument of transfer, notification of an exempt transfer in the manner required by the regulations is to be regarded as lodging or depositing an instrument of the transfer concerned⁸; and
- 759 (2) that, in such circumstances as may be specified in the regulations, certificates or other documents of or evidencing title to specified securities are or are not to be issued to persons who (by virtue of their participation in the system) are or have been able to transfer such securities by exempt transfers⁹.

The Secretary of State¹⁰ may by order made by statutory instrument repeal or amend any provision of any local Act (including an Act confirming a provisional order), or any order or other instrument made under a local Act, if it appears to him that the provision has become unnecessary or requires alteration in consequence of any of the provisions described above¹¹.

1 'Appropriate power' means the power to make regulations or orders under:

164 (1) the Finance Act 1942 s 47 (government stock: see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 1335) or the Exchequer and Financial Provisions Act (Northern Ireland) 1950 s 11(1)(c) (Northern Ireland Exchequer stock) (Stock Transfer Act 1982 s 1(3)(a)); or

165 (2) the Local Government (Scotland) Act 1975 Sch 3 para 5 or the Local Government Act (Northern Ireland) 1972 s 70 (local authority stocks) (Stock Transfer Act 1982 s 1(3)(b) (amended by the Local Government Act 2003 s 127(1), (2), Sch 7 para 6, Sch 8 Pt 1)).

With respect to any specified securities to which none of the provisions referred to in heads (1) and (2) above apply, the Treasury may make the provision referred to in the Stock Transfer Act 1982 s 1(1) (see the text to note 3) by regulations made by statutory instrument subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 1(3)(e), (4). In exercise of this power, the Treasury has made the Stock Transfer (Gilt-edged Securities) (Exempt Transfer) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/1145; the Stock Transfer (Gilt-edged Securities) (Exempt Transfer) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1294; the Stock Transfer (Gilt-edged Securities) (Exempt Transfer) Regulations 1988, SI 1988/232; the Stock Transfer (Gilt-edged Securities) (Exempt Transfer) Regulations 1989, SI 1989/880; the Stock Transfer (Gilt-edged Securities) (Exempt Transfer) Regulations 1990, SI 1990/1211; the Stock Transfer (Gilt-edged Securities) (Exempt Transfer) (No 2) Regulations 1990, SI 1990/2547; the Stock

Transfer (Gilt-edged Securities) (Exempt Transfer) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/1145; and the Stock Transfer (Gilt-edged Securities) (Exempt Transfer) (Amendment) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1210. As to the Treasury see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARAS 512-517.

2 For these purposes, 'specified securities' means:

- 166 (1) securities issued by Her Majesty's government in the United Kingdom or the government of Northern Ireland, not being excluded securities (ie securities in respect of which a stock certificate issued under the National Debt Act 1870 Pt V (ss 26-42) (repealed) (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 1338)) is for the time being outstanding; or any other bearer securities; or any securities for the time being registered on the National Savings Stock Register (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 1347) (Stock Transfer Act 1982 s 2(1), Sch 1 para 1);
- 167 (2) securities the payment of interest on which is guaranteed by Her Majesty's government in the United Kingdom or the government of Northern Ireland (Sch 1 para 2);
- 168 (3) securities issued in the United Kingdom by any public authority or nationalised industry or undertaking in the United Kingdom (Sch 1 para 3);
- 169 (4) securities issued in the United Kingdom by the government of any overseas territory, being securities registered in the United Kingdom, where 'overseas territory' means any territory or country outside the United Kingdom and where the reference to the government of any overseas territory includes a reference to a government constituted for two or more overseas territories, and to any authority established for the purpose of providing or administering services which are common to, or relate to matters of common interest to, two or more such territories (Sch 1 para 4 (amended by the International Development Act 2002 s 19(1), Sch 3 para 8));
- 170 (5) securities issued in the United Kingdom by the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, the Inter-American Development Bank, the European Investment Bank or the European Coal and Steel Community, being, in each case, securities registered in the United Kingdom (Stock Transfer Act 1982 Sch 1 para 5);
- 171 (6) debentures (including debenture stock and bonds, whether constituting a charge on assets or not, and loan stock or notes) issued by the Agricultural Mortgage Corp'n plc, the Commonwealth Development Finance Co Ltd, Finance for Industry plc or the Scottish Agricultural Securities Corp'n Ltd (Sch 1 para 6);
- 172 (7) securities issued by: (a) any local authority in the United Kingdom; (b) any authority all or the majority of the members of which are appointed or elected by one or more local authorities in the United Kingdom; or (c) any police authority established under the Police Act 1996 s 3 (see POLICE vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 139) (Stock Transfer Act 1982 Sch 1 para 7(1) (amended by the Police and Magistrates' Courts Act 1994 s 43, Sch 4 Pt II para 56; the Police Act 1996 s 103, Sch 7 para 1(2)(t); the Police Act 1997 s 134(1), Sch 9 para 44; the Greater London Authority Act 1999 ss 392(1), (2), 423, Sch 34 Pt I; the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 ss 59, 174(2), Sch 4 para 41, Sch 17, Pt 2));
- 173 (8) securities issued in the United Kingdom by the African Development Bank, the Asian Development Bank, Caisse Centrale de Coopération Economique, Crédit Foncier de France, Electricité de France (EDF), Service National or Hydro-Québec, being, in each case, securities registered in the United Kingdom (Stock Transfer Act 1982 Sch 1 para 8 (added by SI 1988/231));
- 174 (9) securities issued in the United Kingdom by the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development, being securities registered in the United Kingdom (Stock Transfer Act 1982 Sch 1 para 9 (added by SI 1991/340)).

Notwithstanding that a security may at any time be so specified, it is not at that time a specified security for the purposes of the Stock Transfer Act 1982 if, on a transfer of it at that time effected by a written instrument, that instrument would be liable to stamp duty: s 2(2). The Treasury may from time to time, after consultation with the Bank of England, by order either add a security or class of securities to those listed above or remove a security or class of securities from that list (whether the security or class of securities was included in the list as originally enacted or was so added): s 2(3). The power to make such an order is exercisable by statutory instrument which must be laid before Parliament after being made: s 2(4). As to the orders made see the Stock Transfer (Specified Securities) Order 1988, SI 1988/231; Stock Transfer (Specified Securities) Order 1991, SI 1991/340. As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 1 note 5. As to the Bank of England see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 793 et seq. As to the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 1391. As to the Agricultural Mortgage Corporation see AGRICULTURAL LAND vol 1 (2008) PARA 618. For the purposes of head (7) above, 'local authority' means:

- 175 (i) the Greater London Authority, a county council, a district council, a London borough council, the Common Council of the City of London, a functional body within the meaning of the Greater London Authority Act 1999 (see LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 213 et seq), a joint authority established by the Local Government Act 1985 Pt IV (ss 23-42), an authority established for an area in England by an order under the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 s 207 (joint waste authorities) or the Council of the Isles of Scilly;
- 176 (ii) any council constituted under the Local Government etc (Scotland) Act 1994 s 2; or
- 177 (iii) a council within the meaning of the Local Government Act (Northern Ireland) 1972, and any reference to a security issued by a local authority includes a reference to a security the liability for which is for the time being vested in a local authority (being a security issued by an authority which has ceased to exist): Stock Transfer Act 1982 Sch 1 para 7(2) (amended by the Local Government Act 1985 ss 84, 102, Sch 14 para 62, Sch 17; the Education Reform Act 1988 s 237, Sch 13 Pt I; the Local Government etc (Scotland) Act 1994 s 180(1), Sch 13 para 127; the Greater London Authority Act 1999 s 392(1), (3)(a), (b); the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 s 209(2), Sch 13 Pt 2, para 39). 3 Stock Transfer Act 1982 s 1(1). The responsibility for operating the CGO Service (ie the computer-based system established to facilitate the transfer of gilt-edged securities) was transferred from the Bank of England to CRESTCo Ltd on 24 May 1999: see the Stock Transfer (Gilt-edged Securities) (CGO Service) (Amendment) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1208. As to the functions and duties of the London Stock Exchange and recognised clearing houses such as CRESTCo see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARAS 75-76.

4 Stock Transfer Act 1982 s 1(2). Notwithstanding anything in any enactment or in any prospectus or other document relating to the terms of issue, holding or transfer of specified securities, an exempt transfer is effective without the need for an instrument in writing: s 1(2).

5 Stock Transfer Act 1982 s 1(5). As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 311 note 2.

6 Stock Transfer Act 1982 s 3(1). A statutory instrument made in the exercise of the power conferred by s 3(1) is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 3(5). In exercise of the power conferred under s 3(1), (2) (see the text to note 7), the Treasury has made the Stock Transfer (Gilt-edged Securities) (CGO Service) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/1144; the Stock Transfer (Gilt-edged Securities) (CGO Service) (Amendment) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1293; the Stock Transfer (Gilt-Edged Securities) (CGO Service) (Amendment) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1329; the Stock Transfer (Gilt-edged Securities) (CGO Service) (Amendment) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1208.

7 Stock Transfer Act 1982 s 3(2). Such regulations are without prejudice to the generality of s 3(1) (see the text to note 6), but are subject to any express provision made by or by virtue of any amendment contained in s 3(3), Sch 2 (which amends the Forged Transfers Act 1891 s 1, the Finance Act 1942 s 47 and the Colonial Stock Act 1948 s 1): Stock Transfer Act 1982 s 3(2).

9 Stock Transfer Act 1982 s 3(2)(b).

10 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6.

11 Stock Transfer Act 1982 s 3(4). A statutory instrument made in exercise of the power conferred by s 3(4) is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 3(5). At the date at which this volume states the law, no order had been made under s 3(4).

UPDATE

430 Computerised transfer of certain government and public authority securities

NOTE 2--Definition of 'local authority' in Stock Transfer Act 1982 Sch 1 para 7(2) further amended: Local Democracy, Economic Development and Construction Act 2009 Sch 6 para 57.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(9) CERTIFICATION AND TRANSFER OF SECURITIES/ (v) Forged Transfers/431. Forged transfers of shares.

(v) Forged Transfers

431. Forged transfers of shares.

The company owes a duty to each of its shareholders not to take his shares out of his name unless he has executed a valid transfer of them, and this duty involves the corresponding obligation not to give effect to a forged transfer¹. If, however, the forged transfer is registered, the true owner of the shares may sue the company jointly with the transferee for rectification of the register of shareholders by striking out the name of the transferee and restoring his own². Where this remedy is no longer possible (as in the case of the intervention of third party rights) he may sue the company alone for an order that the company purchase and register in his name the necessary shares³. The period of limitation⁴ does not begin to run against him in favour of the company until the company resists his claim, as his cause of action is not the invalid transfer of his shares but the company's refusal, when the forgery is made known, to treat him as the shareholder⁵. Negligence on the part of the shareholder does not create an estoppel disentitling him to succeed, unless it is the proximate cause of what the company has done⁶.

The mere registration of the transferee does not entitle him to compel the company to recognise him as the holder of the shares⁷, since registration only gives effect to a prior valid transfer⁸. Nor is the company necessarily estopped from disputing, as against the transferee, the validity of the transfer⁹. The only duty which the company owes to the transferee is to consult the register¹⁰; but, even where such reference would have shown that the alleged transferor was not on the register, the company is not ipso facto liable by estoppel to the transferee¹¹. However, the issue of a certificate for the shares in favour of the transferee can undoubtedly create an estoppel in favour of the transferee himself, or any third party, if he acts to his detriment on the faith of it¹².

A person who, innocently, and even without negligence, brings about the transfer is bound to indemnify the company against any liability to the owner of the shares who has been displaced by a forged transfer¹³.

The provisions of the Forged Transfers Acts 1891 and 1892 apply to shares¹⁴.

432. Forged transfers of debentures.

If the company registers a forged transfer of debentures, the true owner may obtain a cancellation of the registration and the delivery of the debentures¹; and if the debentures are redeemed by the company and the sums secured are paid to the transferee under a forged transfer, the company is primarily liable to the true owner for the sums so paid, without prejudice to any rights it may have against the transferee².

The provisions of the Forged Transfers Acts 1891 and 1892 apply to the debentures and debenture stock of a company, as well as to shares³.

433. Compensation for loss under forged transfers of shares.

A company may impose such reasonable restrictions on the transfer of its shares, stock or securities, or with respect to powers of attorney for the transfer of such, as it may consider requisite for guarding against losses arising from forgery¹. Out of its funds it may grant compensation for losses caused by forged instruments² or transfers under forged powers of attorney³, and may, if it thinks fit, charge a fee at a rate not exceeding five pence on every £100 transferred, with a minimum charge equal to that for £25, to provide for such compensation⁴; and it also may borrow on the security of its property to meet claims for such compensation⁵. Compensation may be paid whether the person receiving compensation or any person through whom he claims has or has not paid any fee or otherwise contributed to any fund out of which compensation is paid⁶. Where the company pays compensation, it is subrogated to the rights of the person compensated against the person liable for the loss⁷.

7 See the Forged Transfers Act 1891 s 1(5). These provisions apply to all companies incorporated by or in pursuance of any Act of Parliament or by royal charter or amalgamated with such a company: s 2; Forged Transfers Act 1892 s 4.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(9) CERTIFICATION AND TRANSFER OF SECURITIES/(vi) Transmission of Securities/434. Transmission of securities on death etc.

(vi) Transmission of Securities

434. Transmission of securities on death etc.

In the model articles¹, and in articles of association generally², the word 'transmission' is used in relation to shares in contradistinction to the word 'transfer'; the former means transmission by operation of law, including devolution by death or bankruptcy³, and the latter a transfer by the act of a member⁴. Unless the articles otherwise provide, the survivors or survivor of registered joint holders of shares⁵ are alone entitled to and liable upon such shares⁶, even where one of the joint holders is a corporation⁷.

Upon the death of the sole holder of shares, the title to his shares devolves upon his personal representatives⁸, who, subject to any provisions in the articles of association, may transfer his shares without being registered as shareholders⁹, or, in the absence of any right of veto conferred on the company by its articles, may have their names entered on the register¹⁰. The production to a company¹¹ of any document that is by law sufficient evidence of the grant of probate of the will of a deceased person¹², letters of administration of the estate of a deceased person¹³, or confirmation as executor of a deceased person¹⁴, must be accepted by the company as sufficient evidence of the grant¹⁵. The personal representatives are liable for calls only in their representative capacity until they are registered as members with their consent; but after registration they become personally liable¹⁶. It is the duty of the representatives to give notice of the member's death as soon as possible¹⁷. Where executors are entitled to be registered as members, they are entitled to have their names inserted in such order as they please and the company cannot state on the register that they are executors¹⁸. On the death of a shareholder domiciled abroad the company may act only upon a grant of probate or administration in this country¹⁹. If, therefore, the company registers the name of or a transfer by any person who has not obtained such a grant or pays dividends to any such person, it becomes an executor without authority, and is liable to penalties and to pay such duties as would have been payable on a grant of probate²⁰.

When new shares are offered to the members in proportion to their holdings while the name of a deceased member is on the register, the executors may claim their testator's proportion²¹. They must, however, be registered themselves as members in respect of the new shares, and become liable to the company as individuals²², though as between them and the beneficiaries they hold the shares as part of the estate and have a right of indemnity against the estate²³.

On a registered member having a person appointed as trustee of his estate in bankruptcy, the right to transfer his shares will vest in the trustee in bankruptcy²⁴.

the articles releases the estate of a deceased member from any liability in respect of a share solely or jointly held by that member. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, makes similar provision: see Schedule, Table A art 29.

(i) In general

435. Interaction between the Companies Act 2006 and rules made under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000.

Although the Companies Act 2006 makes provision in relation to the disclosure of information about interests in public company shares¹, the rules that have been made under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 for the purposes of the Transparency Obligations Directive² also have effect³. Of particular relevance in this context are the provisions contained in those chapters of the Disclosure Rules and Transparency Rules which set out: (1) the notification obligations of issuers, persons discharging managerial responsibilities (PDMRs) and their connected persons in respect of transactions conducted on their own account in shares of the issuer, or derivatives or any other financial instrument relating to those shares⁴; and (2) the notification obligations that a person must make to an issuer of the percentage of its voting rights he holds as shareholder or holds or is deemed to hold through his direct or indirect holding of financial instruments, if (subject to certain exemptions) the percentage of those voting rights reaches, exceeds or falls below certain thresholds as a result of an acquisition or disposal of shares or certain financial instruments, or reaches, exceeds or falls below an applicable threshold as a result of events changing the breakdown of voting rights and on the basis of information disclosed by the issuer⁵.

5 See DTR 5.1, especially DTR 5.1.2. A notification given in accordance with DTR 5.1.2 must include the following information: the resulting situation in terms of voting rights; the chain of controlled undertakings through which voting rights are effectively held, if applicable; the date on which the threshold was reached or crossed; and the identity of the shareholder, even if that shareholder is not entitled to exercise voting rights under the conditions laid down in DTR 5.2.1 and of the person entitled to exercise voting rights on behalf of that shareholder: see DTR 5.8.1.

A notification required of voting rights arising from the holding of financial instruments must include the following information: (1) the resulting situation in terms of voting rights (see DTR 5.8.2(1)(a)); (2) if applicable, the chain of controlled undertakings through which financial instruments are effectively held (see DTR 5.8.2(1)(b)); (3) the date on which the threshold was reached or crossed (see DTR 5.8.2(1)(c)); (4) for instruments with an exercise period, an indication of the date or time period where shares will or can be acquired, if applicable (see DTR 5.8.2(1)(d)); (5) date of maturity or expiration of the instrument (see DTR 5.8.2(1)(e)); (6) identity of the holder (see DTR 5.8.2(1)(f)); and (7) name of the underlying issuer (see DTR 5.8.2(1)(g)).

436. Information about interests in public company shares.

The Companies Act 2006 makes specific provision¹ in relation to the disclosure of information about interests in public company shares². References in those provisions to a company's shares are to the company's issued shares of a class carrying rights to vote in all circumstances at general meetings of the company³ (including any shares held as treasury shares)⁴. The temporary suspension of voting rights in respect of any shares does not affect the application of the statutory provisions in relation to interests in those or any other shares⁵.

437. Secretary of State's power to make further provision.

The Secretary of State¹ may by regulations² amend:

- 760 (1) the definition of shares³ to which the statutory provisions relating to interests in a public company's shares⁴ apply⁵;
- 761 (2) the provisions as to notice by a company requiring information about interests in its shares⁶; and
- 762 (3) the provisions as to what is taken to be an interest in shares⁷.

The regulations may amend, repeal or replace those provisions and make such other consequential amendments or repeals of provisions as appear to the Secretary of State to be appropriate⁸.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6.

2 Regulations under the Companies Act 2006 s 828 are subject to affirmative resolution procedure (ie the regulations must not be made unless a draft of the statutory instrument containing them has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament): see the Companies Act 2006 ss 828(3), 1290. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made.

Determining whether a person has a disclosable interest.

438. Determining whether a person has a disclosable interest.

The following provisions apply to determine¹ whether a person has an interest in public company shares². For this purpose³, a reference to an interest in shares includes an interest of any kind whatsoever in the shares, and any restraints or restrictions to which the exercise of any right attached to the interest is or may be subject are to be disregarded⁴.

Where an interest in shares is comprised in property held on trust, every beneficiary of the trust is treated as having an interest in the shares⁵.

A person is treated as having an interest in shares if: (1) he enters into a contract to acquire them; or (2) not being the registered holder, he is entitled to exercise any right conferred by the holding of the shares, or to control the exercise of any such right⁶.

A person is treated as having an interest in shares if: (a) he has a right to call for delivery of the shares to himself or to his order; or (b) he has a right to acquire an interest in shares or is under an obligation to take an interest in shares⁷. This applies whether the right or obligation is conditional or absolute⁸.

Persons having a joint interest are treated as each having that interest⁹.

It is immaterial that shares in which a person has an interest are unidentifiable¹⁰.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(10) DISCLOSURE OF INTERESTS IN SHARES OF PUBLIC COMPANIES/(ii) Interests in Public Company Shares/440. Agreement to acquire interests in a particular public company.

440. Agreement to acquire interests in a particular public company.

An interest in public company shares¹ may arise² from an agreement³ between two or more persons that includes provision for the acquisition by any one or more of them of interests in shares of a particular public company (the 'target company' for that agreement)⁴.

An interest arises in relation to such an agreement if:

- 763 (1) the agreement includes provision imposing obligations or restrictions on any one or more of the parties to it with respect to their use⁵, retention or disposal of their interests in the shares of the target company acquired in pursuance of the agreement (whether or not together with any other interests of theirs in the company's shares to which the agreement relates)⁶; and
- 764 (2) an interest in the target company's shares is in fact acquired by any of the parties in pursuance of the agreement⁷.

Once an interest in shares in the target company has been acquired in pursuance of the agreement, then the interest continues so long as the agreement continues to include provisions of any description mentioned in heads (1) and (2)⁸. This applies irrespective of: (a) whether or not any further acquisitions of interests in the company's shares take place in pursuance of the agreement; (b) any change in the persons who are for the time being parties to it; (c) any variation of the agreement⁹.

An interest does not arise in relation to an agreement that is not legally binding unless it involves mutuality in the undertakings, expectations or understandings of the parties to it¹⁰. Nor does it arise in relation to an agreement to underwrite or sub-underwrite an offer of shares in a company, provided the agreement is confined to that purpose and any matters incidental to it¹¹.

1 See PARA 436. As to the meaning of 'public company' see PARA 102.

2 See for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 22 (ss 791-828).

3 'Agreement' includes any agreement or arrangement: Companies Act 2006 s 824(5)(a). References to provisions of an agreement include: (1) undertakings, expectations or understandings operative under an arrangement; and (2) any provision whether express or implied and whether absolute or not: s 824(5)(b). References elsewhere in Pt 22 to an agreement to which s 824 applies have a corresponding meaning: s 824(5).

Extent of obligation in case of share acquisition agreement.

441. Extent of obligation in case of share acquisition agreement.

Each party to a share acquisition agreement¹ is treated² for the purposes of disclosure³ as interested in all shares in the target company⁴ in which any other party to the agreement is interested apart from the agreement⁵ (whether or not the interest of the other party was acquired, or includes any interest that was acquired, in pursuance of the agreement)⁶. Accordingly, any such interest of the person (apart from the agreement) includes for those purposes any family or corporate interest treated as his⁷ in relation to any other agreement with respect to shares in the target company to which he is a party⁸.

A notification with respect to his interest in shares in the target company made to the company⁹ by a person who is for the time being a party to a share acquisition agreement must¹⁰:

- 765 (1) state that the person making the notification is a party to such an agreement¹¹;
- 766 (2) include the names and (so far as known to him) the addresses of the other parties to the agreement, identifying them as such¹²; and
- 767 (3) state whether or not any of the shares to which the notification relates are shares in which he is interested¹³ and, if so, the number of those shares¹⁴.

442. Notice by company requiring information about interests.

A public company¹ may give notice² to any person whom the company knows or has reasonable cause to believe: (1) to be interested in the company's shares³; or (2) to have been so interested at any time during the three years immediately preceding the date on which the notice is issued⁴. The notice may require the person: (a) to confirm that fact or (as the case may be) to state whether or not it is the case; and (b) if he holds, or has during that time held, any such interest, to give such further information as may be required by the notice⁵. The notice may require:

- 768 (i) the person to whom it is addressed to give particulars⁶ of his own present or past interest in the company's shares (held by him at any time during the three years immediately preceding the date on which the notice is issued)⁷;
- 769 (ii) the person to whom it is addressed, where his interest is a present interest and another interest in the shares subsists, or another interest in the shares subsisted during that three year period at a time when his interest subsisted, to give, so far as lies within his knowledge, such particulars with respect to that other interest as may be required by the notice⁸;
- 770 (iii) the person to whom it is addressed, where his interest is a past interest, to give (so far as lies within his knowledge) particulars of the identity of the person who held that interest immediately upon his ceasing to hold it⁹.

The information required by the notice must be given within such reasonable time as may be specified in the notice¹⁰.

443. Persons exempted from obligation to comply with notice by company.

A person is not obliged to comply with a notice requiring information about interests in public company shares¹ if he is for the time being exempted² by the Secretary of State³. The Secretary of State must not grant any such exemption unless he has consulted the Governor of the Bank of England⁴, and he (the Secretary of State) is satisfied that, having regard to any undertaking given by the person in question with respect to any interest held or to be held by him in any shares, there are special reasons why that person should not be subject to the obligation to comply with the notice⁵.

444. Failure to comply: offences.

An offence is committed by a person who: (1) fails to comply with a notice requiring information about interests in public company shares¹; or (2) in purported compliance with such a notice makes a statement that he knows to be false in a material particular, or recklessly makes a statement that is false in a material particular². However, a person does not commit an offence under head (1) if he proves that the requirement to give information was frivolous or vexatious³.

445. Failure to comply: order imposing restrictions on shares.

Where a notice requiring information about interests in a public company's shares¹ is served by a company on a person who is or was interested in shares in the company, and that person fails to give the company the information required by the notice within the time specified in it, the company may apply to the court for an order directing that the shares in question be subject to restrictions².

If the court is satisfied that such an order may unfairly affect the rights of third parties in respect of the shares, the court may, for the purpose of protecting those rights and subject to such terms as it thinks fit, direct that such acts by such persons or descriptions of persons and for such purposes as may be set out in the order are not to constitute a breach of the restrictions³.

On an application, the court may make an interim order⁴. Any such order may be made unconditionally or on such terms as the court thinks fit⁵.

2 Companies Act 2006 s 794(1). For the effect of such an order see s 797 (see PARA 446): s 794(1). The Secretary of State may by regulations made by statutory instrument make such amendments of the provisions of s 794 relating to orders imposing restrictions on shares as appear to him necessary or expedient, for enabling orders to be made in a form protecting the rights of third parties, or with respect to the circumstances in which restrictions may be relaxed or removed, or with respect to the making of interim orders by a court: Companies Act 1989 s 135(1), (2) (amended by SI 2008/948). The regulations may make different provision for different cases and may contain such transitional and other supplementary and incidental provisions as appear to the Secretary of State to be appropriate (Companies Act 1989 s 135(3)); but such regulations are not to be made unless a draft of the regulations has been laid before Parliament and approved by resolution of each House of Parliament (s 135(4)). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made in relation to the Companies Act 2006 s 794. As from a day to be appointed under the Companies Act 2006 s 1300(2), the Companies Act 1989 s 135 is to be repealed: see the Companies Act 2006 s 1295, Sch 16. Effect of order imposing restrictions.

446. Effect of order imposing restrictions.

The effect of an order¹ that public company shares are subject to restrictions is as follows²:

- 771 (1) any transfer of the shares, or agreement to transfer the shares, is void³;
- 772 (2) no voting rights are exercisable in respect of the shares⁴;
- 773 (3) no further shares may be issued in right of the shares or in pursuance of an offer made to their holder⁵;
- 774 (4) except in a liquidation, no payment may be made of sums due from the company on the shares, whether in respect of capital or otherwise⁶.

Where shares are subject to the restriction in head (3) or head (4), an agreement to transfer any right to be issued with other shares in right of those shares, or to receive any payment on them (otherwise than in a liquidation), is void⁷.

The provisions set out above are subject to any directions for the protection of third parties⁸, and to the terms of any interim order⁹.

447. Penalty for attempted evasion of restrictions on shares.

Where public company shares are subject to restrictions by virtue of an order¹, a person commits an offence if he²:

- 775 (1) exercises or purports to exercise any right to dispose of shares that to his knowledge are for the time being subject to restrictions, or to dispose of any right to be issued with any such shares³;
- 776 (2) votes in respect of any such shares (whether as holder or proxy), or appoints a proxy to vote in respect of them⁴; or
- 777 (3) being the holder of any such shares, fails to notify of their being subject to those restrictions a person whom he does not know to be aware of that fact but does know to be entitled (apart from the restrictions) to vote in respect of those shares whether as holder or as proxy⁵; or
- 778 (4) being the holder of any such shares, or being entitled to a right to be issued with other shares in right of them, or to receive any payment on them (otherwise than in a liquidation), enters into an agreement which is void⁶.

If shares in a company are issued in contravention of the restrictions, an offence is committed by the company and by every officer of the company who is in default⁷.

The provisions set out above are subject to directions for the protection of third parties⁸, or any directions as to the relaxation or removal of restrictions⁹, and to the terms of any interim order¹⁰.

448. Relaxation and removal of restrictions on shares.

An application may be made to the court on the ground that an order directing that public company shares are to be subject to restrictions unfairly affects the rights of third parties in respect of the shares¹. An application may be made by the company or by any person aggrieved². If the court is satisfied that the application is well founded, it may, for the purpose of protecting the rights of third parties in respect of the shares, and subject to such terms as it thinks fit, direct that such acts by such persons or descriptions of persons and for such purposes as may be set out in the order do not constitute a breach of the restrictions³.

An application may also be made to the court for an order directing that the shares cease to be subject to restrictions⁴. An application may be made by the company or by any person aggrieved⁵. The court must not make such an order unless: (1) it is satisfied that the relevant facts about the shares have been disclosed to the company and no unfair advantage has accrued to any person as a result of the earlier failure to make that disclosure⁶; or (2) the shares are to be transferred for valuable consideration and the court approves the transfer⁷.

1 Companies Act 2006 s 799(1). As to the meaning of 'public company' see PARA 102. In the High Court, such an application must be made by the issue of a CPR Pt 8 claim form (as to which see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARAS 117, 127 et seq): see Practice Direction--Applications under the Companies Acts and Related Legislation PD 49 para 5. An order made by virtue of s 800(3)(b) may continue, in whole or in part, the restrictions on issue of further shares or making of payments mentioned in s 797(1)(c), (d) (see PARA 446 heads (3), (4)) so far as they relate to a right acquired or offer made before the transfer: s 800(4). Where any restrictions continue in force under s 800(4): (1) an application may be made under s 800 for an order directing that the shares are to cease to be subject to those restrictions; and (2) s 800(3) does not apply in relation to the making of such an order: s 800(5).

Order for sale of shares subject to restrictions.

449. Order for sale of shares subject to restrictions.

The court may order that the public company shares subject to restrictions be sold, subject to the court's approval as to the sale¹. An application for such an order may only be made by the company². Where the court has made an order, it may make such further order relating to the sale or transfer of the shares as it thinks fit³. An application for a further order may be made by the company, by the person appointed by or in pursuance of the order to effect the sale, or by any person interested in the shares⁴. On making an order or a further order, the court may order that the applicant's costs be paid out of the proceeds of sale⁵.

Where shares are sold in pursuance of an order of the court⁶, the proceeds of the sale, less the costs of the sale, must be paid into court for the benefit of the persons who are beneficially interested in the shares⁷. A person who is beneficially interested in the shares may apply to the court for the whole or part of those proceeds to be paid to him⁸. On such an application the court must order the payment to the applicant of the whole of the proceeds of sale together with any interest on them⁹, unless another person had a beneficial interest in the shares at the time of their sale, in which case the court must order the payment of such proportion of the proceeds and interest as the value of the applicant's interest in the shares bears to the total value of the shares¹⁰. However, if the court has ordered¹¹ that the costs of an applicant are to be paid out of the proceeds of sale, the applicant is entitled to payment of his costs out of those proceeds before any person interested in the shares receives any part of those proceeds¹².

(iv) Requisition by Members

450. Power of members to require company to act.

The members of a public company¹ may require it to exercise its powers² to give notice requiring information about interests in shares³. A company is required to do so once it has received requests (to the same effect) from members of the company holding at least 10 per cent of such of the paid-up capital⁴ of the company as carries a right to vote at general meetings of the company⁵ (excluding any voting rights attached to any shares in the company held as treasury shares)⁶.

A request may be in hard copy form or in electronic form⁷. It must: (1) state that the company is requested to exercise its powers to give notice requiring information about interests in shares⁸; (2) specify the manner in which the company is requested to act; and (3) give reasonable grounds for requiring the company to exercise those powers in the manner specified⁹. The request must be authenticated by the person or persons making it¹⁰.

A company that is required¹¹ to exercise its powers to give notice requiring information about interests in shares must exercise those powers in the manner specified in the requests¹². If default is made in complying with this requirement, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default¹³.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(10) DISCLOSURE OF INTERESTS IN SHARES OF PUBLIC COMPANIES/(iv) Requisition by Members/451. Report by company to members on outcome of investigation.

451. Report by company to members on outcome of investigation.

On the conclusion of an investigation carried out by a public company¹ in pursuance of a requirement of the members² the company must cause a report of the information received in pursuance of the investigation to be prepared³. The report must be made available for inspection within a reasonable period, of not more than 15 days⁴, after the conclusion of the investigation⁵.

Where a company undertakes an investigation and the investigation is not concluded within three months after the date on which the company became subject to the requirement, the company must cause to be prepared in respect of that period, and in respect of each succeeding period of three months ending before the conclusion of the investigation, an interim report of the information received during that period in pursuance of the investigation⁶. Each such report must be made available for inspection within a reasonable period, of not more than 15 days, after the end of the period to which it relates⁷.

The reports must be retained by the company for at least six years from the date on which they are first made available for inspection and must be kept available for inspection during that time at the company's registered office⁸, or at the company's alternative inspection location⁹. The company must give notice to the registrar¹⁰ of the place at which the reports are kept available for inspection and of any change in that place, unless they have at all times been kept at the company's registered office¹¹. The company must within three days of making any report prepared available for inspection, notify the members who made the requests¹² where the report is so available¹³.

If default is made in complying with the above provisions¹⁴, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default¹⁵.

Any report prepared¹⁶ must be open to inspection by any person without charge¹⁷. Any person is entitled, on request and on payment of such fee as may be prescribed¹⁸, to be provided with a copy of any such report or any part of it¹⁹. The copy must be provided within ten days after the request is received by the company²⁰.

In the case of any refusal of an inspection or default in providing a copy of a report, the court may by order compel an immediate inspection or, as the case may be, direct that the copy required be sent to the person requiring it²¹.

Register of interests disclosed following notice requiring information.

(v) Register of Interests Disclosed

452. Register of interests disclosed following notice requiring information.

A public company¹ must keep a register of information received by it in pursuance of a notice requiring information about interests in company's shares². A company which receives any such information must, within three days³ of the receipt, enter in the register: (1) the fact that the requirement was imposed and the date on which it was imposed; and (2) the information received in pursuance of the requirement⁴. The information must be entered against the name of the present holder of the shares in question or, if there is no present holder or the present holder is not known, against the name of the person holding the interest⁵. The register must be made up so that the entries against the names entered in it appear in chronological order⁶. If default is made in complying with these requirements, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer⁷ of the company who is in default⁸.

The company is not by virtue of anything done for the purposes of the provisions set out above affected with notice of, or put upon inquiry as to, the rights of any person in relation to any shares⁹.

Unless the register¹⁰ is kept in such a form as itself to constitute an index, the company must keep an index of the names entered in it¹¹. The company must make any necessary entry or alteration in the index within ten days after the date on which any entry or alteration is made in the register¹². The index must contain, in respect of each name, a sufficient indication to enable the information entered against it to be readily found¹³. The index must be at all times kept available for inspection at the same place as the register¹⁴. If default is made in complying with these requirements, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default¹⁵.

If a company ceases to be a public company, it must continue to keep any register and any associated index, until the end of the period of six years after it ceased to be such a company¹⁶. If default is made in complying with this requirement, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default¹⁷.

1 As to the meaning of 'public company' see PARA 102.

2 Companies Act 2006 s 808(1). Information is received in pursuance of a requirement imposed under s 793 (see PARA 442).

3 Where the period allowed by any provision of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 22 (ss 791-828) for fulfilling an obligation is expressed as a number of days, any day that is not a working day is to be disregarded in reckoning that period: s 827. As to the meaning of 'working day' see PARA 145 note 16.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(10) DISCLOSURE OF INTERESTS IN SHARES OF PUBLIC COMPANIES/(v) Register of Interests Disclosed/453. Rights to inspect and require copy of entries.

453. Rights to inspect and require copy of entries.

The register of interests disclosed¹ must be kept available for inspection at the company's registered office², or at the company's alternative inspection location³. A public company⁴ must give notice to the registrar of companies⁵ of the place where the register is kept available for inspection and of any change in that place⁶. No such notice is required if the register has at all times been kept available for inspection at the company's registered office⁷. If default is made in complying with the requirement to keep the register available for inspection, or a company makes default for 14 days⁸ in giving notice to the registrar, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer⁹ of the company who is in default¹⁰.

The register of interests disclosed, and any associated index, must be open to inspection by any person without charge¹¹. Any person is entitled, on request and on payment of such fee as may be prescribed¹², to be provided with a copy of any entry in the register¹³. A person seeking to exercise either of these rights must make a request to the company to that effect¹⁴, containing the following information: (1) in the case of an individual, his name and address; (2) in the case of an organisation, the name and address of an individual responsible for making the request on behalf of the organisation; (3) the purpose for which the information is to be used; and (4) whether the information will be disclosed to any other person, and if so (a) where that person is an individual, his name and address; (b) where that person is an organisation, the name and address of an individual responsible for receiving the information on its behalf; and (c) the purpose for which the information is to be used by that person¹⁵.

Where a company receives a request¹⁶ to inspect or require a copy of the register, it must comply with the request if it is satisfied that it is made for a proper purpose, or refuse the request if it is not so satisfied¹⁷. If the company refuses the request, it must inform the person making the request, stating the reason why it is not satisfied¹⁸. A person whose request is refused may apply to the court¹⁹. If an application is made to the court, the person who made the request must notify the company, and the company must use its best endeavours to notify any persons whose details would be disclosed if the company were required to comply with the request²⁰. If the court is not satisfied that the inspection or copy is sought for a proper purpose, it must direct the company not to comply with the request²¹. If the court makes such a direction and it appears to the court that the company is or may be subject to other requests made for a similar purpose (whether made by the same person or different persons), it may direct that the company is not to comply with any such request²². If the court does not direct the company not to comply with the request, the company must comply with the request immediately upon the court giving its decision or, as the case may be, the proceedings being discontinued²³.

If an inspection of the register is refused or default is made in providing a copy required, otherwise than in accordance with an order of the court, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default²⁴. In the case of any such refusal or default the court may by order compel an immediate inspection or, as the case may be, direct that the copy required be sent to the person requesting it²⁵.

It is an offence for a person knowingly or recklessly to make, in a request to inspect or require a copy of the register of interests, a statement that is misleading, false or deceptive in a material particular²⁶. It is also an offence for a person in possession of information obtained by exercise of the right to inspect or require a copy of the register to do anything that results in the information being disclosed to another person, or to fail to do anything with the result that the information is disclosed to another person, knowing, or having reason to suspect, that person may use the information for a purpose that is not a proper purpose²⁷.

Entries not to be removed from the register or adjusted except in accordance with statute.

454. Entries not to be removed from the register or adjusted except in accordance with statute.

Entries in the register of interests disclosed¹ must not be deleted² unless:

- 779 (1) more than six years have elapsed since the entry was made³;
- 780 (2) there is an incorrect entry relating to a third party⁴.

If an entry is wrongly deleted, the company must restore it as soon as reasonably practicable⁵. If default is made in complying with these requirements, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer⁶ of the company who is in default⁷.

If a person who is identified in the register of interests disclosed as being a party to a share acquisition agreement⁸ ceases to be a party to the agreement, he may apply to the company for the inclusion of that information in the register⁹. If the company is satisfied that he has ceased to be a party to the agreement, it must record that information (if not already recorded) in every place where his name appears in the register as a party to the agreement¹⁰. If an application is refused (otherwise than on the ground that the information has already been recorded), the applicant may apply to the court for an order directing the company to include the information in question in the register, and the court may make such an order if it thinks fit¹¹.

name and address of another person as being interested in shares in the company, that other person may apply to the company for the removal of the entry from the register: s 817(1), (2). If the company is satisfied that the information in pursuance of which the entry was made is incorrect, it must remove the entry: s 817(3). If an application is refused, the applicant may apply to the court for an order directing the company to remove the entry in question from the register; and the court may make such an order if it thinks fit: s 817(4).

(11) DERIVATIVE CLAIMS ETC BY MEMBERS

455. Statutory basis for bringing derivative claims.

Provision is made in the Companies Act 2006¹ applying to proceedings (a 'derivative claim') by a member of a company²:

- 781 (1) in respect of a cause of action vested in the company³; and
- 782 (2) seeking relief on behalf of the company⁴.

A derivative claim under the provision so made⁵ may be brought only in respect of a cause of action arising from an actual or proposed act or omission involving negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust by a director of the company⁶. The cause of action may be against the director or another person (or both)⁷. It is immaterial whether the cause of action arose before or after the person seeking to bring or continue the derivative claim became a member of the company⁸.

A derivative claim may only be brought either under the Companies Act 2006 provisions⁹ or in pursuance of an order of the court in proceedings¹⁰ for the protection of members against unfair prejudice¹¹.

1 Ie the Companies Act 2006 Pt 11 Ch 1 (ss 260-264) (derivative claims in England and Wales or Northern Ireland) (see also PARA 457 et seq): see s 260(1). As to the relationship between the statutory provisions which govern derivative claims and the substantive common law principles upon which the statute is based see PARA 462.

The provisions in the Companies Act 2006 Pt 11 Ch 1, supplemented by Civil Procedure Rules (see CPR 19.9-19.9F; and PARA 456 et seq), introduce a two-stage procedure for permission to continue a derivative claim: (1) the applicant is required to make a prima facie case for permission to continue a derivative claim and the court is required to consider the issue on the basis of the evidence filed by the applicant only, without requiring evidence from the defendant (see PARA 457 et seq); (2) before the substantive action begins, the court may require evidence to be provided by the company, and the matters which the court must take into account in considering whether to give permission and the circumstances in which the court is bound to refuse permission are set out (see also PARA 460 et seq). There is a need for judicial control of all stages of a derivative action and the requirement for permission is not a mere technicality: Portfolios of Distinction Ltd v Laird [2004] EWHC 2071 (Ch), [2004] 2 BCLC 741.

Where either a body corporate to which the Companies Act 2006 Pt 11 Ch 1 does not apply, or a trade union, is alleged to be entitled to a remedy (CPR 19.9C(1)(a)), and either a claim is made by a member for it to be given that remedy, or a member of the body corporate or trade union seeks to take over a claim already started, by the body corporate or trade union or one or more of its members, for it to be given that remedy (CPR 19.9C(1)(b)), the member who starts, or seeks to take over, the claim must apply to the court for permission to continue the claim (CPR 19.9C(2)). The application for permission must be made by an application notice in accordance with CPR Pt 23 (as to which see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 303 et seq): CPR 19.9C(3). The procedure for applications in relation to companies under the Companies Act 2006 s 261 (see PARA 457), s 262 (see PARA 458) or s 264 (see PARA 459), as the case requires, applies to the permission application as if the body corporate or trade union were a company (CPR 19.9C(4)); and CPR 19.9A (except for CPR 19.9A(1)) (see PARAS 457, 458, 459) and CPR 19.9B (see PARAS 458, 459) apply to the permission application as if the body corporate or trade union were a company (CPR 19.9C(5)). See also note 11.

If a derivative claim, except such a claim in pursuance of an order under the Companies Act 2006 s 996 (see PARA 475), arises in the course of other proceedings, then, in the case of a derivative claim under the Companies Act 2006 Pt 11 Ch 1, CPR 19.9A or CPR 19.9B applies, as the case requires, and, in any other case, CPR 19.9C applies: CPR 19.9D.

2 Companies Act 2006 s 260(1). For these purposes, references to a member of a company include a person who is not a member but to whom shares in the company have been transferred or transmitted by operation of law: s 260(5). As to the meaning of 'member of a company' under the Companies Act 2006 generally see PARA 321. As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16. As to the meaning of 'share' see PARA 1042. As to the transfer and transmission of shares generally see PARA 389 et seq.

3 Companies Act 2006 s 260(1)(a). As to the arguments regarding whether an action, such as may be brought by a member of a company, may be brought by a member of its parent or ultimate holding company in cases where a subsidiary (or sub-subsidiary) has caused loss (a 'multiple derivative action') see Waddington Ltd v Chan Chun Hoo Thomas [2008] HKCU 1381, [2009] 2 BCLC 82.

Derivative claims must be seen in the context of the principle that a company has a legal personality that is separate and distinct from that of its members, with the consequence that proceedings deriving from rights that are vested in the company can be commenced only in the company's name: see PARA 120 text and note 16. As to the company's name in litigation see PARA 301.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 260(1)(b). See note 3.

5 le under the Companies Act 2006 Pt 11 Ch 1 (see also PARA 457 et seq): see s 260(3).

6 Companies Act 2006 s 260(3). For these purposes, 'director' includes a former director and a shadow director is treated as a director: s 260(5). As to the meaning of 'director' see PARA 478; and as to the meaning of 'shadow director' see PARA 479. As to the material meaning of the word 'default' in the term 'negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust' see Customs and Excise Comrs v Hedon Alpha Ltd [1981] QB 818, [1981] 2 All ER 697, CA (considering the Companies Act 1948 s 448).

Directors of a company, as well as owing duties at common law, deriving eg from their fiduciary duties as trustees of the company's property (see PARA 539), have duties under the Companies Act 2006 which are stated to be owed by a director of a company to the company alone (see s 170; and PARAS 532-533). Specifically, these duties are to act in accordance with the company's constitution, and to only exercise powers for the purposes for which they are conferred (see s 171; and PARA 540); to promote the success of the company (see s 172; and PARA 544); to exercise independent judgment (see s 173; and PARA 547); to exercise reasonable care, skill and diligence (see s 174; and PARA 548); to avoid conflicts of interest (see s 175; and PARA 550); not to accept benefits from third parties (see s 176; and PARA 553); and to declare any interest in any proposed transaction or arrangement (see s 177; and PARA 555). A cause of action arising from an actual or proposed act or omission involving a breach of duty includes (but is not limited to) an alleged breach of any or all of the general statutory duties contained in Pt 10 Ch 2 (ss 170-181) (as to which see PARA 532 et seq).

The statutory basis for derivative claims, as it is provided for under the Companies Act 2006, allows a company member to claim against a wider range of conduct than previously. As to the position that pertained prior to the 2006 Act see eg Pavlides v Jensen [1956] Ch 565, [1956] 2 All ER 518, a claim for negligence, on the allegation that directors had been guilty of gross negligence in effecting a sale of a valuable asset of the company at a price greatly below its true market value, was held not to fall within the admitted exceptions to the common law rule in Foss v Harbottle (1843) 2 Hare 461 (as to which see PARA 462 note 4), and, accordingly, was not maintainable. Although a claim under the Companies Act 2006 lies in negligence, negligence is ratifiable (see s 263(2)(c); and PARA 460), and actual ratification will bar a claim (see Pavlides v Jensen).

7 Companies Act 2006 s 260(3).

8 Companies Act 2006 s 260(4).

If, or to the extent that, the claim arises from acts or omissions that occurred before 1 October 2007 (ie the date on which Pt 11 Ch 1 was commenced: see the Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 3, Consequential Amendments, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2007, SI 2007/2194, art 2(1)(e)), the court must exercise its powers under the Companies Act 2006 Pt 11 Ch 1 so as to secure that the claim is allowed to proceed as a derivative claim only if, or to the extent that, it would have been allowed to proceed as a derivative claim under the law in force immediately before that date: see the Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 3, Consequential Amendments, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2007, SI 2007/2194, art 9, Sch 3 para 20(3).

9 Ie under the Companies Act 2006 Pt 11 Ch 1 (see also PARA 457 et seq): see s 260(2). See, however, s 370 which allows a statutory derivative action to be brought by an authorised group of members of the company to make a director or former director of a company account for improper political donations; and see PARA 691.

10 Ie an order of the court under the Companies Act 2006 Pt 30 (ss 994-999) (see PARA 466 et seq): see s 260(2). See also s 996; and PARA 475.

11 Companies Act 2006 s 260(2). Neither CPR 19.9 nor Practice Direction-Derivative Claims PD 19C applies to a derivative claim made pursuant to an order of the court under the Companies Act 2006 s 996 (see PARA 475): see CPR 19.9(1)(b); Practice Direction-Derivative Claims PD 19C para 1(b); and PARA 456 note 2. See also PARA 463. It is clear that the law relating to derivative claims will continue to develop henceforth under the Companies Act 2006 Pt 11 alone.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(11) DERIVATIVE CLAIMS ETC BY MEMBERS/456. Procedure for starting a statutory derivative claim.

456. Procedure for starting a statutory derivative claim.

A derivative claim¹ must be started by a claim form², headed 'Derivative claim'³.

The company (or body corporate or trade union) for the benefit of which a remedy is sought must be made a defendant to the claim⁴. If the claimant seeks an order that the defendant company or other body concerned indemnify the claimant against liability for costs incurred in the permission application or the claim, this should be stated in the permission application or claim form or both, as the case requires⁵.

After the issue of the claim form, the claimant must not take any further step in the proceedings without the permission of the court, other than a step permitted or required by the rules governing derivative claims⁶, or to make an urgent application for interim relief⁷.

1 As to the statutory basis for derivative claims that is provided for under the Companies Act 2006 see PARA 455; and as to the relationship between those statutory provisions and the substantive common law principles upon which the statute is based see PARA 462. See also note 2.

2 CPR 19.9(2). CPR 19.9 applies to a derivative claim (where a company, other body corporate or trade union is alleged to be entitled to claim a remedy, and a claim is made by a member of it for it to be given that remedy), whether under the Companies Act 2006 Pt 11 Ch 1 (ss 260-264) (see PARAS 455, 457 et seq) or otherwise: CPR 19.9(1)(a). However, CPR 19.9 does not apply to a claim made pursuant to an order of the court under the Companies Act 2006 s 996 (see PARA 475): CPR 19.9(1)(b). Practice Direction-Derivative Claims PD 19C also applies to derivative claims, whether under the Companies Act 2006 Pt 11 Ch 1 or otherwise, as well as to applications for permission to continue or take over such claims (see PARA 457 et seq): Practice Direction-Derivative Claims PD 19C para 1(a). However, that practice direction does not apply to a claim made pursuant to an order of the court under the Companies Act 2006 s 996: Practice Direction-Derivative Claims PD 19C para 1(b).

There is no reason in principle to restrict CPR 19.9 to English companies, and the court could entertain a derivative claim in the case of a company incorporated abroad, but the courts of the place of incorporation would almost invariably be the most appropriate forum for the resolution of issues that related to the internal management of a company (including the right of shareholders to sue on behalf of the company): Konamaneni v Rolls-Royce Industrial Power (India) Ltd [2002] 1 All ER 979, [2002] 1 WLR 1269; Reeves v Sprecher [2007] EWHC 117 (Ch), [2007] 2 BCLC 614.

3 Practice Direction-Derivative Claims PD 19C para 2(1). When the claim form for a derivative claim is issued, the claimant must file an application notice under CPR Pt 23 (as to which see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 303 et seq) for permission to continue the claim (CPR 19.9A(2)(a)); and the written evidence on which the claimant relies in support of the permission application (CPR 19.9A(2)(b)). For these purposes, 'derivative claim' means a derivative claim under the Companies Act 2006 Pt 11 Ch 1 (see PARAS 455, 457 et seq); and 'permission application' means an application referred to in s 261(1) (see PARA 457), s 262(2) (see PARA 458) or s 264(2) (see PARA 459), as the case may be: CPR 19.9A(1).

457. Application to court for permission to continue statutory derivative claim.

A member of a company¹ who brings a statutory derivative claim² must apply to the court³ for permission to continue it⁴. The claimant must not make the company⁵ a respondent to the permission application⁶, but must notify the company of the claim and permission application by sending to the company as soon as reasonably practicable after the claim form is issued⁷: (1) a notice in the prescribed form⁸, to which is attached a copy of the provisions of the Companies Act 2006 required by that form⁹; (2) copies of the claim form and the particulars of claim¹⁰; (3) the application notice¹¹; and (4) a copy of the evidence filed by the claimant in support of the permission application¹². However, where notifying the company of the permission application would be likely to frustrate some party of the remedy sought, the court may, on application by the claimant, order that the company need not be notified for such period after the issue of the claim form as the court directs¹³.

If it appears to the court that the application and the evidence filed by the applicant in support of it do not disclose a prima facie case for giving permission¹⁴, the court must dismiss the application¹⁵, and may make any consequential order it considers appropriate¹⁶. Where the court dismisses the claimant's permission application without a hearing, the court must notify the claimant and (unless the court orders otherwise) the company of that decision¹⁷; and the claimant may ask for an oral hearing to reconsider the decision to dismiss the permission application¹⁸. However, the claimant: (a) must make the request to the court in writing within seven days of being notified of the decision¹⁹; and (b) must notify the company in writing, as soon as reasonably practicable, of that request unless the court orders otherwise²⁰. Where the court dismisses the permission application at a hearing in this way²¹, it must notify the claimant and the company of its decision²².

If the application is not so dismissed²³: (i) the court may give directions as to the evidence to be provided by the company²⁴, and may adjourn the proceedings to enable the evidence to be obtained²⁵; and (ii) the court must order that the company and any other appropriate party must be made respondents to the permission application²⁶, and give directions for the service on the company and any other appropriate party of the application notice and the claim form²⁷.

On hearing the application, the court may give permission to continue the claim on such terms as it thinks fit²⁸, refuse permission and dismiss the claim²⁹, or adjourn the proceedings on the application and give such directions as it thinks fit³⁰. As a condition of granting permission to continue a derivative claim, the court may order that the claim is not to be discontinued, settled or compromised without the court's permission³¹.

2 Ie under the Companies Act 2006 Pt 11 Ch 1 (ss 260-264) (see PARAS 455, 458 et seq); see s 261(1). As to the relationship between the statutory provisions which govern derivative claims and the substantive common law principles upon which the statute is based see PARA 462.

3 As to the meaning of 'court' see PARA 212 note 1; and see note 4.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 261(1). Where a permission application to continue a derivative claim is made in the High Court it will be assigned to the Chancery Division and decided by a High Court judge: Practice Direction-Derivative Claims PD 19C para 6(1). Where such an application is made in a county court it will be decided by a circuit judge: para 6(2). When the claim form for a derivative claim is issued (as to which see PARA 456), the claimant must file an application notice under CPR Pt 23 (as to which see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 303 et seq) for permission to continue the claim, and the written evidence on which the claimant relies in support of the permission application: see CPR 19.9A(2); and PARA 456. For these purposes, 'permission application' means an application referred to in the Companies Act 2006 s 261(1): CPR 19.9A(1). As to the meaning of 'derivative claim' see PARA 456 note 3.

Where either a body corporate to which the Companies Act 2006 Pt 11 Ch 1 does not apply, or a trade union, is alleged to be entitled to a remedy (CPR 19.9C(1)(a)), and a claim is made by a member for it to be given that remedy (CPR 19.9C(1)(b)), the member who starts the claim must apply to the court for permission to continue the claim (CPR 19.9C(2)). The application for permission must be made by an application notice in accordance with CPR Pt 23: CPR 19.9C(3). The procedure for applications in relation to companies under the Companies Act 2006 s 261 applies to the permission application as if the body corporate or trade union were a company (CPR 19.9C(4)); and CPR 19.9A (except for CPR 19.9A(1)) applies to the permission application as if the body corporate or trade union were a company (CPR 19.9C(5)).

If a derivative claim, except such a claim in pursuance of an order under the Companies Act 2006 s 996 (see PARA 475), arises in the course of other proceedings, then, in the case of a derivative claim under the Companies Act 2006 Pt 11 Ch 1, CPR 19.9A or CPR 19.9B (see PARAS 458, 459) applies, as the case requires, and, in any other case, CPR 19.9C applies: CPR 19.9D.

5 For these purposes, 'company' means the company for the benefit of which the derivative claim is brought: CPR 19.9A(1).

6 CPR 19.9A(3).

7 CPR 19.9A(4). The claimant may send the notice and documents required by CPR 19.9A(4) to the company by any method permitted by CPR Pt 6 (as to which see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 138 et seq) as if the notice and documents were being served on the company: CPR 19.9A(5). The claimant must file a witness statement confirming that the claimant has notified the company in accordance with CPR 19.9A(4): CPR 19.9A(6).

8 Ie in the form set out in the practice direction supplementing CPR 19.9A (ie Practice Direction-Derivative Claims PD 19C): see CPR 19.9A(4)(a). The form required by CPR 19.9A(4)(a) to be sent to the defendant company or other body is set out at the end of Practice Direction-Derivative Claims PD 19C (see Notice in relation to derivative claim): para 4. There are separate versions of the form for claims involving a company, and claims involving a body corporate of another kind or a trade union: see para 4. 12 CPR 19.9A(4)(d).

13 CPR 19.9A(7). If the applicant seeks an order under CPR 19.9A(7) delaying notice to the defendant company or other body concerned, the applicant must also state in the application notice the reasons for the application, and file with it any written evidence in support of the application: Practice Direction-Derivative Claims PD 19C para 3. An application under CPR 19.9A(7) may be made without notice: CPR 19.9A(8).

14 Companies Act 2006 s 261(2). The decision whether the claimant's evidence discloses a prima facie case will normally be made without submissions from or (in the case of an oral hearing to reconsider such a decision reached pursuant to CPR 19.9A(9) (see the text and note 17)) attendance by the company: Practice Direction-Derivative Claims PD 19C para 5. If without invitation from the court the company volunteers a submission or attendance, the company will not normally be allowed any costs of that submission or attendance: see para 5. At common law, where those seeking to bring a minority shareholders' action in fact control the company, such that they are in a position to cause the company to bring the claim, the action is wholly misconceived: Watts v Midland Bank plc [1986] BCLC 15 (action against receiver for alleged improper discharge of his duties; no obstacle to company bringing the action itself). It remains to be seen whether the court will regard such a situation as not disclosing a prima facie case, so that permission to proceed should be refused.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(11) DERIVATIVE CLAIMS ETC BY MEMBERS/458. Application for permission to continue company claim as a statutory derivative claim.

458. Application for permission to continue company claim as a statutory derivative claim.

Where a company¹ has brought a claim², and where the cause of action on which the claim is based could be pursued as a derivative claim³, a member of the company⁴ may apply to the court for permission to continue the claim as a derivative claim⁵ on the ground that:

- 783 (1) the manner in which the company commenced or continued the claim amounts to an abuse of the process of the court⁶;
- 784 (2) the company has failed to prosecute the claim diligently⁷; and
- 785 (3) it is appropriate for the member to continue the claim as a derivative claim⁸.

The person who seeks to take over the claim must not make the company a respondent to the permission application⁹, but must notify the company of the claim and permission application by sending to the company as soon as reasonably practicable after the claim form is issued¹⁰: (a) a notice in the prescribed form¹¹, to which is attached a copy of the provisions of the Companies Act 2006 required by that form¹²; (b) the application notice¹³; and (c) a copy of the evidence filed by the person who seeks to take over the claim in support of the permission application¹⁴. However, where notifying the company of the permission application would be likely to frustrate some party of the remedy sought, the court may, on application by the person who seeks to take over the claim, order that the company need not be notified for such period after the issue of the claim form as the court directs¹⁵.

If it appears to the court that the application and the evidence filed by the applicant in support of it do not disclose a prima facie case for giving permission¹⁶, the court must dismiss the application¹⁷, and may make any consequential order it considers appropriate¹⁸. Where the court dismisses without a hearing the permission application of the person who seeks to take over the claim, the court must notify the person who seeks to take over the claim and (unless the court orders otherwise) the company of that decision¹⁹; and the person who seeks to take over the claim may ask for an oral hearing to reconsider the decision to dismiss the permission application²⁰. However, the person who seeks to take over the claim: (i) must make the request to the court in writing within seven days of being notified of the decision²¹; and (ii) must notify the company in writing, as soon as reasonably practicable, of that request unless the court orders otherwise²². Where the court dismisses the permission application at a hearing in this way²³, it must notify the person who seeks to take over the claim and the company of its decision²⁴.

If the application is not so dismissed²⁵, the court may give directions as to the evidence to be provided by the company²⁶, and may adjourn the proceedings to enable the evidence to be obtained²⁷.

On hearing the application, the court may give permission to continue the claim as a derivative claim on such terms as it thinks fit²⁸, refuse permission and dismiss the application²⁹, or adjourn the proceedings on the application and give such directions as it thinks fit³⁰. As a condition of granting permission to continue a derivative claim, the court may order that the claim is not to be discontinued, settled or compromised without the court's permission³¹.

Where such an application is made in a county court it will be decided by a circuit judge: para 6(2). As to the meaning of 'court' generally see PARA 212 note 1. The application for permission under the Companies Act 2006 s 262(1) (see the text and notes 1-3) must be made by an application notice in accordance with CPR Pt 23 (as to which see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 303 et seq): CPR 19.9B(1), (2). CPR 19.9A, except for CPR 19.9A(1), (2), (4)(b), and CPR 19.9A(12)(b) so far as it applies to the claim form, applies to an application under CPR 19.9B: CPR 19.9B(3). (Note, however, that CPR 19.9A(12) applies only to the dismissal of an application under the Companies Act 2006 s 261(2) (see PARA 457): see CPR 19.9A(12); and PARA 457). References to the claimant in CPR 19.9A are to be read as references to the person who seeks to take over the claim: see CPR 19.9B(3).

Where either a body corporate to which the Companies Act 2006 Pt 11 Ch 1 does not apply, or a trade union, is alleged to be entitled to a remedy (CPR 19.9C(1)(a)), and a member of the body corporate or trade union seeks to take over a claim already started, by the body corporate or trade union or one or more of its members, for it to be given that remedy (CPR 19.9C(1)(b)), the member who seeks to take over the claim must apply to the court for permission to continue the claim (CPR 19.9C(2)). The application for permission must be made by an application notice in accordance with CPR Pt 23: CPR 19.9C(3). The procedure for applications in relation to companies under the Companies Act 2006 s 262 applies to the permission application as if the body corporate or trade union were a company (CPR 19.9C(4)); and CPR 19.9A (except for CPR 19.9A(1)) and CPR 19.9B apply to the permission application as if the body corporate or trade union were a company (CPR 19.9C(5)).

If a derivative claim, except such a claim in pursuance of an order under the Companies Act 2006 s 996 (see PARA 475), arises in the course of other proceedings, then, in the case of a derivative claim under the Companies Act 2006 Pt 11 Ch 1, CPR 19.9A or CPR 19.9B applies, as the case requires, and, in any other case, CPR 19.9C applies: CPR 19.9D.

459. Application for permission to continue statutory derivative claim brought by another member.

Where a member of a company¹ (the 'claimant') has brought a derivative claim², or has continued as a derivative claim a claim brought by the company³, or has continued a derivative claim brought by another member⁴, another member of the company (the 'applicant') may apply to the court for permission to continue the claim⁵ on the ground that:

If the application is not dismissed²⁵, the court may give directions as to the evidence to be provided by the company²⁶, and may adjourn the proceedings to enable the evidence to be obtained²⁷.

On hearing the application, the court may give permission to continue the claim on such terms as it thinks fit²⁸, may refuse permission and dismiss the application²⁹, or may adjourn the proceedings on the application and give such directions as it thinks fit³⁰. The application for permission under the Companies Act 2006 s 264(1) must be made by an application notice in accordance with CPR Pt 23 (as to which see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 303 et seq): CPR 19.9B(1), (2). CPR 19.9A, except for CPR 19.9A(1), (2), (4)(b), and CPR 19.9A(12)(b) so far as it applies to the claim form, applies to an application under CPR 19.9B: CPR 19.9B(3). (Note, however, that CPR 19.9A(12) applies only to the dismissal of an application under the Companies Act 2006 s 261(2) (see PARA 457): see CPR 19.9A(12); and PARA 457). References to the claimant in CPR 19.9A are to be read as references to the person who seeks to take over the claim: see CPR 19.9B(3).

Where either a body corporate to which the Companies Act 2006 Pt 11 Ch 1 does not apply, or a trade union, is alleged to be entitled to a remedy (CPR 19.9C(1)(a)), and a member of the body corporate or trade union seeks to take over a claim already started, by the body corporate or trade union or one or more of its members, for it to be given that remedy (CPR 19.9C(1)(b)), the member who seeks to take over the claim must apply to the court for permission to continue the claim (CPR 19.9C(2)). The application for permission must be made by an application notice in accordance with CPR Pt 23: CPR 19.9C(3). The procedure for applications in relation to companies under the Companies Act 2006 s 264 applies to the permission application as if the body corporate or trade union were a company (CPR 19.9C(4)); and CPR 19.9A (except for CPR 19.9A(1)) and CPR 19.9B apply to the permission application as if the body corporate or trade union were a company (CPR 19.9C(5)).

If a derivative claim, except such a claim in pursuance of an order under the Companies Act 2006 s 996 (see PARA 475), arises in the course of other proceedings, then, in the case of a derivative claim under the Companies Act 2006 Pt 11 Ch 1, CPR 19.9A or CPR 19.9B applies, as the case requires, and, in any other case, CPR 19.9C applies: CPR 19.9D.

The person who seeks to take over the claim may send the notice and documents required by CPR 19.9A(4) to the company by any method permitted by CPR Pt 6 (as to which see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 138 et seq) as if the notice and documents were being served on the company: CPR 19.9A(5). The person who seeks to take over the claim must file a witness statement confirming that he has notified the company in accordance with CPR 19.9A(4): CPR 19.9A(6). See note 5.

An application under CPR 19.9A(7) may be made without notice: CPR 19.9A(8). See note 5.

16 The decision whether the evidence of the person who seeks to take over the claim discloses a prima facie case will normally be made without submissions from or, in the case of an oral hearing to reconsider such a decision reached pursuant to CPR 19.9A(9) (see the text and note 19) attendance by the company: Practice Direction-Derivative Claims PD 19C para 5. If without invitation from the court the company volunteers a submission or attendance, the company will not normally be allowed any costs of that submission or attendance: see para 5.

460. Whether permission to continue a statutory derivative claim may be given.

Where a member of a company¹ applies for permission either to continue a derivative claim² or to continue another claim as a derivative claim³, permission must be refused if the court⁴ is satisfied⁵:

- 789 (1) that a person acting in accordance with a director's statutory duty to promote the success of the company⁶ would not seek to continue the claim⁷; or
- 790 (2) where the cause of action arises from an act or omission that is yet to occur, that the act or omission has been authorised by the company⁸; or
- 791 (3) where the cause of action arises from an act or omission that has already occurred, that the act or omission either was authorised by the company before it occurred⁹ or has been ratified by the company since it occurred¹⁰.

In considering whether to give permission, the court must take into account, in particular¹¹:

- 792 (a) whether the member is acting in good faith in seeking to continue the claim¹²;
- 793 (b) the importance that a person acting in accordance with a director's statutory duty to promote the success of the company¹³ would attach to continuing it¹⁴;
- 794 (c) where the cause of action results from an act or omission that is yet to occur, whether the act or omission could be, and in the circumstances would be likely to be, either authorised by the company before it occurs¹⁵, or ratified by the company after it occurs¹⁶;
- 795 (d) where the cause of action arises from an act or omission that has already occurred, whether the act or omission could be, and in the circumstances would be likely to be, ratified by the company¹⁷;
- 796 (e) whether the company has decided not to pursue the claim¹⁸;
- 797 (f) whether the act or omission in respect of which the claim is brought gives rise to a cause of action that the member could pursue in his own right rather than on behalf of the company¹⁹.

In considering whether to give permission, the court must have particular regard to any evidence before it as to the views of members of the company who have no personal interest, direct or indirect, in the matter²⁰.

The Secretary of State²¹ may by regulations²² amend heads (1) to (3) above so as to alter or add to the circumstances in which permission is to be refused²³, and amend heads (a) to (f) above so as to alter or add to the matters that the court is required to take into account in considering whether to give permission²⁴.

461. Liability for costs in derivative claims.

The court may order the company (or body corporate or trade union) for the benefit of which a derivative claim is brought¹ to indemnify the claimant against liability for costs incurred in the permission application or in the derivative claim or both².

Such an order will not be made unless the claim is for the benefit of shareholders³; and such an order does not amount to a lien for unrecovered costs on the company's assets or assets recovered as a result of the action⁴.

1 As to the statutory basis for bringing a derivative claim see PARA 455 et seq. As to the relationship between the statutory provisions which govern derivative claims and the substantive common law principles upon which the statute is based see PARA 462.

2 CPR 19.9E. This rule reflects the court's power, at common law, where a shareholder had, in good faith and on reasonable grounds, sued as claimant in a minority shareholder's action (the benefit of which, if successful, would accrue to the company and only indirectly to the claimant as a member of the company) to order the company to pay the claimant's costs: see Wallersteiner v Moir (No 2) [1975] QB 373, [1975] 1 All ER 849, CA; Jaybird Group Ltd v Greenwood [1986] BCLC 319. (for subsequent proceedings see [1988] Ch 114, [1987] BCLC 355). The Civil Procedure Rules ('CPR') do not indicate the basis on which the court may exercise its discretion and the common law approach must now be considered in the context of the statutory basis for derivative claims set out in the Companies Act 2006 Pt 11 Ch 1 (ss 260-264) (derivative claims in England and Wales or Northern Ireland) (see PARA 455 et seq). However, Wallersteiner v Moir (No 2) is likely to continue to guide the court in the exercise of its discretion, given the absence of statutory guidance.

The relief for costs is available only in a permission application or derivative claim; it is not available to a shareholder whose individual rights have been infringed: Re a Company (No 005136 of 1986) [1987] BCLC 82.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(11) DERIVATIVE CLAIMS ETC BY MEMBERS/462. Relationship between the statutory derivative claim and substantive common law principles.

462. Relationship between the statutory derivative claim and substantive common law principles.

The statutory provisions governing the bringing of a derivative claim under the Companies Act 2006¹ do not supplant the substantive common law principles underlying derivative claims², but provide a new procedure with flexible and accessible criteria for determining whether a shareholder can pursue a derivative claim³.

Accordingly, the common law principle, that the proper claimant in respect of a wrong allegedly done to a company is prima facie the company⁴, is maintained. However, the other fundamental principle established at common law, that no individual member of the company is allowed to maintain an action in respect of an alleged wrong which might be made binding on the company by a simple majority of the members⁵, has been modified by the statute⁶. At common law, the possibility of ratification sufficed to bar a member's claim on behalf of the company⁷. Under the statute, the alleged wrong must have been authorised or ratified in order to bar a claim⁸; otherwise, whether the alleged wrong would be likely to be authorised or ratified is merely a matter which the court must take into account in considering whether to give permission to continue a derivative claim or continue a company claim as a derivative claim⁹. Whether the alleged wrong is capable of ratification remains a matter for the common law¹⁰, but ratification of conduct by a director amounting to negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust must be in accordance with the statutory requirements excluding certain votes¹¹.

3 See the Explanatory Notes to the Companies Act 2006 para 491. The derivative claim itself was described at common law as a mere matter of procedure in order to give a remedy for a wrong which would otherwise escape redress: see Burland v Earle [1902] AC 83 at 93, PC; and PARA 463.

Derivative claims must be seen in the context of the principles that a company has a legal personality that is separate and distinct from that of its members (see PARA 120); and that a director's duty is to the company alone and not to individual members or third parties (a position now set down in the Companies Act 2006: see s 170; and PARA 532 et seq).

463. Acts which may not be made binding by simple majority of members.

At common law, a derivative claim¹ lay only if, inter alia, the alleged wrong could not be made binding on the company by a simple majority of the members² as where the act complained of is of a fraudulent character³ or oppressive or is ultra vires the company⁴, or is criminal⁵; or where the wrongdoers control the majority of votes⁶; or where the result would otherwise be that the company was carrying out by an ordinary resolution something which could be properly carried out only by a special resolution⁷, or by any other resolution requiring a prescribed majority⁸. It remains the case that such conduct cannot be ratified and a derivative claim lies, subject to the permission of the court to continue the claim being obtained⁹. Examples of unratifiable conduct where the court has allowed a claim to be brought include¹⁰:

- 798 (1) to prevent a fraudulent sale by a promoter to the company¹¹; or
- 799 (2) to prevent fraud on a minority¹², as where an arrangement is being carried out beneficial only to the majority of shareholders¹³; or
- 800 (3) where, without fraud, the directors and majority shareholders are guilty of a breach of duty which not only harms the company but benefits those shareholders¹⁴; or
- 801 (4) where resolutions have been passed for altering a company's articles of association¹⁵ in the interest of a majority to enable them to expropriate a minority¹⁶; or
- 802 (5) where a resolution has been passed for the transfer of a controlling interest in a company which may involve a complete transformation of the company¹⁷; or
- 803 (6) where directors are withholding payment of calls on their own shares while making calls on those of other persons¹⁸; or
- 804 (7) where the directors have sold the company's land at an undervalue to one of their number¹⁹; or

- 805 (8) where the company is existing only for the purpose of being wound up and gratuities are voted to its employees and directors²⁰; or
- 806 (9) where a resolution has been passed by the votes of the holder of the majority of the shares which has the effect of appropriating to his own use a contract which belongs in equity to the company²¹, or stifling proceedings by the company against him²²; or
- 807 (10) where resolutions have been passed on winding up purporting to divide the assets in fraud of a class of shareholders²³; or
- 808 (11) where the chairman of a meeting has improperly rejected votes²⁴; or
- 809 (12) where a proper notice of the purpose of a meeting involving payments to directors has not been given²⁵; or
- 810 (13) where shares are being issued to secure a majority of votes²⁶; or
- 811 (14) where the majority of directors exclude the minority from meetings of the board or a committee of it²⁷; or
- 812 (15) where the company is conducting its business in an illegal way²⁸.

464. Acts which may be made binding by simple majority of members.

At common law, where proceedings are brought by shareholders complaining in their own names and on behalf of the others¹, the claimants have no larger right to relief than the company would have if it were the claimant and cannot complain of acts which are valid if done with the approval of the majority of shareholders, or are capable of being confirmed by the majority, as mere irregularity or informality which may be remedied is insufficient². Thus directors will not be restrained³:

813 (1) from making or enforcing calls in good faith⁴; or

814 (2) from applying the proceeds in a particular manner⁵; or

815 (3) from applying the proceeds of the issue of new shares to purposes other than those for which the issue was made⁶; or

816 (4) from cancelling unissued shares⁷; or

817 (5) from otherwise applying the funds of the company within its powers⁸, and they will not be interfered with as regards the manner in which profits are ascertained⁹, or as to distributing profits while debts are unpaid¹⁰, or as regards selecting the place where a general meeting of the company is to be held¹¹, or as regards drawing up the accounts in accordance with their business judgment exercised in good faith¹². Under the Companies Act 2006, the acts or omissions complained of must be actually approved by the majority in order to defeat a derivative claim¹³; otherwise, the likelihood of authorisation or ratification is merely a matter which the court must take into account in considering whether to give permission to continue a derivative claim or continue a company claim as a derivative claim¹⁴. Ratification of conduct by a director amounting to negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust must be in accordance with the statutory requirements excluding certain votes¹⁵.

465. Effect of liquidation on bringing derivative claim.

At common law, once a company has gone into liquidation, it is no longer possible for a derivative or minority shareholders' claim to be brought¹. (The reason such a claim is allowed in the first place depends upon the impossibility of the claimants' obtaining relief in any other manner). Once the company has gone into liquidation, the right to bring a claim in the name of the company passes to the liquidator², and, if he is unwilling to bring any claim which the minority shareholders consider ought to be brought, they may apply to the court for assistance³. This may take the form of an order that the liquidator does himself bring proceedings in the name of the company, or that the minority shareholders themselves be given leave to bring proceedings in the name of the company. In all cases, permission will normally be given only on terms that the liquidator, and the assets of the company, are completely indemnified against the consequences of an unfavourable outcome of the litigation⁴.

Alternatively, in so far as any of the proposed defendants are persons who have taken part in the formation or promotion of the company, or any past or present director or officer of the company, any contributory⁵ or a liquidator may obtain relief directly against him under the misfeasance provisions of the Insolvency Act 1986⁶.

It is arguable that the introduction of a statutory procedure that does not expressly rule out claims on a company going into liquidation allows the court to consider a different approach to this question. (12) PROTECTION OF COMPANY'S MEMBERS AGAINST UNFAIR PREJUDICE

466. Petition by company members and others in respect of unfair prejudice.

A member of a company¹ may apply to the court² by petition³ for an order⁴ on the ground⁵:

- 818 (1) that the company's affairs are being or have been conducted⁶ in a manner that is unfairly prejudicial to the interests of its members generally or of some part of its members⁷ (including at least himself)⁸; or
- 819 (2) that an actual or proposed act⁹ or omission of the company (including an act or omission on its behalf) is or would be so prejudicial¹⁰.

The provisions of Part 30 of the Companies Act 2006¹¹ apply also to a person who is not a member of a company but to whom shares¹² in the company have been transferred¹³ or transmitted by operation of law¹⁴ as they apply to a member of the company¹⁵.

There is no hard and fast rule about who should be made respondent to a petition for an order on either of the grounds set out in heads (1) and (2) above but the company is made a respondent as a matter of course¹⁶.

1 As to the meaning of 'member of a company' see PARA 321. For these purposes and, so far as applicable for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 s 994 in the other provisions of Pt 30 (ss 994-999) (see also PARA 467 et seq), 'company' means any company within the meaning of the Companies Act 2006 or any company which is not such a company but is a statutory water company within the meaning of the Statutory Water Companies Act 1991 (see WATER AND WATERWAYS): Companies Act 2006 s 994(3). As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

See also Alvona Developments Ltd v Manhattan Loft Corp'n (AC) Ltd [2005] EWHC 1567 (Ch), [2005] All ER (D) 252 (Jul) (company deadlocked and majority shareholder could not obtain order convening shareholders' meeting); and PARA 468 note 5.

Although there is some latitude in the range of respondents who can properly be joined under the Companies Act 2006 s 994 (see the text and note 16), including room for nominal defendants in certain types of proceedings (see PARA 473), there is no such latitude in the joinder of petitioners; and a procedural provision such as CPR 19.2(2)(a) (see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 213) cannot expand the class of claimants on whom a cause of action is conferred by primary legislation: Atlasview Ltd v Brightview Ltd [2004] EWHC 1056 (Ch), [2004] 2 BCLC 191 (right of nominee shareholders to present a petition).

2 As to the meaning of 'court' see PARA 212 note 1. The statutory right conferred on shareholders to apply to the Companies Court for relief at any stage under the Companies Act 2006 s 994 is inalienable and cannot be diminished or removed by contract or otherwise: Exeter City AFC Ltd v Football Conference Ltd [2004] EWHC 831 (Ch), [2004] 4 All ER 1179, [2005] 1 BCLC 238 (accordingly, the court was not compelled either by the Arbitration Act 1996 s 9 (as to which see ARBITRATION vol 2 (2008) PARA 1222), or under the inherent jurisdiction of the court, to stay proceedings under the Companies Act 2006 s 994, even in the face of an agreement between the parties that the matter complained of was to be referred to arbitration).

3 The court has no jurisdiction, under CPR 3.10 (see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 257) or otherwise, to dispense with the requirement that such proceedings should be by way of petition: Bamber v Eaton [2004] EWHC 2437 (Ch), [2005] 1 All ER 820, sub nom Re Osea Road Camp Sites [2005] 1 WLR 760.

The power under the Insolvency Act 1986 s 411 (as to which see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(4) (2004 Reissue) PARA 1041) to make rules applies, so far as it relates to a winding-up petition, for the purposes of a petition under the Companies Act 2006 Pt 30 (see also PARA 467 et seq): s 997. As to the rules that have been made in exercise of the power conferred by the Insolvency Act 1986 s 411 see the Companies (Unfair Prejudice Applications) Proceedings Rules 2009, SI 2009/2469; and PARA 472.

6 Past conduct is clearly encompassed, even if remedied by the date of the petition or the date of the hearing (Re Kenyon Swansea Ltd [1987] BCLC 514, 3 BCC 259; and see Re a Company (No 001761 of 1986) [1987] BCLC 141 at 143 per Harman J; Re a Company (No 00314 of 1989), ex p Estate Acquisition and Development Ltd [1991] BCLC 154, [1990] BCC 221; Lloyd v Casey [2002] 1 BCLC 454); but, if the conduct has been remedied, this may render useless a claim for relief (Re Estate Acquisition and Development Ltd [1995] BCC 338 at 352); and see Re Legal Costs Negotiators Ltd [1999] 2 BCLC 171, CA. A petitioner for relief under the Companies Act 2006 s 994 could support his petition by relying on conduct which took place before he was registered as a shareholder, since s 994 applied to unfairly prejudicial conduct which was not only continuing but which had occurred in the past, as was shown by the reference to the company's affairs which 'have been' conducted in a manner which is unfairly prejudicial: Lloyd v Casey. The fact that a shareholder had prior knowledge before purchasing shares of the grounds later complained of in the petition does not render the petition inadmissible: Bermuda Cablevision Ltd v Colica Trust Co Ltd [1998] AC 198, [1998] 1 BCLC 1, PC. Laches may bar relief under a petition under the Companies Act 2006 s 994: Re a Company (No 005134 of 1986), ex p Harries [1989] BCLC 383, sub nom Re DR Chemicals Ltd 5 BCC 39; Re a Company [1986] BCLC 362 at 366, sub nom Re a Company (No 007623 of 1984) 2 BCC 99, 191 at 99, 195 per Hoffmann J. As to examples where a company's affairs have been conducted in an unfairly prejudicial manner see PARA 468 et seq.

7 For the purposes of head (1) in the text, a removal of the company's auditor from office either on grounds of divergence of opinions on accounting treatments or audit procedures, or on any other improper grounds, is to be treated as being unfairly prejudicial to the interests of some part of the company's members: Companies Act 2006 s 994(1A) (added by SI 2007/3494).

8 Companies Act 2006 s 994(1)(a). See eg Re Phoenix Office Supplies Ltd, Phoenix Office Supplies Ltd v Larvin [2002] EWCA Civ 1740, [2003] 1 BCLC 76 (the Companies Act 2006 s 994 did not provide the means for a member of a quasi-partnership company (as to which see PARA 469), who wished voluntarily to sever his connection with the company, to force the other members to purchase his shareholding at its full undiscounted value when he had no contractual right to do so and he had not shown that he had been unfairly prejudiced by the conduct of the other members). In Baker v Potter [2004] EWHC 1422 (Ch), [2004] All ER (D) 174 (Jun), the petitioner had, by agreeing to sell his share in the company converted his interest in the company into a right to receive the purchase price, and it followed that financial relief was not appropriate in respect of the alleged unfairly prejudicial acts or conduct which had taken place after the agreement. 10 Companies Act 2006 s 994(1)(b).

A predecessor provision to the Companies Act 2006 s 994, ie the Companies Act 1980 s 75 (now repealed) replaced a more restrictive provision, the Companies Act 1948 s 210 (repealed), which provided relief for members where the company's affairs were being conducted in an oppressive, ie burdensome, harsh and wrongful, manner: see Elder v Elder and Watson Ltd 1952 SC 49, Ct of Sess; Scottish Co-operative Wholesale Society Ltd v Meyer [1959] AC 324, [1958] 3 All ER 66, HL; Re HR Harmer Ltd [1958] 3 All ER 689, [1959] 1 WLR 62, CA; Re Lundie Bros Ltd [1965] 2 All ER 692, [1965] 1 WLR 1051; Re Five Minute Car Wash Service Ltd [1966] 1 All ER 242, [1966] 1 WLR 745; Re Jermyn St Turkish Baths Ltd [1971] 3 All ER 184, [1971] 1 WLR 1042, CA.

15 Companies Act 2006 s 994(2). It is arguable that the 'interests' of a nominee shareholder under s 994 are capable of including the economic and contractual interests of the beneficial owners of shares but not the interests of the nominee shareholder: Atlasview Ltd v Brightview Ltd [2004] EWHC 1056 (Ch), [2004] 2 BCLC 191. There is no general proposition that every member of a company who had sold his shares but remained registered as a member would inevitably be unable to show prejudice to his interests; a transferee had to have standing to petition for a period after the time of the transfer but before registration, otherwise the Companies Act 2006 s 994(2) would have no effect: Re McCarthy Surfacing Ltd [2006] EWHC 832 (Ch), [2006] All ER (D) 193 (Apr).

467. Petitions by the Secretary of State.

If it appears to the Secretary of State¹, in the case of a company² in respect of which³:

- 820 (1) the Secretary of State has received an inspectors' report⁴ following an investigation⁵;
- 821 (2) the Secretary of State has exercised his powers at any time, having had good reason to do so, to require the production of documents and information⁶ or to enter and search premises⁷;
- 822 (3) the Secretary of State or the Financial Services Authority⁸ has exercised his or its powers under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000⁹ with respect to information gathering and investigations¹⁰; or
- 823 (4) the Secretary of State has received a report from an investigator appointed by him or by the Financial Services Authority under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000¹¹, that: (a) the company's affairs are being or have been conducted in a manner that is unfairly prejudicial to the interests of members¹² generally or of some part of its members¹³; or (b) an actual or proposed act or omission of the company (including an act or omission on its behalf) is or would be so prejudicial¹⁴, then he may apply to the court¹⁵ by petition for an order¹⁶ to protect the members against unfair prejudice¹⁷.

The Secretary of State may do this in addition to, or instead of, presenting a petition for the winding up of the company¹⁸.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(12) PROTECTION OF COMPANY'S MEMBERS AGAINST UNFAIR PREJUDICE/468. Conduct of the company's affairs in an unfairly prejudicial manner.

468. Conduct of the company's affairs in an unfairly prejudicial manner.

In a petition for an order¹ to protect the members of a company² against unfair prejudice, the conduct complained of must relate to the conduct of the affairs of the company³ of which the petitioner is a member, and a remedy is not available where the conduct complained of is merely that of an individual shareholder⁴ acting in a personal capacity⁵; the act must be done by the company or by those authorised to act as its organs⁶.

The test of whether the company's affairs are being or have been conducted in a manner which is unfairly prejudicial to the petitioner is an objective, and not a subjective, test⁷. It is accordingly unnecessary for the petitioner to show that the persons controlling the company have acted deliberately in bad faith, or with a conscious intent to treat him unfairly⁸. Conduct may be unfair without being prejudicial, or prejudicial without being unfair, and it is not sufficient if the conduct satisfies only one of these tests⁹.

In deciding what is fair or unfair for these purposes, it must be borne in mind that fairness is being used in the context of a commercial relationship¹⁰, the contractual terms of which are set out in the articles of association¹¹. The starting point is to ask whether the conduct of which the shareholder complains is in accordance with the articles and the powers which the shareholders have entrusted to the board¹². However, a finding that conduct was not in accordance with the articles does not necessarily render it unfair, as trivial or technical infringements of the articles will not give rise to relief¹³. Conduct may also be unfair without being unlawful where it does not accord with the understandings upon which the shareholders are associated¹⁴.

The affairs of a company are to be liberally determined for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 s 994 (PARA 466), and they extended beyond all matters which might come before its board for consideration, and might not be limited to those that actually did come before the board, for such matters are capable of being part of its affairs: Hawkes v Cuddy, Re Neath Rugby Ltd [2009] EWCA Civ 291, [2009] All ER (D) 42 (Apr) (revsg in part Re Neath Rugby Ltd, Hawkes v Cuddy [2007] EWHC 2999 (Ch), [2008] BCC 390), [2008] All ER (D) 252 (Nov).

The withholding of sums due by a parent company to its subsidiary was an act in the conduct of the affairs of the subsidiary when the sums were withheld by the parent as part of the exercise of its general control of the affairs of the subsidiary: see Nicholas v Soundcraft Electronics Ltd [1993] BCLC 360 at 366, sub nom Re a Company (No 002470 of 1988), ex p Nicholas [1992] BCC 895 at 903, CA, per Fox LJ. Equally, the expression 'the affairs of the company' could include the affairs of a subsidiary's holding company, especially where the directors of the holding company also represented a majority of the directors of the subsidiary: see Re Citybranch Group, Gross v Rackind [2004] EWCA Civ 815, [2004] 4 All ER 735, [2005] 1 WLR 3505. A corollary of the test of unfairness is that the court would take into account any agreement, understanding or clearly established pattern of acquiescence on the part of a member which could have led those in control of the company to depart from strict adherence to the company's articles of association: Fisher v Cadman [2005] EWHC 377 (Ch), [2006] 1 BCLC 499. On the other hand, if that was the case, the minority shareholder was entitled to give notice that he or she would no longer acquiesce in a departure from the terms of the articles, in which case those in control of the company were thereafter required to adhere to the articles as drafted: Fisher v Cadman.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(12) PROTECTION OF COMPANY'S MEMBERS AGAINST UNFAIR PREJUDICE/469. Conduct unfairly prejudicial to the interests of the members.

469. Conduct unfairly prejudicial to the interests of the members.

In a petition for an order¹ to protect the members of a company² against unfair prejudice, not only must the conduct of the company's affairs complained of be unfairly prejudicial³, but the conduct complained of must be unfairly prejudicial to the interests of the petitioner in his capacity as a member of the company⁴ as opposed to any other interests which he might possess⁵.

The court takes a broad view of what might properly be regarded as the petitioner's interests as a member of the company⁶. The word 'unfairly', like the words 'just and equitable' in the context of winding up⁷, enables the court to have regard to wider equitable considerations⁸ and to recognise that behind a limited company, or amongst it, are individuals with rights, expectations and obligations inter se which are not necessarily submerged in the company structure⁹.

For the purposes of the Companies Act 2006¹⁰, a member of a company would not ordinarily be entitled to complain of unfairness unless:

- 824 (1) there has been some breach of the rules on which he had agreed that the company's affairs should be conducted¹¹; or
- 825 (2) these rules have been used in a manner which equity would regard as contrary to good faith, that is to say cases in which equitable considerations make it unfair for those conducting the affairs of the company to rely upon their strict legal powers¹².

In most cases, the basis of association will be adequately and exhaustively laid down in the articles¹³, but cases in which further equitable considerations might arise will typically present one, or probably more, of the following features:

- 826 (a) a personal relationship between the shareholders involving mutual confidence;
- 827 (b) an agreement that some or all should participate in the management of the company; and
- 828 (c) restrictions on the transfer of shares which would prevent a member from realising his investment¹⁴.

The case of a member's rights under the articles being subject to equitable considerations arises typically in what is commonly called a 'quasi-partnership', an entity based on understandings when the company was formed, or which develop subsequently, that members will participate in the management and profits of the company which it may be unfair for other members to ignore¹⁵. Where a company forms (or develops) on such a basis, equitable considerations may disentitle the majority shareholders from exercising their strict legal powers, such as removing a minority shareholder from office as a director without making a fair offer at a fair value for the minority's shares¹⁶. Where a fair offer is made, the exclusion of the petitioner from participation in the management of the company will not be unfairly prejudicial and the respondent will be entitled to have the petition struck out because a fair offer gives the shareholder everything that he could hope to obtain from the court¹⁷.

This is not to say that the application of the statutory remedy¹⁸ is confined to cases where the company is a quasi-partnership¹⁹; but, where the company is not a quasi-partnership, it is unlikely that equitable considerations have arisen which restrict the exercise by a member of his strict legal rights²⁰. If no such equitable considerations arise, then a petitioner must show some abuse by directors of their powers or an infringement of the member's strict legal rights under the company's constitution or the companies legislation²¹. Nor are remedies for unfair prejudice limited to situations where the value of the share or shares held by the applicant member would be enhanced by the grant of the relief sought; an unfair prejudice petition can be used in limited circumstances by shareholders to protect their interests as creditors and to seek a creditors' remedy²².

Companies which reflect these features are often referred to as quasi-partnerships: see Ebrahimi v Westbourne Galleries Ltd. Where a company's business had previously been run as a partnership it is relatively easy to answer the question whether the company was a quasi-partnership: Strahan v Wilcock [2006] EWCA Civ 13, [2006] 2 BCLC 555. The same applies where a group of persons who are known to each other form a company in which it is anticipated that they will all work together: Strahan v Wilcock. See also Re a Company (No 005134 of 1986), ex p Harries [1989] BCLC 383, sub nom Re DR Chemicals Ltd 5 BCC 39 (company began as a quasi-partnership but relationship changed to a more commercial footing so ending any expectations as to participation in management); Irvine v Irvine [2006] EWHC 583 (Ch), [2006] 4 All ER 102, [2007] 1 BCLC 445 (quasi-partnership not found). Equity will hold majority shareholders to the agreement, promise or understanding underlying a quasi-partnership if the minority has acted in reliance on it: Re Guidezone Ltd [2000] 2 BCLC 321. As to the meaning of 'just and equitable' in the context of partnership law see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(3) (2004 Reissue) PARA 448.

15 Re Posgate & Denby (Agencies) Ltd [1987] BCLC 8 at 14, 2 BCC 99, 352 at 99, 357 per Hoffmann J. The existence of service agreements between directors and the company does not prevent a company having the characteristics of a quasi-partnership and does not prevent equitable considerations from arising under the Companies Act 2006 s 994 (see PARA 466): Quinlan v Essex Hinge Co Ltd [1996] 2 BCLC 417. See also Brownlow v GH Marshall Ltd [2000] 2 BCLC 655 (terms of service agreements did not override equitable considerations with respect to a company in which considerations of a personal character arose out of the relationships between family shareholders); Fisher v Cadman [2005] EWHC 377 (Ch), [2006] 1 BCLC 499 (where members had agreed to conduct the affairs of the company on an informal basis, including an understanding that directors would not be paid remuneration, unfairness had to be assessed against what the members had actually agreed). The situation might be different if the whole relationship is spelt out in detail as this might indicate a more commercial basis rather than a quasi-partnership: Re a Company (No 005685 of 1988), ex p Schwarcz (No 2) [1989] BCLC 427, sub nom Re Ringtower Holdings plc (1989) 5 BCC 82. Understandings as to participation in management etc should not be described as 'legitimate expectations' of the petitioner: Re a Company (No 00709 of 1992), O'Neill v Phillips [1999] 2 All ER 961 at 970, [1999] 1 WLR 1092 at 1102, HL, per Lord Hoffmann (earlier use of the term 'legitimate expectations' was probably a mistake).

Where an agreement between members of a company did not cover a change in circumstances which arose in relation to the management of the company's business, the conduct of the affairs of the company could be unfairly prejudicial within the meaning of the Companies Act 2006 s 994 (see PARA 466), notwithstanding the absence of prior arrangements, and the court could intervene, so long as the change in circumstances was such that it was not reasonable or fair to require the former association to remain as it had been, and such that the court's intervention was required to adjust matters: Re Metropolis Motorcycles Ltd, Hale v Waldo [2006] EWHC 364 (Ch), [2007] 1 BCLC 520.

16 Re a Company (No 00709 of 1992), O'Neill v Phillips [1999] 2 All ER 961, [1999] 1 WLR 1092, HL; Brownlow v GH Marshall Ltd [2000] 2 BCLC 655; and see Quinlan v Essex Hinge Co Ltd [1996] 2 BCLC 417.

17 Re a Company (No 00709 of 1992), O'Neill v Phillips [1999] 2 All ER 961 at 967, [1999] 1 WLR 1092 at 1099, HL, per Lord Hoffmann. The elements of a fair offer include an offer: (1) to purchase the shares at a fair value which will ordinarily be a value representing an equivalent proportion of the total issued share capital, that is without a discount for its being a minority holding; (2) to have the value, if not agreed, determined by a competent expert; (3) to have the value determined by the expert as an expert; (4) to provide for 'equality of arms' between the parties; and (5) in some cases, to include costs (while giving the majority shareholder a reasonable time to make the offer before his conduct is treated as unfair): Re a Company (No 00709 of 1992), O'Neill v Phillips [1999] 2 All ER 961 at 975-976, [1999] 1 WLR 1092 at 1107-1108, HL, per Lord Hoffmann. See also Allmark v Burnham [2005] EWHC 2717 (Ch), [2006] 2 BCLC 437 (purported 'offer' was not fair in that it failed to offer petitioner a satisfactory alternative remedy); Rahman v Malik [2008] 2 BCLC 403 (not a fair offer).

Nevertheless, the Companies Act 2006 s 994 (see PARA 466) does not imbue a quasi-partnership with a right for a company member to a 'put-option' that would require other members to purchase his shares on his departure at will: Re Phoenix Office Supplies Ltd, Phoenix Office Supplies Ltd v Larvin [2002] EWCA Civ 1740, [2003] 1 BCLC 76. Where there had been a breakdown in trust and confidence between the members of a quasi-partnership company, it did not constitute relevant unfairness for one party to refuse to accept a sealed bid procedure to effect the compulsory sale of one party's shares to the other in order to resolve the dispute between the parties: Jayflex Construction, McKee v O'Reilly [2004] 2 BCLC 145.

470. Types of unfairly prejudicial conduct.

The categories of conduct which may amount to unfairly prejudicial conduct are not closed¹.

For the purposes of Part 30 of the Companies Act 2006², a member of a company³ will be able to bring himself within its provisions if he can show that the value of his shareholding has been seriously diminished or at least seriously jeopardised by a course of conduct on the part of those in control of the company, although the provisions are not limited to such cases⁴.

Typical examples of what in most cases will constitute unfairly prejudicial conduct are:

- 829 (1) exclusion from management when the company has been formed or developed on the understanding of such participation without an offer being made to purchase the petitioner's shares at fair value⁵;
- 830 (2) the diversion of business to another company in which the majority shareholder holds a greater interest⁶;
- 831 (3) the awarding by the majority shareholder to himself of excessive financial benefits⁷;
- 832 (4) abuses of power and breaches of the articles of association⁸;
- 833 (5) the destruction of the basis of a relationship⁹.

A rights issue of shares, even one made on a pro rata basis at an advantageous price¹⁰, is nevertheless capable of amounting to unfairly prejudicial conduct if it is known that the objecting member did not have sufficient funds to take up the offer, and it was made for that reason, or where the objecting member was engaged in litigation with the majority, and the offer was designed to deplete the resources available to him to finance such litigation¹¹. An allotment of shares secretly made in breach of the statutory provisions governing allotments¹² for the improper purpose of increasing the majority's holding and decreasing that of the minority is unfairly prejudicial conduct¹³; and so are calls made not in the interests of the company but for the purpose of putting pressure on a petitioner¹⁴.

The passing of a special resolution to alter the company's articles of association¹⁵ may be unfairly prejudicial conduct (for example, where an alteration will affect the petitioner's understanding that he would control the management of the company), and even a proposal that such a resolution be passed may amount to unfairly prejudicial conduct¹⁶. However, in the absence of such special circumstances involving an abuse of the rights of the majority, a change in the articles is one of the ordinary incidents to which a member of a company cannot validly object¹⁷.

Where an extraordinary general meeting of shareholders has been requisitioned by the members and there is unreasonable delay in convening the meeting, this will entitle the requisitioning members to present a petition on the grounds of unfairly prejudicial conduct¹⁸.

Repeated failures to hold annual general meetings¹⁹ and to lay accounts before the members depriving members of their right to know and consider the state of the company's affairs is conduct unfairly prejudicial to their interests; as is holding an extraordinary general meeting on incorrect notice so invalidating an allotment of shares made at the meeting²⁰.

Although it is open to the court to find that serious mismanagement of a company's business constitutes conduct that is unfairly prejudicial to the interests of the shareholders²¹, the court will normally be very reluctant to accept that managerial decisions can amount to unfairly prejudicial conduct²².

A failure by the company to propound a scheme of arrangement²³ which would enable the petitioner to dispose of his shares, or to purchase his shares under the statutory powers in that behalf, cannot be unfairly prejudicial, as a member has no recognisable interest in having any such scheme propounded; the provisions of the Companies Act 2006²⁴ have not been enacted with a view to enabling a locked-in shareholder to require the company to buy him out at a price which he considers adequately to reflect the value of the underlying assets of the company²⁵. In the absence of some contractual agreement, there is no right to exit at will under the statutory provisions protecting the company's members against unfair prejudice²⁶.

471. Conduct of petitioner seeking protection against unfair prejudice.

While there is no overriding requirement that it should be just and equitable to grant relief under a petition¹ to protect the members of a company² against unfair prejudice, or that the petitioner come with clean hands³, the conduct of the petitioner may be relevant in a number of ways, as where the conduct complained of is found to be prejudicial but not unfair in the light of the petitioner's conduct⁴. The petitioner's conduct may also affect the relief granted by the court⁵, although the mere fact that the petitioner may have behaved in a way that was open to criticism does not necessarily constitute a bar to relief⁶.

If the real object of the petition is to exert pressure to achieve a collateral purpose, this will be treated as an abuse of the process of the court and no order will be made⁷.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(12) PROTECTION OF COMPANY'S MEMBERS AGAINST UNFAIR PREJUDICE/472. Procedure on petition for protection against unfair prejudice.

472. Procedure on petition for protection against unfair prejudice.

The following procedural rules¹ apply in relation to petitions for protection against unfair prejudice presented to the court² by a member of a company³, or by a person treated as a member⁴ or by the Secretary of State⁵.

Except so far as inconsistent with the Companies Act 2006 and the following procedural rules, the Civil Procedure Rules⁶ apply to such proceedings⁷ with any necessary modifications⁸.

The petition must be in the prescribed form⁹ with such variations, if any, as the circumstances may require¹⁰. The petition must specify the grounds on which it is presented and the nature of the relief which is sought by the petitioner, and must be delivered to the court for filing with sufficient copies for service¹¹. Permission is required for service of the petition out of the jurisdiction¹².

The court must fix a hearing for a day (the 'return day') on which, unless the court otherwise directs, the petitioner and any respondent, including the company, must attend before the registrar or district judge for directions to be given in relation to the procedure on the petition¹³. On fixing the return day, the court must return to the petitioner sealed copies of the petition for service, each indorsed with the return day and the time of hearing¹⁴.

The petitioner must, at least 14 days before the return day, serve a sealed copy of the petition on the company¹⁵. In the case of a petition by a member of the company¹⁶, the petitioner must also, at least 14 days before the return day, serve a sealed copy of the petition on every respondent named in the petition¹⁷.

On the return day, or at any time after it, the court must give such directions as it thinks appropriate with respect to the following matters¹⁸:

- 834 (1) service of the petition on any person, whether in connection with the time, date and place of a further hearing, or for any other purpose¹⁹;
- 835 (2) whether points of claim and defence are to be delivered²⁰;
- 836 (3) whether, and if so by what means, the petition is to be advertised²¹;
- 837 (4) the manner in which any evidence is to be adduced at any hearing before the judge and in particular, but without prejudice to the generality of the above, as to: (a) the taking of evidence wholly or in part by witness statement or orally²²; (b) the cross-examination of any persons making a witness statement²³; and (c) the matters to be dealt with in evidence²⁴;
- 838 (5) any other matter affecting the procedure on the petition or in connection with the hearing and disposal of the petition²⁵; and
- 839 (6) such orders, if any, including a stay for any period, as the court thinks fit, with a view to mediation or other alternative dispute resolution²⁶.

If complaint is made in respect of the conduct of the affairs of a number of companies which neither form a group nor have a common holding company, separate petitions should be presented in respect of each company²⁷.

If the court considers that the order should be advertised, it must give directions as to the manner and time of advertisement²⁸.

To protect the company's position and that of the petitioner pending the hearing of the petition alleging unfair prejudice, interim relief may be available in some circumstances²⁹, but the court has no jurisdiction to award an interim remedy which presupposes that unfair prejudice will be found at trial³⁰.

The court should examine allegations in a petition with a critical eye, although the threshold for summary disposal remains high³¹.

473. Respondents to the petition.

The statutory provisions relating to petitions for relief against unfair prejudice by a company member¹ do not indicate who may be, who has to be, or who cannot be respondents; it is a matter for the court². However, the company is made a respondent to the petition as a matter of course³. All members of the company whose interests would have been affected by the misconduct alleged or who would be affected by an order made by the court under its wide powers to give relief⁴ should be made respondents to a petition or served with it⁵. This is so even if the members are not alleged to have been concerned in the alleged unfairly prejudicial conduct and are members against whom no relief is directly sought⁶. In circumstances where there are large numbers of inactive investors, it may, however, be sufficient to give them notice of the petition⁷. A former member may also properly be joined as a respondent where relief is sought against that person⁸.

A third party, not a member of the company in respect of which the alleged unfairly prejudicial conduct occurred, should also be joined if he might be affected by the relief sought or was directly involved in the transactions which are said to be unfairly prejudicial⁹.

If, however, the likelihood of the court's discretion being exercised so as to lead to relief against, or relief having any material effect upon, a given respondent can be seen to be so remote as to be perfectly hopeless, it would be abusive to require the respondent to remain as such or to be added as such¹⁰.

474. Costs.

The procedure whereby a shareholder who in good faith and on reasonable grounds brings a derivative action to remedy a wrong to the company is entitled to apply for an indemnity as to costs from the company¹ does not apply to petitions for relief on the grounds of unfairly prejudicial conduct where the substance of the complaint is a wrong done to the shareholder and not to the company².

It is a general principle of company law that the company's money should not be expended on disputes which are in substance between shareholders³. There is, however, no rule that in all cases active participation by a company in proceedings commenced by petition on the ground of unfair prejudice⁴ is improper⁵. The test of whether such participation and expenditure is proper is whether it is necessary or expedient in the interests of the company as a whole; and only in cases of the most compelling circumstances proven by cogent evidence will advance approval of such participation and expenditure be given⁶.

A respondent may seek security for costs where the petitioner is a limited company⁷.

If the court¹ is satisfied that a petition for an order to protect the members of a company² against unfair prejudice³ is well founded⁴, it may make such order as it thinks fit for giving relief in respect of the matters complained of⁵.

Without prejudice to the generality of this power, the court's order may⁶:

- 840 (1) regulate the conduct of the company's affairs in the future⁷;
- 841 (2) require the company to refrain from doing or continuing an act complained of by the petitioner⁸, or to do an act that the petitioner has complained it has omitted to do⁹;
- 842 (3) authorise civil proceedings to be brought in the name and on behalf of the company by such person or persons and on such terms as the court may direct¹⁰;
- 843 (4) require the company not to make any, or any specified, alterations in its articles¹¹ without the leave of the court¹²;
- 844 (5) provide for the purchase of the shares¹³ of any members of the company by other members or by the company itself and, in the case of a purchase by the company itself, for the reduction of the company's capital accordingly¹⁴.

The court's discretion as to the relief it may order extends to the refusal of specific relief where the court is unable to devise relief which would constitute an appropriate remedy or where some other course of action seems to be preferable¹⁵. The court is not limited to putting right the conduct which justifies the order, but can cure for the future the unfair prejudice suffered¹⁶.

Where an order of the court¹⁷ either alters the company's constitution¹⁸, or gives leave for the company to make any, or any specified, alterations to its constitution¹⁹, the company must deliver a copy of the order to the registrar of companies²⁰; and it must do so within 14 days from the making of the order or such longer period as the court may allow²¹. If a company makes default in complying with this requirement²², an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default²³; and a person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale²⁴ and, for continued contravention, a daily default fine²⁵ not exceeding one-tenth of level 3 on the standard scale²⁶.

Where such an order²⁷ alters a company's constitution²⁸, and where it amends either the company's articles²⁹, or a resolution or agreement which affects the company's constitution³⁰, the copy of the order delivered to the registrar by the company³¹ must be accompanied by a copy of the company's articles, or the resolution or agreement in question, as amended³². Every copy of a company's articles issued by the company after the order is made must be accompanied by a copy of the order, unless the effect of the order has been incorporated into the articles by amendment³³. If a company makes default in complying with this requirement³⁴, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default³⁵; and a person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale³⁶.

If a petition is compromised, there is no reason why such compromise should not follow the usual form³⁷; but the petitioner should undertake to apply to dismiss the petition when the terms of the compromise have been fully implemented³⁸.

Remedies for unfair prejudice are not limited to situations where the value of the share or shares held by the applicant member would be enhanced by the grant of the relief sought and an unfair prejudice petition can be used in limited circumstances by shareholders to protect their interests as creditors and to seek a creditors' remedy³⁹.

4 There must be a finding of unfair prejudice before the court can make any order for relief: Re Bird Precision Bellows Ltd [1986] Ch 658, [1985] 3 All ER 523, CA; Re a Company [1986] BCLC 362, sub nom Re a Company (No 007623 of 1984) 2 BCC 99, 191; Re a Company (No 004175 of 1986) [1987] 1 WLR 585, [1987] BCLC 574; Re a Company (No 004502 of 1988), ex p Johnson [1992] BCLC 701, [1991] BCC 234. In the case of a quasi-partnership (see PARA 469) the fact that a breach of duty by one participant was not causative of loss to the company did not preclude a finding of unfair prejudice as such conduct could lead to a loss of confidence on the part of other participants which would justify relief under the Companies Act 2006 s 996: Re Baumler (UK) Ltd, Gerrard v Koby [2004] EWHC 7673 (Ch), [2005] 1 BCLC 92, [2004] All ER (D) 139 (Jul).

5 Companies Act 2006 s 996(1). As to interim relief see PARA 472. As to the respondents against whom relief might be ordered see PARA 473. The court has repeatedly emphasised the width of the discretion conferred by s 996: see Profinance Trust SA v Gladstone [2001] EWCA Civ 1031, [2002] 1 WLR 1024, [2002] 1 BCLC 141 (the wide discretion conferred on the court includes a power to award the equivalent of interest when making an order for the purchase of a petitioner's shares but it is a power which should be exercised with great caution); Clark v Cutland [2003] EWCA Civ 810, [2003] 4 All ER 733, [2004] 1 WLR 783 (court could order that company's liability to respondent's pension fund could be set off against the company's claim for unauthorised payments to that fund, which payments amounted to unfairly prejudicial conduct). See also Gamlestaden Fastigheter AB v Baltic Partners Ltd [2007] UKPC 26, [2007] 4 All ER 164, [2008] 1 BCLC 468 (court could order relief even if it did not benefit the member qua member, so long as some real financial benefit to him accrued). Where the unfairly prejudicial conduct alleged involved the diversion of company funds, a petitioner was entitled as a matter of jurisdiction to seek an order for payment to the company itself not only against members, former members or directors allegedly involved in the unlawful diversion, but also against third parties who had knowingly received or improperly assisted in the wrongful diversion: Lowe v Fahey [1996] 1 BCLC 262. However, where the only substantive relief being sought was a claim on behalf of the company against such third party the court would not necessarily allow the claimant to proceed by petition instead of by derivative action: Lowe v Fahey. See also the text and note 15. As to derivative actions see PARA 455 et seq; and as to the relationship between remedies available under unfair prejudice provisions and other remedies see PARA 477.

In all cases, the petitioner should clearly state in his petition the relief to which he considers himself entitled (Re Antigen Laboratories Ltd [1951] 1 All ER 110n); and the petition should include a prayer for such other order as the court thinks fit (Re JE Cade & Son Ltd [1992] BCLC 213 at 223, [1991] BCC 360 at 368 per Warner J). However, the terms of the petition, to the extent that they specify the order being sought by the petitioner, do not fetter the court's discretion in making an order under the Companies Act 2006 s 996 as to what relief should be granted: Hawkes v Cuddy, Re Neath Rugby Ltd [2009] EWCA Civ 291, [2009] All ER (D) 42 (Apr) (per curiam) (the unacceptability to the petitioner of the relief that the court otherwise considers appropriate is doubtless a major consideration to be taken into account when deciding whether to grant that relief, but it goes to the exercise of the discretion of the court, not to the power of the court to make such order as it thinks fit).

The court will consider such order as is appropriate at the time of the hearing and not at the time of the presentation of the petition: Re Hailey Group Ltd [1993] BCLC 459, sub nom Re a Company (No 008126 of 1989) [1992] BCC 542; Re Little Olympian Each-Ways Ltd (No 3) [1995] 1 BCLC 636. Relief need not be directed solely towards remedying the particular things that have happened: see Re Hailey Group Ltd; Re a Company (No 00789 of 1987), ex p Shooter [1990] BCLC 384 at 394 per Harman J. See also Re Worldhams Park Golf Course Ltd, Whidbourne v Troth [1998] 1 BCLC 554 (court had power to order a receiver's remuneration to be borne primarily by director whose gross misconduct required the appointment of a receiver in the first place); Re Coloursource Ltd, Dalby v Bodilly [2004] EWHC 3078 (Ch), [2005] BCC 627, [2004] All ER (D) 43 (Dec) (petitioner entitled to purchase order rather than order merely curing the wrongdoing to date). The interests of creditors of a company are clearly relevant when the court makes an order under the Companies Act 2006 s 996, and may be decisive in deciding what order should be so made, although the weight to be given to their interests will depend on the circumstances: Hawkes v Cuddy, Re Neath Rugby Ltd (per curiam). In Hawkes v Cuddy, Re Neath Rugby Ltd [2009] EWCA Civ 291, [2009] All ER (D) 42 (Apr), a request to order a sale of shares or the removal of the director against whom some findings of unfair prejudice had been made out was considered to be disproportionate to the scale of the misdeeds and the spirit of the original working arrangement between the two directors (who had fallen out) was preserved by sanctioning the order made at trial which provided a mechanism for changes to be made at the board level of the two companies involved.

476. Orders for purchase of shares.

Where, as is often the case, a petition for an order to protect the members of a company¹ against unfair prejudice² results in an order that the petitioner's shareholding should be bought out by the majority shareholders or by the company, there is no universal rule as to the appropriate method of³, or date for⁴, the calculation of the purchase price. Prima facie, the shares should be valued at the date of the order for purchase⁵, but, depending on the circumstances of the case, the valuation may be directed to take place at an earlier date⁶, such as at the date the date of the presentation of the petition⁷ or even at a date before such presentation⁸. The court is concerned that the valuation should be unaffected by any diminution to the company's value caused by the unfair conduct complained of⁹. In determining what is the proper price, there is a wide discretion in the court to do what is fair and equitable in the circumstances¹⁰.

Where the shares in a company which is the subject of an unfair prejudice petition is (or is alleged to be) a quasi-partnership, then the overriding requirement is that the price to be paid, where a buy-out order is made, should be fair and, as a general rule, the correct course would be to fix the price pro rata according to the value of the totality of the shares in question, without any discount to reflect the fact that the shares constitute a minority holding¹¹. However, a minority shareholding, even where the extent of the minority was slight, was to be valued as a minority shareholding unless a good reason existed to attribute to it a pro rata share of the overall value of the company¹². Nevertheless, there may be cases in which the petitioner has acted in such a way as to merit, to some extent, the conduct of which he complains. In these cases it would be correct to treat him as if he had elected to sell his shares, and a suitable discount from the pro rata basis would be appropriate¹³.

In some circumstances, it may be appropriate for the court to order that the majority shareholder transfer his shares to the petitioner¹⁴. Where the order is for the purchase by the petitioning shareholder of the shares of the offending majority, it is not normally proper to reflect the value of majority control by the award of a premium¹⁵.

Conditions may be attached to a purchase order¹⁶, and the width of the court's jurisdiction¹⁷ means that it is possible for the court to make an order for the equivalent of interest to be paid where the shares are valued at a relatively early date but that jurisdiction should be exercised with great caution¹⁸. Where the order is that the petitioner's shares should be bought by the majority shareholder, it is not correct, as a matter of principle, to include an escape clause¹⁹ in the event of the majority shareholder being unable to complete the purchase, as the order represents compensation for wrongs inflicted which should not be affected by the impecuniosity of the majority shareholder²⁰.

A purchase order made when the company is insolvent is tantamount to a fine but there may be circumstances in which, despite the company's insolvency at the time of the hearing, the court would feel it necessary to impose an obligation to purchase the petitioner's shares²¹.

A purchase order may be refused where such relief is inappropriate²².

When assessing the reasonableness of competing offers by two equal shareholders to buy out the other, the court must consider which party is more likely to be able to meet the price fixed by the independent valuer, as well as which party is more actively involved in the management of the company²³.

Remedies for unfair prejudice are not limited to situations where the value of the share or shares held by the applicant member would be enhanced by the grant of the relief sought and an unfair prejudice petition can be used in limited circumstances by shareholders to protect their interests as creditors and to seek a creditors' remedy²⁴.

However, the court will not direct an early valuation date simply to give the claimant the most advantageous exit from the company, especially where severe prejudice has not been made out; and all these points may be heavily influenced by the parties' conduct in making and accepting or rejecting offers either before or during the course of the proceedings: Profinance Trust SA v Gladstone.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(12) PROTECTION OF COMPANY'S MEMBERS AGAINST UNFAIR PREJUDICE/477. Relationship between remedies available under unfair prejudice provisions and other remedies.

477. Relationship between remedies available under unfair prejudice provisions and other remedies.

The existence of circumstances which would warrant a petition on the unfairly prejudicial ground¹ does not by itself preclude a petitioner from seeking a winding up on the just and equitable ground². It is, however, undesirable to include, as a matter of course, a petition for winding up as an alternative to a petition under the unfairly prejudicial provision³; and the jurisdiction to make a winding-up order on the just and equitable ground⁴ and the jurisdiction to grant relief based on grounds of unfairly prejudicial conduct are not coterminous⁵.

A statutory derivative claim⁶ may be brought in pursuance of an order of the court in proceedings⁷ for the protection of members against unfair prejudice⁸. The mere fact that circumstances exist which would allow a petitioner to bring a derivative claim with respect to alleged conduct does not preclude his seeking relief on the same facts under the unfairly prejudicial provision⁹. Where, however, a majority shareholder could remove from office the directors who are allegedly conducting the company's affairs in a manner unfairly prejudicial to that shareholder's interests, he should not seek the assistance of the court¹⁰.

A petition will be struck out where a petitioner seeks to have his shares valued pursuant to a court order under the unfairly prejudicial provision¹¹ rather than rely on a fair valuation provision in the articles of association¹² or accept a reasonable offer for his shares; either process will give him all the relief he could realistically expect to obtain on the petition¹³. Likewise, a petitioner will be acting unreasonably in seeking to have the company wound up rather than accept a fair offer open to him¹⁴ or if other considerations have effect¹⁵.

The mere existence of a petition alleging unfairly prejudicial conduct, although it is a matter which bears upon the discretion of the court, is not an inevitable bar to the statutory power¹⁶ of the court to call a meeting¹⁷.

jurisdictions had been intended to be coterminous). Many, if not most, cases might give rise to both jurisdictions but there might be cases which satisfied the requirements of one jurisdiction but not the other, and a winding up might be ordered on the 'just and equitable' ground where no unfair conduct was alleged: Hawkes v Cuddy, Re Neath Rugby Ltd. The decision by the Court of Appeal on this point overruled Re Guidezone Ltd [2000] 2 BCLC 321 (applying Re a Company (No 00709 of 1992), O'Neill v Phillips [1999] 2 All ER 961, [1999] 1 WLR 1092, HL; and doubting Re RA Noble & Sons (Clothing) Ltd [1983] BCLC 273 on this point), which held that the jurisdiction to make a winding-up order on the just and equitable ground was not wider than the jurisdiction to grant relief based on grounds of unfairly prejudicial conduct and, accordingly, if the conduct complained of did not amount to unfairly prejudicial conduct, it could not found a case for a winding-up order on the just and equitable ground.

15 In Hawkes v Cuddy, Re Neath Rugby Ltd [2009] EWCA Civ 291, [2009] All ER (D) 42 (Apr), the spirit of the original working arrangement between the two directors (who had fallen out) was preserved by sanctioning the order made at trial (which provided a mechanism for changes to be made at the board level of the two companies involved) and this was considered to be a preferable outcome to ordering a demerger or sanctioning a winding-up order on the 'just and equitable' ground. On the other hand, where there was a dispute between members and relief was being sought under the Companies Act 2006 s 994 (see PARA 466), the court adjourned a petition presented by some of the directors under the Insolvency Act 1986 s 124 (application for winding up) (see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(3) (2004 Reissue) PARA 450 et seq) as the dispute was an internal dispute not involving creditors and the Companies Act 2006 s 994 was more appropriate to deal with

(13) DIRECTORS

(i) Types of Director

478. Meaning of 'director' under the Companies Acts.

In the Companies Acts¹, 'director' includes any person occupying the position of director, by whatever name called². This term is defined in almost identical words for the purposes of the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986³ and for the purposes of the Insolvency Act 1986⁴ and the case law that has built up in relation to the term is often 'read across' in the different statutory contexts⁵. Directors may be of three kinds⁶: (1) de jure directors, that is to say, those who have been validly appointed to the office⁷; (2) de facto directors (or 'directors in fact'), that is to say, directors who assume to act as directors without having been appointed validly or at all⁸; and (3) shadow directors, a term which is defined by statute for the purposes of both companies and insolvency legislation⁹.

1 As to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

2 Companies Act 2006 s 250. The meaning of 'director' may vary according to the context in which it is to be found: see Re Lo-Line Electric Motors Ltd [1988] Ch 477, [1988] 2 All ER 692; and see the text and notes 3-9.

3 See the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986 s 22; and PARA 1575.

4 See the Insolvency Act 1986 s 251; and COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(3) (2004 Reissue) PARA 5.

5 The law as to what constitutes a de facto director, for instance (see head (2) in the text) has developed largely in the context of decisions relating to applications under the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986: see PARA 1577.

6 As to this formulation, and the categorisation given in heads (1) to (3) in the text, see Re Hydroadam (Corby) Ltd [1994] 2 BCLC 180 at 182, [1994] BCC 161 at 162. Re Hydroadam (Corby) Ltd was decided under the Insolvency Act 1986 s 214 (declaration of liability for wrongful trading) (see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(4) (2004 Reissue) PARA 914) in reliance upon the definition of 'shadow director' given in s 251 (see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(3) (2004 Reissue) PARA 5) whose terms are identical to the definition of 'shadow director' given for the purposes of the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986 s 22 (see PARA 1576) and that given for the purposes of the Companies Acts (see the Companies Act 2006 s 251; and PARA 479).

7 See Re Hydroadam (Corby) Ltd [1994] 2 BCLC 180 at 182, [1994] BCC 161 at 162. See note 6. As to the appointment of directors see PARA 483 et seq. Persons properly and formally appointed as directors (de jure directors) owe fiduciary duties to the company: see PARA 544 et seq. The Companies Act 2006 contains for the first time a statutory statement of the general duties of directors (including the extent to which they apply to shadow directors: see s 170(5); and PARA 533): see Pt 10 Ch 2 (ss 170-181); and PARA 532 et seq.

8 See Re Hydrodam (Corby) Ltd [1994] 2 BCLC 180 at 182, [1994] BCC 161 at 162. See note 6. It has been held for the purposes of the Companies Acts that, since the definition of 'director' is inclusive and not exhaustive, it is capable of including de facto directors but may not do so; the meaning of 'director' varies according to the context in which it is to be found: see Re Lo-Line Electric Motors Ltd [1988] Ch 477 at 489, [1988] 2 All ER 692 at 699 per Sir Nicolas Browne-Wilkinson V-C (decided under the Companies Act 1985 s 300 (repealed), which was a predecessor of the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986 but in more limited terms) (see PARA 1575)). Thus, in the Companies Acts, the word 'director' must be referring to de jure directors alone for the purposes of specifying eg a minimum number of directors (see PARA 483), or in relation to the register of directors (see PARA 499 et seq): see Re Lo-Line Electric Motors Ltd; also see John Morley Building Co v Barras [1891] 2 Ch 386. On the other hand, in some contexts, the word 'director' must include a person who is not a de jure director, eg where the acts of a person acting as a director are deemed to be valid notwithstanding that it is afterwards discovered that there was a defect in his appointment (see PARA 486): see Re Lo-Line Electric Motors Ltd. A de facto director owes the same fiduciary duties as a de jure director: Re Canadian Land Reclaiming and Colonizing Co, Coventry and Dixon's Case (1880) 14 ChD 660 at 670 (decided under the Companies Act 1862); Ultraframe (UK) Ltd v Fielding, Northstar Systems Ltd v Fielding [2005] EWHC 1638 (Ch) at [1257], [2005] All ER (D) 397 (Jul) at [1257]; Primlake Ltd v Matthew Associates [2006] EWHC 1227 (Ch) at [284], [2007] 1 BCLC 666 at [284]. However, a person acting as director but not in fact duly appointed to that office is not liable under a penal enactment as a director of the company: Dean v Hiesler [1942] 2 All ER 340, DC. As to the relationship between de facto directors and 'shadow directors' as defined for the purposes of the Companies Acts see PARA 479. As to de facto directors under the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986 see PARA 1577.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(i) Types of Director/479. Meaning of 'shadow director' under the Companies Acts.

479. Meaning of 'shadow director' under the Companies Acts.

In the Companies Acts¹, 'shadow director', in relation to a company², means a person in accordance with whose directions or instructions the directors³ of the company are accustomed to act⁴. However, a person is not to be regarded as a shadow director by reason only that the directors act on advice given by him in a professional capacity⁵. The term is defined in almost identical words for the purposes of the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986⁶ and for the purposes of the Insolvency Act 1986⁷ and the case law that has built up in relation to the term is often 'read across' in the different statutory contexts⁸.

A body corporate⁹ is not to be regarded as a shadow director of any of its subsidiary¹⁰ companies for the purposes of those provisions of the Companies Act 2006 which govern: (1) the general duties of directors¹¹; (2) transactions requiring members' approval¹²; or (3) contracts with a sole member who is also a director¹³, by reason only that the directors of the subsidiary are accustomed to act in accordance with its directions or instructions¹⁴.

The mere fact that a person falls within the statutory definition of 'shadow director' is not enough to impose upon him the same fiduciary duties to the relevant company as are owed by a de jure or de facto director¹⁵. A person is unlikely to be a de facto director and a shadow director simultaneously, although he may be both in succession¹⁶.

1 As to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

2 As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 251(1). For these purposes, the mere giving of instructions is not sufficient; the board must act upon those instructions for the person to be regarded as a shadow director: Ultraframe (UK) Ltd v Fielding, Northstar Systems Ltd v Fielding [2005] EWHC 1638 (Ch), [2005] All ER (D) 397 (Jul). In construing the phrase 'the directors of the company', the policy underlying the definition (ie that a person who effectively controlled the activities of a company is to be subject to the same statutory liabilities and disabilities as a person who is a de jure director) must be taken into account and, since a de jure director was subject to those liabilities and disabilities even if he was non-executive (or even inactive) it would undermine the policy of the definition if the fact that an inactive director did not act on the instructions of an alleged shadow director (because he did not act at all) could prevent that person from being a shadow director, even though in reality he controlled the activities of the company: see Ultraframe (UK) Ltd v Fielding, Northstar Systems Ltd v Fielding at [1272] (a person at whose direction a governing majority of the board was accustomed to act was capable of being a shadow director). As to de jure directors see PARA 478.

The Companies Act 2006 contains for the first time a statutory statement of directors' duties (including the extent to which they apply to shadow directors: see s 170(5); and PARA 533): see Pt 10 Ch 2 (ss 170-181); and PARA 532 et seq.

As to de facto directors, and the duties which they owe, see PARA 478 note 8.

16 Ultraframe (UK) Ltd v Fielding, Northstar Systems Ltd v Fielding [2005] EWHC 1638 (Ch), [2005] All ER (D) 397 (Jul) (a de facto director is held out to be a director but a shadow director will not be held out as having authority to act and directs activities only through the properly appointed board). 480. Nominee directors.

The position of a nominee director, that is, a director of a company who is nominated by a shareholder of that company to represent his interests¹, is not immediately clear, especially in relation to whom he owes his duties when the interests of all concerned in the arrangement are not in harmony². The fact that a director of a company was nominated to that office by a shareholder does not, of itself, impose any duty on the director owed to his nominator³. The director might owe duties to his nominator if he were an employee or officer of the nominator, or by reason of a formal or informal agreement with his nominator⁴, but such duties could not detract from his duty to the company of which he was a director when he was acting as such⁵. An appointed director, without being in breach of his duties to the company, could take the interests of his nominator into account, provided that his decisions as a director were in what he genuinely considered to be the best interests of the company; but that was a very different thing from his being under a duty to his nominator by reason of his appointment by it⁶.

It is clear that the nominee cannot do his duty to all parties when there is conflict within the nominee arrangement but if he agrees to subordinate the interests of the company to the interests of his patron, it is conduct oppressive to the other shareholders for which the patron can be made answerable: Scottish Co-operative Wholesale Society Ltd v Meyer [1959] AC 324, [1958] 3 All ER 66, HL. Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(i) Types of Director/481. Meaning of references to persons 'connected' with director or director 'connected' with person.

481. Meaning of references to persons 'connected' with director or director 'connected' with person.

For the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 provisions¹ that govern the directors² of a company³, the meaning of references to a person being 'connected' with a director of a company (or to a director being 'connected' with a person) has been defined⁴.

Accordingly, the following persons (and only those persons) are 'connected' with a director of a company⁵:

- 845 (1) members of the director's family⁶;
- 846 (2) a body corporate⁷ with which the director is connected⁸;
- 847 (3) a person acting in his capacity as trustee of a trust⁹: (a) the beneficiaries of which include the director or a person who by virtue of head (1) or head (2) above is connected with him¹⁰; or (b) the terms of which confer a power on the trustees that may be exercised for the benefit of the director or any such person¹¹, other than a trust for the purposes of an employees' share scheme¹² or a pension scheme¹³;
- 848 (4) a person acting in his capacity as partner¹⁴, either of the director¹⁵, or of a person who, by virtue of head (1), head (2) or head (3) above, is connected with that director¹⁶;
- 849 (5) a firm¹⁷ that is a legal person under the law by which it is governed and in which¹⁸: (a) the director is a partner¹⁹; (b) a partner is a person who, by virtue of head (1), head (2) or head (3) above, is connected with the director²⁰; or (c) a partner is a firm in which the director is a partner or in which there is a partner who, by virtue of head (1), head (2) or head (3) above, is connected with the director²¹.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 252(1).

5 Companies Act 2006 s 252(2). References in Pt 10 (see PARAS 478 et seq, 482 et seq) to a person connected with a director of a company do not include a person who is himself a director of the company: s 252(3). The references in Pt 10 to a person connected with a director apply also for the purposes of s 41 (transactions involving director or person connected with director): see s 41(7)(b); and PARA 264. It is implicit in s 239(5) (ratification of acts giving rise to liability) (see PARA 593), which excludes s 252(3), that the definition given in the text applies also to define who is a member 'connected with' a director for the purposes of s 239: see PARA 593.

6 Companies Act 2006 s 252(2)(a). The meaning of references in Pt 10 (see PARAS 478 et seq, 482 et seq) to members of a director's family is defined by s 253: see ss 252(2)(a), 253(1). Accordingly, for the purposes of Pt 10, the members of a director's family are:

- 178 (1) the director's spouse or civil partner (s 253(2)(a));
- 179 (2) any other person (whether of a different sex or the same sex) with whom the director lives as partner in an enduring family relationship (s 253(2)(b));
- 180 (3) the director's children or step-children (s 253(2)(c));
- 181 (4) any children or step-children of a person within head (2) above (and who are not children or step-children of the director) who live with the director and have not attained the age of 18 (s 253(2)(d));
- 182 (5) the director's parents (s 253(2)(e)).

However, head (2) above does not apply if the other person is the director's grandparent or grandchild, sister, brother, aunt or uncle, or nephew or niece: s 253(3).

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(i) Types of Director/482. Meaning of references to director 'connected' with or 'controlling' body corporate.

482. Meaning of references to director 'connected' with or 'controlling' body corporate.

A director¹ is 'connected with' a body corporate² if, but only if, he and the persons connected with him together either³: (1) are interested in shares⁴ comprised in the equity share capital⁵ of that body corporate of a nominal value⁶ equal to at least 20 per cent of that share capital⁷; or (2) are entitled to exercise or control the exercise of more than 20 per cent of the voting power at any general meeting of that body⁸.

A director of a company is taken to 'control' a body corporate⁹ if, but only if: (a) he or any person connected with him is interested in any part of the equity share capital of that body¹⁰, or is entitled to exercise or control the exercise of any part of the voting power at any general meeting of that body¹¹; and (b) he, the persons connected with him, and the other directors of that company, together are interested in more than 50 per cent of that share capital¹², or together are entitled to exercise or control the exercise of more than 50 per cent of that voting power¹³.

For these purposes, a reference to an interest in shares includes any interest of any kind whatsoever in shares¹⁴. Any restraints or restrictions to which the exercise of any right attached to the interest is or may be subject must be disregarded¹⁵.

A person is taken to have an interest in shares if: (i) he enters into a contract to acquire them¹⁶; or (ii) he has a right to call for delivery of the shares to himself or to his order¹⁷; or he has a right to acquire an interest in shares or is under an obligation to take an interest in shares¹⁸, whether the right or obligation is conditional or absolute¹⁹. A person ceases²⁰ to have an interest in shares for these purposes: (A) on the shares being delivered to another person at his order²¹, either in fulfilment of a contract for their acquisition by him²², or in satisfaction of a right of his to call for their delivery²³; (B) on a failure to deliver the shares in accordance with the terms of such a contract or on which such a right falls to be satisfied²⁴; (C) on the lapse of his right to call for the delivery of shares²⁵.

A person is taken to have an interest in shares if, not being the registered holder, he is entitled either to exercise any right conferred by the holding of the shares²⁶, or to control the exercise of any such right²⁷. For this purpose, a person is taken to be entitled to exercise or control the exercise of a right conferred by the holding of shares if he has a right (whether subject to conditions or not) the exercise of which would make him so entitled²⁸, or if he is under an obligation (whether or not so subject) the fulfilment of which would make him so entitled²⁹. A person is not³⁰ so taken to be interested in shares by reason only that he has been appointed a proxy to exercise any of the rights attached to the shares³¹, or by reason only that he has been appointed by a body corporate to act as its representative at any meeting of a company or of any class of its members³².

A person is taken to be interested in shares if a body corporate is interested in them³³, and if either the body corporate or its directors are accustomed to act in accordance with his directions or instructions³⁴, or he is entitled to exercise or control the exercise of more than one-half of the voting power at general meetings of the body corporate³⁵.

Where an interest in shares is comprised in property held on trust, every beneficiary of the trust is taken to have an interest in shares³⁶. This is subject to the proviso that, so long as a person is entitled to receive, during the lifetime of himself or another, income from trust property comprising shares, an interest in the shares in reversion or remainder must be disregarded³⁷. Further, a person is treated as not interested in shares if and so long as he holds them, under the law in force in any part of the United Kingdom³⁸, as a bare trustee or as a custodian trustee³⁹. Any interest of a person subsisting by virtue of an authorised unit trust scheme⁴⁰, local authority investment schemes⁴¹, common investment schemes⁴², or the Church Funds Investment Scheme⁴³ is to be disregarded⁴⁴.

1 As to the meaning of 'director' under the Companies Acts see PARA 478; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

2 As to the meaning of 'body corporate' for the purposes of the Companies Acts see PARA 1 note 5. For the avoidance of circularity in the application of the Companies Act 2006 s 252 (meaning of 'connected person') (see PARA 481): (1) a body corporate with which a director is connected is not treated for the purposes of s 254 as connected with him unless it is also connected with him by virtue of s 252(2)(c) or s 252(2)(d) (connection as trustee or partner) (see PARA 481) (s 254(6)(a)); and (2) a trustee of a trust the beneficiaries of which include (or may include) a body corporate with which a director is connected is not treated for the purposes of s 254 as connected with a director by reason only of that fact (s 254(6)(b)).

The repeal of the Companies Act 1985 s 346, Sch 13 (meaning of 'connected person') (see now the Companies Act 2006 ss 252-255, Sch 1) does not affect the Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1965 s 7E and s 7F(3) (application to person being connected with a committee member, or to a committee member being associated with a company) (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 50 (2008) PARA 2433) or the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 96B(2)(a) (disclosure rules: responsibility for compliance: meaning of person connected with person having managerial responsibilities within an issuer) (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 390): see the Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 3, Consequential Amendments, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2007, SI 2007/2194, art 9, Sch 3 para 50.

4 The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 s 254(3), Sch 1 (see the text and notes 14-44) have effect for the interpretation of references in s 254 to an interest in shares or debentures: Sch 1 para 1(1). The provisions are expressed in relation to shares but apply to debentures as they apply to shares: Sch 1 para 1(2). However, shares in a company held as treasury shares, and any voting rights attached to such shares (see head (2) in the text), are disregarded for the purposes of s 254: s 254(5). 9 The meaning of references in the Companies Act 2006 Pt 10 (ss 154-259) (see PARAS 478 et seq, 482 et seq) to a director 'controlling' a body corporate is defined by s 255: s 255(1). For the avoidance of circularity in the application of s 252 (meaning of 'connected person') (see PARA 481): (1) a body corporate with which a director is connected is not treated for the purposes of s 255 as connected with him unless it is also connected with him by virtue of s 252(2)(c) or s 252(2)(d) (connection as trustee or partner) (see PARA 481) (s 255(6)(a)); and (2) a trustee of a trust the beneficiaries of which include (or may include) a body corporate with which a director is connected is not treated for the purposes of s 255 as connected with a director by reason only of that fact (s 255(6)(b)).

10 Companies Act 2006 s 255(2)(a)(i). The provisions of s 255(3), Sch 1 (see the text and notes 14-44) have effect for the interpretation of references in s 255 to an interest in shares or debentures: Sch 1 para 1(1). The provisions are expressed in relation to shares but apply to debentures as they apply to shares: Sch 1 para 1(2). However, shares in a company held as treasury shares, and any voting rights attached to such shares (see the text and notes 11, 13), are disregarded for the purposes of s 255: s 255(5).

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(ii) Appointment and Removal of Directors/A. REQUIREMENT TO HAVE DIRECTORS/483. Requirement of directors.

(ii) Appointment and Removal of Directors

A. REQUIREMENT TO HAVE DIRECTORS

483. Requirement of directors.

The affairs of a company¹ are conducted by directors², whether under that name or some other name (such as 'trustees', 'members of the council', or 'governors')³.

A private company⁴ must have at least one director⁵. A public company⁶ must have at least two directors⁷.

If it appears to the Secretary of State⁸ that a company is in breach of the requirements as to the minimum number of directors it must have⁹, the Secretary of State may give the company a direction¹⁰, which must specify:

- 850 (1) the statutory requirement the company appears to be in breach of¹¹;
- 851 (2) what the company must do in order to comply with the direction¹²; and
- 852 (3) the period within which it must do so¹³.

The direction must also inform the company of the consequences of failing to comply¹⁴.

Where the company is in breach of the requirements as to the minimum number of directors¹⁵, it must comply with the direction by making the necessary appointment or appointments¹⁶, and by giving notice of them¹⁷, before the end of the period specified in the direction¹⁸. If the company has already made the necessary appointment or appointments (or so far as it has done so), it must comply with the direction by giving notice of them¹⁹ before the end of the period specified in the direction²⁰.

If a company fails to comply with a direction so given²¹, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default²². A person guilty of such an offence is liable (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale²³ and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine²⁴ not exceeding one-tenth of level 5 on the standard scale²⁵.

A provision requiring or authorising a thing to be done by or to a director and the secretary²⁶ is not satisfied by its being done by or to the same person acting both as director and as, or in place of, the secretary²⁷.

3 As to the restrictions on classes of persons acting as directors see PARA 491 et seq.

4 As to the meaning of 'private company' see PARA 102.

5 Companies Act 2006 s 154(1). By virtue of s 155(1), at least one director must be a natural person (and hence capable of being held accountable for company actions): see PARA 491.

The model articles of association that have been prescribed under the Companies Act 2006 (as to which see PARA 228 et seq) make no provision for the number of directors. However, the default articles that were prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985, ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805 (which have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230) provide that the number of directors (other than alternate directors), unless otherwise determined by ordinary resolution, is not subject to any maximum but must be not less than two: see the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, reg 2, Schedule, Table A art 64. Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but art 64 is applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital), and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital). As to the meanings of 'company limited by shares', 'company limited by guarantee', 'limited company' and 'unlimited company' see PARA 102. As to the meanings of 'company having a share capital' and 'share capital' see PARA 1042. As to the meaning of 'ordinary resolution' see PARA 613. As to alternate directors see PARA 489.

6 As to the meaning of 'public company' see PARA 102.

7 Companies Act 2006 s 154(2). See note 5.

A company which has obtained admission to the official list of the UK Listing Authority must notify a Regulatory Information Service (RIS) of any change to the board including: (1) the appointment of a new director (stating the appointee's name and whether the position is executive, non-executive or chairman and the nature of any specific function or responsibility of the position); (2) the resignation, removal or retirement of a director (unless the director retires by rotation and is re-appointed at a general meeting of the listed company's shareholders); (3) important changes to the role, functions or responsibilities of a director; and (4) the effective date of the change if it is not with immediate effect, as soon as possible and in any event by the end of the business day following the decision or receipt of notice about the change by the company: see the Listing Rules r 9.6.11. A listed company also must notify a RIS of the following information in respect of any new director appointed to the board as soon as possible following the decision to appoint the director and in any event within five business days of the decision: (a) details of all directorships held by the director in any other publicly quoted company at any time in the previous five years, indicating whether or not he is still a director; (b) any unspent convictions in relation to indictable offences; (c) details of any receiverships, compulsory liquidations, creditors voluntary liquidations, administrations, company voluntary arrangements or any composition or arrangement with its creditors generally or any class of its creditors of any company where the director was an executive director at the time of, or within the 12 months preceding, such events; (d) details of any compulsory liquidations, administrations or partnership voluntary arrangements of any partnerships where the director was a partner at the time of, or within the 12 months preceding, such events; (e) details of receiverships of any asset of such person or of a partnership of which the director was a partner at the time of, or within the 12 months preceding, such event; and (f) details of any public criticisms of the director by statutory or regulatory authorities (including designated professional bodies) and whether the director has ever been disqualified by a court from acting as a director of a company or from acting in the management or conduct of the affairs of any company: see the Listing Rules r 9.6.13. A listed company must, in respect of any current director, notify a RIS as soon as possible of any changes in the information set out in heads (b) to (f) above and any new directorships held by the director in any other publicly quoted company: see the Listing Rules r 9.6.14. A regulatory information service (or RIS) is a Regulatory Information Service that is approved by the FSA as meeting the Primary Information Provider criteria and that is on the list of Regulatory Information Services maintained by the FSA: see the Listing Rules Appendix 1.1. B. APPOINTMENT

(A) PROCEDURE

484. Appointment of first directors.

The person or persons named in the statement of proposed officers¹ as directors² of the company³, is or are, as from the date of the company's incorporation⁴, deemed to have been appointed to that office⁵.

- 1 As to the statement of proposed officers see PARA 112. As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 112 note 1.
- 2 As to the meaning of 'director' under the Companies Acts see PARA 478; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.
- 3 As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24.
- 4 I.e. the date mentioned in the certificate of incorporation, following the registration of a company: see PARA 119 note 7. As to incorporation by registration under the Companies Act 2006 see PARA 111 et seq.
- 5 See the Companies Act 2006 s 16(1), (6); and PARA 120. See also Re Great Northern Salt and Chemical Works, ex p Kennedy (1890) 44 ChD 472 (as the subscribers to the memorandum of association had all concurred in appointing the first directors of the company, the fact that they had not met together for the purpose of coming to their determination did not invalidate their act).

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(ii) Appointment and Removal of Directors/B. APPOINTMENT/(A) Procedure/485. Procedure for subsequent appointments.

485. Procedure for subsequent appointments.

Under the model articles of association¹, any person who is willing to act as a director², and is permitted by law to do so, may be appointed to be a director, either by ordinary resolution³, or by a decision of the directors⁴. It is not competent for the directors to enter into contracts restricting the right of the company to appoint its own directors⁵.

At a general meeting of a public company⁶, a motion for the appointment of two or more persons as directors of the company by a single resolution must not be made unless a resolution that it should be so made has first been agreed to by the meeting without any vote being given against it⁷. A resolution moved in contravention of this restriction is void, whether or not its being so moved was objected to at the time⁸. Although the acts of any directors so appointed will be valid⁹ in such circumstances, no provision for the automatic reappointment of retiring directors in default of another appointment¹⁰ will apply¹¹.

Sometimes provision is made for an outside body, for example debenture holders¹², to appoint a director; under such a provision, the court will not enforce the appointment of a person who is objectionable to the company¹³.

The company is not entitled to rely against other persons on any change among the company's directors unless certain conditions are met¹⁴.

1 As to model articles of association that have been prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, and their application generally, see PARA 228 et seq. Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'limited company', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230.

2 For these purposes, 'director' means a director of the company, and includes any person occupying the position of director, by whatever name called: see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 Pt 1 (art 1); Sch 2 Pt 1 (art 1); Sch 3 Pt 1 (art 1). This wording is in almost identical terms to that used for the purposes of the Companies Acts: see PARA 478. As to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16. As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24; definition applied by the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 Pt 1 (art 1); Sch 2 Pt 1 (art 1); Sch 3 Pt 1 (art 1). As to the appointment of first directors see PARA 484; and as to casual vacancies see PARA 487.

3 As to the meaning of 'ordinary resolution' see PARA 613; definition applied by the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 Pt 1 (art 1); Sch 2 Pt 1 (art 1); Sch 3 Pt 1 (art 1).

4 See the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 art 17(1); Sch 2 art 17(1); Sch 3 art 20. No further provision in the model articles is made in relation to a public company but in relation to a private company it is provided that in any case where, as a result of death, the company has no members (or, in the case of a company limited by shares, no shareholders) and no directors, the personal representatives of the last member (or shareholder) to have died have the right, by notice in writing, to appoint a person to be a director: see Sch 1 art 17(2); Sch 2 art 17(2). For these purposes, where two or more members (or shareholders) die in circumstances rendering it uncertain who was the last to die, a younger member (or shareholder) is deemed to have survived an older member (or shareholder): see Sch 1 art 17(3); Sch 2 art 17(3). For companies that are still using legacy articles of association (ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805: see note 1), provision for the appointment of directors is made in reg 2, Schedule, Table A arts 78, 79, subject to Table A arts 73-77 (arts 73-75 revoked, arts 76-79 amended in relation to a private company limited by shares by SI 2007/2541). See further Transport Ltd v Schonberg (1905) 21 TLR 305; and Catesby v Burnett [1916] 2 Ch 325. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but arts 73-79 are applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital), and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital). As to the meaning of 'unlimited company' see PARA 102. As to the meanings of 'company having a share capital' and 'share capital' see PARA 1042.

7 Companies Act 2006 s 160(1). For the purposes of s 160, a motion to approve a person's appointment, or to nominate a person for appointment, is to be treated as a motion for his appointment: s 160(3). Nothing in s 160 applies to a resolution amending the company's articles (as to which see PARA 228 et seq): s 160(4). The precise effect of this saving is obscure. Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(ii) Appointment and Removal of Directors/B. APPOINTMENT/(A) Procedure/486. Defect in appointment of person acting as director.

486. Defect in appointment of person acting as director.

If the company¹ has caused proper minutes of all proceedings at meetings of its directors² or of its general meetings³ to be recorded⁴ then, until the contrary is proved, all appointments made at either such meeting are deemed to be valid⁵. The acts of a person acting as a director are valid⁶ notwithstanding that it is afterwards discovered⁷: (1) that there was a defect in his appointment⁸; (2) that he was disqualified from holding office⁹; (3) that he had ceased to hold office¹⁰; (4) that he was not entitled to vote on the matter in question¹¹. This presumption as to validity applies only to cases where there has been an appointment, albeit an invalid one¹²; it has no application to cases where in fact there has never been any appointment or where there has been a fraudulent usurpation of authority¹³.

This deemed validity operates not only as between the company and outsiders, but also as between the company and its members¹⁴, as where, for example, de facto directors make a call¹⁵, summon meetings of the company¹⁶, elect other directors¹⁷, or allot shares¹⁸. A de facto director may be ordered to furnish a statement of affairs in a winding up¹⁹. Directors cannot take advantage of any informality in company proceedings in which they have themselves participated; they are estopped as between themselves and the company²⁰; they are also estopped from saying they have been improperly appointed, if they have acted after their appointment²¹. Persons dealing with them who know of the invalidity are likewise estopped²².

2 As to the meaning of 'director' under the Companies Acts see PARA 478. As to meetings of directors generally see PARA 528 et seq.

3 As to meetings of the company see PARA 629 et seq.

4 le in accordance with the Companies Act 2006 s 248 (directors' meetings) (see PARA 530) or s 355 (general meetings) (see PARA 668), as the case may be.

5 See the Companies Act 2006 s 249 (directors' meetings) (see PARA 530) or s 356 (general meetings) (see PARA 668), as the case may be. However, a person having notice that there is an irregularity or invalidity cannot avail himself of this provision: Re Staffordshire Gas and Coke Co, ex p Nicholson (1892) 66 LT 413; Re Bridport Old Brewery Co (1867) 2 Ch App 191; Woolf v East Nigel Gold Mining Co Ltd (1905) 21 TLR 660. A subsequent meeting may effectually ratify and confirm the acts of an irregularly constituted meeting: Re Portuguese Consolidated Copper Mines Ltd, ex p Badman, ex p Bosanquet (1890) 45 ChD 16, CA. An injunction may be obtained to restrain improperly appointed directors from acting: Cheshire v Gordon Hotels (1953) Times, 13

February. A director need not be appointed at the company's office: Smith v Paringa Mines Ltd [1906] 2 Ch 193. Cf Barron v Potter [1914] 1 Ch 895. As to the company's registered office see PARA 129.

6 The liabilities incurred by persons acting as director are also as great as if they had been properly appointed: Western Bank of Scotland v Bairds' Trustees (1872) 11 M 96. As to directors' liabilities generally see PARA 559. See also Briton Medical, General and Life Association v Jones (2) (1889) 61 LT 384; Coventry and Dixon's Case (1880) 14 ChD 660, CA; Re Western Counties Steam Bakeries and Milling Co [1897] 1 Ch 617, CA.

For companies that are still using the default articles that were prescribed originally for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles') (ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805: see PARA 230), Schedule, Table A art 92 provides that all acts done by any meeting of the directors or of a committee of directors, or by any person acting as a director, are, notwithstanding that it is afterwards discovered that there was a defect in the appointment of any such director, or that any of them were disqualified from holding office, or had vacated office, or were not entitled to vote, as valid as if every such person had been duly appointed and was qualified and had continued to be a director and had been entitled to vote. The reference to subsequent discovery of a defect means a discovery that there is a defect, not a discovery of the facts which cause the defect: British Asbestos Co Ltd v Boyd [1903] 2 Ch 439 at 444 per Farwell J; Channel Collieries Trust Ltd v Dover, St Margaret's and Martin Mill Light Rly Co [1914] 2 Ch 506, CA; Albert Gardens (Manly) Pty Ltd v Mercantile Credits Ltd (1973) 9 ALR 653, Aust HC. As to the limitations upon the effectiveness of this article see also Morris v Kanssen [1946] AC 459, [1946] 1 All ER 586, HL. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but art 92 is applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital), and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'limited company' and 'unlimited company' see PARA 102. As to the meanings of 'company having a share capital' and 'share capital' see PARA 1042. As to the extent to which directors may delegate powers, including to committees, see PARA 537.

7 Companies Act 2006 s 161(1). A defect that the person appointed had no share qualification was held to have been 'afterwards discovered' in Albert Gardens (Manly) Pty Ltd v Mercantile Credits Ltd (1973) 9 ALR 653, Aust HC. If the holding of a share qualification is required, this is not a condition of the power of appointment; if it is not complied with, there will still be an appointment, although it will be defective. As to qualification shares see PARA 495 et seq.

8 Companies Act 2006 s 161(1)(a). The provisions of s 161 apply even if the resolution to appoint is void under s 160 (as to which see PARA 485): s 161(2). A company which has put forward a resolution as being validly passed cannot, at any rate after lapse of considerable time, repudiate it as invalid: Montreal and St Lawrence Light and Power Co v Robert [1906] AC 196, PC.

487. Casual vacancies.

A power to fill vacancies may be vested in the continuing directors¹. If any such vacancy is not filled before a general meeting, it may be filled then, and if not, the power of filling the casual vacancy remains in the continuing directors². If a qualified person must be appointed, he must hold the qualification shares at the time of appointment³.

For companies that are still using model articles of association that were prescribed originally for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles') (ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805; see PARA 230), Schedule, Table A art 79 (amended in relation to a private company limited by shares by SI 2007/2541) (cited in PARA 485 note 5) carries a proviso that the director so appointed is to hold office only during the natural term of office of the retiring director or until the next annual general meeting of the company and will not be taken into account in determining the directors who are to retire by rotation at the meeting. If not reappointed at such an annual general meeting, he must vacate office at the conclusion of that meeting. See further Eyre v Milton Pty Ltd [1936] Ch 244, CA. As to the requirement to hold an annual general meeting see PARA 630. Where the articles provide that only qualified persons, ie persons with the requisite share qualification, may be appointed, a person is not qualified until he is registered as the holder of the necessary number of shares: Channel Collieries Trust Ltd v Dover, St Margaret's and Martin Mill Light Rly Co [1914] 2 Ch 506, CA; Spencer v Kennedy [1926] Ch 125; Pollock v Garrett 1957 SLT (Notes) 8. If the number of directors is reduced below a quorum for a directors' meeting, a company's articles of association usually prescribe measures that must be taken to appoint the required number: see the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, reg 2, Schedule Table A art 90; the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 art 11(3), Sch 2 art 11(3), Sch 3 art 11; and PARA 529. 488. Additional directors.

The directors of a company¹ may be invested with the power of appointing additional directors². In face of such a provision, a company cannot usurp the power entrusted to the directors³, unless it is shown that the power could not be exercised by the directors owing to dissension or deadlock⁴. Where the appointment of an additional director is desired to resolve a company deadlocked both at general meeting level and at board level, the court⁵ may make an order under its statutory powers⁶ convening a meeting for the single act of enabling the appointment of a new director to be considered and voted on⁷.

1 As to a company's directors see PARA 478 et seq.

2 For companies that are still using model articles of association that were prescribed originally for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles') (ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805: see PARA 230), Schedule, Table A art 79 (amended in relation to a private company limited by shares by SI 2007/2541) (cited in PARA 485 note 4) provides (inter alia) that the directors may appoint any person who is willing to act to be a director as an additional director, provided that the appointment does not cause the number of directors to exceed any number fixed by or in accordance with the articles as the maximum number of directors. A director so appointed holds office only until the next following annual general meeting and, if not reappointed at such a meeting, he must vacate his office. As to the requirement of official notification see PARA 485. As to a company's articles of association generally see PARA 228 et seq.

489. Alternate directors.

A company's articles of association¹ may permit the appointment of alternate directors². Such an alternate may be another director, or a third person, depending upon the provisions of the articles. Normally, such a person has the same rights and responsibilities, in relation to any directors' meeting or directors' written resolution, as the alternate's appointor³. His appointment cannot outlast the directorship of the person to whom he is an alternate, but may be made to continue notwithstanding such person's retirement by rotation and reappointment⁴. Whilst the alternate is acting as a director, he stands in a fiduciary position in relation to the company, and accordingly owes the company all the same duties as are owed by a director⁵.

1 As to a company's articles of association generally see PARA 228 et seq.

2 As to a company's directors generally see PARA 478 et seq. Under the model articles of association prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 for use by public companies (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 4, Sch 3), art 25(1) provides that any director (the 'appointor') may appoint as an alternate any other director, or any other person approved by resolution of the directors, to exercise that director's powers, and to carry out that director's responsibilities, in relation to the taking of decisions by the directors in the absence of the alternate's appointor. Any appointment or removal of an alternate must be effected by notice in writing to the company signed by the appointor, or in any other manner approved by the directors: Sch 3 art 25(2). The notice must identify the proposed alternate and, in the case of a notice of appointment, contain a statement signed by the proposed alternate that the proposed alternate is willing to act as the alternate of the director giving the notice: Sch 3 art 25(3). Other types of company apart from public companies may have alternates if they choose to make such provision in their articles. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230. Under those articles, Table A art 65 provides that any director (other than an alternate director) may appoint any other director, or any other person approved by resolution of the directors and willing to act, to be an alternate director and may remove from office an alternate director so appointed by him; and art 68 provides that any appointment or removal of an alternate director must be by notice to the company signed by the director making or revoking the appointment or in any other manner approved by the directors. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but arts 65-69 (see also notes 3, 4) are applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital), and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'limited company', 'public company' and 'unlimited company' see PARA 102. As to the meanings of 'company having a share capital' and 'share capital' see PARA 1042.

3 See the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 3 art 26(1). Except as the articles specify otherwise, alternate directors are deemed for all purposes to be directors, are liable for their own acts and omissions, are subject to the same restrictions as their appointors, and are not deemed to be agents of or for their appointors: Sch 3 art 26(2). A person who is an alternate director but not a director may be counted as participating for the purposes of determining whether a quorum is participating (but only if that person's appointor is not participating), and may sign a written resolution (but only if it is not signed or to be signed by that person's appointor): Sch 3 art 26(3). However, no alternate may be counted as more than one director for such purposes: see Sch 3 art 26(3). An alternate director is not entitled to receive any remuneration from the company for serving as an alternate director except such part of the alternate's appointor's remuneration as the appointor may direct by notice in writing made to the company: Sch 3 art 26(4). As to the quorum required for a meeting of directors see PARA 529. As to board meetings of directors generally see PARA 528. As to the extent to which directors may delegate powers, including to committees, see PARA 537.

Under the 'legacy articles' (ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805: see note 2), Table A art 66 provides that an alternate director is entitled to receive notice of all meetings of directors and of all meetings of committees of directors of which his appointor is a member, to attend and vote at any such meeting at which the director appointing him is not personally present and generally to perform all the functions of his appointor as a director in his absence but is not entitled to receive any remuneration from the company for his services as an alternate director. However, it is not necessary to give notice of a meeting to an alternate director who is absent from the United Kingdom: see art 66. Save as otherwise provided in the articles, an alternate director is deemed for all purposes to be a director and is alone responsible for his own acts and defaults and must not be deemed to be the agent of the director appointing him: art 69. There are thus obvious advantages in appointing a person who is already a director as an alternate. A director who is also an alternate director is entitled in the absence of his appointor to a separate vote on behalf of his appointor in addition to his own vote: see art 88; and PARA 528.

4 Under the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 3 art 27, an alternate director's appointment as an alternate terminates: (1) when the alternate's appointor revokes the appointment by notice to the company in writing specifying when it is to terminate (see Sch 3 art 27(a)); (2) on the occurrence in relation to the alternate of any event which, if it occurred in relation to the alternate's appointor, would result in the termination of the appointor's appointment as a director (see Sch 3 art 27(b)); (3) on the death of the alternate's appointor (see Sch 3 art 27(c)); or (4) when the alternate's appointor's appointment as a director terminates, except that an alternate's appointment as an alternate does not terminate when the appointor retires by rotation at a general meeting and is then re-appointed as a director at the same general meeting (see Sch 3 art 27(d)). As to the rotation and reappointment of directors see PARA 515.

Under the 'legacy articles' (ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805: see note 2), Table A art 67 provides that an alternate director must cease to be an alternate director if his appointor ceases to be a director; however, if a director retires by rotation or otherwise but is reappointed or deemed to have been reappointed at the meeting at which he retires, any appointment of an alternate director made by him which was in force immediately prior to his retirement continues after his reappointment.

When the first board of directors¹ or any subsequent board² continues to act after the period for which the directors were appointed has expired, or where the directors are due to retire and no valid appointment of new directors has been made³, the acting directors (as de facto directors) can continue to act⁴, and the validity of their acts cannot be challenged on the ground that they have ceased to hold office⁵.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(ii) Appointment and Removal of Directors/B. APPOINTMENT/(B) Restrictions on Appointment/491. Requirement for at least one natural person.

(B) RESTRICTIONS ON APPOINTMENT

491. Requirement for at least one natural person.

A company¹ must have at least one director² who is a natural person³. This requirement is met if the office of director is held by a natural person as a corporation sole⁴ or otherwise by virtue of an office⁵; and, subject to this requirement, a limited company may be appointed to perform the duties and exercise the powers usually performed and exercised by individuals appointed as directors⁶.

If it appears to the Secretary of State⁷ that a company is in breach of this requirement to have at least one director who is a natural person⁸, the Secretary of State may give the company a direction⁹, which must specify:

- 853 (1) the statutory requirement the company appears to be in breach of¹⁰;
- 854 (2) what the company must do in order to comply with the direction¹¹; and
- 855 (3) the period within which it must do so¹².

The direction must also inform the company of the consequences of failing to comply¹³.

Where the company is in breach of the requirement to have at least one director who is a natural person¹⁴, it must comply with the direction by making the necessary appointment¹⁵, and by giving the required notice¹⁶, before the end of the period specified in the direction¹⁷. If the company has already made the necessary appointment (or so far as it has done so), it must comply with the direction by giving the required notice¹⁸ before the end of the period specified in the direction¹⁹.

If a company fails to comply with a direction so given²⁰, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default²¹. A person guilty of such an offence is liable (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale²² and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine²³ not exceeding one-tenth of level 5 on the standard scale²⁴.

492. Minimum age requirement.

A person may not be appointed a director¹ of a company² unless he has attained the age of 16 years³. However, this does not affect the validity of an appointment that is not to take effect until the person appointed attains that age⁴. Where the office of director of a company is held by a corporation sole, or otherwise by virtue of another office, the appointment to that other office of a person who has not attained the age of 16 years is not effective also to make him a director of the company until he attains the age of 16 years⁵. Any appointment made in contravention of the minimum age requirement⁶ is void⁷ but any liability of a person under any provision of the Companies Acts is not affected⁸ if he purports to act as director⁹, or if he acts as a shadow director¹⁰, although he could not, by virtue of the minimum age requirement¹¹, be validly appointed as a director¹².

The Secretary of State¹³ may make provision by regulations¹⁴ for cases in which a person who has not attained the age of 16 years may be appointed a director of a company¹⁵. The regulations must specify the circumstances in which, and any conditions subject to which, the appointment may be made¹⁶. If the specified circumstances cease to obtain, or any specified conditions cease to be met, a person who was appointed by virtue of the regulations and who has not since attained the age of 16 years ceases to hold office¹⁷.

493. Restriction on undischarged bankrupt acting as director.

If a person acts as director¹ of a company² or directly or indirectly takes part in or is concerned in the promotion, formation or management of a company, without the leave of the court³, at a time when⁴: (1) he is an undischarged bankrupt⁵; (2) a moratorium period under a debt relief order applies in relation to him⁶; or (3) a bankruptcy restrictions order or a debt relief restrictions order is in force in respect of him⁷, he commits an offence⁸. The offence is one of strict liability⁹.

A person who acts in contravention of these provisions is also personally responsible for all the relevant debts of the company incurred whilst he was involved in its management¹⁰.

In England and Wales¹¹, the leave of the court may not be given unless notice of intention to apply for it has been served on the official receiver¹²; and it is the latter's duty, if he is of the opinion that it is contrary to the public interest that the application should be granted, to attend on the hearing of the application and oppose it¹³.

856 (1) he must not be a director of a company⁴; or

857 (2) he must not act as receiver of a company's property⁵; or

858 (3) he must not in any way, whether directly or indirectly, be concerned or take part in the promotion, formation or management of a company⁶, unless (in each case) he has the leave of the court⁷; nor may he act as an insolvency practitioner⁸.

The court may make such an order:

- 859 (a) where a person is convicted of certain indictable offences⁹;
- 860 (b) where a person has been persistently in default in relation to provisions of the companies legislation¹⁰;
- 861 (c) if, in the course of the winding up of a company, it appears that a person has been guilty of fraudulent trading¹¹ or, while an officer or liquidator of the company, receiver of the company's property or administrative receiver of the company, of any fraud in relation to the company or of any breach of his duty¹²;
- 862 (d) where a person is convicted of certain summary offences related to the contravention of, or failure to comply with, any provision of the companies legislation¹³;
- 863 (e) where, on an application by the Secretary of State following an investigation, the court is satisfied, and it is expedient in the public interest, that a person's conduct in relation to the company makes him unfit to be concerned in the management of a company¹⁴;
- 864 (f) where a person is the subject of a court declaration under the fraudulent trading provisions¹⁵ or under the wrongful trading provisions¹⁶ which makes that person liable to make a contribution to a company's assets¹⁷.

It is the duty of the court to make such an order in any case where, on application, it is satisfied:

- 865 (i) that a person is or has been a director of a company which has at any time become insolvent, whether while he was a director or subsequently¹⁸; and
- 866 (ii) that his conduct as a director of that company, either taken alone or taken together with his conduct as a director of any other company or companies, makes him unfit to be concerned in the management of a company¹⁹.

The court must also make a disqualification order against a person if:

- 867 (A) an undertaking which is a company of which he is a director commits a breach of competition law²⁰; and
- 868 (B) the court considers that his conduct as a director makes him unfit to be concerned in the management of a company²¹.

C. QUALIFICATION SHARES

495. Whether a share qualification is required.

Whether or not a company director¹ is required to possess any shareholding² at all in the company depends on the provisions of the company's articles of association³. Where such a qualification is so specified, the holding of shares as one of several joint holders constitutes good qualification⁴.

The acts of a director or manager are valid if done before he is bound by law or by the articles to acquire his qualification⁵, or notwithstanding that a defect may afterwards be discovered in his share qualification⁶.

As to a company's articles of association generally see PARA 228 et seq. No such qualification as is mentioned in the text is specified as being required either under the model articles of association which have been prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 (see PARA 228 et seq) or under the default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles') (ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, which have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230). Where such a qualification is, however, specified, and a time limit on acquiring the qualification is also specified, as was the case under the Companies Act 1985 s 291 (repealed), time runs, when the election of directors is determined by a poll, only when the result of the poll is ascertained: Holmes v Lord Keyes [1959] Ch 199, [1958] 2 All ER 129, CA. Where the share qualification is increased, an existing director does not thereby cease to hold that larger qualification, but has a reasonable time in which to acquire it: Molineaux v London, Birmingham and Manchester Insurance Co [1902] 2 KB 589, CA. Under the Companies Act 1985 s 291 (repealed), criminal sanctions could be imposed on a person who acted as director without meeting the qualification requirement. 496. Liability for qualification shares.

If a company director¹ resigns² before the time fixed as the date after which, unless already qualified, he is under the articles of association³ to be deemed to have agreed to take his qualification shares from the company⁴, he is not liable in respect of the shares to the company, although he acted as director without qualification⁵. If, however, he does not resign until after that date, he is liable, although he has never acted after accepting office⁶.

A director who is bound by the articles to acquire a qualification, but who has not expressly agreed to take the shares from the company, is under no obligation to take the shares from the company⁷, at any rate where it is possible for him to acquire his shares elsewhere⁸.

Where a director applies for his qualification shares, but no allotment is made and the company does not undertake the business for which it was incorporated, or any other business, within the period during which he is to qualify or else be deemed bound, he cannot be put on the list of contributories⁹. Again, if his appointment as director is void, and the only agreement to take shares as qualification shares consists in his acting as director and the registration of shares in his name, the acting director is not liable on them¹⁰.

If shares sufficient to qualify a director are registered in his name before his resignation, even without his knowledge, he will be liable to pay for them unless he has acquired other shares before the time when he was bound to qualify; for as director he must be taken to know the contents of the register and therefore that the shares have been registered in his name¹¹.

A transfer of qualification shares with a view to avoid liability may be void for fraud¹².

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(ii) Appointment and Removal of Directors/C. QUALIFICATION SHARES/497. Qualification shares held as trustee etc.

497. Qualification shares held as trustee etc.

A company director¹ who is bound to hold his qualification shares² 'in his own right' is properly qualified if he holds in his name shares of which he is trustee³; and, if he is not bound to acquire his qualification shares from the company, is properly qualified if he holds shares which he receives as a present from the promoter by transfer or allotment⁴. In the latter case he may, however, be liable for misfeasance, and may be ordered to pay to the company the value of the shares⁵.

Although a director fulfils the requirement of holding shares 'in his own right' if he holds shares as trustee, in spite of the beneficial interest being elsewhere, it is not sufficient if they are registered as held by the director in a representative capacity, as, for example, where he is registered as trustee in bankruptcy or as executor or as liquidator⁶; nor is it sufficient where he is bankrupt and his shares have, therefore, vested in his trustee, after which the company may no longer deal with the shares as the director's own⁷. No notice of any trust, expressed, implied or constructive may, however, be entered on the register⁸ and the persons holding shares in a representative capacity are entitled to have a clean entry⁹.

D. REGISTERS TO BE KEPT

(A) REGISTER OF DIRECTORS

499. The register of directors.

Every company¹ must keep a register of its directors².

The register must contain the required particulars³ of each person who is a director of the company⁴. Accordingly, a company's register of directors must contain the following particulars in the case of an individual⁵:

- 869 (1) name⁶ and any former name⁷;
- 870 (2) a service address⁸;
- 871 (3) the country or state (or part of the United Kingdom⁹) in which he is usually resident¹⁰;
- 872 (4) nationality¹¹;
- 873 (5) business occupation (if any)¹²;
- 874 (6) date of birth¹³.

In the case of a body corporate¹⁴, or a firm¹⁵ that is a legal person under the law by which it is governed, a company's register of directors must contain the following particulars¹⁶:

- 875 (a) corporate or firm name¹⁷;
- 876 (b) registered or principal office¹⁸;
- 877 (c) in the case of an EEA company¹⁹ to which the First Company Law Directive²⁰ applies, particulars of²¹: (i) the register in which the company file²² is kept (including details of the relevant state)²³; and (ii) the registration number in that register²⁴;
- 878 (d) in any other case, particulars of²⁵: (i) the legal form of the company or firm and the law by which it is governed²⁶; and (ii) if applicable, the register in which it is entered (including details of the state) and its registration number in that register²⁷.

The register must be kept available for inspection either at the company's registered office²⁸, or at a place specified in regulations²⁹. The company must give notice to the registrar of companies³⁰ of the place at which the register is kept available for inspection³¹, and of any change in that place³², unless it has at all times been kept at the company's registered office³³. The register must be open to the inspection of any member of the company³⁴ without charge³⁵, and to the inspection of any other person on payment of such fee as may be prescribed³⁶.

If default is made in complying with the requirements to keep a register³⁷, or to maintain the required particulars to be contained therein³⁸, or to keep the register available for inspection³⁹, or if default is made for 14 days in complying with the giving of notice to the registrar of the place where inspection may be made⁴⁰, or if an inspection⁴¹ is refused, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default⁴². A person guilty of such an offence is liable (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale⁴³ and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine⁴⁴ not exceeding one-tenth of level 5 on the standard scale⁴⁵. In the case of a refusal of inspection of the register, the court⁴⁶ may by order compel an immediate inspection of it⁴⁷.

On and after 1 October 2009, the register of directors and secretaries kept by a company under the Companies Act 1985 s 288(1) (repealed) is to be treated as two separate registers, namely a register of directors kept under and for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 s 162, and a register of secretaries kept under and for the purposes of s 275 (see PARA 605): see the Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 8, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2008, SI 2008/2860, art 5, Sch 2 para 25. As to the register of directors' residential addresses see PARA 500 et seq.

The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 ss 162-164, 166 apply to unregistered companies by virtue of the Unregistered Companies Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2436, reg 3, Sch 1 para 6, but with the Companies Act 2006 s 162 as modified thereby: see PARA 1666. As to the meaning of 'unregistered company' see PARA 1665.

The Secretary of State may make provision by regulations amending s 163 or s 164, so as to add to or remove items from the particulars required to be contained in a company's register of directors: s 166(1). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6. As to the making of regulations under the Companies Act 2006 generally see ss 1288-1292. Regulations under s 166 are subject to affirmative resolution procedure (ie the regulations must not be made unless a draft of the statutory instrument containing them has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament): see ss 166(2), 1290. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made under s 166.

The statement of proposed officers that is required to be delivered in accordance with the Companies Act 2006 s 9(1), (4) (see PARA 111) to the registrar of companies must contain the required particulars (ie the particulars that are required to be stated in the company's register of directors and register of directors' residential addresses) of the person who is, or persons who are, to be the first director or directors of the company: see s 12; and PARA 112. As to the appointment of first directors see PARA 484.

5 Companies Act 2006 s 163(1). See note 3.

6 For these purposes, 'name' means a person's Christian name (or other forename) and surname, except that in the case of a peer, or an individual usually known by a title, the title may be stated instead of his Christian name (or other forename) and surname or in addition to either or both of them: Companies Act 2006 s 163(2). See note 3.

7 Companies Act 2006 s 163(1)(a). For these purposes, a 'former name' means a name by which the individual was formerly known for business purposes; and, where a person is or was formerly known by more than one such name, each of them must be stated: s 163(3). However, it is not necessary for the register to contain particulars of a former name in the following cases: (1) in the case of a peer or an individual normally known by a British title, where the name is one by which the person was known previous to the adoption of or succession to the title (s 163(4)(a)); (2) in the case of any person, where the former name either was changed or disused before the person attained the age of 16 years, or has been changed or disused for 20 years or more (s 163(4)(b)). See note 3.

8 Companies Act 2006 s 163(1)(b). A person's service address may be stated to be 'The company's registered office': s 163(5). See note 3. As to a company's registered office see PARA 129. As to requirements relating to service addresses generally see PARA 673.

In the case of an existing company, the relevant existing address of a director is deemed, on and after 1 October 2009, to be a service address, and any entry in the company's register of directors stating that address is treated, on and after that date, as complying with the obligation in the Companies Act 2006 s 163(1)(b) to state a service address: Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 8, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2008, SI 2008/2860, art 5, Sch 2 para 27(1). The relevant existing address is the address that immediately before 1 October 2009 appeared in the company's register of directors and secretaries as having been notified to the company under the Companies Act 1985 s 289(1A) (repealed) (service address notified by individual applying for confidentiality order in respect of usual residential address) or, if no such address appeared, the address that immediately before that date appeared in the company's register of directors and secretaries as the director's usual residential address: Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 8, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2008, SI 2008/2860, Sch 2 para 27(2). Any notification of a change of a relevant existing address occurring before 1 October 2009 that is received by the company on or after that date is treated as being or, as the case may be, including notification of a change of service address: Sch 2 para 27(3). However, the operation of Sch 2 para 27 does not give rise to any duty to notify the registrar under the Companies Act 2006 s 167 (duty to notify registrar of changes in particulars contained in register) (see PARA 514): Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 8, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2008, SI 2008/2860, Sch 2 para 27(4). As to the meaning of 'existing company' for these purposes see PARA 18 note 2. As to the company's register of directors and secretaries see note 2.

The registrar of companies may make such entries in the register of companies as appear to be appropriate having regard to Sch 2 para 27 and the information appearing on the register immediately before 1 October 2009 or notified to the registrar in accordance with Sch 2 para 31(2) (effect of repealed provisions): Sch 2 para 32(1). In particular, the registrar may record as a service address a relevant existing address (within the meaning of Sch 2 para 27) or, in the case of a company formed and registered on an application to which Sch 2 para 2(3) applies (see PARA 24 note 4), an address notified to the registrar in connection with that application as a director's usual residential address: Sch 2 para 32(2). Any notification of a change of a relevant existing address occurring before 1 October 2009 that is received by the registrar on or after that date is treated as being or, as the case may be, including notification of a change of service address: Sch 2 para 32(4). (B) REGISTER OF DIRECTORS' RESIDENTIAL ADDRESSES

500. The register of directors' residential addresses.

Every company¹ must keep a register of directors' residential addresses².

The register must state the usual residential address of each of the company's directors³.

If default is made in complying with this requirement to keep such a register⁴, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default⁵. A person guilty of such an offence is liable (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale⁶ and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine⁷ not exceeding one-tenth of level 5 on the standard scale⁸.

2 Companies Act 2006 s 165(1). The provisions of s 165 apply only to directors who are individuals, not where the director is a body corporate or a firm that is a legal person under the law by which it is governed: s 165(6). As to the meaning of 'director' under the Companies Acts see PARA 478. As to the meaning of 'body corporate' see PARA 1 note 5. As to the meaning of 'firm' see PARA 112 note 14. As to the requirement for a company to keep a register of directors see PARA 499.

The Secretary of State may make provision by regulations amending the Companies Act 2006 s 165, so as to add to or remove items from the particulars required to be contained in a company's register of directors' residential addresses: s 166(1). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6. As to the making of regulations under the Companies Act 2006 generally see ss 1288-1292. Regulations under s 166 are subject to affirmative resolution procedure (ie the regulations must not be made unless a draft of the statutory instrument containing them has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament): see ss 166(2), 1290. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made under s 166.

The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 ss 165-166 apply to unregistered companies by virtue of the Unregistered Companies Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2436, reg 3, Sch 1 para 6: see PARA 1666. As to the meaning of 'unregistered company' see PARA 1665.

3 Companies Act 2006 s 165(2). If a director's usual residential address is the same as his service address (as stated in the company's register of directors), the register of directors' residential addresses need only contain an entry to that effect: s 165(3). However, this does not apply if his service address is stated to be 'The company's registered office': s 165(3). See note 2. As to addresses on the register that are not to be made available by the registrar for public inspection see s 1088; and PARA 151 et seq. 501. Protection from disclosure: meaning of 'protected information'.

Provision is made¹ for protecting, in the case of a company director² who is an individual³, information as to his usual residential address⁴, and the information that his service address⁵ is his usual residential address⁶. That information is referred to for these purposes⁷ as 'protected information'⁸. Information does not cease to be protected information on the individual ceasing to be a director of the company⁹.

1 In the Companies Act 2006 Pt 10 Ch 8 (ss 240-246) (see also PARA 501 et seq): see s 240(1). Where regulations under s 1046 require an overseas company to register particulars of an individual's usual residential address, they must contain provision corresponding to that made by Pt 10 Ch 8: see s 1055; and PARA 1826. As to the meaning of 'overseas company' see PARA 1824.

The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 s 240 apply to unregistered companies by virtue of the Unregistered Companies Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2436, reg 3, Sch 1 para 7: see PARA 1666. As to the meaning of 'unregistered company' see PARA 1665.

Restrictions on use or disclosure of protected information.

502. Restrictions on use or disclosure of protected information.

A company¹ must not use or disclose protected information² about any of its directors³, except: (1) for communicating with the director concerned⁴; (2) in order to comply with any requirement of the Companies Acts as to particulars to be sent to the registrar of companies⁵; or (3) in accordance with the provisions governing the disclosure of such information under court order⁶.

The registrar must omit protected information from the material on the register⁷ that is available for inspection⁸ both where it is contained in a document delivered to him in which such information is required to be stated⁹ and, in the case of a document having more than one part, where it is contained in a part of the document in which such information is required to be stated¹⁰. However, the registrar is not obliged to check other documents or (as the case may be) other parts of the document to ensure the absence of protected information¹¹, or to omit from the material that is available for public inspection anything registered before the protected information provisions¹² came into force¹³.

The registrar himself must not use or disclose protected information except as permitted¹⁴ or in accordance with the provisions governing the disclosure of such information under court order¹⁵.

Permitted use or disclosure of protected information by the registrar.

503. Permitted use or disclosure of protected information by the registrar.

The registrar of companies¹ may use protected information² for communicating with the director³ in question⁴.

The registrar may disclose protected information to a public authority⁵ specified for these purposes⁶ by regulations made by the Secretary of State⁷, or to a credit reference agency⁸.

The Secretary of State may make provision by regulations: (1) specifying conditions for the disclosure of protected information⁹, and providing for the charging of fees¹⁰; or (2) requiring the registrar, on application, to refrain from disclosing protected information relating to a director to a credit reference agency¹¹.

1 As to the meaning of 'registrar of companies' see PARA 131 note 2.

2 As to the meaning of 'protected information' for these purposes see PARA 501.

3 As to the meaning of 'director' under the Companies Acts see PARA 478; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 243(1). The registrar must not use or disclose protected information except as permitted by s 243 or in accordance with s 244 (see PARA 512); see s 242(3); and PARA 502. As to the circumstances in which the registrar of companies may put a director's usual residential address on the public record see PARA 513. Where regulations under s 1046 require an overseas company to register particulars of an individual's usual residential address, they must contain provision corresponding to that made by Pt 10 Ch 8 (ss 240-246): see s 1055; and PARA 1826. As to the meaning of 'overseas company' see PARA 1824.

The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 s 243 apply to unregistered companies by virtue of the Unregistered Companies Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2436, reg 3, Sch 1 para 7, but with the Companies Act 2006 s 243 as modified thereby: see PARA 1666. As to the meaning of 'unregistered company' see PARA 1665.

5 For these purposes, 'public authority' includes any person or body having functions of a public nature: see the Companies Act 2006 s 243(7).

6 As specified for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 s 243: see s 243(2)(a). The public authorities specified for the purposes of s 243(2) are set out in the Companies (Disclosure of Address) Regulations 2009, SI 2009/214, reg 2(5), Sch 1: see note 7; and PARA 504.

7 Companies Act 2006 s 243(2)(a). See notes 4, 6. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6. As to the making of regulations under the Companies Act 2006 generally see ss 1288-1292. Regulations under s 243 are subject to negative resolution procedure (ie the statutory instrument containing the regulations is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament): see ss 243(8), 1289. In exercise of the power conferred by s 243(2)-(6) (see also the text and notes 8-11), the Secretary of State has made the Companies (Disclosure of Address) Regulations 2009, SI 2009/214: see PARA 504 et seq.

8 Companies Act 2006 s 243(2)(b). For these purposes, 'credit reference agency' means a person carrying on a business comprising the furnishing of information relevant to the financial standing of individuals, being information collected by the agency for that purpose: see s 243(7). See notes 4, 7.

9 As in accordance with the Companies Act 2006 s 243: see s 243(3). See notes 4, 7.

10 Companies Act 2006 s 243(3). See notes 4, 7. In exercise of the powers conferred by s 243(3), the Secretary of State has made the Registrar of Companies (Fees) (Companies, Overseas Companies and Limited Liability Partnerships) Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2101. Accordingly, in respect of the performance of the registrar's functions in relation to the inspection of the register and the provision of copies of material on the register, where that material is protected information to which the Companies Act 2006 s 242(1) applies (see PARA 502), the fees so payable are those specified in the Registrar of Companies (Fees) (Companies, Overseas Companies and Limited Liability Partnerships) Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2101, reg 5, Sch 3.

11 Companies Act 2006 s 243(4). Regulations under s 243(4) may make provision as to:

- 183 (1) who may make an application (s 243(5)(a));
- 184 (2) the grounds on which an application may be made (s 243(5)(b));
- 185 (3) the information to be included in and documents to accompany an application (s 243(5)(c)); and
- 186 (4) how an application is to be determined (s 243(5)(d)).

Provision under head (4) above may in particular confer a discretion on the registrar or provide for a question to be referred to a person other than the registrar for the purposes of determining the application: s 243(6). See notes 4, 7.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(ii) Appointment and Removal of Directors/D. REGISTERS TO BE KEPT/(B) Register of Directors' Residential Addresses/504. Permitted disclosure by registrar to specified public authorities.

504. Permitted disclosure by registrar to specified public authorities.

The registrar of companies¹ may disclose protected information² to a specified public authority³ where the following conditions⁴ are satisfied⁵:

- 879 (1) the specified public authority has delivered to the registrar a statement that it intends to use the protected information only for the purpose of facilitating the carrying out by that specified public authority of a public function⁶ (the 'permitted purpose')⁷;
- 880 (2) the specified public authority ('the authority') has delivered to the registrar a statement that it will, where it supplies a copy of the protected information to a processor⁸ for the purpose of processing the information for use in respect of the permitted purpose⁹: (a) ensure that the processor is one who carries on business in the European Economic Area¹⁰; (b) require that the information is not transmitted outside the European Economic Area by the processor¹¹; and (c) require that the processor does not disclose the information except to the authority or an employee of the authority¹².

A specified public authority must deliver to the registrar such information or evidence as he may direct for the purpose of enabling him to determine¹³ whether to disclose protected information¹⁴; and the registrar may require such information or evidence to be verified in such manner as he may direct¹⁵.

The specified public authority must inform the registrar immediately of any change in respect of any statement so delivered to the registrar¹⁶ or information or evidence provided for the purpose of enabling the registrar to determine whether to disclose protected information¹⁷.

1 As to the registrar of companies see PARA 131 et seq.

2 As to the meaning of 'protected information' for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 10 Ch 8 (ss 240-246) (see PARAS 501 et seq, 512 et seq), under which the Companies (Disclosure of Address) Regulations 2009, SI 2009/214, have been made, see PARA 501.

3 For these purposes, 'specified public authority' means any public authority specified in the Companies (Disclosure of Address) Regulations 2009, SI 2009/214, reg 2(5), Sch 1, which sets out the public authorities that are specified for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 s 243(2) (see PARA 503): see regs 1(2), 2(5).

4 Ie the conditions specified in the Companies (Disclosure of Address) Regulations 2009, SI 2009/214, reg 2(1), Sch 2 paras 2, 3 (see heads (1), (2) in the text): see reg 2(1). The provisions of Sch 2 paras 2, 3 set out the conditions specified for the disclosure of protected information by the registrar to a specified public authority: Sch 2 para 1.

5 Companies (Disclosure of Address) Regulations 2009, SI 2009/214, reg 2(1).

6 For these purposes, 'public function' includes any function conferred by or in accordance with any provision contained in any enactment, any function conferred by or in accordance with any provision contained in the Community Treaties or any Community instrument, any similar function conferred on persons by or under provisions having effect as part of the law of a country or territory outside the United Kingdom, and any function exercisable in relation to the investigation of any criminal offence or for the purpose of any criminal proceedings: see the Companies (Disclosure of Address) Regulations 2009, SI 2009/214, Sch 2 para 11(1). In Sch 2, any reference to the disclosure for the purpose of facilitating the carrying out of a public function includes disclosure in relation to, and for the purpose of, any proceedings whether civil, criminal or disciplinary in which the specified public authority engages while carrying out its public functions: see Sch 2 para 11(2)(b).

7 Companies (Disclosure of Address) Regulations 2009, SI 2009/214, Sch 2 para 2. As to the delivery of documents to the registrar see PARA 141; and as to the requirements generally for the proper delivery of documents to the registrar see PARA 142.

8 For these purposes, 'processor' means any person who provides a service which consists of putting information into data form or processing information in data form and any reference to a processor includes a reference to his employees: see the Companies (Disclosure of Address) Regulations 2009, SI 2009/214, Sch 2 para 11(1). In Sch 2, any reference to an employee of any person who has access to protected information is deemed to include any person working or providing services for the purposes of that person or employed by or on behalf of, or working for, any person who is so working or who is supplying such a service: see Sch 2 para 11(2)(a).

9 Companies (Disclosure of Address) Regulations 2009, SI 2009/214, Sch 2 para 3. The provisions of Sch 2 para 3 are subject to the provisions of Sch 2 para 4: see Sch 2 para 3. Accordingly, Sch 2 para 3 does not apply where the specified public authority is the Secret Intelligence Service, Security Service or Government Communications Headquarters: Sch 2 para 4. As to the Government Communications Headquarters see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 473; as to the Secret Intelligence Service see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 472; and as to the Security Service see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 471.

10 Companies (Disclosure of Address) Regulations 2009, SI 2009/214, Sch 2 para 3(a). See note 9.

11 Companies (Disclosure of Address) Regulations 2009, SI 2009/214, Sch 2 para 3(b). See note 9.

12 Companies (Disclosure of Address) Regulations 2009, SI 2009/214, Sch 2 para 3(c). See note 9.

13 Ie in accordance with the Companies (Disclosure of Address) Regulations 2009, SI 2009/214: see reg 2(2).

14 Companies (Disclosure of Address) Regulations 2009, SI 2009/214, reg 2(2).

15 Companies (Disclosure of Address) Regulations 2009, SI 2009/214, reg 2(3).

16 Ie delivered pursuant to the Companies (Disclosure of Address) Regulations 2009, SI 2009/214, Sch 2 (see the text and notes 4-12): see reg 2(4).

TO BE KEPT/(B) Register of Directors' Residential Addresses/505. Permitted disclosure by registrar to credit reference agencies.

505. Permitted disclosure by registrar to credit reference agencies.

The registrar of companies¹ must refrain from disclosing protected information² to a credit reference agency³ if such information relates to a section 243 beneficiary⁴ or a section 243 applicant⁵.

However, subject to this restriction, the registrar may disclose protected information to a credit reference agency where the following conditions⁶ are satisfied⁷:

- 881 (1) the credit reference agency:
- 33
57. (a) is carrying on in the United Kingdom⁸ or in another EEA State a business comprising the furnishing of information relevant to the financial standing of individuals, being information collected by the agency for that purpose⁹;
58. (b) maintains appropriate procedures: (i) to ensure that an independent person can investigate and audit the measures maintained by the agency for the purposes of ensuring the security of any protected information disclosed to that agency¹⁰; and (ii) for the purposes of ensuring that it complies with its obligations under the Data Protection Act 1998¹¹ or, where the agency carries on business in a EEA State other than the United Kingdom, with its obligations under legislation implementing European Parliament and EC Council Directive 95/46¹² of 24 October 1995¹³;
59. (c) has not been found guilty of an offence under the Companies Act 2006 provisions which prohibit the making of false statements to the registrar¹⁴ or under the false representation provisions of the Fraud Act 2006¹⁵ or under the provisions of the Data Protection Act 1998 which govern a failure to comply with an enforcement notice, an information notice or a special information notice¹⁶ in circumstances where it has used the protected information for purposes other than those described in heads (2)(a) to (2)(e) below¹⁷;
- 34
- 882 (2) the credit reference agency has delivered to the registrar a statement that it intends to use the protected information only for the purposes of¹⁸:
- 35
60. (a) providing an assessment of the financial standing of a person¹⁹;
61. (b) meeting any obligations contained in money laundering rules²⁰ or in any legislation of another EEA State implementing European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2005/60²¹ of 26 October 2005²²;
62. (c) conducting conflict of interest checks required or made necessary by any enactment²³;
63. (d) the provision of protected information to either a specified public authority²⁴ or to a credit reference agency²⁵ which has satisfied the relevant requirements²⁶ necessary before the registrar can disclose protected information to it²⁷; or
64. (e) conducting checks for the prevention and detection of crime and fraud²⁸;
- 36
- 883 (3) the credit reference agency has delivered to the registrar a statement that it intends to take delivery of and to use the protected information only in the United Kingdom or in another EEA State²⁹;
- 884 (4) the credit reference agency has delivered to the registrar a statement that it will, where it supplies a copy of the protected information to a processor³⁰ for the

- purpose of processing the information for use in respect of the purposes referred to in head (2) above³¹;
- 37
- 65. (a) ensure that the processor is one who carries on business in the European Economic Area³²;
 - 66. (b) require that the information is not transmitted outside the European Economic Area by the processor³³; and
 - 67. (c) require that the processor does not disclose the information except to the credit reference agency or an employee of the credit reference agency³⁴; and
- 38
- 885 (5) the credit reference agency has delivered to the registrar a statement that it meets the conditions set out in head (1) above³⁵.

A credit reference agency must³⁶ deliver to the registrar such information or evidence, in addition to the statement required by head (5) above, as he may direct for the purpose of enabling him to determine³⁷ whether to disclose protected information³⁸; and the registrar may require such information or evidence to be verified in such manner as he may direct³⁹.

The credit reference agency must inform the registrar immediately of any change in respect of any statement so delivered to the registrar⁴⁰ or information or evidence provided for the purpose of enabling the registrar to determine whether to disclose protected information⁴¹.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(ii) Appointment and Removal of Directors/D. REGISTERS TO BE KEPT/(B) Register of Directors' Residential Addresses/506. Application by individual to withhold protected information relating to a director.

506. Application by individual to withhold protected information relating to a director.

A section 243 application¹ may be made to the registrar of companies² by an individual who is, or proposes to become, a director³. The grounds on which such an application may be made are that the individual making the application⁴:

- 886 (1) considers that there is a serious risk that he, or a person who lives with him, will be subjected to violence or intimidation as a result of the activities of at least one of⁵: (a) the companies of which he is, or proposes to become, a director⁶; (b) the companies of which he was a director⁷; (c) the overseas companies⁸ of which he is or has been a director, secretary or permanent representative⁹; or (d) the limited liability partnerships¹⁰ of which he is or has been a member¹¹; or
- 887 (2) is or has been employed by a relevant organisation¹².

The application must contain:

- 888 (i) a statement of the grounds on which the application is made¹³;
- 889 (ii) the name and any former name of the applicant¹⁴;
- 890 (iii) the date of birth of the applicant¹⁵;
- 891 (iv) the usual residential address of the applicant¹⁶;
- 892 (v) where the registrar has allocated a unique identifier to the applicant, that unique identifier¹⁷;
- 893 (vi) the name and registered number of each company of which the applicant is, or proposes to become, a director¹⁸;
- 894 (vii) where the grounds of the application are those described in head (1)(b), head (1)(c) or head (1)(d) above, the name and registered number of the company, overseas company or limited liability partnership¹⁹.

The application must be accompanied by evidence which, where the grounds of the application are those described in head (1) above, supports the applicant's statement of the grounds of the application²⁰ or, where the grounds of the application are those described in head (2) above, establishes that the applicant is or has been employed by a relevant organisation²¹. The registrar may direct that additional information or evidence should be delivered to him, what such information or evidence should be and how it should be verified²².

The registrar may refer to a relevant body any question relating to an assessment of, where the grounds of the application are those described in head (1) above, the nature and extent of any risk of violence or intimidation considered by the applicant to arise in relation to himself, or to a person who lives with him²³ or, where the grounds of the application are those described in head (2) above, whether the applicant is or has been employed by a relevant organisation²⁴.

The registrar must determine the application²⁵ and send the applicant to his usual residential address, as stated in his application, notice of his determination on the section 243 application within five working days of that determination being made²⁶.

The registrar must not make available for public inspection any section 243 application²⁷ or any documents provided in support of that application²⁸.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(ii) Appointment and Removal of Directors/D. REGISTERS TO BE KEPT/(B) Register of Directors' Residential Addresses/507. Application by company to withhold protected information relating to its directors.

507. Application by company to withhold protected information relating to its directors.

A section 243 application¹ may be made to the registrar of companies² by a company on behalf of any of its directors who are individuals³. The grounds on which such an application may be made are that the company making the application considers that there is a serious risk that the director on behalf of whom the application is made, or a person who lives with that director, will be subjected to violence or intimidation as a result of the activities of the company making the application⁴.

The application must contain:

- 895 (1) a statement of the grounds on which the application is made⁵;
- 896 (2) the name and registered number of the applicant⁶;
- 897 (3) the name and any former name⁷ of each director on behalf of whom the application is made⁸;
- 898 (4) the date of birth of each such director⁹;
- 899 (5) the usual residential address of each such director¹⁰;
- 900 (6) where the registrar has allocated a unique identifier to any such director, that unique identifier¹¹;
- 901 (7) the name and registered number of each company of which each such director is a director¹².

The application must be accompanied by evidence which supports the applicant's statement of the grounds of the application¹³. The registrar may direct that additional information or evidence should be delivered to him, what such information or evidence should be and how it should be verified¹⁴.

The registrar may refer to a relevant body any question relating to an assessment of the nature and extent of any risk of violence or intimidation considered by the applicant to arise in relation to its directors on behalf of whom the application is made or to persons who live with those directors as a result of any of its activities¹⁵.

The registrar must determine the application¹⁶ and send the applicant (to its registered office)¹⁷ and each director on behalf of whom the application was made (to his usual residential address as stated in the application)¹⁸, notice of his determination on the section 243 application within five working days of that determination being made¹⁹.

The registrar must not make available for public inspection any section 243 application²⁰ or any documents provided in support of that application²¹.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(ii) Appointment and Removal of Directors/D. REGISTERS TO BE KEPT/(B) Register of Directors' Residential Addresses/508. Application on behalf of proposed directors to withhold protected information.

508. Application on behalf of proposed directors to withhold protected information.

A section 243 application¹ may be made to the registrar of companies² by a subscriber to a memorandum of association³ on behalf of any of the proposed directors⁴ of a proposed company who are individuals⁵. The grounds on which such an application may be made are that the subscriber making the application considers that there is a serious risk that the proposed directors of the proposed company on behalf of whom the application is made, or persons who live with them, will be subjected to violence or intimidation as a result of the proposed activities of that proposed company⁶.

The application must contain:

- 902 (1) a statement of the grounds on which the application is made⁷;
- 903 (2) the name of the applicant⁸;
- 904 (3) the address of the applicant⁹;
- 905 (4) the name of the proposed company¹⁰;
- 906 (5) the name and any former name¹¹ of each of the proposed directors on behalf of whom the application is made¹²;
- 907 (6) the date of birth of each such proposed director¹³;
- 908 (7) the usual residential address of each such proposed director¹⁴;
- 909 (8) the name and registered number of each company of which each such proposed director is a director¹⁵.

The application must be accompanied by evidence which supports the applicant's statement of the grounds of the application¹⁶. The registrar may direct that additional information or evidence should be delivered to him, what such information or evidence should be and how it should be verified¹⁷.

The registrar may refer to a relevant body any question relating to an assessment of the nature and extent of any risk of violence or intimidation considered by the applicant to arise in relation to its proposed directors on behalf of whom the application is made or to persons who live with those proposed directors as a result of any of the proposed activities of the proposed company¹⁸.

The registrar must determine the application¹⁹ and send the applicant (to the address stated in the application)²⁰ and each of the proposed directors on behalf of whom the application was made (to their usual residential address as stated in the application)²¹, notice of his determination on the section 243 application within five working days of that determination being made²².

The registrar must not make available for public inspection any section 243 application²³ or any documents provided in support of that application²⁴.

A section 243 decision¹ continues to have effect until²: (1) either the section 243 beneficiary³, or his personal representative⁴, has notified the registrar of companies⁵ in writing that he wishes the section 243 decision to cease to apply⁶; or (2) the registrar has made a revocation decision⁷ in relation to that beneficiary⁸, whichever first occurs⁹.

510. Revocation of decision to withhold protected information.

The registrar of companies¹ may revoke a section 243 decision² at any time if he is satisfied that the section 243 beneficiary³ or any other person, in purported compliance with any provision of the Disclosure of Address Regulations⁴, is found guilty of an offence of making false statements to the registrar⁵ (a 'revocation decision')⁶.

If the registrar proposes to make a revocation decision, he must send the beneficiary notice of his intention⁷. The notice must: (1) inform the beneficiary that he may, within the period of 28 days beginning with the date of the notice, deliver representations in writing to the registrar⁸; and (2) state that, if representations are not received by the registrar within that period, the revocation decision will be made at the expiry of that period⁹. If, within the period so specified¹⁰, the beneficiary delivers representations as to why the revocation decision should not be made, the registrar must have regard to the representations in determining whether to make the revocation decision, and must, within five working days of making his decision, send notice of it to the beneficiary¹¹.

Any communication by the registrar in respect of a revocation decision or proposed revocation decision must be sent to the beneficiary¹²: (a) in the case of an individual, to his usual residential address¹³; (b) in the case of a company, to its registered office¹⁴; or (c) in the case of a partnership¹⁵, to the address specified in its section 243 application¹⁶.

511. Appeal of unsuccessful application to withhold protected information.

An applicant who has received notice¹ that his section 243 application² has been unsuccessful may appeal to the High Court on the grounds that the decision is unlawful³, is irrational or unreasonable⁴, or has been made on the basis of a procedural impropriety or otherwise contravenes the rules of natural justice⁵. However, no such appeal may be brought unless the permission of the court has been obtained⁶.

An applicant must bring an appeal within 21 days of the date of the notice or, with the court's permission, after the end of such period, but only if the court is satisfied (where permission is sought before the end of that period) that there is good reason for the applicant being unable to bring the appeal in time⁷ or (where permission is sought after that time) that there was a good reason for the applicant's failure to bring the appeal in time and for any delay in applying for permission⁸.

The court determining an appeal may either dismiss the appeal⁹ or quash the decision¹⁰. Where the court quashes a decision, it may refer the matter to the registrar of companies¹¹ with a direction to reconsider it and make a determination in accordance with the findings of the court¹².

Disclosure under court order.

512. Disclosure under court order.

The court¹ may make an order for the disclosure of protected information² by the company³ or by the registrar of companies⁴, if:

910 (1) there is evidence that service of documents at a service address other than the director's usual residential address⁵ is not effective to bring them to the notice of the director⁶; or

911 (2) it is necessary or expedient for the information to be provided in connection with the enforcement of an order or decree of the court⁷, and the court is otherwise satisfied that it is appropriate to make the order⁸.

An order for disclosure by the registrar is to be made only if the company does not have the director's usual residential address, or has been dissolved⁹.

The order may be made on the application of a liquidator¹⁰, creditor or member of the company¹¹, or any other person appearing to the court to have a sufficient interest¹².

The order must specify the persons to whom, and purposes for which, disclosure is authorised¹³.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(ii) Appointment and Removal of Directors/D. REGISTERS TO BE KEPT/(B) Register of Directors' Residential Addresses/513. Circumstances in which registrar may put address on the public record.

513. Circumstances in which registrar may put address on the public record.

The registrar of companies¹ may put a director's² usual residential address on the public record³, if:

- 912 (1) communications sent by the registrar to the director and requiring a response within a specified period remain unanswered⁴; or
- 913 (2) there is evidence that service of documents at a service address provided in place of the director's usual residential address is not effective to bring them to the notice of the director⁵.

The registrar must give notice of the proposal to the director⁶, and to every company⁷ of which the registrar has been notified that the individual is a director⁸. The notice must state the grounds on which it is proposed to put the director's usual residential address on the public record⁹, and specify a period within which representations may be made before that is done¹⁰. It must be sent to the director at his usual residential address, unless it appears to the registrar that service at that address may be ineffective to bring it to the individual's notice, in which case it may be sent to any service address provided in place of that address¹¹.

The registrar must take account of any representations received within the specified period¹².

The registrar, on so deciding¹³ that a director's usual residential address is to be put on the public record, must proceed as if notice of a change of registered particulars had been given¹⁴, stating that address as the director's service address¹⁵, and stating that the director's usual residential address is the same as his service address¹⁶. The registrar must give notice of having done so to the director¹⁷, and to the company¹⁸.

On receipt of the notice, the company must enter the director's usual residential address in its register of directors¹⁹ as his service address²⁰, and state in its register of directors' residential addresses²¹ that his usual residential address is the same as his service address²². If the company has been notified by the director in question of a more recent address as his usual residential address, it must enter that address in its register of directors as the director's service address²³, and give notice to the registrar as on a change of registered particulars²⁴.

If a company fails to comply with the requirement to make such entries in the register or to give such notice²⁵, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default²⁶. A person guilty of such an offence is liable (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale²⁷ and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine²⁸ not exceeding one-tenth of level 5 on the standard scale²⁹.

A director whose usual residential address has been put on the public record by the registrar in this way³⁰ may not register a service address other than his usual residential address for a period of five years from the date of the registrar's decision³¹.

3 Companies Act 2006 s 245(1). What is meant by putting the address on the public record is explained in s 246 (see the text and notes 13-31): s 245(6). A director's usual residential address is included in the definition of 'protected information' which the registrar must not otherwise use or disclose except as permitted by s 243 (see PARA 503) or in accordance with s 244 (see PARA 512): see s 242(3); and PARA 502. Where regulations under s 1046 require an overseas company to register particulars of an individual's usual residential address, they must contain provision corresponding to that made by Pt 10 Ch 8 (ss 240-246): see s 1055; and PARA 1826. Company's duty to notify registrar of changes relating to directors or particulars.

(C) CHANGES TO REGISTERS

514. Company's duty to notify registrar of changes relating to directors or particulars.

A company¹ must, within the period of 14 days from²: (1) a person becoming or ceasing to be a director³; or (2) the occurrence of any change in the particulars contained in its register of directors⁴ or its register of directors' residential addresses⁵, give notice to the registrar of companies⁶ of the change and of the date on which it occurred⁷.

Notice of a person having become a director of the company must contain a statement of the particulars of the new director that are required to be included in the company's register of directors and its register of directors' residential addresses⁸, and must be accompanied by a consent, by that person, to act in that capacity⁹.

Where a company gives notice of a change of a director's service address¹⁰ as stated in the company's register of directors¹¹, and where the notice is not accompanied by notice of any resulting change in the particulars contained in the company's register of directors' residential addresses¹², the notice must be accompanied by a statement that no such change is required¹³.

If default is made in complying with these requirements¹⁴, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default¹⁵. A person guilty of such an offence is liable (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale¹⁶ and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine¹⁷ not exceeding one-tenth of level 5 on the standard scale¹⁸.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(ii) Appointment and Removal of Directors/E. RETIREMENT AND REMOVAL OF DIRECTORS/515. Provision in articles as to termination of a director's appointment etc.

E. RETIREMENT AND REMOVAL OF DIRECTORS

515. Provision in articles as to termination of a director's appointment etc.

A company's articles of association¹ usually contain full provisions as to the termination of a director's appointment². Provision is usually made for vacation of office by a director in all or some of the following cases³, that is to say if he:

- 914 (1) fails to acquire or ceases to hold his qualification shares⁴; or
- 915 (2) becomes bankrupt⁵ or insolvent⁶; or
- 916 (3) becomes of unsound mind⁷; or
- 917 (4) is concerned or participates in the profits of any contract with the company⁸;
or
- 918 (5) continually absents himself for more than the prescribed period from the meetings of the board without leave⁹; or
- 919 (6) is convicted of an indictable offence¹⁰; or
- 920 (7) resigns his office¹¹; or
- 921 (8) reaches an age limit¹².

The articles may also provide for vacation of office by any director who holds any other office of profit under the company except that of managing director or manager¹³.

The wording of the articles is usually such that the office is automatically vacated by any of the acts specified, and the board of directors cannot waive the vacation¹⁴; but each case depends upon the true construction of the articles.

If the articles provide for the director to vacate office if he is so requested by all his co-directors, although the power of removal is fiduciary, the office will be vacated immediately if the director receives a notice in writing signed by all the other directors, even if one or more of them had acted for ulterior reasons¹⁵.

If, as the result of the operation of any such articles, there are no directors of the company acting as such, no valid decisions may be taken which are required by the articles to be taken by the directors¹⁶, but where a person continues to act as a director, though he has vacated office under the articles, the statutory presumption as to validity applies, notwithstanding that he has ceased to hold office¹⁷.

Provision may be made in the articles for the retirement of directors by rotation¹⁸.

Where the statutes of a company provide for the removal of directors for reasonable cause, the criterion of reasonableness is that which is reasonable in the eyes of a meeting of the company¹⁹.

1 As to a company's articles of association see PARA 228 et seq. As to model articles of association prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, and their application generally, see PARA 228 et seq. Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'limited company', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230.

2 The Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 Pt 2 (art 18), Sch 2 Pt 2 (art 18), Sch 3 Pt 2 (art 22) provide that a person ceases to be a director as soon as: (1) that person ceases to be a director by virtue of any provision of the Companies Act 2006 or is prohibited from being a director by law (eg under the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986 (see PARA 1578 et seq)); (2) a bankruptcy order is made against that person; (3) a composition is made with that person's creditors generally in satisfaction of that person's debts; (4) a registered medical practitioner who is treating that person gives a written opinion to the company stating that that person has become physically or mentally incapable of acting as a director and may remain so for more than three months; (5) by reason of that person's mental health, a court makes an order which wholly or partly prevents that person from personally exercising any powers or rights which that person would otherwise have; (6) notification is received by the company from the director that the director is resigning from office, and such resignation has taken effect in accordance with its terms. As to bankruptcy orders generally see BANKRUPTCY AND INDIVIDUAL INSOLVENCY vol 3(2) (2002 Reissue) PARA 195 et seq. As to compositions generally see BANKRUPTCY AND INDIVIDUAL INSOLVENCY vol 3(2) (2002 Reissue) PARA 81 et seq. As to a company's directors generally see PARA 478 et seq.

The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 81 makes very similar provision but with the inclusion of an additional ground, namely where the director is absent for more than six consecutive months without permission of the directors from meetings of directors held during that period and the directors resolve that his office be vacated (see also head (5) in the text). The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but art 81 is applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital), and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital). As to the meaning of 'unlimited company' see PARA 102. As to the meanings of 'company having a share capital' and 'share capital' see PARA 1042.

3 These examples may expand upon or supplement the provision made by the model articles cited in note 2.

4 See PARA 495. Where the article declared the office of director vacated 'if he cease to hold the due qualification', it was held that the article did not apply to a case in which the qualification had never been held (Salton v New Beeston Cycle Co [1899] 1 Ch 775; Dent's Case, Forbes's Case (1873) 8 Ch App 768 at 775 per Lord Selborne LC); but it was otherwise if the words were 'if he does not acquire etc'. Where the amount of qualification is increased, an existing director does not thereby cease to hold the requisite qualification, but must obtain the larger qualification within a reasonable time: Molineaux v London, Birmingham and Manchester Insurance Co Ltd [1902] 2 KB 589, CA.

5 Being already a bankrupt is not becoming bankrupt: Dawson v African Consolidated Land and Trading Co [1898] 1 Ch 6, CA. See also note 2. As to undischarged bankrupts, persons subject to bankruptcy restrictions orders and persons subject to bankruptcy restrictions undertakings acting as directors see PARA 493.

6 A director is 'insolvent' where his creditors pass a resolution accepting a composition of their claims (Harold Sissons & Co Ltd v Sissons (1910) 54 Sol Jo 802), or where he makes offers of a composition to them (James v Rockwood Colliery Co (1912) 106 LT 128), or where there are a number of bankruptcy petitions which are withdrawn in order to give the director time to pay (London and Counties Assets Co Ltd v Brighton Grand Concert Hall and Picture Palace Ltd [1915] 2 KB 493, CA). See also note 2.

7 See also note 2.

8 See also PARAS 558, 529.

9 As to the meaning of 'absents himself' see McConnell's Claim [1901] 1 Ch 728; Re London and Northern Bank, Mack's Claim [1900] WN 114 (both these cases showing that the absence must be voluntary and not accidental). See also Willsmore v Willsmore and Tibbenham Ltd (1965) 109 Sol Jo 699 (injunction granted on balance of convenience to restrain directors from treating plaintiff as having vacated office, it being alleged that the absences of the plaintiff, who owned half the shares, were in part involuntary and in part with the informal consent of the other directors). The absence dates from the first meeting which the director fails to attend: McConnell's Claim; Re London and Northern Bank, Mack's Claim. See also note 2.

10 'Indictable offence' in such an article means an offence which is capable of being dealt with on indictment: Hastings and Folkestone Glassworks Ltd v Kalson [1949] 1 KB 214, [1948] 2 All ER 1013, CA.

11 As to resignation see PARA 516 et seq.

12 This requirement used to be obligatory, in relation to public companies, under the Companies Act 1985 s 293 (repealed). However, a company which imposes age limits in its articles of association must give effect, where relevant, to the requirements of the Employment Equality (Age) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/1031: see DISCRIMINATION vol 13 (2007 Reissue) PARA 754 et seq.

13 This provision is not included in any of the model articles (as to which see notes 1, 2). The holding of the office of unpaid secretary is not holding another office of profit (Iron Ship Coating Co v Blunt (1868) LR 3 CP 484); but the paid trusteeship of a debenture trust deed is a place of profit, although it is not, strictly speaking, held under the company (Astley v New Tivoli Ltd [1899] 1 Ch 151). A solicitor does not hold an office of profit (Re Harper's Ticket Issuing and Recording Machine Ltd [1912] WN 263), unless he has a fixed salary and certain obligations (Re Liberator Permanent Benefit Building Society (1894) 71 LT 406, DC). 17 See the Companies Act 2006 s 161; and PARA 486.

18 See the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 3 Pt 2 (art 21) (applying to public companies only: see note 1), which provides that, at the first annual general meeting all the directors must retire from office (see Sch 3 art 21(1)); and that, at every subsequent annual general meeting, any directors who have been appointed by the directors since the last annual general meeting, or who were not appointed or reappointed at one of the preceding two annual general meetings, must retire from office and may offer themselves for reappointment by the members (see Sch 3 art 21(2)). As to the requirement to hold an annual general meeting see PARA 630. As to membership of a company generally see PARA 321 et seq.

Similar, but more prescriptive, provision for retirement is made by the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A arts 73-75, 80 (arts 73-75, 80 revoked in relation to a private company limited by shares by SI 2007/2541, affecting companies registered after 1 October 2007). The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but arts 73-75, 80 are applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital), and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital). The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 73 does not apply to an extraordinary meeting (Lord Claud Hamilton's Case (1873) 8 Ch App 548), or to signatories of the memorandum (John Morley Building Co v Barras [1891] 2 Ch 386), or to de facto directors (John Morley Building Co v Barras). Under a special Act, it was held that directors had no power to retire until the first ordinary meeting: see Re South London Fish Market Co (1888) 39 ChD 324, CA. As to the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 74 see Eyre v Milton Pty Ltd [1936] Ch 244, CA (use of 'by lot' or 'by ballot'). The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 75 (if the company, at the meeting at which a director retires by rotation, does not fill the vacancy) was designed in part to avoid the position arising in Grundt v Great Boulder Pty Gold Mines Ltd [1948] Ch 145, [1948] 1 All ER 21 (approving Holt v Catterall (1931) 47 TLR 332, and disapproving Robert Batcheller & Sons Ltd v Batcheller [1945] Ch 169, [1945] 1 All ER 522), where provisions for automatic re-election were held to apply even though the director had in fact been refused such re-election. See also Re Great Northern Salt and Chemical Works, ex p Kennedy (1890) 44 ChD 472. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 75 does not apply if at an adjourned meeting the place is filled: Spencer v Kennedy [1926] Ch 125. 516. Resignation.

Where, by the articles of association¹, a director² has power to resign at any time³, his resignation takes effect independently of acceptance by the other directors or the company⁴. Where the articles of association of a company provide that the office of a director is to be vacated ipso facto if by notice in writing to the company a director resigns office, an oral resignation, if accepted by the company, is valid⁵.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(ii) Appointment and Removal of Directors/E. RETIREMENT AND REMOVAL OF DIRECTORS/517. Removal from office; director's right to protest.

517. Removal from office; director's right to protest.

A company¹ may by ordinary resolution at a meeting² remove a director³ before the expiration of his period of office⁴, notwithstanding anything in any agreement between it and him⁵. Special notice is required⁶ of such a resolution to remove a director, or to appoint somebody instead of a director so removed at the meeting at which he is removed⁷. On receipt of notice of an intended resolution so to remove a director⁸, the company must forthwith send a copy of it to the director concerned⁹; and the director is entitled to be heard on the resolution at the meeting (whether or not he is a member of the company)¹⁰. Where notice is given of any such intended resolution to remove a director¹¹, and the director concerned makes with respect to it representations in writing (not exceeding a reasonable length¹²) to the company and requests their notification to members of the company, the company must, unless the representations are received by it too late for it to do so¹³:

- 922 (1) in any notice of the resolution given to members of the company, state the fact of the representations having been made¹⁴; and
- 923 (2) send a copy of such representations to every member of the company to whom notice of the meeting is sent (whether before or after receipt of the representations by the company)¹⁵.

If a copy of the representations is not sent as required¹⁶ because it was received too late, or because of the company's default, the director may (without prejudice to his right to be heard orally) require that the representations be read out at the meeting¹⁷.

Copies of the representations need not be sent out, however, nor need the representations be read out at the meeting if, on the application either of the company or of any other person who claims to be aggrieved, the court¹⁸ is satisfied that the director's right to protest¹⁹ is being abused²⁰. The court may order the company's costs on such an application to be paid in whole or in part by the director, notwithstanding that he is not a party to the application²¹.

Where directors attempt to avoid removal under the statutory provisions by failing to call a meeting and then omitting to attend a requisitioned general meeting, so as to avoid the presence of a quorum, the court will convene a meeting in exercise of its statutory powers²².

A vacancy created by the removal of a director under the statutory powers²³, if not filled at the meeting at which he is removed, may be filled as a casual vacancy²⁴; and a person appointed director in place of a person so removed is treated, for the purpose of determining the time at which he or any other director is to retire, as if he had become director on the day on which the person in whose place he is appointed was last appointed a director²⁵.

The administrator²⁶ of a company has power to remove any director of the company and to appoint any person to be a director of it, whether to fill a vacancy or otherwise²⁷.

5 Companies Act 2006 s 168(1). A resolution under s 168 removing a director before the expiration of his period of office may not be passed as a written resolution: see s 288(2); and PARA 623. In addition to the statutory right of removal, provision as to the termination of a director's appointment may be made in the company's articles of association: see PARA 515.

By a suitable loading of voting rights in favour of a director threatened with removal, the statutory provisions governing removal may be effectively nullified: Bushell v Faith [1970] AC 1099, [1970] 1 All ER 53, HL. Before 1948, it was impossible to remove directors who had been appointed for a definite period, unless the original articles, or the articles as altered by special resolution, gave power to do so (Re Imperial Hydropathic Hotel Co, Blackpool v Hampson (1882) 23 ChD 1, CA); nor could they resign (Re South London Fish Market Co (1888) 39 ChD 324, CA); but an alteration of the articles made in good faith for the benefit of the company which enabled a permanent director to be removed was (and still would be) valid (Shuttleworth v Cox Bros & Co (Maidenhead) Ltd [1927] 2 KB 9, CA; and see Southern Foundries (1926) Ltd v Shirlaw [1940] AC 701, [1940] 2 All ER 445, HL). The court would not have enforced an agreement that a director should be irremovable; and, if the company had in general meeting resolved that a director must retire, the court would not have compelled it to allow him to act (Bainbridge v Smith (1889) 41 ChD 462, CA; Harben v Phillips (1883) 23 ChD 14, CA; Browne v La Trinidad (1887) 37 ChD 1, CA), even if there had been irregularities of procedure, provided that the final result was not in doubt (Bentley-Stevens v Jones [1974] 2 All ER 653, [1974] 1 WLR 638; cf Hall v British Essence Co Ltd (1946) 62 TLR 542). See also the text and note 22. As to a company's articles of association generally see PARA 228 et seq.

The provision made by the Companies Act 2006 s 168 is not to be taken as depriving a person removed under it of compensation or damages payable to him in respect of the termination of his appointment as director (or of any appointment terminating with that as director), or as derogating from any power to remove a director that may exist apart from s 168: s 168(5). A director appointed for a fixed term who was removed from office before the termination of his period of office under a power introduced by a change of the articles after his appointment was held in Southern Foundries (1926) Ltd v Shirlaw to be entitled to damages for breach of contract. Exactly similar principles would be applicable to removal under the Companies Act 2006 s 168. Conditions of appointment of a director may, however, authorise his removal without the giving of reasonable notice: see Read v Astoria Garage (Streatham) Ltd [1952] Ch 637, [1952] 2 All ER 292, CA; and PARA 538. While a company may have a statutory right conferred on it by the Companies Act 2006 to remove a director, exercise of that right may result, in an appropriate case, in the dismissed director petitioning for relief on the grounds that his removal from office amounted to conduct unfairly prejudicial to his interests as a member: see PARA 470.

(iii) Remuneration of Directors

A. IN GENERAL

518. Right to remuneration.

In the absence of provision in a company's constitution¹ providing for their being paid for their services, a company's directors² are not entitled to be paid any remuneration³, nor may they recover anything on a quantum meruit basis⁴. A person whose appointment as a director turns out to be a nullity may, however, recover on a quantum meruit for services rendered and accepted after the date of his purported appointment⁵. Where a company's articles of association⁶ provide that the remuneration of a managing director is to be determined by the board of directors, and where no such determination is made, a managing director who claims remuneration on a quantum meruit basis will be unsuccessful⁷. The right to remuneration is based on an inference of law imposed on the parties where work has been done or goods have been delivered under what purports to be a binding contract, but is not so in fact⁸. Provided that there has been a genuine exercise of the company's power to award remuneration, the court will be reluctant to hold that the payments have been improper, but payments made where no services have in fact been rendered cannot properly be classified as remuneration⁹. Sums improperly received as remuneration may be recovered¹⁰. As the remuneration of a director is a payment for services rendered, the fact that a director holds his qualification shares as a trustee does not make him accountable for this remuneration to the beneficiary¹¹, unless the opportunity to gain that remuneration was gained as a result of a discretion vested in the director as a trustee¹². Even if that opportunity was so gained, the terms of the trust instrument may render the trustees not accountable for their remuneration as directors¹³.

The right to remuneration may be waived¹⁴; but a mere promise by the directors to forgo their remuneration, even if made in open meeting, is not enforceable¹⁵. Where there is an agreement not to claim remuneration which is supported by consideration, the agreement may be enforced by any party to it and would bar any claim by a director to remuneration¹⁶. Breach of an understanding between shareholders in a quasi-partnership that remuneration would not be paid to the directors constitutes grounds for a petition alleging unfairly prejudicial conduct¹⁷.

A company owning shares in a second company, which are transferred to one of its own directors in order to qualify him as director of the second company to represent the interests of the first company, is not entitled to claim from the director his remuneration as director of the second company¹⁸.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(iii) Remuneration of Directors/A. IN GENERAL/519. How company directors' remuneration may be fixed.

519. How company directors' remuneration may be fixed.

The remuneration of a company's directors¹ may be fixed by the company's articles of association² or the articles may provide that the remuneration is to be fixed by the company in some manner³. If fixed by the articles, it is subject to alteration by special resolution⁴. If dependent on a resolution of the company, it may be altered and the company may by ordinary resolution discriminate between the directors as to the amount of their remuneration⁵. If, under the company's articles, remuneration for the directors must be authorised by the company, and there is no such authorisation, any payments made to the directors are void and not merely voidable⁶.

When a share qualification is required, the date when remuneration commences depends on whether the director was empowered to act before acquiring the qualification⁷. When once fixed by authorisation, the remuneration runs from that time, unless the resolution is otherwise expressed; a reference in the subsequent balance sheet to a sum charged from an earlier date will not bind the company⁸. The fact that the duties of directors are diminished as the result of a sale of the undertaking and assets of the company does not disentitle them from receiving the same remuneration as before⁹.

Where articles provide that the board of directors may fix the remuneration of the directors, and may in addition grant special remuneration to any director who serves on any committee or who devotes special attention to the business of the company or who otherwise performs special services, it is only the board as a whole which can fix or grant the remuneration; and this is so even where there is an article which defines the board as the directors of the company for the time being (or a quorum of such directors assembled at a meeting of directors duly convened) or any committee authorised by the board to act on its behalf¹⁰.

1 As to a company's directors generally see PARA 478 et seq.

2 The company cannot refuse to pay on the ground that the fees stated in the articles are excessive: Re Anglo-Greek Steam Co (1866) LR 2 Eq 1. See also Re George Newman & Co [1895] 1 Ch 674, CA (where all the shareholders agreed, but not at a meeting). The articles may be looked at to see the terms of the contract of service, though not forming the actual contract: Re Peruvian Guano Co, ex p Kemp [1894] 3 Ch 690 at 701 per Wright J. See also PARA 245. As to a company's articles of association generally see PARA 228 et seq. As to model articles of association prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, and their application generally, see PARA 228 et seq. Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'limited company', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230.

3 The Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, provide that directors may undertake any services for the company that the directors decide (see Sch 1 art 19(1); Sch 2 art 19(1); Sch 3 art 23(1)); and that directors are entitled to such remuneration as the directors determine both for their services to the company as directors, and for any other service which they undertake for the company (see Sch 1 art 19(2); Sch 2 art 19(2); Sch 3 art 23(2)). Unless the directors decide otherwise, directors are not accountable to the company for any remuneration which they receive as directors or other officers or employees of the company's subsidiaries or of any other body corporate in which the company is interested: see Sch 1 art 19(5); Sch 2 art 19(5); Sch 3 art 23(5).

The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, reg 2, Schedule, Table A art 82 provides merely that the directors are entitled to such remuneration as the company may by ordinary resolution determine. As to the meaning of 'ordinary resolution' see PARA 613. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but art 82 is applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital), and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital). 520. How remuneration is payable.

A company's articles of association¹ may make provision as to how a director's² remuneration is payable³.

Unless otherwise stated, the remuneration is payable although no profits are made⁴. A fixed remuneration may be sued for, or proved for in a winding up, although there is no resolution of the board that it should be paid⁵. A statement in a balance sheet signed by the directors that a sum is due to those directors as remuneration is not effective as an acknowledgment⁶ so as to prevent a claim in respect of that remuneration being barred by lapse of time⁷.

Subject to any contrary express agreement of the parties, salary payable to a director is subject to apportionment, so that service for less than a whole year will entitle a director to a proportionate part⁸; it is apportionable if the remuneration is payable 'at the rate of' a fixed sum per annum⁹.

Directors who are remunerated by a percentage of the net profits¹⁰ or by commission on the sum available for distribution¹¹ are entitled to compute their remuneration on the profits before corporation tax is deducted¹².

Where the remuneration of the directors is a lump sum to be divided as they think fit, no director may sue for remuneration until a division has taken place¹³, unless it is in addition provided that in default of agreement the remuneration should be equally divided, and there has been no agreement¹⁴. A director cannot obtain a mandatory injunction to compel the remaining directors to fix his remuneration¹⁵. Where directors are given a discretion to determine the time for payment of a director's remuneration, no claim will lie until they have so determined¹⁶.

A special resolution of the company¹⁷ altering directors' remuneration cannot alter the contractual rights of the directors¹⁸ as regards remuneration actually earned.

1 As to a company's articles of association generally see PARA 228 et seq. As to model articles of association prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, and their application generally, see PARA 228 et seq. Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'limited company', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230.

2 As to a company's directors generally see PARA 478 et seq.

3 The Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, provide that, subject to the articles, a director's remuneration may take any form (see Sch 1 art 19(3); Sch 2 art 19(3); Sch 3 art 23(3)); and that, unless the directors decide otherwise, directors' remuneration accrues from day to day (see Sch 1 art 19(4); Sch 2 art 19(4); Sch 3 art 23(4)). The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 82 merely provides that, unless the ordinary resolution which determines directors' remuneration (as to which see PARA 519 note 3) provides otherwise, such remuneration will be deemed to accrue from day to day. As to the meaning of 'ordinary resolution' see PARA 613. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but art 82 is applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital), and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital). As to the meaning of 'unlimited company' see PARA 102. As to the meanings of 'company having a share capital' and 'share capital' see PARA 1042.

In Moriarty v Regent's Garage Co [1921] 1 KB 423, these decisions were strongly criticised and stated to be good law on the basis only that the payment to the directors in the two last-named cases was in the form of a lump sum, and that until a decision as to the division of the lump sum had been made no claim would lie, and it was held that the remuneration of a director was apportionable under the Apportionment Act 1870. Although Moriarty v Regent's Garage Co was overruled in the Court of Appeal (see [1921] 2 KB 766), the appeal was not decided on the applicability of the Apportionment Act 1870, the court holding that this question could not then be raised as it had not been raised in the county court. COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(iii) Remuneration of Directors/A. IN GENERAL/521. Proof in winding up; execution.

521. Proof in winding up; execution.

Remuneration is not due to the director in his character of a member of the company¹. It may, therefore, be proved as a debt on winding up in competition with ordinary creditors²; and this will be in addition to remuneration earned in any other capacity, such as receiver and manager in a debenture holders' claim³.

Directors who are paid by a percentage of the amount paid by way of dividend may prove for this in the winding up after creditors have been paid, if it was not unreasonable at the time to propose such dividend⁴. If, however, they are paid by a percentage on 'net profits', this refers to the company as a going concern and does not entitle them to a proportion of its assets on a sale of the undertaking⁵; and similarly, where the only contract between the director and the company is contained in the articles, his employment ceases automatically upon the winding up of the company⁶.

A receiver by way of equitable execution will not be appointed in respect of directors' fees⁷.

522. Special remuneration and expenses; pension.

Apart from special provision in the company's articles of association¹, directors² are not entitled to claim travelling or other expenses³; and, where they have power to pay a co-director for extra services, the latter must prove the services and the agreement to pay for them⁴. As a matter of account the payment must not be attributed to capital expenditure⁵.

Where a power of altering remuneration is reserved to the company, it may not grant a 'pension' to a managing director who retires as manager but not as director⁶. It was formerly not competent for a company which had ceased to carry on business to vote gratuitous remuneration to its officers and employees⁷, but there is now an express statutory power to do so⁸.

The special provisions for taxation of expenses, allowances and benefits in kind in relation to directors are discussed elsewhere⁹.

1 As to a company's articles of association generally see PARA 228 et seq. As to model articles of association prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, and their application generally, see PARA 228 et seq. Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'limited company', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230.

The Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, provide that the company may pay any reasonable expenses which the directors properly incur in connection with their attendance at meetings of directors or committees of directors, general meetings, or (except in the case of a private company limited by guarantee) separate meetings of the holders of any class of shares or (in all cases) separate meetings of the holders of debentures of the company, or otherwise in connection with the exercise of their powers and the discharge of their responsibilities in relation to the company: Sch 1 Pt 2 (art 20); Sch 2 Pt 2 (art 20); Sch 3 Pt 2 (art 24). As to the meaning of 'debenture' see PARA 1299. As to shareholders generally see PARA 321 et seq. As to meetings of the company generally see PARA 629 et seq. As to meetings of directors see PARA 528 et seq. As to the extent to which directors may delegate powers, including to committees, see PARA 537.

The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 83 provides that directors may be paid all travelling, hotel, and other expenses properly incurred by them in connection with their attendance at meetings of directors or committees of directors or general meetings or separate meetings of the holders of any class of shares or of debentures of the company or otherwise in connection with the discharge of their duties. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but art 83 is applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital), and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital). However, Table C modifies Table A art 83 to the extent that the words 'of any class of shares or' are omitted: see Table C art 9. As to the meaning of 'unlimited company' see PARA 102. As to the meanings of 'company having a share capital' and 'share capital' see PARA 1042.

The Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, provide that, subject to the articles, a director's remuneration may include any arrangements in connection with the payment of a pension, allowance or gratuity, or any death, sickness or disability benefits, to or in respect of that director: see Sch 1 art 19(3); Sch 2 art 19(3); Sch 3 art 23(3).

Under the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 87, directors may provide benefits, whether by the payment of gratuities or pensions or by insurance or otherwise, for any director who has held but no longer holds any executive office or employment with the company or with any body corporate which is or has been a subsidiary of the company or a predecessor in business of the company or of any such subsidiary, and for any member of his family (including a spouse and a former spouse) or any person who is or was dependent on him, and may (as well before as after he ceases to hold such office or employment) contribute to any fund and pay premiums for the purchase or provision of any such benefit. Table A art 87 is applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital), and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital).

The following information about directors' remuneration¹ must be given in notes to a company's annual accounts²:

- 924 (1) gains made by directors on the exercise of share options³;
- 925 (2) benefits received or receivable by directors under long-term incentive schemes⁴;
- 926 (3) payments for loss of office⁵;
- 927 (4) benefits receivable, and contributions for the purpose of providing benefits, in respect of past services of a person as director or in any other capacity while director⁶;
- 928 (5) consideration paid to or receivable by third parties for making available the services of a person as director or in any other capacity while director⁷.

Details of advances and credits granted by a company to its directors, and of guarantees of any kind entered into by the company on behalf of its directors, also must be shown in the notes to its individual accounts⁸.

The directors of a quoted company⁹ must prepare a directors' remuneration report for each financial year of the company¹⁰. The members must by resolution approve the directors' remuneration report for the financial year¹¹, although no director's entitlement to remuneration is made conditional on the resolution being passed for this purpose¹².

525. Duty to keep directors' service contracts available for inspection.

A company¹ must keep available for inspection²: (1) a copy of every director's³ service contract⁴ with the company or with a subsidiary of the company⁵; or (2) if the contract is not in writing, a written memorandum setting out the terms of the contract⁶. All the copies and memoranda must be kept available for inspection either at the company's registered office⁷, or at a place specified in regulations⁸.

The copies and memoranda must be retained by the company for at least one year from the date of termination or expiry of the contract and must be kept available for inspection during that time⁹.

The company must give notice to the registrar of companies¹⁰: (a) of the place at which the copies and memoranda are kept available for inspection¹¹; and (b) of any change in that place¹², unless they have at all times been kept at the company's registered office¹³.

If default is made in complying with any of the requirements so to keep directors' service contracts etc available for inspection¹⁴, or to keep them available in the proper place¹⁵, or to retain them for the proper length of time¹⁶, or if default is made for 14 days in complying with the requirement to give notice to the registrar of companies¹⁷, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default¹⁸. A person guilty of such an offence is liable (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale¹⁹ and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine²⁰ not exceeding one-tenth of level 3 on the standard scale²¹.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(iv) Meetings of Directors/527. Decision-making by directors.

(iv) Meetings of Directors

527. Decision-making by directors.

A company's articles of association¹ usually contain provisions as to the way in which directors² at their meetings³ may conduct business and make decisions, including allowance for decisions to be taken instead by way of directors' written resolutions⁴. Directors may validly act only when assembled at a board meeting⁵, unless the articles otherwise provide⁶, and subject to the qualification that the directors (provided they are unanimous) may determine matters within their jurisdiction by informal means⁷. The model articles of association⁸ provide that any decision of the directors of a private company must be taken either by a majority decision at a meeting or by a decision taken unanimously⁹; and that decisions of the directors of a public company may be taken either at a directors' meeting, or in the form of a directors' written resolution¹⁰. In any case, under the articles, if the numbers of votes for and against a proposal at any directors' meeting are equal, the chairman or other director chairing the meeting has a casting vote, unless, in accordance with the articles, the chairman or other director is not to be counted as participating in the decision-making process for quorum or voting purposes¹¹. Subject to the articles, the directors may make any rule which they think fit about how they take decisions, and about how such rules are to be recorded or communicated to directors¹².

At properly convened meetings of a company's directors, at which there is the prescribed quorum¹³, directors may transact all business within their powers though no notice has been given to the members of the board that any special business is to be transacted¹⁴. They may take the items of business in such order as they think proper, and not necessarily in the order on the agenda paper¹⁵.

If a power is given to directors by an article of association, the decision of the directors to exercise it should, it seems, be unanimous unless on the true construction of the article of association a majority decision is enough¹⁶ (as is the case under the model articles)¹⁷. A subsequent meeting may ratify the business done at an informal meeting¹⁸, and may ratify an unauthorised act of an agent of the company¹⁹.

1 As to a company's articles of association generally see PARA 228 et seq. As to model articles of association prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, and their application generally, see PARA 228 et seq. Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'limited company', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230.

2 As to a company's directors see PARA 478 et seq.

3 As to meetings of a company's directors see PARA 528 et seq.

4 Under the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, a decision of the directors of a private company may be taken in accordance with Sch 1 art 8 or Sch 2 art 8, as the case may be (see note 9), when all eligible directors (ie directors who would have been entitled to vote on the matter had it been proposed as a resolution at a directors' meeting) indicate to each other by any means that they share a common view on a matter: Sch 1 art 8(1), (3); Sch 2 art 8(1), (3). Such a decision may take the form of a resolution in writing, copies of which have been signed by each eligible director or to which each eligible director has otherwise indicated agreement in writing: Sch 1 art 8(2); Sch 2 art 8(2). However, a decision may not be taken in accordance with Sch 1 art 8 or Sch 2 art 8 (as the case may be) if the eligible directors would not have formed a quorum at such a meeting: Sch 1 art 8(4); Sch 2 art 8(4).

Any director of a public company may propose a directors' written resolution (Sch 3 art 17(1)); and the company secretary must propose a directors' written resolution if a director so requests (Sch 3 art 17(2)). See note 10. A directors' written resolution is proposed by giving notice of the proposed resolution to the directors: Sch 3 art 17(3). Such notice must indicate the proposed resolution and the time by which it is proposed that the directors should adopt it (Sch 3 art 17(4)); and it must be given in writing to each director (Sch 3 art 17(5)). Any decision which a person giving notice of a proposed directors' written resolution takes regarding the process of adopting that resolution must be taken reasonably in good faith: Sch 3 art 17(6). A proposed directors' written resolution is adopted when all the directors who would have been entitled to vote on the resolution at a directors' meeting have signed one or more copies of it, provided that those directors would have formed a quorum at such a meeting: Sch 3 art 18(1). It is immaterial whether any director signs the resolution before or after the time by which the notice proposed that it should be adopted: Sch 3 art 18(2). Once a directors' written resolution has been adopted, it must be treated as if it had been a decision taken at a directors' meeting in accordance with the articles: Sch 3 art 18(3). As to the company secretary see PARA 601 et seq; and as to the requirement to keep records of resolutions etc see PARA 530.

Under the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 93, a resolution in writing signed by all the directors entitled to receive notice of a meeting of directors or of a committee of directors will be as valid and effectual as if it has been passed at a meeting of directors or (as the case may be) a committee of directors duly convened and held and may consist of several documents in the like form each signed by one or more directors; but a resolution signed by an alternate director need not also be signed by his appointor and, if it is signed by a director who has appointed an alternate director, it need not be signed by the alternate director in that capacity. As to the extent to which directors may delegate powers, including to committees, see PARA 537. The written resolution procedure is intended to facilitate the transaction of business but not to make fundamental changes to quorum requirements; hence a written resolution, passed in accordance with art 93 but signed by only one director, where the quorum fixed under art 89 (see PARA 529) for the transaction of any business is two directors, is invalid notwithstanding that the sole co-director is absent from the United Kingdom and not entitled to notice of a directors' meeting by virtue of art 88 (see note 8): Hood Sailmakers Ltd v Axford [1996] 4 All ER 830, [1997] 1 WLR 625, which was decided under equivalent provisions of the Companies Act 1948 Sch 1, Table A (see PARA 18). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 1 note 5. Under the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 96, the company may by ordinary resolution suspend or relax to any extent, either generally or in respect of any particular matter, any provision of the articles prohibiting a director from voting at a meeting of directors or of a committee of directors; and Table A art 98 provides that, if a question arises at a meeting of directors or of a committee of directors as to the right of a director to vote, the question may, before the conclusion of the meeting, be referred to the chairman of the meeting and his ruling in relation to any director other than himself is final and conclusive. Table A art 97 provides that where proposals are under consideration concerning the appointment of two or more directors to offices or employments with the company or any body corporate in which the company is interested, the proposals may be divided and considered in relation to each director separately and (provided he is not for another reason precluded from voting) each of the directors concerned is entitled to vote and be counted in the quorum in respect of each resolution except that concerning his own appointment. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A arts 93, 96-98 are applied by Table C, Table D Pt III, and Table E.

8 In the model articles of association prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 (see note 1). Under the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 88, questions arising at a meeting must be decided by a majority of votes and, in the case of an equality of votes, the chairman has a second or casting vote. A director who is also an alternate director is entitled, in the absence of his appointor, to a separate vote on behalf of his appointor in addition to his own vote: see Table A art 88. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but art 88 is applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital), and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital). As to the meaning of 'unlimited company' see PARA 102. As to the meanings of 'company having a share capital' and 'share capital' see PARA 1042.

9 See the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 art 7(1); Sch 2 art 7(1). Any such decision must be taken in accordance with Sch 1 art 8 or Sch 2 art 8, as the case may be: see note 4. If the company only has one director, and no provision of the articles requires it to have more than one director, the general rule does not apply, and the director may take decisions without regard to any of the provisions of the articles relating to directors' decision-making: Sch 1 art 7(2); Sch 2 art 7(2).

10 See the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 3 art 7. Any such decision must be taken in accordance with Sch 3 arts 17, 18: see note 4. Subject to the articles: (1) a decision is taken at such a directors' meeting by a majority of the votes of the participating directors (Sch 3 art 13(1)); (2) each director participating in a directors' meeting has one vote (Sch 3 art 13(2)); and (3) if a director has an interest in an actual or proposed transaction or arrangement with the company: (a) that director and that director's alternate may not vote on any proposal relating to it (Sch 3 art 13(3)(a)); but (b) this does not preclude the alternate from voting in relation to that transaction or arrangement on behalf of another appointor who does not have such an interest (Sch 3 art 13(3)(b)). A director who is also an alternate director has an additional vote on behalf of each appointor who is not participating in a directors' meeting, and who would have been entitled to vote if they were participating in it: Sch 3 art 15. As to alternate directors see PARA 489.

11 See the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 art 13(1), (2); Sch 2 art 13(1), (2); Sch 3 art 14(1), (2). As to chairing a directors' meeting see PARA 528. As to the quorum required for a meeting of directors see PARA 529; and see note 4.

A director's participation in a meeting for voting or quorum purposes may be restricted in relation to a resolution on which he is not entitled to vote: see PARA 555.

Subject to the articles, any notice or document to be sent or supplied to a director in connection with the taking of decisions by directors may also be sent or supplied by the means by which that director has asked to be sent or supplied with such notices or documents for the time being: Sch 1 art 48(2); Sch 2 art 34(2); Sch 3 art 79(2). A director may agree with the company that notices or documents sent to that director in a particular way are to be deemed to have been received within a specified time of their being sent, and for the specified time to be less than 48 hours: Sch 1 art 48(3); Sch 2 art 34(3); Sch 3 art 79(3). As to the provisions made for company communications generally see PARA 678 et seq.

12 See the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 art 16; Sch 2 art 16; Sch 3 art 19.

528. Meetings of directors.

A company's articles of association¹ usually contain provisions as to meetings of directors², which may cover such matters as the proper calling of, and participation in, such a meeting³, and the chairing of such a meeting⁴.

A meeting of directors is not duly convened unless due notice has been given to all the directors entitled to receive it⁵. At a meeting not duly convened, proceedings are irregular and invalid⁶, although the court will decline to interfere where the irregularity could be cured at any moment by going through the proper process⁷.

Whether or not there was a regular board meeting is immaterial for purposes of binding the company if all the shareholders consent to what is done⁸. It is not necessary to give notice of an adjourned meeting⁹. If no fixed period of notice is required by the articles, the notice must be fair and reasonable¹⁰.

Where the only two directors of a company meet casually, one director cannot treat the meeting as a board meeting against the wishes of the other¹¹.

1 As to a company's articles of association generally see PARA 228 et seq. As to the model articles of association that have been prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, and their application generally, see PARA 228 et seq. Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'limited company', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230.

2 See eg the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 Pt 2 (arts 7-16), Sch 2 Pt 2 (arts 7-16), Sch 3 Pt 2 (arts 7-19); the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A arts 88-98; and see also PARA 529 et seq. As to the extent to which directors may delegate powers, including to committees, see PARA 537; and as to the validity of acts notwithstanding defects in appointment see PARA 486.

3 Accordingly, under the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, any director may call a directors' meeting by giving notice of the meeting to the directors: Sch 1 art 9(1); Sch 2 art 9(1); Sch 3 art 8(1), (3). Such a meeting may be called alternatively by authorising the company secretary (if any) to give such notice (see Sch 1 art 9(1); Sch 2 art 9(1)) or, in the case of a public company only, by a director requesting the company secretary to do so, and thereby obliging the secretary to call such a meeting (see Sch 3 art 8(2)). Notice of any directors' meeting must indicate its proposed date and time, where it is to take place and (if it is anticipated that directors participating in the meeting will not be in the same place) how it is proposed that they should communicate with each other during the meeting: Sch 1 art 9(2); Sch 2 art 9(2); Sch 3 art 8(4). Notice of a directors' meeting must be given to each director: Sch 1 art 9(3); Sch 2 art 9(3); Sch 3 art 8(5). However, such notice need not be in writing (Sch 1 art 9(3); Sch 2 art 9(3); Sch 3 art 8(5)); and need not be given to directors who waive their entitlement to notice of that meeting, by giving notice to that effect to the company not more than seven days after the date on which the meeting is held (Sch 1 art 9(4); Sch 2 art 9(4); Sch 3 art 8(6)). Where such notice is given after the meeting has been held, that does not affect the validity of the meeting, or of any business conducted at it: see Sch 1 art 9(4); Sch 2 art 9(4); Sch 3 art 8(6). As to the company secretary see PARA 601 et seq.

Subject to the articles, anything sent or supplied by or to the company under the articles may be sent or supplied in any way in which the Companies Act 2006 provides for documents or information which are authorised or required by any provision of that Act to be sent or supplied by or to the company (as to which see PARA 678 et seq): Sch 1 art 48(1); Sch 2 art 34(1); Sch 3 art 79(1). A director may agree with the company that notices or documents sent to that director in a particular way are to be deemed to have been received within a specified time of their being sent, and for the specified time to be less than 48 hours: Sch 1 art 48(3); Sch 2 art 34(3); Sch 3 art 79(3). Subject to the articles, directors participate in a directors' meeting, or part of a directors' meeting, when the meeting has been called and takes place in accordance with the articles, and they can each communicate to the others any information or opinions they have on any particular item of the business of the meeting: Sch 1 art 10(1); Sch 2 art 10(1); Sch 3 art 9(1). In determining whether directors are participating in a directors' meeting, it is irrelevant where any director is or how they communicate with each other: Sch 1 art 10(2); Sch 2 art 10(2); Sch 3 art 9(2). If all the directors participating in a meeting are not in the same place, they may decide that the meeting is to be treated as taking place wherever any of them is: Sch 1 art 10(3); Sch 2 art 10(3); Sch 3 art 9(3).

Under the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 88, subject to the provisions of the articles, the directors may regulate their proceedings as they think fit; and a director may (and the secretary, at the request of a director, must) call a meeting of the directors: Table A art 88. It is not necessary to give notice of a meeting to a director who is absent from the United Kingdom: Table A art 88. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but art 88 is applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital), and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital). As to the meaning of 'unlimited company' see PARA 102. As to the meanings of 'company having a share capital' and 'share capital' see PARA 1042. As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 1 note 5.

See also the text and notes 8-12. As to the quorum required for a meeting of directors see PARA 529. A director's participation in a meeting may be restricted in relation to a resolution on which he is not entitled to vote: see PARA 555.

4 Under the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, the directors may appoint a director to chair their meetings (Sch 1 art 12(1); Sch 2 art 12(1); Sch 3 art 12(1)); and the person so appointed for the time being is known as the chairman (Sch 1 art 12(2); Sch 2 art 12(2); Sch 3 art 12(2)). The directors may terminate the chairman's appointment at any time: Sch 1 art 12(3); Sch 2 art 12(3); Sch 3 art 12(4). If the chairman is not participating in a directors' meeting within ten minutes of the time at which it was to start, the participating directors must appoint one of themselves to chair it: Sch 1 art 12(4); Sch 2 art 12(4); Sch 3 art 12(5). In the case of a public company, the directors may appoint other directors as deputy or assistant chairmen to chair directors' meetings in the chairman's absence: Sch 3 art 12(3). Accordingly, the directors may terminate the appointment of the deputy or assistant chairman at any time (see Sch 3 art 12(4)); and Sch 3 art 12(5) applies if neither the chairman nor any director appointed generally to chair directors' meetings in the chairman's absence is participating in a meeting within ten minutes of the time at which it was to start (see Sch 3 art 12(5)).

The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 91 provides that the directors may appoint one of their number to be the chairman of the board of directors and may at any time remove him from that office; and, unless he is unwilling to do so, the director so appointed will preside at every meeting of directors at which he is present; but, if there is no director holding that office, or if the director holding it is unwilling to preside or is not present within five minutes after the time appointed for the meeting, the directors present may appoint one of their number to be chairman of the meeting. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 100 is applied by Table C, Table D Pt III, and Table E. Where a chairman is elected for an unspecified period, he is not entitled to remain chairman so long as he is a director: see Foster v Foster [1916] 1 Ch 532. Where a director is appointed chairman irregularly, it has been held that acquiescence for a long period does not regularise his appointment: see Clark v Workman [1920] 1 IR 107.

A chairman's participation in a meeting may be restricted in relation to a resolution on which he is not entitled to vote: see PARA 555.

529. Quorum for directors' meetings.

A quorum for a meeting of a company's directors¹ means the minimum number of directors who are authorised to act as a board² at a duly convened board meeting³. Each director of the quorum must be qualified to act, and, if by the withdrawal of those directors who are disqualified from voting on the ground of interest or otherwise there would be no quorum, no business may be transacted⁴. Where some of the directors are interested in a contract and are not permitted by the company's articles of association to be counted for quorum or for voting purposes⁵, a reduction in the quorum for the purpose of authorising the contract is invalid⁶; and, where a transaction is really one transaction, the necessary quorum cannot be obtained by dividing the transaction into two⁷. Where no quorum is specified in the articles, the number who usually act will constitute a quorum⁸. Although one director cannot constitute a 'meeting'⁹, the articles may permit one director to constitute a quorum¹⁰. Unless so provided by the articles, there cannot be a quorum competent to act where the number of directors is not filled up to the minimum number¹¹.

Even though a quorum is specified in the articles, the court may refuse to declare illegal resolutions passed by a number of directors less than that required to constitute the quorum, if that lesser number has been acting as a quorum for a number of years¹².

1 As to meetings of a company's directors see PARA 527 et seq. As to a company's directors see PARA 478 et seq.

2 As to the conduct of business at such meetings see PARA 527 et seq.

3 As to the calling of meetings of directors see PARA 528. As to a company's articles of association generally see PARA 228 et seq. As to model articles of association prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, and their application generally, see PARA 228 et seq. Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'limited company', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230.

Under the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, the quorum for directors' meetings may be fixed from time to time by a decision of the directors, but it must never be less than two and, unless otherwise fixed, it is two: Sch 1 art 11(2); Sch 2 art 11(2); Sch 3 art 10(2). At a directors' meeting, unless a quorum is participating, no proposal is to be voted on, except a proposal to call another meeting: Sch 1 art 11(1); Sch 2 art 11(1); Sch 3 art 10(1). If the total number of directors for the time being is less than the quorum required, then:

187 (1) in the case of a private company, the directors must not take any decision other than a decision either to appoint further directors, or to call a general meeting so as to enable the shareholders (or, in the case of a company limited by guarantee, to enable its members) to appoint further directors (Sch 1 art 11(3); Sch 2 art 11(3)); and

188 (2) in the case of a public company: (a) if there is only one director, that director may appoint sufficient directors to make up a quorum or call a general meeting to do so (Sch 3 art 11(1), (2)); or (b) if there is more than one director: (i) a directors' meeting may take place, if it is called in accordance with the articles and at least two directors participate in it, with a view to appointing sufficient directors to make up a quorum or calling a general meeting to do so (Sch 3 art 11(1), (3)(a)); and (ii) if a directors' meeting is called but only one director attends at the appointed date and time to participate in it, that director may appoint sufficient directors to make up a quorum or call a general meeting to do so (Sch 3 art 11(1), (3)(b)).

Further to head (2) above, if a public company has fewer than two directors, and the director (if any) is unable or unwilling to appoint sufficient directors to make up a quorum or to call a general meeting to do so, then two or more members may call a general meeting (or instruct the company secretary to do so) for the purpose of appointing one or more directors: see Sch 3 Pt 3 (art 28); and PARA 641. As to shareholders and membership of companies generally see PARA 321 et seq.

The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 89 provides that the quorum necessary for the transaction of the business of the directors may be fixed by the directors and, unless so fixed at any other number, will be two. A person who holds office only as an alternate director is, if his appointor is not present, to be counted in the quorum: see Table A art 89. The continuing directors or a sole continuing director may act notwithstanding any vacancies in their number, but, if the number of directors is less than the number fixed as the quorum, the continuing director or directors may act only for the purpose of filling vacancies or of calling a general meeting: Table A art 90. As to alternate directors see PARA 489. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but arts 89, 90 are applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital), and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital). As to the meaning of 'unlimited company' see PARA 102. As to the meanings of 'company having a share capital' and 'share capital' see PARA 1042.

See also the text and notes 4-12.

A director's participation in a meeting may be restricted for voting or quorum purposes in relation to a resolution on which he is not entitled to vote: see PARA 555.

Where a director who is an essential constituent of the quorum of a board meeting is shown in retrospect to have acted in breach of his fiduciary duty in voting on a resolution, he should be treated as having been incapable of voting on the business before the board and therefore should not be taken into account for the purpose of ascertaining whether a quorum of directors was present: see Colin Gwyer & Associates Ltd v London Wharf (Limehouse) Ltd, Eaton Bray Ltd v Palmer [2002] EWHC 2748 (Ch), [2003] 2 BCLC 153 (per curiam). However, the articles may provide that, in the case of certain contracts or arrangements, a director may be permitted to participate for quorum or for voting purposes notwithstanding the fact that otherwise he would have been disqualified on grounds of conflicts of interest: see eg the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 Pt 2 (art 14); Sch 2 Pt 2 (art 14); Sch 3 Pt 2 (art 16); the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A arts 85, 94; and PARAS 550, 555, 558. 530. Records of decisions of directors.

Every company¹ must cause minutes of all proceedings at meetings of its directors² to be recorded³; and the records must be kept for at least ten years from the date of the meeting⁴. If a company fails so to comply⁵, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default⁶. A person guilty of such an offence is liable (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale⁷ and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine⁸ not exceeding one-tenth of level 3 on the standard scale⁹.

Minutes recorded in accordance with these requirements¹⁰, if purporting to be authenticated by the chairman of the meeting or by the chairman of the next directors' meeting¹¹, are evidence of the proceedings at the meeting¹²; and, where minutes have been so made¹³ of the proceedings of a meeting of directors, then, until the contrary is proved, the meeting is deemed duly held and convened¹⁴, all proceedings at the meeting are deemed to have duly taken place¹⁵, and all appointments at the meeting are deemed valid¹⁶.

The signature by the chairman of an entry in the record of a resolution accepting an agreement is a sufficient signature for the purposes of a memorandum required by the Statute of Frauds¹⁷. It is not necessary to prove that the person signing as chairman was in fact the chairman¹⁸. An entry of an allotment of shares to a director then present, who signed the minutes at the next meeting, is sufficient evidence of his agreement to take shares¹⁹, but not where he was not present at either meeting and denies all knowledge²⁰.

In the absence of a minute other evidence may be given²¹; and, if the books of a company show a record of a transaction, as, for example, the forfeiture of shares, which would not be valid without a resolution of the directors, the court will, in the absence of other evidence, presume that such a resolution has been passed²².

A company's articles of association²³ usually make provision for records to be kept (and retained) of directors' decisions²⁴ and of their written resolutions²⁵.

24 Under the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, the directors of a private company must ensure that the company keeps a record, in writing, for at least ten years from the date of the decision recorded, of every unanimous or majority decision taken by the directors (ie whether taken at a meeting or otherwise): Sch 1 art 15; Sch 2 art 15. Under the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 100, the directors must cause minutes to be made in books kept for the purpose of all appointments of officers made by the directors, and of all proceedings at meetings of the company, of the holders of any class of shares in the company, and of the directors, and of committees of directors, including the names of the directors present at each such meeting. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but art 100 is applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital), and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital). However, Table C modifies Table A art 100 by causing the words 'of the holders of any class of shares in the company' to be omitted: see Table C art 11. 531. Invalidity of appointment and irregularity.

The acts of a person acting as a director are valid notwithstanding that it is afterwards discovered¹: (1) that there was a defect in his appointment²; (2) that he was disqualified from holding office³; (3) that he had ceased to hold office⁴; (4) that he was not entitled to vote on the matter in question⁵.

In the case of irregularity or informality in the proceedings of directors, where a shareholder has changed his position in reliance upon the acts of the directors being regular, the company cannot set up the irregularity of the proceedings to his detriment⁶; nor may it rely on the absence of a required authority given by general meeting⁷. Persons dealing with the company are, however, protected at common law from the consequences of any internal irregularities if they have acted without notice⁸, and are protected more broadly, by statute, where a transaction is ultra vires the company or beyond the authority of the directors⁹.

(v) General Duties of Directors

A. IN GENERAL

532. Scope and nature of general duties.

The Companies Act 2006 specifies¹ the general duties that are owed by a director² of a company³ to the company⁴. Except as otherwise provided, more than one of the general duties may apply in any given case⁵.

The general duties are based on certain common law rules and equitable principles as they apply in relation to directors and have effect in place of those rules and principles as regards the duties owed to a company by a director⁶. The general duties must be interpreted and applied in the same way as common law rules or equitable principles, and regard must be had to the corresponding common law rules and equitable principles in interpreting and applying the general duties⁷. The principles and rules which govern directors' fiduciary duties may be regarded as straightforward applications of ordinary principles of equity concerning fiduciary duties⁸.

1 In the Companies Act 2006 ss 171-177 (see PARA 540 et seq): see s 170(1).

2 As to the meaning of 'director' under the Companies Acts see PARA 478; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

3 As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 170(1). As to the application and effect of the general duties see PARA 533. Although s 170(1) restates the common law formula that directors' duties are owed to the company (see PARA 534 et seq), remedies for their breach (or threatened breach) have not been codified under the Companies Act 2006. However, s 178 provides that the consequences of breach (or threatened breach) of ss 171-177 (see PARA 540 et seq) are the same as would apply if the corresponding common law rule or equitable principle applied; and those duties, except for s 174, which reflects the common law duty of care and skill (see PARA 548 et seq), are, accordingly, enforceable in the same way as any other fiduciary duty owed to a company by its directors: see PARA 559. The three main ways in which a company can take legal action against a director (or a former director) for breach of duty are: (1) if the board of directors decides to commence proceedings (see PARA 541 et seq); (2) through a derivative claim brought by one or more members to enforce a right which is vested in the company (see PARA 455 et seq); or (3) if a liquidator or administrator (following the commencement of a formal insolvency procedure such as liquidation or administration) decides to commence proceedings (see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY). See also PARA 533.

5 Companies Act 2006 s 179.

6 Companies Act 2006 s 170(3). See note 7.

7 Companies Act 2006 s 170(4). When discussing this provision, and its interaction with s 170(3) (see the text and note 6), at the Bill stage, Lord Goldsmith (Attorney-General) stated that: (1) the court should be left to interpret the words that Parliament passes; (2) the wording of s 170(3) is intended to explain the origins of the general duties later set out [. . .] so that, once the Act is passed, one will go to the statutory statement of duties to identify the duty that the director owed; and (3) the wording of s 170(4) deals with the interpretation of those duties . . . [and it does] two things. It would point the courts towards existing case law on those common law rules and equitable principles [ie that are now replaced by the statutory duties]. It will also allow the law to develop so that relevant case law after the duties come into force should also be taken into account [especially in having regard to the development in common law rules and equitable principles as they apply to other relationships, such as trustees and agents]: 678 HL Official Report (5th series), 6 Feb 2006, GC cols 243-244.

533. Application and effect of general duties.

The general duties that the Companies Act 2006 sets out¹ as being owed by a director² of a company³ to the company⁴:

- 929 (1) have effect subject to any rule of law enabling the company to give authority, specifically or generally, for anything to be done (or omitted) by the directors, or any of them, that would otherwise be a breach of duty⁵; and
- 930 (2) where the company's articles contain provisions for dealing with conflicts of interest⁶, are not infringed by anything done (or omitted) by the directors, or any of them, in accordance with those provisions⁷.

Otherwise, the general duties have effect (except as otherwise provided or the context otherwise requires) notwithstanding any enactment⁸ or rule of law⁹.

The application of the general duties is not affected by the fact that the case also falls within the provisions that govern transactions requiring the approval of members¹⁰; and compliance with the general duties does not remove the need for approval under any provision that is so applicable in relation to such transactions¹¹.

The general duties apply to shadow directors¹² where, and to the extent that, the corresponding common law rules or equitable principles so apply¹³.

A person who ceases to be a director¹⁴ continues to be subject: (a) to the duty to avoid conflicts of interest¹⁵ as regards the exploitation of any property, information or opportunity of which he became aware at a time when he was a director¹⁶; and (b) to the duty not to accept benefits from third parties¹⁷ as regards things done or omitted by him before he ceased to be a director¹⁸; and, to that extent, those duties apply to a former director as to a director, subject to any necessary adaptations¹⁹.

In their application to a company that is a charity, the Companies Act 2006 provisions that set out the general duties of directors²⁰ have effect with modifications²¹.

534. Duties owed to the company.

In general, directors do not, solely by virtue of the office of director, owe fiduciary duties to shareholders¹, either collectively or individually²; directors owe their duties to the company³. However, duties owed by directors to shareholders may arise if there is a special factual relationship between the directors and the shareholders in the particular case capable of generating fiduciary obligations⁴. Likewise, directors do not owe fiduciary duties to the company's creditors, collectively or individually⁵.

1 As to shareholders and membership of companies generally see PARA 321 et seq.

2 As to the role of nominee directors and their duties, if any, to their appointor see PARA 480.

535. Powers of directors to manage the business.

The true position of directors¹ is that of agents for the company². As such, they are clothed with the powers and duties of carrying on the whole of its business³, subject, however, to the restrictions imposed by statute and by the company's constitution⁴. The intention of the company may be established by its directors, even if acting informally, depending upon the nature of the matter under consideration, the relative positions of the directors in the company, and generally all the circumstances of the case⁵.

Articles of association⁶ generally give directors very wide powers as to the control and management of the company and its affairs⁷; the powers given by the default or model articles⁸ are sometimes amplified by special articles which enumerate the powers of the directors.

Where powers are delegated by the company to the directors⁹, and the directors owing to dissensions and quarrels between them are unwilling or unable to act, the powers may be exercised by the company¹⁰. If, owing to disputes amongst the directors, they are unable to act and the affairs of the company cannot be carried on, the court will interfere by injunction and by the appointment of a receiver and manager of the undertaking and assets of the company until the management of the company is restored to a proper footing¹¹. The court may also order a meeting of the company so that additional directors may be appointed¹².

The question of the limitation of the powers of directors has often arisen in connection with powers of borrowing and mortgaging¹³. Where the directors have a power to mortgage¹⁴, they may exercise it to secure a past debt¹⁵, provided that this does not constitute a preference, or to secure sums owing upon a bill of exchange given by directors for a debt of the company¹⁶, or to secure a guarantee or by way of indemnity¹⁷. They may issue debentures to satisfy the creditors of a purchased business or in payment of the vendor¹⁸. Special rights may by suitable language be conferred on individual directors for their own personal benefits, in which case they may be used as they think fit¹⁹.

Any power conferred on the company, or its officers, whether by the Companies Acts, or the Insolvency Act 1986, or by its constitution, which could be exercised in such a way as to interfere with the exercise by an administrator of his powers is not exercisable except with the consent of the administrator (which may be given either generally or in relation to particular cases)²⁰.

14 For companies formed under the Companies Act 1985 and its predecessor legislation (as to which see PARA 16 et seq), directors' powers were limited by the objects expressed in the company's memorandum (see PARA 240 note 3). For companies formed under the Companies Act 2006, unless the articles specifically restrict the objects of a company, its objects are unrestricted (see s 31; and PARA 240) and, accordingly, the directors' powers, including the power to borrow and mortgage, are unrestricted, unless they are restricted by the constitution.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(v) General Duties of Directors/A. IN GENERAL/536. Directors' right of indemnity for expenditure incurred.

536. Directors' right of indemnity for expenditure incurred.

A company's directors¹ are entitled to be indemnified by the company for all debts, expenses, and liabilities incurred in the ordinary course of business, and for money borrowed and applied for those purposes², together, in the case of an actual expenditure, with simple interest³. If they guarantee a secured loan, they have, on paying off the loan, the usual right of a surety to subrogation⁴.

The right to indemnity is limited to expenditure which has been incurred or an obligation adopted by directors on behalf of the company and in subjection to the special purposes of the company in accordance with its constitution⁵. Accordingly, directors may not use the funds of the company in payment of their own costs of legal proceedings, although these would not have been incurred if they had not been directors, unless incurred on behalf of the company or for its benefit⁶.

In the absence of special provision to the contrary, the directors are not entitled to their expenses in travelling to and from board meetings⁷.

If directors are holders on behalf of the company of unpaid shares which it has power to hold, they are entitled to be indemnified⁸. If, however, there is no such power, as where, for example, the shares are in the same company, they are liable for calls without any right of indemnity, even when all the shareholders have consented to the purchase⁹; but they are not liable in a winding up as contributories in respect of the amounts unpaid on shares transferred to them as trustees by way of security on the terms that the transfer is to be registered only with their consent, if they have given no consent to its registration¹⁰.

If, although acting in the ordinary course of business, the directors exceed their borrowing powers, they cannot claim an indemnity from the company unless the borrowing is within the powers of the company and is ratified¹¹.

Directors cannot charge the company with the costs of an unsuccessful petition to wind up, presented by themselves, or of an unsuccessful appeal (Smith v Duke of Manchester (1883) 24 ChD 611) although authorised by the articles to take proceedings etc. If the directors are to be indemnified under a provision in the articles, it must be established that the provision has been incorporated in the contract between the company and a director; and relatively little may be required to incorporate the articles by implication: Globalink Telecommunications Ltd v Wilmbury Ltd [2002] EWHC 1988 (QB), [2003] 1 BCLC 145; John v Price Waterhouse (t/a PricewaterhouseCoopers) [2002] 1 WLR 953 at 960 per Ferris J. The ratification by a company of conduct by a director amounting to negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust in relation to the company, for the purpose of relieving the director of any liability for such conduct, is subject to statutory constraints: see the Companies Act 2006 s 239; and PARA 593.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(v) General Duties of Directors/A. IN GENERAL/537. Delegation of directors' powers.

537. Delegation of directors' powers.

Without express authority to do so, a company's directors¹ cannot delegate their duties or powers².

However, a company's articles of association³ generally confer such authority on the directors to delegate their powers to committees or local boards⁴ or to managing directors⁵; and, where they have sufficient powers of delegation, the directors may delegate any of their powers to committees, or even to a single director⁶.

Where any specific powers are properly delegated, the directors are absolved from liability for the exercise of those powers by the delegates⁷; but whilst directors are entitled (subject to the articles of association of the company) to delegate particular functions to those below them in the management chain, and to trust their competence and integrity to a reasonable extent, the exercise of the power of delegation does not absolve a director from the duty to supervise the discharge of the delegated functions⁸. Powers of delegation must be used bona fide and directors cannot form a committee to deal with the affairs of the company in order to exclude one or more of their number from acting⁹.

Where powers are delegated to a committee and there is no provision for a quorum, the whole of a committee must meet and then act by a majority, and the committee has no power to add to its number or fill a vacancy¹⁰. An excessive exercise of the committee's powers may be ratified by the directors¹¹, who do not by delegation divest themselves of their powers¹², or, if need be, by the company¹³. Business informally transacted may, generally speaking, be ratified by a subsequent formal meeting¹⁴.

A private company need not have more than one director¹⁵, in which case it is proper for the whole of the directors' powers to be vested in him.

As to delegated power to bring proceedings in the name of the company see PARA 302.

3 As to a company's articles of association generally see PARA 228 et seq. As to model articles of association prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, and their application generally, see PARA 228 et seq. Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'limited company', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230.

4 Under the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, subject to the articles, the directors may delegate any of the powers which are conferred on them under the articles: (1) to such person or committee; (2) by such means (including by power of attorney); (3) to such an extent; (4) in relation to such matters or territories; and (5) on such terms and conditions, as they think fit: Sch 1 art 5(1); Sch 2 art 5(1); Sch 3 art 5(1). If the directors so specify, any such delegation may authorise further delegation of the directors' powers by any person to whom they are delegated (Sch 1 art 5(2); Sch 2 art 5(2); Sch 3 art 5(2)); and the directors may revoke any delegation in whole or part, or alter its terms and conditions (Sch 1 art 5(3); Sch 2 art 5(3); Sch 3 art 5(3)). Committees to which the directors delegate any of their powers must follow procedures which are based as far as they are applicable on those provisions of the articles which govern the taking of decisions by directors: Sch 1 art 6(1); Sch 2 art 6(1); Sch 3 art 6(1). The directors may make rules of procedure for all or any committees, which prevail over rules derived from the articles if they are not consistent with them: Sch 1 art 6(2); Sch 2 art 6(2); Sch 3 art 6(2). As to provision made for decision-making by directors at meetings see PARA 527.

The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 72 provides that the directors may delegate any of their powers to any committee consisting of one or more directors; and that they may also delegate to any managing director or any director holding any other executive office such of their powers as they consider desirable to be exercised by him. Any such delegation may be made subject to any conditions the directors may impose, and either collaterally with or to the exclusion of their own powers, and may be revoked or altered: Table A art 72. Subject to any such conditions, the proceedings of a committee with two or more members must be governed by the articles regulating the proceedings of directors so far as they are capable of applying: Table A art 72. See Mitchell & Hobbs (UK) Ltd v Mill [1996] 2 BCLC 102 (actual delegation required if a director is to claim powers of management separate from the collective board of directors). The directors may also, by power of attorney or otherwise, appoint any person to be the agent of the company for such purposes and on such conditions as they determine, including authority for the agent to delegate all or any of his powers: Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 71. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but arts 71, 72 are applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital), and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital). 538. Position of managing directors.

A managing director may be either merely a director¹ with additional functions and additional remuneration², or else he may be a person holding two distinct positions, that of a director and that of a manager³. The directors have no general right to appoint a managing director⁴, nor, it seems, to remunerate him under a power to remunerate employees⁵, nor to delegate to him powers which they themselves would not possess unless expressly given to them⁶. Where such a power of appointment is conferred upon the directors by the company's articles of association⁷, the company cannot take it away by means of an ordinary resolution⁸; but if, owing to internal dissensions, the directors cannot make the appointment, the company may do so⁹.

The appointment of a director as managing director without any specified time limit does not entitle him to hold office as managing director so long as he remains a director, nor does an article which forbids a director from voting on a contract in which he is interested prevent him from voting for his own appointment as managing director, if the appointment carries no special remuneration; but it is otherwise if it does¹⁰. The appointment will usually terminate if for any reason the managing director ceases to be a director¹¹. If, however, he ceases to be a director before the period for which he was appointed has expired as the result of the exercise of a power introduced into the articles after his appointment, he will be entitled to damages for breach of contract¹²; but he will not be so entitled if the power existed in the articles at the date of his appointment¹³.

If invalidly appointed, a director may sue for services rendered upon a quantum meruit basis¹⁴.

The Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, provide that directors may undertake any services for the company that the directors decide: see Sch 1 art 19(1); Sch 2 art 19(1); Sch 3 art 23(1); and PARA 519. As to the model articles of association that have been prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, and their application generally, see PARA 228 et seq.

The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230. Accordingly, the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A makes provision for directors' appointments. Subject to the provisions of the Companies Acts, the directors may appoint one or more of their number to the office of managing director or to any other executive office of the company and may enter into an agreement or arrangement with any director for his employment by the company or for the provision by him of any services outside the scope of the ordinary duties of a director: Table A art 84. Any such appointment, agreement or arrangement may be made upon such terms as the directors determine and they may remunerate any such director for his services as they think fit; and any appointment of a director to an executive office will terminate if he ceases to be a director but without prejudice to any claim to damages for breach of the contract of service between the director and the company: Table A art 84. A managing director and a director holding any other executive office are not to be subject to retirement by rotation: Table A art 84. 539. Directors' position as trustees of the company's property.

A company's directors¹ are trustees of the property of the company that is in their hands or under their control²; but they are not trustees for individual shareholders³ or the creditors⁴ of the company, nor are they in the same position as trustees of a will or settlement⁵. A director must account to the company for all of the company's property in his control⁶.

Unless so directed by the articles, the directors are not bound to invest the funds (such as, for example, reserve funds of the company) only in securities which a trustee may invest in, but they may purchase such securities as they consider to be most beneficial for the company⁷. They may invest in the name of a sole trustee⁸, and lend on securities of a speculative nature⁹, but they are liable in respect of an investment made contrary to a resolution of the company effectively¹⁰ directing a different investment¹¹. Except in so far as they have properly delegated the duty of investing the funds of the company, and attending to the securities in which they are invested, directors are bound to see that the funds are in a proper state of investment¹²; and in order to ascertain the financial position of the company with a view to paying a dividend the directors should at least have before them a list of the investments¹³.

(A) ACTING WITHIN POWERS

540. Duty to act within powers.

The Companies Act 2006, in setting out general duties¹ that are owed to the company², provides that a director³ of a company must: (1) act in accordance with the company's constitution⁴; and (2) only exercise powers for the purposes for which they are conferred⁵.

Generally, a company's directors may do whatever is fairly incidental to the exercise of their powers in carrying out the objects of the company⁶.

However, in Parke v Daily News Ltd [1962] Ch 927, [1962] 2 All ER 929, it was held that directors were not entitled to treat dismissed employees generously beyond all entitlement (but see now the Companies Act 2006 s 247; and PARA 546). It is a breach of the duties owed by directors to the company (or alternatively an act which is ultra vires the company) to enter into an arrangement which sought to achieve a distribution of assets, as if on a winding up, without making proper provision for creditors: MacPherson v European Strategic Bureau Ltd [2000] 2 BCLC 683, CA. As to the meaning of 'ultra vires' for these purposes see PARA 259; and see PARA 542 et seq.

541. Duty to act in accordance with constitution.

The extent of the directors' authority to act¹ is a matter for the company's constitution², but is also a matter of agency law³.

A company's articles of association⁴ usually contain provisions as to the directors' general powers and responsibilities⁵. If, as is usual, the general management of the company's affairs is entrusted to the directors by the company's articles, a numerical majority of the shareholders insufficient to alter the articles cannot, in the absence of any provision in the articles reserving appropriate power, impose its will on the directors as regards matters so entrusted to them⁶. If the articles provide that regulations may be made by extraordinary resolution, an ordinary resolution is not sufficient to make a regulation which will control the directors⁷. If no power is reserved to the company to control the directors when acting within the powers conferred on them by the articles, the articles must be altered by special resolution, if it is desired to give the company such power⁸. Where, under the articles, the business of the company is to be managed by the directors and the articles confer on them the full powers of the company subject to such regulations, not inconsistent with the articles, as may be prescribed by the company, the shareholders are not enabled by resolution passed at a general meeting, without altering the articles, to give effective directions to the directors as to how the company's affairs are to be managed, nor are they able to overrule any decision reached by the directors in the conduct of company business⁹. An agreement made by the company which is inconsistent with the powers of management of the directors under the articles, as, for example, an agreement purporting to confer authority upon the manager of a department to act without interference by the directors, is *ultra vires*¹⁰.

1 As to a company's directors see PARA 478 et seq.

2 As to the meaning of references to a company's constitution under the Companies Act 2006 see PARA 227; and see PARA 540 note 4.

3 As to the directors' position as company's agents see PARA 271. As to notice of a company's constitution being assumed see PARA 266.

4 As to a company's articles of association generally see PARA 228 et seq. As to model articles of association prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, and their application generally, see PARA 228 et seq. Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'limited company', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230.

5 Under the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, subject to the articles, the directors are responsible for the management of the company's business, for which purpose they may exercise all the powers of the company: Sch 1 art 3; Sch 2 art 3; Sch 3 art 3. The members or shareholders (as the case may be) may, by special resolution, direct the directors to take (or refrain from taking) specified action (Sch 1 art 4(1); Sch 2 art 4(1); Sch 3 art 4(1)); but such a special resolution does not invalidate anything which the directors have done before the passing of the resolution (Sch 1 art 4(2); Sch 2 art 4(2); Sch 3 art 4(2)). As to meetings of directors and their role in the management of a company see PARA 528 et seq; and as to the extent to which directors may delegate powers, including to committees, see PARA 537. As to presuming delegation see PARA 272 et seq. As to special resolutions see PARA 614. As to shareholders and the membership of companies generally see PARA 321 et seq.

The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides that, subject to the provisions of the Companies Acts, the memorandum and the articles, and to any directions given by special resolution, the business of the company must be managed by the directors who may exercise all the powers of the company: Table A art 70. No alteration of the memorandum or articles and no such direction will invalidate any prior act of the directors which would have been valid if that alteration had not been made or that direction had not been given: Table A art 70. The powers given by Table A art 70 may not be limited by any special power given to the directors by the articles and a meeting of directors at which a quorum is present may exercise all powers exercisable by the directors: Table A art 70. As to a company's memorandum of association (the role of which has been altered fundamentally under the Companies Act 2006) see PARA 104. As to the procedure for altering a company's constitutional documents generally see PARA 232 et seq. As to the quorum required for a meeting of directors see PARA 529. Under Table A art 70, the entire management of the company, including its financial direction, rests solely in the hands of the directors, and accordingly resolutions by the company purporting to interfere with this management are invalid: see Scott v Scott [1943] 1 All ER 582 (resolutions to make advance payments to shareholders pending declaration of dividends). As to resolutions of the company see PARA 629 et seq. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but art 70 is applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital), and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital). As to the meaning of 'unlimited company' see PARA 102. As to the meanings of 'company having a share capital' and 'share capital' see PARA 1042.

542. Acts ultra vires the company; acts beyond the directors' authority.

The validity of an act done by a company¹ may not be called into question on the ground of lack of capacity by reason of anything in the company's constitution².

In favour of a person dealing with the company in good faith, the power of the directors³ to bind the company, or to authorise others to do so, is deemed to be free of any limitation under the company's constitution⁴.

These provisions largely abolish the effect of the old ultra vires doctrine on relations between a company and third parties⁵ and confer protection on such parties, unless they have acted in bad faith, in respect of acts beyond the authority of the directors⁶.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(v) General Duties of Directors/B. THE GENERAL DUTIES/(A) Acting within Powers/543. Duty to exercise company's powers for purpose conferred.

543. Duty to exercise company's powers for purpose conferred.

Directors in the exercise of their powers are fiduciary agents¹ for the company².

Save in relation to the special case of providing for employees on cessation or transfer of business³, directors cannot in any case lawfully use their powers except for the benefit, or intended benefit, of the company⁴. The proper approach to an exercise of the directors' powers is to start with a consideration of the power itself then for the court to examine the substantial purpose for which it was exercised and to conclude whether that exercise was proper or not⁵. Their powers of making calls and forfeiting shares and so on must not be used to favour themselves above other shareholders⁶, or to favour particular classes of shareholders⁷. It is unconstitutional for directors to enter into a management agreement which would frustrate the powers of management by directors at a time when, to the directors' knowledge, shareholders intend to appoint new directors, even though the directors so acting believe this to be in the best interests of the company⁸.

The law relating to a company's proper purposes does not require a claimant to prove that a director⁹ was dishonest, or that the director knew that he was pursuing a collateral purpose (and, in that sense, the test is an objective one)¹⁰.

When a dispute arises whether the directors of a company made a particular decision for one purpose or for another, or whether there being more than one purpose, one or another purpose was the substantial or primary purpose, the court is entitled to look at the situation objectively in order to estimate how critical or pressing or substantial an alleged requirement may have been¹¹.

Where directors exercise their powers improperly this may give rise to a claim by the company against them based on breach of duty¹². However, a bona fide breach of duty may be ratified by an ordinary resolution after full and frank disclosure by the directors to the shareholders¹³. Acting fraudulently or in the furtherance of the director's own interests nullifies his actual authority, but not his apparent authority¹⁴. Where the other party to a transaction is on notice, however, that the transaction was entered into by the directors for purposes other than the purposes of the company in breach of their fiduciary duties, he cannot rely on the ostensible authority of the directors and, on ordinary principles of agency, cannot hold the company to the transaction¹⁵.

The exercise by the directors of discretionary powers will not be interfered with unless it is proved that they have acted from some improper motive or arbitrarily and capriciously¹⁶.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(v) General Duties of Directors/B. THE GENERAL DUTIES/(B) Promoting Success of the Company/544. Duty to promote the success of the company.

(B) PROMOTING SUCCESS OF THE COMPANY

544. Duty to promote the success of the company.

The Companies Act 2006, in setting out general duties¹ that are owed to the company², provides that a director³ of a company must act in the way he considers, in good faith, would be most likely to promote the success of the company for the benefit of its members as a whole⁴. In doing so, he must have regard (amongst other matters) to:

- 931 (1) the likely consequences of any decision in the long term⁵;
- 932 (2) the interests of the company's employees⁶;
- 933 (3) the need to foster the company's business relationships with suppliers, customers and others⁷;
- 934 (4) the impact of the company's operations on the community and the environment⁸;
- 935 (5) the desirability of the company maintaining a reputation for high standards of business conduct⁹; and
- 936 (6) the need to act fairly as between members of the company¹⁰.

Where the company is part of a group and has its own separate legal identity and its own separate creditors, the directors must continue to act in the interests of the company rather than the group¹¹. In the absence of evidence of actual separate consideration of the interests of the company, the proper test is whether an intelligent and honest man in the position of a director of the company concerned could, in the whole of the existing circumstances, have reasonably believed that the transaction was for the benefit of the company¹². Where a proposal affects the rights of different groups of shareholders as against each other then the directors must not only exercise their powers in good faith in the interests of the company but they must also be exercised fairly as between the different classes or groups of shareholders¹³. Accordingly, the directors' powers of making calls and forfeiting shares and so on must not be used to favour themselves above other shareholders¹⁴, or to favour particular classes of shareholders¹⁵.

Where or to the extent that the purposes of the company consist of or include purposes other than the benefit of its members, the statutory duty¹⁶ has effect as if the reference to promoting the success of the company for the benefit of its members were to achieving those purposes¹⁷.

The duty so imposed¹⁸ has effect subject to any enactment¹⁹ or rule of law requiring directors, in certain circumstances, to consider or act in the interests of creditors of the company²⁰.

1 Ie in the Companies Act 2006 ss 171-177: see also PARAS 540 et seq, 547 et seq. As to the scope and nature of the directors' general duties see PARA 532; and as to the application and effect of the general duties see PARA 533. As to the relevance of case law on those common law rules and equitable principles that are now replaced by the statutory duties see PARA 532 note 7; and see PARA 540 et seq.

2 As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

3 As to the meaning of 'director' under the Companies Acts see PARA 478.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 172(1). As to the meaning of 'member' see PARA 321.

This duty may require a director to disclose his own misconduct to his principal (or, more generally, information of relevance and concern to his principal) in order for the duty to be satisfied: Item Software (UK) Ltd v Fassihi [2004] EWCA Civ 1244, [2005] 2 BCLC 91 (director obliged to disclose secret approach to client). A director, for example, has a duty to communicate to the company information which he has acquired as director and which is relevant for the company to know and would be of interest to it: Bhullar v Bhullar [2003] EWCA Civ 424 at [41], [2003] 2 BCLC 241 at [41] per Jonathan Parker LJ; British Midland Tool Ltd v Midland International Tooling Ltd [2003] EWHC 466 (Ch), [2003] 2 BCLC 523. As part of the duty to communicate information of interest to the company, a director may have to report any knowledge he has acquired concerning competition activity involving both himself and others, whether or not the activity in itself would constitute a breach by anyone of any relevant duty owed to the company: British Midland Tool Ltd v Midland International Tooling Ltd at [81]-[91]; Crown Dilmun v Sutton [2004] EWHC 52 (Ch) at [179]-[181], [2004] 1 BCLC 468 at [179]-[181]. Cf Horcal Ltd v Gatland [1984] BCLC 549, CA. There is, however, no separate and independent duty of disclosure; the single and overriding touchstone is the fundamental duty of a director to act in what he considers in good faith to be in the best interests of the company: Shepherds Investments Ltd v Walters [2006] EWHC 836 (Ch) at [132], [2007] 2 BCLC 202 at [132] per Etherton J. As to disclosure in the context of a director's general duty to avoid conflicts of interest see PARA 550 et seq.

Under the Companies Act 2006 s 417, save in the case of small companies, the directors' report (which forms part of the company's annual accounts and reports: see s 471(2),(3); and PARA 715) must include a business review whose purpose is to inform members of the company and help them assess how the directors have performed their duty under s 172: see PARA 819.

The duty under s 172 was previously expressed (ie prior to directors' duties being set out in the Companies Act 2006) in terms of a duty to act bona fide in what the directors considered to be the interests of the company (and not for any collateral purpose): see Re Smith & Fawcett Ltd [1942] Ch 304, [1942] 1 All ER 542, CA; Runciman v Walter Runciman plc [1992] BCLC 1084, [1993] BCC 223; Bishopsgate Investment Management Ltd (in liquidation) v Maxwell (No 2) [1994] 1 All ER 261, [1993] BCLC 1282, CA; Re BSB Holdings Ltd (No 2) [1996] 1 BCLC 155; Popely v Planarive Ltd [1997] 1 BCLC 8; Knight v Frost [1999] 1 BCLC 364; CAS (Nominees) Ltd v Nottingham Forest FC plc [2002] 1 BCLC 613; Extrasure Travel Insurances Ltd v Scattergood [2002] EWHC 3093 (Ch), [2003] 1 BCLC 598. 545. Director's obligation to consider or act in the creditors' interests.

The duty imposed on a director¹ by the Companies Act 2006², to act in the way he considers, in good faith, would be most likely to promote the success of the company³ for the benefit of its members⁴ as a whole, has effect subject to any enactment⁵ or rule of law requiring directors, in certain circumstances, to consider or act in the interests of creditors of the company⁶. The obligation to have regard to the interests of the creditors (in addition to those of the shareholders or members⁷) applies generally when the company, whether technically insolvent or not, is in financial difficulties such that the creditors' money is at risk⁸.

A breach of this obligation may be challenged by a liquidator under the Insolvency Act 1986 as a misfeasance⁹ or as a basis for a claim for wrongful trading¹⁰.

546. Directors' power to provide for employees on cessation or transfer of business.

The powers of the directors¹ of a company² include, if they would not otherwise do so, power to make provision for the benefit of persons employed or formerly employed by the company (or any of its subsidiaries³) in connection with the cessation or the transfer to any person of the whole or part of the undertaking⁴ of the company or that subsidiary⁵.

This power is exercisable notwithstanding the general duty imposed on a director by the Companies Act 2006⁶, to act in the way he considers, in good faith, would be most likely to promote the success of the company for the benefit of its members⁷ as a whole⁸. In the case of a company that is a charity⁹, the power is exercisable notwithstanding any restrictions on the directors' powers (or the company's capacity) flowing from the objects of the company¹⁰.

The power may only be exercised if sanctioned by a resolution of the company¹¹, or by a resolution of the directors¹², and only if such a resolution of the directors is authorised by the company's articles of association¹³ and only if any other requirements of the company's articles as to the exercise of the power so conferred¹⁴ are complied with¹⁵.

Any payment made pursuant to this power¹⁶ must be made before the commencement of any winding up of the company¹⁷, and only out of profits of the company that are available for dividend¹⁸. A resolution of the directors that purports to exercise this power¹⁹ is not sufficient sanction for payments to or for the benefit of directors, former directors or shadow directors²⁰.

(C) EXERCISE OF INDEPENDENT JUDGMENT

547. Duty to exercise independent judgment.

The Companies Act 2006, in setting out general duties¹ that are owed to the company², provides that a director³ of a company must exercise independent judgment⁴. This duty is not infringed by his acting either in accordance with an agreement duly entered into by the company that restricts the future exercise of discretion by its directors⁵, or in a way authorised by the company's constitution⁶.

Under the common law rules and equitable principles that apply in relation to this duty, directors in the exercise of their powers are fiduciary agents⁷ for the company⁸ and they owe a duty to the company to exercise an independent judgment accordingly⁹. Directors must not fetter their powers by contracts with or promises to other persons¹⁰, but it does not follow that directors can never make a contract by which they bind themselves to the future exercise of their powers in a particular manner¹¹.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(v) General Duties of Directors/B. THE GENERAL DUTIES/(D) Exercise of Care, Skill and Diligence/548. Duty to exercise reasonable care, skill and diligence.

(D) EXERCISE OF CARE, SKILL AND DILIGENCE

548. Duty to exercise reasonable care, skill and diligence.

The Companies Act 2006, in setting out general duties¹ that are owed to the company², provides that a director³ of a company must exercise reasonable care, skill and diligence⁴. This means the care, skill and diligence that would be exercised by a reasonably diligent person with: (1) the general knowledge, skill and experience that may reasonably be expected of a person carrying out the functions carried out by the director in relation to the company⁵; and (2) the general knowledge, skill and experience that the director has⁶.

The wording that appears under heads (1) and (2) above is identical in its terms to the provisions of the Insolvency Act 1986 which deal with wrongful trading⁷, in relation to the facts which a director of a company ought to know or ascertain, the conclusions which he ought to reach and the steps which he ought to take, being those which would be known or ascertained, or reached or taken, by a reasonably diligent person⁸.

The court will assess the competence of the director in the context of and by reference to how a particular company's business is organised and the part which the director could reasonably have been expected to play, given the role in the management chain of the company which was in fact assigned to him (or which he in fact assumed) and by reference to his duties and responsibilities in that role⁹. There must be sufficient causal link between the breach of duty by the director and the loss suffered by the company¹⁰.

Facts which may show imprudence in the exercise of powers clearly conferred upon directors will not subject them to personal responsibility unless the imprudence amounts to negligence, which must be distinctly charged¹¹. If they act within their powers, they are not liable for loss to the company occasioned by mere imprudence or error of judgment¹², and, in making investments, they are only bound to act in the same manner as business persons of ordinary prudence¹³.

4. Companies Act 2006 s 174(1).

It is, in any case, an implied term of a contract of service that a person will perform his duties with proper care and skill: see Lister v Romford Ice and Cold Storage Co Ltd [1957] AC 555 at 572-573, [1957] 1 All ER 125 at 130, HL, per Viscount Simonds; and EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 53. See further PARA 549. However, the provisions of the Supply of Goods and Services Act 1982 s 13 (which state that, in a contract for the supply of a service where the supplier is acting in the course of a business, there is an implied term that the supplier will carry out the service with reasonable care and skill) (see SALE OF GOODS AND SUPPLY OF SERVICES vol 41 (2005 Reissue) PARA 97) do not apply to services rendered to a company by a director in his capacity as such: Supply of Services (Exclusion of Implied Terms) Order 1982, SI 1982/1771, art 2(2).

6. Companies Act 2006 s 174(2)(b).

7. In the Insolvency Act 1986 s 214 (declaration of liability for wrongful trading) (see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(4) (2004 Reissue) PARA 914).

8. See the Insolvency Act 1986 s 214(4); and COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(4) (2004 Reissue) PARA 914. In proceedings under the Insolvency Act 1986 s 214, the standard has been described as an objective minimum, although one which may be raised by the particular attributes of the director in question: see Re Brian D Pierson (Contractors) Ltd [2001] 1 BCLC 275 (no suggestion that any higher standard than the objective minimum applied in this case).

Prior to the enactment of the Companies Act 2006 s 174, the wording of the Insolvency Act 1986 s 214(4) (see note 7) was recognised judicially as being a useful exposition of the standard of care required of a director generally under company law: see Norman v Theodore Goddard (a firm), (Quirk, third party) [1991] BCLC 1028; Re D'Jan of London Ltd [1994] 1 BCLC 561 at 563 per Hoffman LJ; Re Landhurst Leasing plc, Secretary of State for Trade and Industry v Ball [1999] 1 BCLC 286 at 344 per Hart J; Cohen v Selby [2001] 1 BCLC 176 at 183, CA, per Chadwick LJ; Re Loquitur Ltd, IRC v Richmond [2003] EWHC 999 (Ch) at [241], [2003] 2 BCLC 442 at [241] per Etherton J. The statutory statement contained in the Insolvency Act 1986 s 214(4) was thought to reflect modern standards more accurately than the formulation, which had been much cited in this context, given in Re City Equitable Fire Insurance Co Ltd [1925] Ch 407 at 427-430 per Romer J (a director need not exhibit in the performance of his duties a greater degree of skill than may reasonably be expected from a person of his knowledge and experience). It is arguable that a company may reasonably at least look to non-executive directors for independence of judgment and supervision of the executive management: see Equitable Life Assurance Society v Bowley [2003] EWHC 2263 (Comm) at [41], [2004] 1 BCLC 180 at [41] per Langley J. In Bishopsgate Investment Management Ltd (in liquidation) v Maxwell (No 2) at 264, 1285, Hoffmann LJ acknowledged that, in the older cases, the duty of a director to participate in the management of a company is stated in very undemanding terms and that the law may be evolving in response to changes in public attitudes to corporate governance, as shown by the enactment of the provisions consolidated in the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986. The directors' duty to exercise reasonable care, skill and diligence has often been discussed in the context of proceedings under the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986 (as to which generally see PARA 1575 et seq) and a summary of the principles that govern this particular directors' duty is incomplete without reference also to matters, for example, which have been considered when determining the unfitness of directors under that Act (see PARA 1578 et seq). Accordingly, see also Re Polly Peck International plc (No 2) [1994] 1 BCLC 574 at 594 per Lindsay J; Re Barings plc, Secretary of State for Trade and Industry v Baker (No 5) [1999] 1 BCLC 433 at 489 per Jonathan Parker J (affd [2000] 1 BCLC 523, CA); Re Vintage Hallmark plc, Secretary of State for Trade and Industry v Grove [2006] EWHC 2761 (Ch), [2007] 1 BCLC 788, [2006] All ER (D) 196 (Nov) (all cases decided under the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986).

Similarly, in Re Uno plc and World of Leather plc, Secretary of State for Trade and Industry v Gill [2004] EWHC 933 (Ch), [2006] BCC 725, a case decided under the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986 (see note 9), it was held that continuing to accept customer deposits and using these to fund ongoing trading did not necessarily amount to unfitness, given that at all material times there was a reasonable prospect of avoiding insolvency thereby.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(v) General Duties of Directors/B. THE GENERAL DUTIES/(D) Exercise of Care, Skill and Diligence/549. Obligation to acquire knowledge and understanding and to exercise supervision.

549. Obligation to acquire knowledge and understanding and to exercise supervision.

Directors, collectively and individually, have a continuing duty to acquire and maintain a sufficient knowledge and understanding of the company's business to enable them properly to discharge their duties as directors¹. Whilst directors are entitled (subject to the articles of association of the company²) to delegate particular functions to those below them in the management chain³, and to trust their competence and integrity to a reasonable extent, the exercise of the power of delegation does not absolve a director from the duty to supervise the discharge of the delegated functions⁴. No rule of universal application can be formulated as to the duty to supervise, and the extent of the duty, and the question whether it has been discharged must depend on the facts of each particular case, including the director's role in the management of the company⁵.

Directors are not guilty of negligence if they fail to supervise acts of co-directors whom they have no reason to distrust⁶ or act in reliance on the officers of the company whom they are entitled to trust and whose reports and statements have misled them⁷; nor are they bound to know the contents of the company's books⁸.

A director is not liable for the misapplication of a cheque properly drawn⁹, but, before a director signs a cheque, he should satisfy himself that a resolution of the directors or of a committee of the directors has authorised the payment¹⁰. A director is not liable for omitting to claim a debt to the company, or to enforce a liability incurred before he joined the board¹¹.

Industry v Grove [2006] EWHC 2761 (Ch), [2007] 1 BCLC 788, [2006] All ER (D) 196 (Nov). A consistent theme in the cases decided under the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986 is that, while the court had to consider the extent of a director's responsibility, a director could not avoid his responsibility by leaving the management to another or others: Secretary of State for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform v Sullman [2008] EWHC 3179 (Ch) at [2], [2009] 1 BCLC 397 at [2]; Secretary of State for Trade and Industry v Thornbury [2007] EWHC 3202 (Ch), [2008] 1 BCLC 139 (it is no defence to say that the matter was left to others, unless and except to the extent that it was reasonable to do so). Accordingly, a director who has abdicated his responsibility to participate with fellow directors may be deemed to have acquiesced in misconduct (Re AG (Manchester) Ltd (in liquidation), Official Receiver v Watson [2008] EWHC 64 (Ch), [2008] 1 BCLC 321, [2008] All ER (D) 188 (Jan) (director who objected to malpractices was deemed nevertheless to be in dereliction of duty over her failure to resign on the matter)); and the duty to act cannot be excused by lack of curiosity or lack of action (Lexi Holdings (in administration) v Luqman [2009] EWCA Civ 117, [2009] 2 BCLC 1, [2009] All ER (D) 269 (Feb)).

If it is pleaded that delegation was made to a person who was unsuitable to be entrusted with the powers, it must be established that the person was unsuitable and that the directors knew or ought to have known that or that they failed to consider the question at all: Cohen v Selby [2001] 1 BCLC 176 at 185, CA, per Chadwick LJ. The extent to which a non-executive director may reasonably rely on the executive directors and other professionals to perform their duties is one in which the law can fairly be said to be developing and is plainly 'fact sensitive': Equitable Life Assurance Society v Bowley [2003] EWHC 2263 (Comm) at [41], [2004] 1 BCLC 180 at [41] per Langley J.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(v) General Duties of Directors/B. THE GENERAL DUTIES/(E) Duty as to Conflicts of Interest/550. Duty to avoid conflicts of interest.

(E) DUTY AS TO CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

550. Duty to avoid conflicts of interest.

The Companies Act 2006, in setting out general duties¹ that are owed to the company², provides that a director³ of a company must avoid a situation in which he has, or can have, a direct or indirect interest that conflicts, or possibly may conflict, with the interests of the company⁴. This duty applies in particular to the exploitation of any property, information or opportunity (and it is immaterial whether the company could take advantage of the property, information or opportunity)⁵. However, the duty is not infringed if the matter is authorised by the directors⁶, or by the shareholders⁷, or by the articles⁸.

The test is whether reasonable persons looking at the facts would think there was a real possibility of conflict⁹.

A director must account to the company for any unauthorised profits made by him when in a position of conflict¹⁰. This rule is absolute and independent of any question of fraud or absence of good faith¹¹, and it matters not that the company itself could not have made the profits (or the quantum of profits) which the director made¹². If, however, the company renounces its interest in a particular venture, with full knowledge of the circumstances, which is then taken up by the director, he will no longer be liable to account¹³. Equally, a company with full knowledge of the circumstances of a director's interest in a proposed transaction with the company may approve or acquiesce in his profiting¹⁴.

If directors use their position as directors to obtain for themselves the property of the company, as, for example, by means of securing a beneficial contract, they cannot by using their voting power as shareholders in general meeting prevent the company from claiming the benefit of it¹⁵. A director continues to be subject to the duty to avoid conflicts of interest, as regards the exploitation of any property, even when he ceases to be a director¹⁶, especially if he resigns with a view to taking advantage of current business opportunities available to the company¹⁷.

The statutory duty to avoid conflicts of interest¹⁸ does not apply to a conflict of interest arising in relation to a transaction or arrangement with the company¹⁹; and the duty is not infringed if the situation cannot reasonably be regarded as likely to give rise to a conflict of interest²⁰, or if the matter has been authorised by the directors²¹.

Directors who make what they believe to be a beneficial contract for the company are not chargeable with breach of trust merely because in promoting the interests of the company they were promoting their own interests by enabling themselves to sell their shares at a profit²².

4 Companies Act 2006 s 175(1). Any reference in s 175 to a conflict of interest includes a conflict of interest and duty and a conflict of duties: s 175(7). See the text and notes 10-17. The duty to avoid conflicts has an obvious bearing on interests in proposed or existing transactions or agreements involving the company and special provision is made in relation to those: see the text and notes 18-19; and PARA 555 et seq.

At common law, the general rule is that no fiduciary is allowed to enter into engagements in which he has, or can have, a personal interest conflicting, or which may possibly conflict, with the interests of those whom he is bound to protect: Aberdeen Rly Co v Blaikie Bros (1854) 1 Macq 461 at 471 per Lord Cranworth LC (rule described as 'of universal application'); Bray v Ford [1896] AC 44 at 51, HL, per Lord Herschell (rule described as 'inflexible'); Bhullar v Bhullar [2003] EWCA Civ 424, [2003] 2 BCLC 241. As to the general fiduciary position of directors see PARA 532 et seq.

Directors cannot in the absence of express contract be restrained from acting as directors of a competing company: London and Mashonaland Exploration Co Ltd v New Mashonaland Exploration Co Ltd [1891] WN 165, approved in Bell v Lever Bros Ltd [1932] AC 161 at 195, HL, per Lord Blanesburgh. However, the principle established in London and Mashonaland Exploration Co Ltd v New Mashonaland Exploration Co Ltd may be restricted to its very individual facts and (accordingly) limited in its application: see In Plus Group Ltd v Pyke [2002] EWCA Civ 370 at [84], [2002] 2 BCLC 201 at [84] per Sedley LJ; British Midland Tool Ltd v Midland International Tooling Ltd [2003] EWHC 466 (Ch) at [82], [2003] 2 BCLC 523 at [82] per Hart J; Foster Bryant Surveying Ltd v Bryant [2007] EWCA Civ 200 at [70], [2007] 2 BCLC 239 at [70] per Rix LJ. See also PARA 532. See In Plus Group Ltd v Pyke (where a director had been effectively excluded from the first company, it was not a breach of fiduciary duty for him to work for a competing company where, when entering into business with this company, he had not made use of the first company's property or of confidential information which had come to him as director of that company).

5 Companies Act 2006 s 175(2). See the text and notes 10-17. As to a director's position at common law as trustee of the company's property see PARA 539.

6 See PARA 551.

7 See the Companies Act 2006 s 180(4)(a); and PARA 533. But see also the text and note 15. As to shareholders and membership of companies generally see PARA 321 et seq.

8 It is only to the extent permitted by the Companies Act 2006 s 180(4)(a) (see PARA 533), which must be read in conjunction with s 232(4) (providing that nothing in s 232 prevents a company's articles from making such provision as has previously been lawful for dealing with conflicts of interest) (see PARA 594). As to a company's articles of association generally see PARA 228 et seq.

The model articles of association that have been prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 (ie the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229) (as to which see PARA 228 et seq) do not make any provision explicitly in relation to a director's interests but they do make provision (as do the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A arts 85-86 otherwise) for conflicts that may arise from any interests a director may have in an actual or proposed transaction or arrangement with the company: see PARA 555. See also PARA 558 note 4.

The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, which constitute model articles that were prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230. Accordingly, the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides that, subject to the provisions of the Companies Act 2006, and provided that he has disclosed to the directors the nature and extent of any material interest of his, a director notwithstanding his office: (1) may be a director or other officer of, or employed by, or otherwise interested in, any body corporate promoted by the company or in which the company is otherwise interested; and (2) is not, by reason of his office, accountable to the company for any benefit which he derives from any such office or employment or from any interest in any such body corporate: see Table A art 85. For these purposes, an interest of which a director has no knowledge and of which it is unreasonable to expect him to have knowledge is not treated as an interest of his: see Table A art 86. Special provision is made by Table A arts 85-86 also in relation to interests in proposed or existing transactions or agreements involving the company: see PARA 555. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but arts 85-86 are applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital), and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital). As to the meaning of 'unlimited company' see PARA 102. As to the meanings of 'company having a share capital' and 'share capital' see PARA 1042.

the directors were in breach of the 'no conflicts' rule; and the subsequent redress they made to a third director for the wrong suffered did not retrospectively affect that breach: O'Donnell v Shanahan [2009] EWCA Civ 751, (2009) Times, 21 August, [2009] All ER (D) 253 (Jul) (revsg [2008] EWHC 1973 (Ch), sub nom Re Allied Business and Financial Consultants Ltd [2009] 1 BCLC 328).

See also Parker v McKenna (1874) 10 Ch App 96 (where directors had to account for profits made in dealings with new capital); Regal (Hastings) Ltd v Gulliver (1942) [1967] 2 AC 134n, [1942] 1 All ER 378; Cockburn v Newbridge Sanitary Steam Laundry Co Ltd and Llewellyn [1915] 1 IR 237, CA. The 'no profits' rule applies to a person who has agreed to become a director (Henderson v Huntington Copper and Sulphur Co (1878) 5 R 1, HL; Albion Steel and Wire Co v Martin (1875) 1 ChD 580), and to persons entering into contracts on behalf of an intended company (Phosphate Sewage Co v Hartmont (1877) 5 ChD 394, CA), as well as to a de facto director. If necessary, the court will lift the corporate veil where a company is used by a director to receive, in breach of his fiduciary duty, profits or corporate property for which he is accountable: Gencor ACP Ltd v Dalby [2000] 2 BCLC 734; Trustor AB v Smallbone (No 2) [2001] 3 All ER 987, [2001] 1 WLR 1177 (relevant person had to have control of the company for the corporate veil to be pierced). As to de facto directors, and the duties which they owe, see PARA 478 note 8. See further Re Imperial Land Co of Marseilles, ex p Larking (1877) 4 ChD 566, CA (where the directors were not allowed to make a profit out of a fraudulent transaction); and PARA 554. See also the cases cited in note 11; and Chan v Zacharia (1984) 154 CLR 178 (cited with approval in Don King Productions Inc v Warren [2000] Ch 291 at 340-341, [1999] 2 All ER 218 at 238-239, CA, per Morritt LJ) regarding the interplay between the 'no-profit' rule and the 'no-conflict' rule (see PARA 550 et seq), although it is clear from the Companies Act 2006 s 175(1) (see the text and notes 1-4) that the overriding rule is the 'no-conflict' rule.

The liability to account under the 'no profits' rule is not to be qualified by reference to whether the impugned transaction was (in the case of an alleged breach by a director) within or without the scope of the company's business: O'Donnell v Shanahan [2009] EWCA Civ 751, (2009) Times, 21 August, [2009] All ER (D) 253 (Jul). Accordingly, Aas v Benham [1891] 2 Ch 244, CA (see also PARTNERSHIP vol 79 (2008) PARA 107) is of no relevance in considering the extent and application of the 'no profit' and 'no conflict' rules so far as they apply to fiduciaries such as trustees and directors: O'Donnell v Shanahan at [61]-[69] per Rimer LJ. As to the duty to account in relation to partnerships see PARTNERSHIP vol 79 (2008) PARA 107.

As to the related question of whether an equitable allowance might be made in respect of services rendered by a director in earning any profits which are at issue see Phipps v Boardman [1964] 2 All ER 187 at 208, [1964] 1 WLR 993 at 1018 per Wilberforce J (affd sub nom Boardman v Phipps [1967] 2 AC 46, [1966] 3 All ER 721, HL) (allowance made to trustee for work performed for benefit of trust, even though outside terms of trust deed); Guinness plc v Saunders [1990] 2 AC 663 at 701, [1990] 1 All ER 652 at 667, HL, per Lord Goff of Chieveley; and Crown Dilmun v Sutton at [211]-[213] (where dishonesty is found, that will militate against making any allowances but it should not be excluded as a possibility). In Re Quarter Master UK Ltd, Quarter Master UK v Pyke [2004] EWHC 1815 (Ch), [2005] 1 BCLC 245, no allowance was made, applying the approach of Guinness plc v Saunders at 701, 667, per Lord Goff of Chieveley, that the exercise of the jurisdiction is restricted to those cases where it cannot have the effect of encouraging trustees (or directors) in any way to put themselves in a position where their interests conflict with their duties as trustees (or directors). As to quantum meruit see RESTITUTION vol 40(1) (2007 Reissue) PARAS 7, 113 et seq.

A director cannot avoid accountability for secret profits by the simple expedient of resigning: News International plc v Clinger [1998] All ER (D) 592. See also the Companies Act 2006 s 170(2) (a person who ceases to be a director continues to be subject to the duty in s 175); and PARA 533.

See also Parker v McKenna (1874) 10 Ch App 96 at 124 per James LJ. In O'Donnell v Shanahan [2009] EWCA Civ 751, (2009) Times, 21 August, [2009] All ER (D) 253 (Jul), two directors obtained information while acting as directors in the course of setting up a property transaction for the company, but they made use of that information in order to take up the opportunity for their own benefit once the original transaction fell through; it was held that, as they did not offer the renewed opportunity to the company, but took it up personally, they engaged in a transaction that rendered them liable to account under the 'no profit' rule.

Requirements for disclosure are not confined to the nature of the director's interest: they extend to disclosure of its extent, including the source and scale of the profit made from his position, so as to ensure that the shareholders are 'fully informed of the real state of things': Gwembe Valley Development Co Ltd v Koshy (No 3) at [65] per Mummery LJ, citing Gray v New Augarita Porcupine Mines Ltd [1952] 3 DLR 1 at 14, PC.

As to the ratification by a company of conduct by a director amounting to negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust in relation to the company, and as to the statutory limitation on such ratification that applies, see the Companies Act 2006 s 239; and PARA 593.

16 See the Companies Act 2006 s 170(2); and PARA 533. This provides that a person who ceases to be a director continues to be subject to the duty in s 175(2) (see the text and note 5), ie the 'no conflict' rule in s 175(1) (see the text and notes 1-4) falls away, but the 'no profit' duty in s 175(2) continues to apply to the extent dictated by s 170(2): see Ultraframe (UK) Ltd v Fielding, Northstar Systems Ltd v Fielding [2005] EWHC 1638 (Ch) at [1309]-[1310], [2005] All ER (D) 397 (Jul) at [1309]-[1310] per Lewison J; and Wilkinson v West Coast Capital [2005] EWHC 3009 (Ch) at [251], [2005] All ER (D) 346 (Dec) at [251] per Warren J.

17 Island Export Finance Ltd v Umunna [1986] BCLC 460; CMS Dolphin Ltd v Simonet [2001] 2 BCLC 704. The underlying basis of liability of a director who resigns and then exploits a maturing business opportunity of his former company is that the opportunity is to be treated as if it were property of the company in relation to which the director had fiduciary duties; and by seeking to exploit the opportunity after resignation he is appropriating for himself that property and he becomes constructive trustee of the fruits of his abuse of the company's property, which he has acquired in circumstances where he knowingly had a conflict of interest: CMS Dolphin Ltd v Simonet. See also Industrial Development Consultants Ltd v Cooley [1972] 2 All ER 162, [1972] 1 WLR 443; Shepherds Investments Ltd v Walters [2006] EWHC 836 (Ch), [2007] 2 BCLC 202; and Kingsley IT Consulting v McIntosh [2006] EWHC 1288 (Ch), [2006] BCC 875.

Prior to resigning, a director must take care not to place himself in a position of conflict; however, the precise point at which preparations for the establishment of a competing business by a director become unlawful will turn on the actual facts of any particular case; the touchstone for what, on the one hand, is permissible, and what, on the other hand, is impermissible unless consent is obtained from the company or employer after full disclosure, is what, in the case of a director, will be in breach of the fiduciary duties: see Shepherds Investments Ltd v Walters at [108] per Etherton J; and see Simtel Communications Ltd v Rebek [2006] EWHC 572 (QB), [2006] 2 BCLC 571. 19 Companies Act 2006 s 175(3). For the purposes of Pt 10 (ss 154-259) (see PARA 478 et seq) it is immaterial whether the law that (apart from the Companies Act 2006) governs an arrangement or transaction is the law of the United Kingdom, or a part of it, or not: s 259. As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 1 note 5. As to the other provisions that govern interests in proposed or existing transactions or agreements involving the company see note 4.

In relation to companies which are charities, it is provided, instead of the wording given in s 175(3), that the duty does not apply to a conflict of interest arising in relation to a transaction or arrangement with the company if or to the extent that the company's articles allow that duty to be so disapplied, which they may do only in relation to descriptions of transaction or arrangement specified in the company's articles: see s 175(3) (substituted by s 181(2)(a)). 550 Duty to avoid conflicts of interest

NOTES 4, 17--See Berryland Books Ltd v BK Books Ltd [2009] EWHC 1877 (Ch), [2009] 2 BCLC 709.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. Authorisation by directors regarding potential conflicts.

551. Authorisation by directors regarding potential conflicts.

The statutory duty to avoid conflicts of interest¹ is not infringed if the matter has been authorised by the directors². Such authorisation may be given by the directors³: (1) where the company is a private company⁴, and nothing in the company's constitution invalidates such authorisation, by the matter being proposed to and authorised by the directors⁵; or (2) where the company is a public company⁶, and its constitution includes provision⁷ enabling the directors to authorise the matter, by the matter being proposed to and authorised by them in accordance with the constitution⁸. However, the authorisation is effective only if: (a) any requirement as to the quorum at the meeting at which the matter is considered is met without counting the director in question or any other interested director⁹; and (b) the matter was agreed to without their voting or would have been agreed to if their votes had not been counted¹⁰.

In a case where the provisions which require conflicts of interest to be avoided¹¹ are complied with by directors' authorisation¹², the transaction or arrangement is not liable to be set aside by virtue of any common law rule or equitable principle requiring the consent or approval of the members of the company¹³. This is without prejudice to any enactment¹⁴, or provision of the company's constitution, requiring such consent or approval¹⁵.

3 In relation to companies which are charities, heads (1) and (2) in the text do not apply and it is provided instead that authorisation may be given by the directors where the company's constitution includes provision enabling them to authorise the matter, by the matter being proposed to and authorised by them in accordance with the constitution: see the Companies Act 2006 s 175(5) (substituted by s 181(2)(b)). 552. Authorisation of conflicts by the articles.

The general duties that are specified by the Companies Act 2006¹ as being owed by a director² of a company³ to the company are not infringed, where the company's articles contain provisions for dealing with conflicts of interest⁴, by anything done (or omitted) by the directors, or any of them, in accordance with those provisions⁵.

In a case where the provisions requiring conflicts of interest to be avoided⁶ are complied with by directors' authorisation⁷, the transaction or arrangement is not liable to be set aside by virtue of any common law rule or equitable principle requiring the consent or approval of the members of the company⁸. This is without prejudice to any enactment⁹, or provision of the company's constitution, requiring such consent or approval¹⁰.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(v) General Duties of Directors/B. THE GENERAL DUTIES/(F) Benefits from Third Parties/553. Duty not to accept benefits from third parties.

(F) BENEFITS FROM THIRD PARTIES

553. Duty not to accept benefits from third parties.

The Companies Act 2006, in setting out general duties¹ that are owed to the company², provides that a director³ of a company must not accept a benefit from a third party⁴ conferred by reason of either his being a director⁵, or his doing (or not doing) anything as director⁶.

This duty is not infringed if the acceptance of the benefit cannot reasonably be regarded as likely to give rise to a conflict of interest⁷; and the general duties that are so specified by the Companies Act 2006 as being owed by a director to the company:

937 (1) have effect subject to any rule of law enabling the company to give authority, specifically or generally, for anything to be done (or omitted) by the directors, or any of them, that would otherwise be a breach of duty⁸; and

938 (2) where the company's articles contain provisions for dealing with conflicts of interest, are not infringed by anything done (or omitted) by the directors, or any of them, in accordance with those provisions⁹.

1 In the Companies Act 2006 ss 171-177: see also PARAS 540 et seq. As to the scope and nature of the directors' general duties see PARA 532; and as to the application and effect of the general duties see PARA 533. As to the relevance of case law on those common law rules and equitable principles that are now replaced by the statutory duties see PARA 532 note 7.

2 As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

3 As to the meaning of 'director' under the Companies Acts see PARA 478.

4 For these purposes, a 'third party' means a person other than the company, an associated body corporate or a person acting on behalf of the company or an associated body corporate: Companies Act 2006 s 176(2). For the purposes of Pt 10 (ss 154-259) (see PARA 478 et seq), bodies corporate are 'associated' if one is a subsidiary of the other or both are subsidiaries of the same body corporate: s 256(a). As to the meaning of 'body corporate' for the purposes of the Companies Acts see PARA 1 note 5; and as to the meaning of 'subsidiary' see PARA 25.

As to bribes see PARA 554.

5 Companies Act 2006 s 176(1)(a).

6 Companies Act 2006 s 176(1)(b). Benefits received by a director from a person by whom his services (as a director or otherwise) are provided to the company are not regarded as conferred by a third party: s 176(3).

7 Companies Act 2006 s 176(4). Any reference in s 176 to a conflict of interest includes a conflict of interest and duty and a conflict of duties: s 176(5). As to the general duty to avoid conflicts of interest see PARA 550; and see especially the cases cited in PARA 550 note 9.

Where the Companies Act 2006 Pt 10 Ch 4 (ss 188-226) (transactions with directors requiring approval of members) (see PARA 561 et seq) applies, and approval is given under Pt 10 Ch 4, or where the matter is one as to which it is provided that approval is not needed, it is not necessary also to comply with s 176: see s 180(2); and PARA 562.

8 See the Companies Act 2006 s 180(4)(a); and PARA 533. Head (1) in the text still would not, however, sanction receipt of a benefit amounting to a bribe (as to which see PARA 554).

9 See the Companies Act 2006 s 180(4)(b); and PARA 533. The provisions referred to in head (2) in the text may, of course, provide legitimately for directors' benefits. Head (2) in the text should be read in conjunction with s 232(4) (which provides that nothing in s 232 prevents a company's articles from making such provision as has previously been lawful for dealing with conflicts of interest) (see PARA 594).

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(v) General Duties of Directors/B. THE GENERAL DUTIES/(F) Benefits from Third Parties/554. Bribes.

554. Bribes.

Whenever a company director¹ becomes entitled to a sum of money² by way of a bribe from a vendor to the company, the company may recover, from the person giving the bribe, a sum equal to the amount of the bribe, on the basis that the person who gave it, the vendor, received from the company more than he was entitled to, measured by the amount of the bribe, the excess being money received by the vendor to the company's use³. If property representing the bribe increases in value or if a cash bribe is invested advantageously, the false fiduciary is accountable not only for the original amount or value of the bribe but also for the increased value of the property representing the bribe⁴. The fact that the director has agreed subsequently with the person giving the bribe to accept a smaller sum in prompt settlement and that this has been recovered from the director in full satisfaction of all claims against him is no defence to the person giving the bribe in a claim by the company for the balance⁵. The company may also recover against the person who gives the bribe damages for any loss sustained through entering a disadvantageous contract⁶, or it may rescind the contract⁷. A contract may be enforced by the company against the director if he has contracted as principal, deducting the amount of any secret profit which might accrue to him⁸.

4 A-G for Hong Kong v Reid [1994] 1 AC 324 at 331, [1994] 1 All ER 1 at 5, PC. The decision in Lister & Co v Stubbs (1890) 45 ChD 1, CA, to the effect that a director who had betrayed the trust placed in him and received a bribe was liable as a debtor only and the company could not follow the profit or bribe as trust property, was doubted in A-G for Hong Kong v Reid at 336 and 9. The relevant merits and application of Lister & Co v Stubbs and A-G for Hong Kong v Reid have been discussed in Daraydan Holdings Ltd v Solland International Ltd [2004] EWHC 622 (Ch) at [75]-[86], [2005] Ch 119 at [75]-[86], [2005] 4 All ER 73 at [75]-[86] per Lawrence Collins J. The judge indicated that, if the case were not distinguishable from Lister & Co v Stubbs, he would have applied A-G for Hong Kong v Reid; and that there are powerful policy reasons for ensuring that a fiduciary does not retain gains acquired in violation of fiduciary duty, regardless of whether the fiduciary is insolvent. This point is resolved by the Companies Act 2006 s 176 (duty not to accept benefits from third parties) (see PARA 553), which, together with s 178(2) (the duties, with the exception of the duty to exercise reasonable care, skill and diligence, are enforceable in the same way as any other fiduciary duty owed to a company by its directors) (see PARA 559), means that benefits accepted in breach of that duty (and, a fortiori, bribes) are held on trust for the company. As to the joint and several nature of the liability where more than one director is concerned see PARA 586.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(v) General Duties of Directors/B. THE GENERAL DUTIES/(G) Duty to Declare Interest in Proposed Transactions etc/555. Duty to declare interest in proposed transaction or arrangement with the company.

(G) DUTY TO DECLARE INTEREST IN PROPOSED TRANSACTIONS ETC

555. Duty to declare interest in proposed transaction or arrangement with the company.

The Companies Act 2006, in setting out general duties¹ that are owed to the company², provides that if a director³ of a company is in any way, directly or indirectly, interested in a proposed transaction or arrangement with the company, he must declare the nature and extent of that interest to the other directors⁴.

The declaration may (but need not) be made either at a meeting of the directors⁵, or by notice to the directors⁶. If such a declaration of interest⁷ proves to be (or becomes) inaccurate or incomplete, a further declaration must be made⁸. Any declaration so required⁹ must be made before the company enters into the transaction or arrangement¹⁰.

This restriction¹¹ does not require a declaration of an interest of which the director is not aware or where the director is not aware of the transaction or arrangement in question¹²; and a director need not declare an interest: (1) if it cannot reasonably be regarded as likely to give rise to a conflict of interest¹³; (2) if, or to the extent that, the other directors are already aware of it (and for this purpose the other directors are treated as aware of anything of which they ought reasonably to be aware)¹⁴; or (3) if, or to the extent that, it concerns terms of his service contract¹⁵ that have been or are to be considered either by a meeting of the directors¹⁶, or by a committee of the directors appointed for the purpose under the company's constitution¹⁷.

In a case where the provisions as the need to declare any interest in a proposed transaction or arrangement¹⁸ are complied with, the transaction or arrangement is not liable to be set aside by virtue of any common law rule or equitable principle requiring the consent or approval of the members of the company¹⁹. This is without prejudice to any enactment²⁰, or provision of the company's constitution, requiring such consent or approval²¹.

The strict common law doctrine against self-dealing by directors was commonly relaxed by means of a provision in the company's articles of association to this effect²². Accordingly, if a proposed decision of the directors is concerned with an actual or proposed transaction or arrangement with the company in which a director is interested, that director is not to be counted as participating in the decision-making process for quorum or voting purposes²³.

As to the general duty to avoid conflicts of interest see PARA 550. In Newgate Stud Co v Penfold [2004] EWHC 2993 (Ch), [2008] 1 BCLC 46, where a director bought a horse from his company via public auction, it was held that the self-dealing rule does and should apply to purchases at public auction because the inherent conflict in the fiduciary's position remains and there are many ways in which both the seller's agent and a bidder can influence the outcome of an auction both before the sale and during the bidding.

5 Companies Act 2006 s 177(2)(a). As to meetings of directors generally see PARA 528 et seq.

6 Companies Act 2006 s 177(2)(b). The text refers to notice that may be given to the directors in accordance with either s 184 or s 185: see s 177(2)(b). As to the application of Pt 10 Ch 3 (ss 182-187) to shadow directors see PARA 560.

Under the provisions of s 184, which apply to a declaration of interest made by notice in writing (s 184(1)), the director must send the notice to the other directors (s 184(2)). The notice may be sent in hard copy form (or, if the recipient has agreed to receive it in electronic form, in an agreed electronic form) (s 184(3)); and may be sent by hand or by post (or, if the recipient has agreed to receive it by electronic means, by agreed electronic means) (s 184(4)). Where a director declares an interest by notice in writing in accordance with s 184, the making of the declaration is deemed to form part of the proceedings at the next meeting of the directors after the notice is given (s 184(5)(a)); and the provisions of s 248 (minutes of meetings of directors) (see PARA 530) apply as if the declaration had been made at that meeting (s 184(5)(b)). As to directors' communications see PARA 528 note 3. As to documents or information sent or supplied in hard copy form see PARA 678; and as to documents or information sent or supplied in electronic form (or by electronic means) see PARA 679. As to the construction of references to service by post see STATUTES vol 44(1) (Reissue) PARA 1388.

General notice in accordance with s 185 is a sufficient declaration of interest in relation to the matters to which it relates: s 185(1). General notice is notice given to the directors of a company to the effect that the director: (1) has an interest (as member, officer, employee or otherwise) in a specified body corporate or firm and is to be regarded as interested in any transaction or arrangement that may, after the date of the notice, be made with that body corporate or firm (s 185(2)(a)); or (2) is connected with a specified person (other than a body corporate or firm) and is to be regarded as interested in any transaction or arrangement that may, after the date of the notice, be made with that person (s 185(2)(b)). The notice must state the nature and extent of the director's interest in the body corporate or firm or, as the case may be, the nature of his connection with the person: s 185(3). General notice is not effective, however, unless it is given at a meeting of the directors (s 185(4)(a)), or the director takes reasonable steps to secure that it is brought up and read at the next meeting of the directors after it is given (s 185(4)(b)). As to the meaning of 'member' see PARA 321. As to the meaning of 'officer' generally see PARA 607. As to the meaning of 'body corporate' for the purposes of the Companies Acts see PARA 1 note 5. As to the meaning of 'firm' see PARA 112 note 14. As to the meaning of references to a director being 'connected' with a person see PARA 481.

Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'limited company', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230.

23 Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 art 14(1); Sch 2 art 14(1); Sch 3 art 16(1). However, when the company by ordinary resolution disapplies the provision of the articles which would otherwise prevent a director from being counted as participating in the decision-making process, or when the director's interest cannot reasonably be regarded as likely to give rise to a conflict of interest, or when the director's conflict of interest arises from a permitted cause, a director who is interested in an actual or proposed transaction or arrangement with the company is to be counted as participating in the decision-making process for quorum and voting purposes: Sch 1 art 14(2), (3); Sch 2 art 14(2), (3); Sch 3 art 16(2), (3). For these purposes, the following are permitted causes: (1) a guarantee given, or to be given, by or to a director in respect of an obligation incurred by or on behalf of the company or any of its subsidiaries; (2) subscription, or an agreement to subscribe, for shares or other securities of the company or any of its subsidiaries, or to underwrite, sub-underwrite, or guarantee subscription for any such shares or securities; and (3) arrangements pursuant to which benefits are made available to employees and directors or former employees and directors of the company or any of its subsidiaries which do not provide special benefits for directors or former directors: Sch 1 art 14(4); Sch 2 art 14(4); Sch 3 art 16(4). References to proposed decisions and decision-making processes include any directors' meeting or part of a directors' meeting: see Sch 1 art 14(5); Sch 2 art 14(5); Sch 3 art 16(1), (2). If a question arises at a meeting of directors or of a committee of directors as to the right of a director to participate in the meeting (or part of the meeting) for voting or quorum purposes, the question may, before the conclusion of the meeting, be referred to the chairman whose ruling in relation to any director other than the chairman is to be final and conclusive: Sch 1 art 14(6); Sch 2 art 14(6); Sch 3 art 16(5). However, if any question as to the right to participate in the meeting (or part of the meeting) should arise in respect of the chairman, the question is to be decided by a decision of the directors at that meeting, for which purpose the chairman is not to be counted as participating in the meeting (or that part of the meeting) for voting or quorum purposes: Sch 1 art 14(7); Sch 2 art 14(7); Sch 3 art 16(6). As to the meaning of 'ordinary resolution' see PARA

613. As to chairing a directors' meeting see PARA 528; and as to the quorum required for such a meeting see PARA 529.

The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides that, save as otherwise provided by the articles, a director must not vote at a meeting of directors or of a committee of directors on any resolution concerning a matter in which he has, directly or indirectly, an interest or duty which is material and which conflicts or may conflict with the interests of the company unless his interest or duty arises only because the case falls within one or more of the following cases: (a) the resolution relates to the giving to him of a guarantee, security, or indemnity in respect of money lent to, or an obligation incurred by him for the benefit of, the company or any of its subsidiaries; (b) the resolution relates to the giving to a third party of a guarantee, security, or indemnity in respect of an obligation of the company or any of its subsidiaries for which the director has assumed responsibility in whole or part and whether alone or jointly with others under a guarantee or indemnity or by the giving of security; (c) his interest arises by virtue of his subscribing or agreeing to subscribe for any shares, debentures, or other securities of the company or any of its subsidiaries, or by virtue of his being, or intending to become, a participant in the underwriting or sub-underwriting of an offer of any such shares, debentures, or other securities by the company or any of its subsidiaries for subscription, purchase or exchange; (d) the resolution relates in any way to a retirement benefits scheme which has been approved, or is conditional upon approval, by the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs for taxation purposes: see Table A art 94. For these purposes, an interest of a person who is, for any purpose of the Companies Act 2006 (excluding any statutory modification thereof not in force when this article becomes binding on the company), connected with a director must be treated as an interest of the director and, in relation to an alternate director, an interest of his appointor must be treated as an interest of the alternate director without prejudice to any interest which the alternate director has otherwise: see Table A art 94. A director is not to be counted in the quorum present at a meeting in relation to a resolution on which he is not entitled to vote: Table A art 95. As to alternate directors see PARA 489. As to the extent to which directors may delegate powers, including to committees, see PARA 537. As to the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(3) (2007 Reissue) PARAS 900-933. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A further provides that, subject to the provisions of the Companies Act 2006, and provided that he has disclosed to the directors the nature and extent of any material interest of his, a director notwithstanding his office: (i) may be a party to, or otherwise interested in, any transaction or arrangement with the company or in which the company is otherwise interested; (ii) may be a party to any transaction or arrangement with (or otherwise interested in) any body corporate promoted by the company or in which the company is otherwise interested; and (iii) is not, by reason of his office, accountable to the company for any benefit which he derives from any such transaction or arrangement or from any interest in any such body corporate and no such transaction or arrangement is liable to be avoided on the ground of any such interest or benefit: see Table A art 85. As to the avoidance of contracts see PARA 560 et seq. For these purposes: (A) a general notice given to the directors that a director is to be regarded as having an interest of the nature and extent specified in the notice in any transaction or arrangement in which a specified person or class of persons is interested is deemed to be a disclosure that the director has an interest in any such transaction of the nature and extent so specified; and (B) an interest of which a director has no knowledge and of which it is unreasonable to expect him to have knowledge is not treated as an interest of his: see Table A art 86. Table A arts 85-86 also make provision in relation to the avoidance of more general conflicts of interest which may arise from the position a director (or other officer) may hold within a company: see PARA 550. See also PARA 558 note 4. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but arts 85-86, 94-95 are applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital), and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital). However, Table C modifies Table A art 94 to the extent that the words 'shares, debentures, or other securities' (see head (c) above) are omitted: see Table C art 10. As to the meaning of 'unlimited company' see PARA 102. As to the meanings of 'company having a share capital' and 'share capital' see PARA 1042.

As to the director's duty to declare any other interests see note 4.

Failure to make the required declaration of interest.

556. Failure to make the required declaration of interest.

In the event of a failure on the part of a director to comply with the duty to declare his interest in a contract between a company and a director¹ or his firm², or a company in which he is interested as a director or shareholder even though only a trustee of the shares³, the director is liable to account for any profit made by him⁴. Further, the contract is voidable at the instance of the company⁵. If the statutory provisions⁶ are not complied with, the contract, being voidable and not void⁷, may be affirmed by the company when in possession of full information⁸.

If the duty to make a declaration is not complied with and the company objects, it is immaterial that the terms are advantageous to it⁹, or that as between the interested director and his co-directors the whole matter was above board¹⁰.

Such a contract will not be specifically enforced¹¹, and the director cannot retain the profits¹². This rule does not apply to contracts made before the company was formed with persons whose business is acquired by the company on formation¹³, but it may apply to situations where a director causes his company to enter into a transaction with a close relation, or a spouse or other partner, on the ground that the potential for abuse existed in any case where an element of common financial interest could be discerned¹⁴.

Although a director may be precluded by the articles from voting as a director in respect of his contract with the company¹⁵, he may vote as a shareholder at a general meeting¹⁶, but only to affirm the transaction, not to ratify his own breach of duty¹⁷.

In order that the director¹ may retain a profit which he has made on a contract with the company, it is not enough that he should reveal to the shareholders the existence of his interest without specifying exactly what it is². No ratification may take place in the absence of full disclosure³; but if full disclosure is contained in the notice convening the meeting, the company may by ordinary resolution confirm the contract⁴. It is unnecessary to hold a meeting if all the shareholders acquiesce⁵.

Formerly, where a director sold property to his company, without disclosing his interest, the company might, on discovery, either rescind the sale, if that was still practicable, or affirm the sale and sue for damages⁶, in which case it had to prove a breach of duty by the director amounting to negligence or misfeasance and resulting in pecuniary loss to the company⁷. Now, non-compliance with the duty to declare an interest⁸ is a head of duty which requires the director to account for any profit regardless of rescission by the company⁹.

If the director, while employed as a director to purchase property, buys on his own account and sells to the company without disclosure, he must account for the profit made by him¹⁰.

If a company's articles of association¹ provide for a director² being disqualified by being in any way interested in a bargain or contract with the company, his office is vacated by his being a shareholder³ in another company with which the contract is made⁴.

If the articles provide for the vacation of his seat if he enters into a contract with the company without declaring his interest, it is not sufficient for him to intimate that he has an interest without declaring its specific nature⁵.

C. CIVIL CONSEQUENCES OF BREACH OF DUTIES

559. Civil consequences of breach of general duties.

The consequences of breach (or threatened breach) of the general duties that are specified in the Companies Act 2006¹ as being owed to the company² by a director³ are the same as would apply if the corresponding common law rule or equitable principle applied⁴.

Those duties⁵ (with the exception of the duty to exercise reasonable care, skill and diligence⁶) are, accordingly, enforceable in the same way as any other fiduciary duty owed to a company by its directors⁷.

1 The specified in the Companies Act 2006 ss 171-177: see PARA 540 et seq. As to the scope and nature of the directors' general duties see PARA 532; and as to the application and effect of the general duties see PARA 533. 7 Companies Act 2006 s 178(2).

When considering the application of the Limitation Act 1980 to claims against fiduciaries, a six-year limitation period would apply under one or other provision of the Limitation Act 1980, applied directly or by analogy, unless it was specifically excluded by the Act or established case law; personal claims against fiduciaries would normally be subject to limits by analogy with claims in tort or contract: Gwembe Valley Development Co Ltd v Koshy (No 3) [2003] EWCA Civ 1048, [2004] 1 BCLC 131. Claims for breach of fiduciary duty by directors would normally be covered by the Limitation Act 1980 s 21 (time limit for actions in respect of trust property) (see LIMITATION PERIODS vol 68 (2008) PARA 1140 et seq) and the six-year time limit under the Limitation Act 1980 s 21(3) would apply, directly or by analogy, unless excluded by s 21(1)(a) or (b): Gwembe Valley Development Co Ltd v Koshy (No 3). If a claim is a claim for, or is treated for limitation purposes as analogous to a claim for, 'fraud or fraudulent breach of trust' within the Limitation Act 1980 s 21(1)(a), no limitation period applies: see Gwembe Valley Development Co Ltd v Koshy (No 3) (director's liability to account for secret profits made by him arose not out of simple non-disclosure but from a deliberate and dishonest concealment of his profits; in such circumstances, the claim was held to be a claim for fraudulent breach of trust and was not statute-barred). Likewise, where the claim against a director is a claim, or is treated for limitation purposes as analogous to a claim, 'to recover trust property or the proceeds of trust property . . . in the possession of the trustee' within the Limitation Act 1980 s 21(1)(b), no limitation period applies: see JJ Harrison (Properties) Ltd v Harrison [2001] EWCA Civ 1467, [2002] 1 BCLC 162 (where a director purchased company property in breach of his duties to the company, his obligations to deal with the property as a trustee arose out of his pre-existing duties as a director and not out of the circumstances in which the property was conveyed to him). See also Statek Corp v Alford [2008] EWHC 32 (Ch), (2008) Times, 12 February, [2008] All ER (D) 52 (Jan) (defendant had been a de facto director of the claimant company and, therefore, a trustee or fiduciary of its assets; the Limitation Act 1980 s 21(1) applied to the breach of fiduciary duty occasioned by his dishonest rendering of assistance to carry out the transactions complained of). As to the liability of directors generally see PARA 585 et seq. As to de facto directors, and the duties which they owe, see PARA 478 note 8.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(vi) Duty to Declare Interest in Existing Transaction or Arrangement/560. Directors' duty to declare interest in existing transaction or arrangement.

(vi) Duty to Declare Interest in Existing Transaction or Arrangement

560. Directors' duty to declare interest in existing transaction or arrangement.

Where a director¹ of a company² is in any way, whether directly or indirectly, interested in a transaction or arrangement that has been entered into by the company³, he must declare the nature and extent of the interest to the other directors⁴.

The declaration must be made: (1) at a meeting of the directors⁵; or (2) by notice in writing⁶; or (3) by general notice⁷.

If such a declaration of interest⁸ proves to be (or becomes) inaccurate or incomplete, a further declaration must be made⁹. Any declaration so required¹⁰ must be made as soon as is reasonably practicable¹¹.

This restriction¹² does not require a declaration of an interest of which the director is not aware or where the director is not aware of the transaction or arrangement in question¹³; and a director need not declare an interest: (a) if it cannot reasonably be regarded as likely to give rise to a conflict of interest¹⁴; (b) if, or to the extent that, the other directors are already aware of it (and for this purpose the other directors are treated as aware of anything of which they ought reasonably to be aware)¹⁵; or (c) if, or to the extent that, it concerns terms of his service contract¹⁶ that have been or are to be considered either by a meeting of the directors¹⁷, or by a committee of the directors appointed for the purpose under the company's constitution¹⁸.

A director who fails to comply with these requirements¹⁹ commits an offence²⁰; and a person guilty of such an offence is liable (on conviction on indictment) to a fine or (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum²¹. However, failure to comply with the statute does not give a separate right of action to the company for damages against a director as such liability must depend upon a breach of the director's fiduciary obligations²².

The provisions which relate to a director's duty to declare any interest in an existing transaction or arrangement²³ apply to a shadow director²⁴ as they apply to a director²⁵, except that a shadow director must declare his interest, not at a meeting of the directors²⁶, but only by general notice, which is not effective when given by a shadow director for these purposes unless it is given by notice in writing sent to the other directors²⁷ and, where a general notice is treated as sufficient declaration²⁸, the requirement for the notice to be given at a meeting of the directors, or for the director to take reasonable steps to secure that it is brought up and read at the next meeting of the directors after it is given²⁹, does not apply³⁰.

1 As to the meaning of 'director' under the Companies Acts see PARA 478; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

2 As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24.

3 A realistic appraisal is required of the nature of the interest to see whether it is real and substantial or merely theoretical and insubstantial: Re Dominion International Group plc (No 2) [1996] 1 BCLC 572 (the Companies Act 2006 s 182 is not an appropriate place for the drawing of technical distinctions between vested and contingent interests and mere hopes or expectations) (decided under the Companies Act 1985 s 317).

4 Companies Act 2006 s 182(1). For the purposes of Pt 10 (ss 154-259) (see PARA 478 et seq) it is immaterial whether the law that (apart from the Companies Act 2006) governs an arrangement or transaction is the law of the United Kingdom, or a part of it, or not: s 259. As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 1 note 5. The Companies Act 2006 s 182 does not apply if or to the extent that the interest has been declared under s 177

(duty to declare interest in proposed transaction or arrangement) (see PARA 555): see s 182(1). As to the general duty to avoid conflicts of interest see PARA 550. As to the register of directors' interests that must be disclosed in relation to shares etc see PARA 452 et seq.

The requirement is for the director to declare the nature and extent of the interest to the other directors in accordance with s 182 (see the text and notes 5-18): see s 182(1). Informal disclosure made piecemeal, or proof of the knowledge of individual board members, does not comply with the formal requirements of disclosure to the board, which would involve an opportunity for consideration of the matter by the board as a body: Gwembe Valley Development Co Ltd v Koshy (No 3) [2003] EWCA Civ 1048 at [59], [2004] 1 BCLC 131 at [59] per Mummery LJ. See also Guinness plc v Saunders [1988] 2 All ER 940 at 944-945, [1988] 1 WLR 863 at 868-869, CA, per Fox LJ (on appeal but not affected on this point [1990] 2 AC 663, [1990] 1 All ER 652, HL); Neptune (Vehicle Washing Equipment) Ltd v Fitzgerald [1996] Ch 274 at 282-284, [1995] 3 All ER 811 at 817-819 per Lightman J; Re MDA Investment Management Ltd, Whalley v Doney [2003] EWHC 2277 (Ch), [2004] 1 BCLC 217. Cf Lee Panavision Ltd v Lee Lighting Ltd [1992] BCLC 22, CA (where the court hesitated to find that the failure formally to declare at a board meeting an interest common to all members and ex hypothesi already known to all of the members of the board, was a breach of the Companies Act 1985 s 317 (see now the Companies Act 2006 s 182)); and see the Companies Act 2006 s 177(6)(b) (a director need not declare an interest if, or to the extent that, the other directors are already aware of it); and PARA 555. See also Runciman v Walter Runciman plc [1992] BCLC 1084 at 1093; MacPherson v European Strategic Bureau Ltd [1999] 2 BCLC 203 at 219 per Ferris J (revsd but not on this point [2000] 2 BCLC 683, CA); Re Marini Ltd [2003] EWHC 334 (Ch) at [59]-[64], [2004] BCC 172 at [59]-[64] per Judge Richard Seymour QC.

Prior to statutory provision being made, it was held that a company might by apt words in its articles waive its right to full disclosure: Imperial Mercantile Credit Association v Coleman (1871) 6 Ch App 558 (revsd without affecting this point (1873) LR 6 HL 189); Costa Rica Rly Co Ltd v Forwood [1901] 1 Ch 746 at 760, CA, per Vaughan Williams LJ. It would appear that the Companies Act 2006 s 182 prevents a company from so waiving its right to disclosure as to sanction a contravention of that right.

Where a declaration of interest under s 182 is required of a sole director of a company that is required to have more than one director, the declaration must be recorded in writing, the making of the declaration is deemed to form part of the proceedings at the next meeting of the directors after the notice is given, and the provisions of s 248 (minutes of meetings of directors) (see PARA 530) apply as if the declaration had been made at that meeting: s 186(1). However, nothing in s 186 affects the operation of s 231 (terms of contract with sole member who is also a director must be set out in writing or recorded in minutes) (see PARA 584): s 186(2). As to a case which predated this statutory provision see Neptune (Vehicle Washing Equipment) Ltd v Fitzgerald (sole director cannot evade compliance with s 182 but the required meeting may be held by the director alone or with another).

6 Companies Act 2006 s 182(2)(b). Head (2) in the text refers to notice in writing made in accordance with s 184: see s 182(2)(b). Under the provisions of s 184, which apply to a declaration of interest made by notice in writing (s 184(1)), the director must send the notice to the other directors (s 184(2)). The notice may be sent in hard copy form (or, if the recipient has agreed to receive it in electronic form, in an agreed electronic form) (s 184(3)); and may be sent by hand or by post (or, if the recipient has agreed to receive it by electronic means, by agreed electronic means) (s 184(4)). Where a director declares an interest by notice in writing in accordance with s 184, the making of the declaration is deemed to form part of the proceedings at the next meeting of the directors after the notice is given (s 184(5)(a)); and the provisions of s 248 (minutes of meetings of directors) (see PARA 530) apply as if the declaration had been made at that meeting (s 184(5)(b)). As to directors' communications see PARA 528 note 3. As to documents or information sent or supplied in hard copy form see PARA 678; and as to documents or information sent or supplied in electronic form (or by electronic means) see PARA 679. As to the construction of references to service by post see STATUTES vol 44(1) (Reissue) PARA 1388.

7 Companies Act 2006 s 182(2)(c). Head (3) in the text refers to general notice made in accordance with s 185: see s 182(2)(c). General notice in accordance with s 185 is a sufficient declaration of interest in relation to the matters to which it relates: s 185(1). General notice is notice given to the directors of a company to the effect that the director: (1) has an interest (as member, officer, employee or otherwise) in a specified body corporate or firm and is to be regarded as interested in any transaction or arrangement that may, after the date of the notice, be made with that body corporate or firm (s 185(2)(a)); or (2) is connected with a specified person (other than a body corporate or firm) and is to be regarded as interested in any transaction or arrangement that may, after the date of the notice, be made with that person (s 185(2)(b)). The notice must state the nature and extent of the director's interest in the body corporate or firm or, as the case may be, the nature of his connection with the person: s 185(3). General notice is not effective, however, unless it is given at a meeting of the directors (s 185(4)(a)), or the director takes reasonable steps to secure that it is brought up and read at the next meeting of the directors after it is given (s 185(4)(b)). (vii) Transactions with Directors Requiring Approval of Members

561. In general.

The Companies Act 2006 specifies¹ that certain transactions involving the directors of a company² (namely, directors' long-term service contracts³, substantial property transactions⁴, loan and similar financial transactions⁵, and payments for loss of office⁶) require approval by resolution of the members, either by means of a resolution taken at a meeting of the company or, in the case of a private company, by means of a written resolution⁷. Shareholder approval is not required, however, in respect of these transactions where the company is not a UK-registered company⁸ or where the company is a wholly-owned subsidiary of another body corporate⁹.

Approval may be required under more than one provision¹⁰. Where this is so, the requirements of each applicable provision must be met¹¹, although this does not require a separate resolution for the purposes of each provision¹².

1 In the Companies Act 2006 Pt 10 Ch 4 (ss 188-226): see also PARA 563 et seq.

2 As to the meaning of 'director' under the Companies Acts see PARA 478; and as to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24. As to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16. For the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 10 (ss 154-259) (see PARA 478 et seq), it is immaterial whether the law that (apart from the Companies Act 2006) governs an arrangement or transaction is the law of the United Kingdom, or a part of it, or not: s 259. As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 1 note 5.

3 See the Companies Act 2006 ss 188, 189; and PARA 563. For the purposes of ss 188, 189, a shadow director is treated as a director: s 223(1)(a). See also note 6. As to the meaning of 'shadow director' see PARA 479. As to directors' service contracts generally see PARA 524 et seq.

4 See the Companies Act 2006 ss 190-196; and PARA 564 et seq. For the purposes of ss 190-196, a shadow director is treated as a director: s 223(1)(b). See also note 6.

5 See the Companies Act 2006 ss 197-214; and PARA 568 et seq. For the purposes of ss 197-214, a shadow director is treated as a director: s 223(1)(c). See also note 6.

6 See the Companies Act 2006 ss 215-222; and PARA 578 et seq. For the purposes of ss 215-222, a shadow director is treated as a director: s 223(1)(d). Any reference in ss 188-222 to loss of office as a director does not apply in relation to loss of a person's status as a shadow director: s 223(2).

7 As to the meaning of 'written resolution' see PARA 623. Where approval is required by way of a written resolution, a memorandum setting out particulars of the proposed arrangement must be circulated to the members eligible to vote on the resolution at or before the time at which the proposed resolution is sent to the members: see eg the Companies Act 2006 s 188(5) (cited in PARA 563), s 197(3) (cited in PARA 568), s 198(4) (cited in PARA 569), s 200(4) (cited in PARA 570), s 203(3) (cited in PARA 572), s 217(3) (cited in PARA 579), s 218(3) (cited in PARA 580), s 219(3) (cited in PARA 581). Where approval under Pt 10 Ch 4 (see also PARA 563 et seq) is sought by written resolution, and a memorandum is required under Pt 10 Ch 4 to be sent or submitted to every eligible member before the resolution is passed, any accidental failure to send or submit the memorandum to one or more members must be disregarded for the purpose of determining whether the requirement has been met: s 224(1). This has effect subject to any provision of the company's articles: s 224(2). As to the meaning of references to a company's 'articles' under the Companies Act 2006 see PARA 228 note 2. As to membership of companies generally see PARA 321 et seq. As to approval given by resolutions in meetings of the company generally see PARA 629 et seq. As to eligible members in relation to a resolution proposed as a written resolution of a private company see PARA 623. The ability to approve these transactions by ordinary resolution is restricted for charitable companies, which additionally require the prior written approval of the Charity Commissioners: see s 226, which amends the Charities Act 1993 in relation to the consent required for certain acts; and CHARITIES vol 8 (2010) PARA 239.

562. Interaction with directors' general duties.

The application of the general duties to which the directors of a company¹ are subject² is not affected by the fact that the case also falls within the provisions which govern transactions requiring the approval of members³, except that where those provisions⁴ apply⁵, and: (1) approval is duly given⁶; or (2) the matter is one as to which it is provided that approval is not needed⁷, it is not necessary also to comply with the duty to avoid conflicts of interest⁸ or the duty not to accept benefits from third parties⁹.

Compliance with the general duties does not remove the need for approval under any of the provisions¹⁰ which apply to transactions requiring the approval of members¹¹.

Members/B. SERVICE CONTRACTS/563. Requirement of members' approval for directors' long-term service contracts.

B. SERVICE CONTRACTS

563. Requirement of members' approval for directors' long-term service contracts.

In relation to any provision under which the guaranteed term of a director's employment¹ with the company of which he is a director, or (where he is the director of a holding company²) within the group consisting of that company and its subsidiaries³, is, or may be, longer than two years⁴, the company may not agree to such provision unless it has been approved⁵:

- 939 (1) by resolution⁶ of the members of the company⁷; and
- 940 (2) in the case of a director of a holding company, by resolution of the members of that company⁸.

If, more than six months before the end of the guaranteed term of a director's employment, the company enters into a further service contract (otherwise than in pursuance of a right conferred, by or under the original contract, on the other party to it), this restriction⁹ applies as if there were added to the guaranteed term of the new contract the unexpired period of the guaranteed term of the original contract¹⁰.

A resolution approving provision to which this restriction¹¹ applies must not be passed unless a memorandum setting out the proposed contract incorporating the provision is made available to members¹²:

- 941 (a) in the case of a written resolution¹³, by being sent or submitted to every eligible member¹⁴ at or before the time at which the proposed resolution is sent or submitted to him¹⁵;
- 942 (b) in the case of a resolution at a meeting, by being made available for inspection by members of the company both: (i) at the company's registered office¹⁶ for not less than 15 days ending with the date of the meeting¹⁷; and (ii) at the meeting itself¹⁸.

However, no such approval is required¹⁹ on the part of the members of a body corporate²⁰ that either is not a UK-registered company²¹, or is a wholly-owned subsidiary²² of another body corporate²³.

If a company agrees to provision in contravention of this restriction²⁴, the provision is void, to the extent of the contravention²⁵, and the contract is deemed to contain a term entitling the company to terminate it at any time by the giving of reasonable notice²⁶.

1 The guaranteed term of a director's employment is: (1) the period (if any) during which the director's employment: (a) is to continue, or may be continued otherwise than at the instance of the company (whether under the original agreement or under a new agreement entered into in pursuance of it) (Companies Act 2006 s 188(3)(a)(i)); and (b) cannot be terminated by the company by notice, or can be so terminated only in specified circumstances (s 188(3)(a)(ii)); or (2) in the case of employment terminable by the company by notice, the period of notice required to be given (s 188(3)(b)), or (in the case of employment having both a period within head (1) above and a period within head (2) above) the aggregate of those periods (s 188(3)). For these purposes, 'employment' means any employment under a director's service contract: s 188(7). C. SUBSTANTIAL PROPERTY TRANSACTIONS

564. Requirement of members' approval for substantial property transactions.

A company¹ may not enter into an arrangement under which²:

- 943 (1) a director³ of the company or of its holding company⁴ (or a person connected with such a director⁵) acquires or is to acquire from the company (whether directly or indirectly) a substantial non-cash asset⁶; or
- 944 (2) the company acquires or is to acquire a substantial non-cash asset (whether directly or indirectly) from such a director or a person so connected⁷, unless the arrangement has been approved by a resolution⁸ of the members of the company or is conditional on such approval being obtained⁹. If the director or connected person is a director of the company's holding company or a person connected with such a director, the arrangement must also have been approved by a resolution of the members of the holding company or be conditional on such approval being obtained¹⁰.

However, a company is not subject to any liability by reason of a failure to obtain any approval so required¹¹.

As to an application of the Companies Act 2006 s 190 to a shadow director (for the purposes of ss 190-196, a shadow director is treated as a director: see s 223(1)(b); and PARA 561) see Ultraframe (UK) Ltd v Fielding; Northstar Systems Ltd v Fielding [2005] EWHC 1638 (Ch), [2005] All ER (D) 397 (Jul). 5 As to the meaning of references to a person being 'connected' with a director see PARA 481. As to the validity generally of transactions involving a director or a person connected with a director see PARA 264.

6 Companies Act 2006 s 190(1)(a). In the Companies Acts, 'non-cash asset' means any property or interest in property, other than cash; and, for this purpose, 'cash' includes foreign currency: s 1163(1). A reference to the transfer or acquisition of a non-cash asset includes the creation or extinction of an estate or interest in, or a right over, any property, and the discharge of a liability of any person, other than a liability for a liquidated sum: s 1163(2). An exclusive licence of design rights is a non-cash asset for this purpose as the ability of the licensee to exercise rights which would otherwise be exercisable by the design right owner is a right over property: Ultraframe (UK) Ltd v Fielding; Northstar Systems Ltd v Fielding [2005] EWHC 1638 (Ch), [2005] All ER (D) 397 (Jul).

The meaning of a 'substantial non-cash asset' for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 s 190 is given in s 191: see ss 190(1), 191(1). Accordingly, an asset is a 'substantial' asset in relation to a company if its value exceeds 10% of the company's asset value and is more than £5,000, or if its value exceeds £100,000: s 191(2). For this purpose, a company's 'asset value' at any time is either the value of the company's net assets determined by reference to its most recent statutory accounts or (if no statutory accounts have been prepared) the amount of the company's called-up share capital: s 191(3). A company's 'statutory accounts' means its annual accounts prepared in accordance with Pt 15 (ss 380-474) (see PARA 693 et seq), and its 'most recent' statutory accounts means those in relation to which the time for sending them out to members (see s 424; and PARA 851) is most recent: s 191(4). Whether an asset is a substantial asset is to be determined as at the time the arrangement is entered into: s 191(5). For the purposes of s 190, an arrangement involving more than one non-cash asset, or an arrangement that is one of a series involving non-cash assets, must be treated as if they involved a non-cash asset of a value equal to the aggregate value of all the non-cash assets involved in the arrangement or, as the case may be, the series: s 190(5). As to the meanings of 'share' and 'share capital' see PARA 1042; and as to the meaning of 'called-up share capital' see PARA 1048. As to the meaning of 'member' see PARA 321. The onus is on the person alleging a contravention of this provision to prove that the value of the non-cash asset exceeds the requisite value: Niltan Carson Ltd (joint receivers and managers) v Hawthorne [1988] BCLC 298. As to the criteria that ought to be applied when calculating the value of a non-cash asset see Micro Leisure Ltd v County Properties and Developments Ltd (No 2) 1999 SLT 1428 (value must be determined in the context of the particular transaction).

The Secretary of State may by order substitute for any sum of money specified in the Companies Act 2006 Pt 10 (ss 154-259) a larger sum specified in the order: s 258(1). An order does not have effect in relation to anything done or not done before it comes into force; and, accordingly, proceedings in respect of any liability incurred before that time may be continued or instituted as if the order had not been made: s 258(3). An order under s 258 is subject to negative resolution procedure (ie the statutory instrument containing the order is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament): ss 258(2), 1289. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6. As to the making of orders under the Companies Act 2006 generally see ss 1288-1292. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such order has been made in exercise of the power conferred by s 258.

8 As to resolutions and meetings of members see PARA 629 et seq. As to voting at meetings see PARA 653 et seq.

9 Companies Act 2006 s 190(1). This requirement does not apply to a transaction so far as it relates to anything to which a director of a company is entitled under his service contract, or to payment for loss of office as defined in s 215 (payments requiring members' approval) (see PARA 578): s 190(6). As to the meaning of a director's 'service contract', in relation to a company, for the purposes of Pt 10 (ss 154-259) see PARA 525 note 4. As to other exceptions to this requirement see PARA 565; as to liabilities arising from any contravention of this requirement see PARA 566; and as to the effect of subsequent affirmation see PARA 567.

It is appropriate to construe the statutory provisions purposively to protect shareholders: Micro Leisure Ltd v County Properties and Developments Ltd 1999 SLT 1307, Ct of Sess. See also British Racing Drivers' Club Ltd v Hextall Erskine & Co (a firm) [1996] 3 All ER 667, [1997] 1 BCLC 182 (purpose of shareholders approval is to allow members to check on potential abuse of position by directors and to ensure an objective approach). Where a meeting was attended by all those entitled to attend a general meeting and a decision was made, it could not be said that there was breach of the statutory provisions simply because the minutes of the meeting categorised it as a board meeting instead of a general meeting: Re Conegrade Ltd [2002] EWHC 2411 (Ch), [2003] BPIR 358, [2002] All ER (D) 19 (Nov). In accordance with the principle set out in Re Duomatic Ltd [1969] 2 Ch 365, [1969] 1 All ER 161 (see PARA 666), the procedural steps set out in the Companies Act 2006 s 190 can be bypassed by the unanimous informal consent of the shareholders: NBH Ltd v Hoare [2006] EWHC 73 (Ch), [2006] 2 BCLC 649 (decided under the Companies Act 1985 s 320(1)).

Approval is not required¹ for substantial property transactions involving a director² of the company³ or of its holding company⁴ (or a person connected with such a director⁵) in the following cases:

- 945 (1) on the part of the members of a body corporate⁶ that either is not a UK-registered company⁷, or is a wholly-owned subsidiary⁸ of another body corporate⁹;

- 946 (2) for a transaction between a company and a person in his character as a member of that company¹⁰, or for a transaction between a holding company and its wholly-owned subsidiary¹¹, or between two wholly-owned subsidiaries of the same holding company¹²;
- 947 (3) on the part of the members of a company that is being wound up (unless the winding up is a members' voluntary winding up)¹³, or that is in administration¹⁴, or for an arrangement entered into by such a company¹⁵.
- 948 (4) for a transaction on a recognised investment exchange¹⁶ effected by a director (or a person connected with him) through the agency of a person who in relation to the transaction acts as an independent broker¹⁷.

When discussing this provision at the Bill stage, Lord Sainsbury of Turville stated: it is intended to cover transactions such as the payment of the dividend in specie as well as the distribution of assets to a member of a company during the winding-up of the company and in satisfaction of his rights qua member in the liquidation. Likewise a duly sanctioned return of capital in the form of non-cash assets would fall within this exception. It is also intended to put beyond doubt that the issue of shares or other rights to a member does not require approval under the rules for substantial property transactions: 678 HL Official Report (5th series), 9 Feb 2006, GC col 347.

Prior to the enactment of the Companies Act 2006, the exemption to which head (3) in the text relates was available only to a liquidator and not to an administrator or receiver: see eg Demite Ltd v Protec Health Ltd [1998] BCC 638.

16 For these purposes, 'recognised investment exchange' has the same meaning as in the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt XVIII (ss 285-313) (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 684 et seq): Companies Act 2006 s 194(2)(b).

17 Companies Act 2006 s 194(1). For these purposes, 'independent broker' means a person who, independently of the director or any person connected with him, selects the person with whom the transaction is to be effected: s 194(2)(a).

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. Civil consequences of contravening restrictions on substantial property transactions.

566. Civil consequences of contravening restrictions on substantial property transactions.

Where a company¹ enters into an arrangement in contravention of the statutory provisions² which require approval for substantial property transactions involving a director³ of the company or of its holding company⁴ (or a person connected with such a director)⁵, that arrangement, and any transaction entered into in pursuance of the arrangement, whether by the company or any other person, is voidable at the instance of the company⁶, unless:

- 949 (1) restitution of any money or other asset that was the subject matter of the arrangement or transaction is no longer possible⁷; or
- 950 (2) the company has been indemnified⁸ by any other person for the loss or damage suffered by it⁹; or
- 951 (3) rights acquired in good faith, for value and without actual notice of the contravention by any person who is not a party to the arrangement or transaction would be affected by its avoidance¹⁰.

Whether or not the arrangement or any such transaction has been avoided, each of the following persons¹¹, namely: (a) any director of the company or of its holding company with whom the company entered into the arrangement in contravention of the statutory provisions¹²; (b) any person with whom the company entered into the arrangement in like contravention¹³ who is connected with a director of the company or of its holding company¹⁴; (c) the director of the company or of its holding company with whom any such person is connected¹⁵; and (d) any other director of the company who authorised the arrangement or any transaction entered into in pursuance of such an arrangement¹⁶, is liable¹⁷ to account to the company for any gain that he has made directly or indirectly by the arrangement or transaction¹⁸ and (jointly and severally with any other person so liable¹⁹) to indemnify the company for any loss or damage resulting from the arrangement or transaction²⁰. However, in the case of an arrangement entered into by a company in contravention of the statutory provisions²¹ with a person connected with a director of the company or of its holding company, that director is not liable by virtue of head (c) above if he shows that he took all reasonable steps to secure the company's compliance²². Furthermore, in any case, a person so connected is not liable by virtue of head (b) above²³, and a director is not liable by virtue of head (d) above²⁴, if he shows that, at the time the arrangement was entered into, he did not know the relevant circumstances constituting the contravention²⁵.

Nothing in the provisions governing civil liability²⁶ is to be read as excluding the operation of any other enactment²⁷ or rule of law by virtue of which the arrangement or transaction may be called in question or any liability to the company may arise²⁸.

568. Requirement of members' approval for loans and guarantees etc to directors.

A company¹ may not either make a loan to a director² of the company or of its holding company³, or give a guarantee or provide security in connection with a loan made by any person to such a director⁴, unless the transaction has been approved by a resolution of the members of the company⁵. If the director is a director of the company's holding company, the transaction must also have been approved by a resolution of the members of the holding company⁶.

A resolution approving such a transaction⁷ must not be passed unless a memorandum setting out the matters mentioned in heads (i) to (iii) below is made available to members⁸:

- 954 (1) in the case of a written resolution⁹, by being sent or submitted to every eligible member¹⁰ at or before the time at which the proposed resolution is sent or submitted to him¹¹; or
- 955 (2) in the case of a resolution at a meeting, by being made available for inspection by members of the company both: (a) at the company's registered office¹² for not less than 15 days ending with the date of the meeting¹³; and (b) at the meeting itself¹⁴.

The matters to be disclosed for these purposes are: (i) the nature of the transaction¹⁵; (ii) the amount of the loan and the purpose for which it is required¹⁶; and (iii) the extent of the company's liability under any transaction connected with the loan¹⁷.

However, no such approval is required¹⁸ on the part of the members of a body corporate¹⁹ that either is not a UK-registered company²⁰, or is a wholly-owned subsidiary²¹ of another body corporate²².

However, where a director has done work for or rendered services to the company and has received consideration from it in respect of that work or services, the sums may not be repayable to the company as loans: Currencies Direct Ltd v Ellis [2002] EWCA Civ 779, [2002] 2 BCLC 482. The value of a loan is the amount of its principal (s 211(2)); and the value of a guarantee or security is the amount guaranteed or secured (s 211(5)). If the value of a transaction or arrangement is not capable of being expressed as a specific sum of money, whether because the amount of any liability arising under the transaction or arrangement is unascertainable, or for any other reason (s 211(7)(a)), and whether or not any liability under the transaction or arrangement has been reduced (s 211(7)(b)), its value is deemed to exceed £50,000 (s 211(7)). For these purposes, the person for whom a transaction or arrangement is entered into is, in the case of a loan, the person to whom it is made (s 212(a)); and, in the case of a guarantee or security, the person for whom the transaction is made in connection with which the guarantee or security is entered into (s 212(c)). 570. Requirement of members' approval for loans and quasi-loans to persons connected with director.

A company¹, which is either a public company² or a company associated with a public company³, may not either make a loan or quasi-loan⁴ to a person connected with a director⁵ of the company or of its holding company⁶, or give a guarantee or provide security in connection with a loan or quasi-loan made by any person to a person connected with such a director⁷, unless the transaction has been approved by a resolution of the members of the company⁸. If the connected person is a person connected with a director of the company's holding company, the transaction must also have been approved by a resolution of the members of the holding company⁹.

A resolution approving such a transaction¹⁰ must not be passed unless a memorandum setting out the matters mentioned in heads (i) to (iii) below is made available to members¹¹:

- 958 (1) in the case of a written resolution¹², by being sent or submitted to every eligible member¹³ at or before the time at which the proposed resolution is sent or submitted to him¹⁴; or

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(vii) Transactions with Directors Requiring Approval of Members/D. LOANS, QUASI-LOANS AND CREDIT TRANSACTIONS/(A) Requirement of Members' Approval/571. Requirement of members' approval for credit transactions.

571. Requirement of members' approval for credit transactions.

A company¹, which is either a public company² or a company associated with a public company³, may not either enter into a credit transaction as creditor for the benefit of a director⁴ of the company or of its holding company⁵ (or a person connected with such a director)⁶, or give a guarantee or provide security in connection with a credit transaction entered into by any person for the benefit of such a director (or a person connected with such a director)⁷, unless the transaction (that is, the credit transaction, the giving of the guarantee or the provision of security, as the case may be) has been approved by a resolution of the members of the company⁸. If the director (or connected person) is a director of the company's holding company (or a person connected with such a director), the transaction must also have been approved by a resolution of the members of the holding company⁹.

A resolution approving such a transaction¹⁰ must not be passed unless a memorandum setting out the matters mentioned in heads (i) to (iii) below is made available to members¹¹:

- 960 (1) in the case of a written resolution¹², by being sent or submitted to every eligible member¹³ at or before the time at which the proposed resolution is sent or submitted to him¹⁴; or
- 961 (2) in the case of a resolution at a meeting, by being made available for inspection by members of the company both: (a) at the company's registered office¹⁵ for not less than 15 days ending with the date of the meeting¹⁶; and (b) at the meeting itself¹⁷.

The matters to be disclosed for these purposes are: (i) the nature of the transaction¹⁸; (ii) the value of the credit transaction and the purpose for which the land, goods or services sold or otherwise disposed of, leased, hired or supplied under the credit transaction are required¹⁹; and (iii) the extent of the company's liability under any transaction connected with the credit transaction²⁰.

However, no such approval is required²¹ on the part of the members of a body corporate²² that either is not a UK-registered company²³, or is a wholly-owned subsidiary²⁴ of another body corporate²⁵.

1 As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

2 As to the meaning of 'public company' see PARA 102.

3 See the Companies Act 2006 s 201(1). As to the meaning of companies which are 'associated' for the purposes of Pt 10 (ss 154-259) (see PARA 478 et seq) see PARA 569 note 3.

As to the general application of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 10 Ch 4 (ss 188-226) see PARA 561; and as to how those provisions interact with the directors' general duties see PARA 562.

4 As to the meaning of 'director' under the Companies Acts see PARA 478. For these purposes, a 'credit transaction' is a transaction under which one party (the 'creditor') supplies any goods or sells any land under a hire-purchase agreement or a conditional sale agreement, leases or hires any land or goods in return for periodical payments, or otherwise disposes of land or supplies goods or services on the understanding that payment (whether in a lump sum or instalments or by way of periodical payments or otherwise) is to be deferred: Companies Act 2006 s 202(1). Any reference to the 'person for whose benefit a credit transaction is entered into' is to the person to whom goods, land or services are supplied, sold, leased, hired or otherwise disposed of under the transaction: s 202(2). For these purposes, 'conditional sale agreement' has the same meaning as in the Consumer Credit Act 1974 (see CONSUMER CREDIT vol 9(1) (Reissue) PARA 93); and 'services' means anything other than goods or land: Companies Act 2006 s 202(3). In the Companies Acts, 'hire-purchase agreement' has the same meaning as in the Consumer Credit Act 1974 (see CONSUMER CREDIT vol 9(1) (Reissue) PARA 95); Companies Act 2006 s 1173(1).

5 As to the meaning of 'holding company' see PARA 25.

18 Companies Act 2006 s 201(5)(a).

19 Companies Act 2006 s 201(5)(b). For the purposes of ss 201, 202, the value of a transaction or arrangement is determined as follows, and the value of any other relevant transaction or arrangement is taken to be the value so determined reduced by any amount by which the liabilities of the person for whom the transaction or arrangement was made have been reduced: s 211(1). The value of a credit transaction is the price that it is reasonable to expect could be obtained for the goods, services or land to which the transaction relates if they had been supplied (at the time the transaction is entered into) in the ordinary course of business and on the same terms (apart from price) as they have been supplied, or are to be supplied, under the transaction in question (s 211(4)); and the value of a guarantee or security is the amount guaranteed or secured (s 211(5)). If the value of a transaction or arrangement is not capable of being expressed as a specific sum of money, whether because the amount of any liability arising under the transaction or arrangement is unascertainable, or for any other reason (s 211(7)(a)), and whether or not any liability under the transaction or arrangement has been reduced (s 211(7)(b)), its value is deemed to exceed £50,000 (s 211(7)). For these purposes, the person for whom a transaction or arrangement is entered into is, in the case of a credit transaction, the person to whom goods, land or services are supplied, sold, hired, leased or otherwise disposed of under the transaction (s 212(b)); and, in the case of a guarantee or security, the person for whom the transaction is made in connection with which the guarantee or security is entered into (s 212(c)). As to the Secretary of State's power by order to substitute for any sum of money specified in the Companies Act 2006 Pt 10 (ss 154-259) (see PARA 478 et seq) a larger sum specified in the order see PARA 564 note 6.

COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(vii) Transactions with Directors Requiring Approval of Members/D. LOANS, QUASI-LOANS AND CREDIT TRANSACTIONS/(A) Requirement of Members' Approval/572. Requirement of members' approval for related arrangements.

572. Requirement of members' approval for related arrangements.

A company¹ may not either take part in an arrangement under which another person enters into a transaction that, if it had been entered into by the company, would have required approval² by members of the company³, and that person, in pursuance of the arrangement, obtains a benefit from the company or a body corporate⁴ associated with it⁵, or arrange for the assignment to it, or assumption by it, of any rights, obligations or liabilities under a transaction that, if it had been entered into by the company, would have required such approval⁶, unless the arrangement in question has been approved by a resolution of the members of the company⁷. If the director (or connected person) for whom the transaction is entered into is a director of the company's holding company (or a person connected with such a director), the arrangement must also have been approved by a resolution of the members of the holding company⁸.

A resolution approving such an arrangement⁹ must not be passed unless a memorandum setting out the matters mentioned in heads (i) to (iii) below is made available to members¹⁰:

- 962 (1) in the case of a written resolution¹¹, by being sent or submitted to every eligible member¹² at or before the time at which the proposed resolution is sent or submitted to him¹³; or
- 963 (2) in the case of a resolution at a meeting, by being made available for inspection by members of the company both: (a) at the company's registered office¹⁴ for not less than 15 days ending with the date of the meeting¹⁵; and (b) at the meeting itself¹⁶.

The matters to be disclosed for these purposes are: (i) the matters that would have to be disclosed if the company were seeking approval of the transaction to which the arrangement relates¹⁷; (ii) the nature of the arrangement¹⁸; and (iii) the extent of the company's liability under the arrangement or any transaction connected with it¹⁹.

However, no such approval is required²⁰ on the part of the members of a body corporate that either is not a UK-registered company²¹, or is a wholly-owned subsidiary²² of another body corporate²³.

Members/D. LOANS, QUASI-LOANS AND CREDIT TRANSACTIONS/(B) General Exceptions/573.
Exceptions to requirement for approval of loans, quasi-loans and credit transactions.

(B) GENERAL EXCEPTIONS

573. Exceptions to requirement for approval of loans, quasi-loans and credit transactions.

Approval is not required in relation to loans, quasi-loans and credit transactions¹ for anything done by a company²:

- 964 (1) to provide a director of the company or of its holding company (or a person connected with any such director) with funds to meet expenditure incurred or to be incurred by him³ for the purposes of the company⁴, or for the purpose of enabling him properly to perform his duties as an officer of the company⁵, or to enable any such person to avoid incurring such expenditure⁶;
- 965 (2) to provide a director of the company or of its holding company with funds to meet expenditure incurred or to be incurred by him⁷ in defending any criminal or civil proceedings in connection with any alleged negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust by him in relation to the company or an associated company⁸, or in connection with a specified application for relief⁹, or to enable any such director to avoid incurring such expenditure¹⁰, if it is done on the following terms¹¹: (a) that the loan is to be repaid, or (as the case may be) any liability of the company incurred under any transaction connected with the thing done is to be discharged¹², in the event of the director being convicted in the proceedings¹³, in the event of judgment being given against him in the proceedings¹⁴, or in the event of the court refusing to grant him relief on the application¹⁵; and (b) that it is to be so repaid or discharged not later than the date when the conviction becomes final¹⁶, the date when the judgment becomes final¹⁷, or the date when the refusal of relief becomes final¹⁸;
- 966 (3) to provide a director of the company or of its holding company with funds to meet expenditure incurred or to be incurred by him in defending himself either in an investigation by a regulatory authority¹⁹, or against action proposed to be taken by a regulatory authority²⁰, in connection with any alleged negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust by him in relation to the company or an associated company²¹; or to enable any such director to avoid incurring such expenditure²².

1 I.e., in the case of loans made to a director of the company or of its holding company, or a guarantee given or security provided in connection with a loan made by any person to such a director, under the Companies Act 2006 s 197 (see PARA 568), in the case of quasi-loans made to a director of the company or of its holding company, or a guarantee given or security provided in connection with a quasi-loan made by any person to such a director, under s 198 (see PARA 569), in the case of loans or quasi-loans made to a person connected with a director of the company or of its holding company, or a guarantee given or security provided in connection with a loan or quasi-loan made by any person to a person connected with such a director, under s 200 (see PARA 570), or in the case of credit transactions entered into by a company as creditor for the benefit of a director of the company or of its holding company (or a person connected with such a director) or a guarantee given or security provided in connection with a credit transaction entered into by any person for the benefit of such a director (or a person connected with such a director), under s 201 (see PARA 571): see ss 204(1), 205(1), 206(1). As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24; as to the meaning of 'director' under the Companies Acts see PARA 478; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16. As to the meaning of 'credit transaction' for these purposes see PARA 571 note 4; as to the meaning of 'holding company' see PARA 25; and as to the meaning of 'quasi-loan' for these purposes see PARA 569 note 4. As to the meaning of references to a person being 'connected' with a director see PARA 481. As to the validity generally of transactions involving a director or a person connected with a director see PARA 264.

As to the general application of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 10 Ch 4 (ss 188-226) see PARA 561; and as to how those provisions interact with the directors' general duties see PARA 562.

2 As to exceptions to the requirement for approval that apply to loans and quasi-loans but not to credit transactions see PARA 574; and as to exceptions to the requirement for approval that apply to credit transactions but not to loans and quasi-loans see PARA 575.

3 Companies Act 2006 s 204(1)(a). The provisions of s 204 do not authorise a company to enter into a transaction if the aggregate of the value of the transaction in question, and the value of any other relevant transactions or arrangements, exceeds £50,000: s 204(2). As to the Secretary of State's power by order to substitute for any sum of money specified in Pt 10 (ss 154-259) (see PARA 478 et seq) a larger sum specified in the order see PARA 564 note 6. The provisions of s 210 have effect for determining what are 'other relevant transactions or arrangements' for the purposes of any exception to s 197 (see PARA 568), s 198 (see PARA 569), s 200 (see PARA 570) or s 201 (see PARA 571); and, for these purposes, the 'relevant exception' means the exception for the purposes of which that falls to be determined: s 210(1). Accordingly, other relevant transactions or arrangements are those previously entered into, or entered into at the same time as the transaction or arrangement in question in relation to which the following conditions are met (s 210(2)):

- 189 (1) where the transaction or arrangement in question is entered into either for a director of the company entering into it, or for a person connected with such a director, the conditions are that the transaction or arrangement was (or is) entered into for that director, or a person connected with him, by virtue of the relevant exception by that company or by any of its subsidiaries (s 210(3));
- 190 (2) where the transaction or arrangement in question is entered into either for a director of the holding company of the company entering into it, or for a person connected with such a director, the conditions are that the transaction or arrangement was (or is) entered into for that director, or a person connected with him, by virtue of the relevant exception by the holding company or by any of its subsidiaries (s 210(4)).

A transaction or arrangement entered into by a company that, at the time it was entered into, either was a subsidiary of the company entering into the transaction or arrangement in question, or was a subsidiary of that company's holding company, is not a relevant transaction or arrangement if, at the time the question arises whether the transaction or arrangement in question falls within a relevant exception, it is no longer such a subsidiary: s 210(5). As to the meaning of 'subsidiary' see PARA 25. As to determining the value of transactions and other relevant transactions or arrangements generally, and as to determining the person for whom a transaction or arrangement is entered into, see PARAS 568 note 16, 569 note 18, 571 note 19.

Exceptions to requirement for approval applicable to loans and quasi-loans but not credit transactions.

574. Exceptions to requirement for approval applicable to loans and quasi-loans but not credit transactions.

Approval is not required under the provisions which govern the making of loans or quasi-loans¹:

- 967 (1) for a company to make a loan or quasi-loan, or to give a guarantee or provide security in connection with a loan or quasi-loan, if the aggregate of the value of the transaction², and the value of any other relevant transactions or arrangements³, does not exceed £10,000⁴;
- 968 (2) for the making of a loan or quasi-loan to an associated body corporate⁵, or for the giving of a guarantee or provision of security in connection with a loan or quasi-loan made to an associated body corporate⁶;
- 969 (3) for the making of a loan or quasi-loan, or the giving of a guarantee or provision of security in connection with a loan or quasi-loan, by a money-lending company⁷ if: (a) the transaction (that is, the loan, quasi-loan, guarantee or security) is entered into by the company in the ordinary course of the company's business⁸; and (b) the value of the transaction is not greater, and its terms are not more favourable, than it is reasonable to expect the company would have offered to a person of the same financial standing but unconnected with the company⁹.

1 le, in the case of loans made to a director of the company or of its holding company, or a guarantee given or security provided in connection with a loan made by any person to such a director, under the Companies Act 2006 s 197 (see PARA 568), in the case of quasi-loans made to a director of the company or of its holding company, or a guarantee given or security provided in connection with a quasi-loan made by any person to such a director, under s 198 (see PARA 569) or, in the case of loans or quasi-loans made to a person connected with a director of the company or of its holding company, or a guarantee given or security provided in connection with a loan or quasi-loan made by any person to a person connected with such a director, under s 200 (see PARA 570): see ss 207(1), 208(1), 209(1). Approval is not required¹ for a company² to enter into a credit transaction³, or to give a guarantee or provide security in connection with a credit transaction, if:

- 970 (1) the aggregate of the value of the transaction (that is, of the credit transaction, guarantee or security)⁴, and the value of any other relevant transactions or arrangements⁵, does not exceed £15,000⁶;
- 971 (2) the transaction is entered into by the company in the ordinary course of the company's business⁷, and the value of the transaction is not greater, and the terms on which it is entered into are not more favourable, than it is reasonable to expect the company would have offered to, or in respect of, a person of the same financial standing but unconnected with the company⁸.

Nor is such approval required⁹: (a) to enter into a credit transaction as creditor for the benefit of an associated body corporate¹⁰; or (b) to give a guarantee or provide security in connection with a credit transaction entered into by any person for the benefit of an associated body corporate¹¹.

(C) CONTRAVENTION OF REQUIREMENTS

576. Civil consequences for breach of prohibition on loans etc to directors.

Where a company¹ enters into a transaction or arrangement in contravention of the statutory provisions which require approval² for loans, quasi-loans, credit transactions and related arrangements³, the transaction or arrangement is voidable at the instance of the company⁴, unless:

- 972 (1) restitution of any money or other asset that was the subject matter of the transaction or arrangement is no longer possible⁵; or
- 973 (2) the company has been indemnified for any loss or damage resulting from the transaction or arrangement⁶; or
- 974 (3) rights acquired in good faith, for value and without actual notice of the contravention by any person who is not a party to the transaction or arrangement would be affected by its avoidance⁷.

Whether or not the transaction or arrangement has been avoided, each of the following persons⁸, namely: (a) any director of the company or of its holding company with whom the company entered into the transaction or arrangement in contravention of the statutory provisions⁹; (b) any person with whom the company entered into the transaction or arrangement in like contravention¹⁰ who is connected with a director of the company or of its holding company¹¹; (c) the director of the company or of its holding company with whom any such person is connected¹²; and (d) any other director of the company who authorised the transaction or arrangement¹³, is liable¹⁴ to account to the company for any gain that he has made directly or indirectly by the transaction or arrangement¹⁵, and (jointly and severally with any other person so liable¹⁶) to indemnify the company for any loss or damage resulting from the transaction or arrangement¹⁷. However, in the case of a transaction or arrangement entered into by a company in contravention of the statutory provisions¹⁸ governing credit transactions, certain loans and quasi-loans and related arrangements, and made with a person connected with a director of the company or of its holding company, that director is not liable by virtue of head (c) above if he shows that he took all reasonable steps to secure the company's compliance¹⁹. Furthermore, in any case, a person so connected is not liable by virtue of head (b) above²⁰, and a director is not liable by virtue of head (d) above²¹, if he shows that, at the time the arrangement was entered into, he did not know the relevant circumstances constituting the contravention²².

Nothing in the provisions governing civil liability²³ is to be read as excluding the operation of any other enactment²⁴ or rule of law by virtue of which the transaction or arrangement may be called in question or any liability to the company may arise²⁵.

Definition of 'payment for loss of office'.

E. PAYMENT FOR LOSS OF OFFICE

578. Definition of 'payment for loss of office'.

For the purposes of the provisions which govern transactions with directors¹ requiring the approval of members², 'payment for loss of office' means a payment made to a director or past director of a company³:

- 977 (1) by way of compensation⁴ for loss of office as director of the company⁵;
- 978 (2) by way of compensation for loss, while director of the company or in connection with his ceasing to be a director of it, of⁶: (a) any other office or employment in connection with the management of the affairs of the company⁷; or (b) any office (as director or otherwise) or employment in connection with the management of the affairs of any subsidiary undertaking⁸ of the company⁹;
- 979 (3) as consideration for or in connection with his retirement from his office as director of the company¹⁰; or
- 980 (4) as consideration for or in connection with his retirement, while director of the company or in connection with his ceasing to be a director of it, from¹¹: (a) any other office or employment in connection with the management of the affairs of the company¹²; or (b) any office (as director or otherwise) or employment in connection with the management of the affairs of any subsidiary undertaking of the company¹³.

For the purposes of the provisions which govern payments for loss of office requiring members' approval¹⁴, payment to a person connected with a director¹⁵, or payment to any person at the direction of, or for the benefit of, a director or a person connected with him¹⁶, is treated as payment to the director¹⁷.

579. Requirement of members' approval for payment by company for loss of office.

A company¹ may not make a payment for loss of office² to a director³ of the company unless the payment has been approved by a resolution of the members of the company⁴; and a company may not make such a payment to a director of its holding company⁵ unless the payment has been approved by a resolution of the members of each of those companies⁶.

A resolution approving such a payment⁷ must not be passed unless a memorandum setting out particulars of the proposed payment (including its amount) is made available to the members of the company whose approval is sought⁸:

981 (1) in the case of a written resolution⁹, by being sent or submitted to every eligible member¹⁰ at or before the time at which the proposed resolution is sent or submitted to him¹¹; or

982 (2) in the case of a resolution at a meeting, by being made available for inspection by members of the company both: (a) at the company's registered office¹² for not less than 15 days ending with the date of the meeting¹³; and (b) at the meeting itself¹⁴.

If the proposal is not so approved, the directors responsible for authorising the payment are guilty of misfeasance¹⁵.

However, no such approval is required¹⁶ on the part of the members of a body corporate¹⁷ that either is not a UK-registered company¹⁸, or is a wholly-owned subsidiary¹⁹ of another body corporate²⁰.

Requirement of members' approval for payment for loss of office on a transfer of undertaking or property.

580. Requirement of members' approval for payment for loss of office on a transfer of undertaking or property.

No payment for loss of office¹ may be made by any person to a director² of a company³ in connection with the transfer of the whole or any part of the undertaking⁴ or property of the company unless the payment has been approved by a resolution of the members of the company⁵; and no such payment may be made by any person to a director of a company in connection with the transfer of the whole or any part of the undertaking or property of a subsidiary⁶ of the company unless the payment has been approved by a resolution of the members of each of the companies⁷.

Where in connection with any such transfer⁸:

- 983 (1) a director of the company either is to cease to hold office⁹, or is to cease to be the holder of any other office or employment in connection with the management of the affairs of the company¹⁰, or any office (as director or otherwise) or employment in connection with the management of the affairs of any subsidiary undertaking of the company¹¹; and
- 984 (2) the price to be paid to the director for any shares¹² in the company held by him is in excess of the price which could at the time have been obtained by other holders of like shares¹³, or if any valuable consideration is given to the director by a person other than the company¹⁴, the excess or, as the case may be, the money value of the consideration is taken¹⁵ to have been a payment for loss of office¹⁶.

A resolution approving any payment for loss of office on a transfer of undertaking¹⁷ must not be passed unless a memorandum setting out particulars of the proposed payment (including its amount) is made available to the members of the company whose approval is sought¹⁸:

- 985 (a) in the case of a written resolution¹⁹, by being sent or submitted to every eligible member²⁰ at or before the time at which the proposed resolution is sent or submitted to him²¹; or
- 986 (b) in the case of a resolution at a meeting, by being made available for inspection by members of the company both: (i) at the company's registered office²² for not less than 15 days ending with the date of the meeting²³; and (ii) at the meeting itself²⁴.

However, no such approval is required²⁵ on the part of the members of a body corporate²⁶ that either is not a UK-registered company²⁷, or is a wholly-owned subsidiary²⁸ of another body corporate²⁹.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(vii) Transactions with Directors Requiring Approval of Members/E. PAYMENT FOR LOSS OF OFFICE/581. Requirement of shareholders' approval for payment for loss of office in connection with share transfer.

581. Requirement of shareholders' approval for payment for loss of office in connection with share transfer.

No payment for loss of office¹ may be made by any person to a director² of a company³ in connection with a transfer of shares⁴ in the company, or in a subsidiary⁵ of the company, resulting from a takeover bid⁶ unless the payment has been approved by a resolution of the relevant shareholders⁷.

Where in connection with any such transfer⁸:

- 987 (1) a director of the company either is to cease to hold office⁹, or is to cease to be the holder of any other office or employment in connection with the management of the affairs of the company¹⁰, or any office (as director or otherwise) or employment in connection with the management of the affairs of any subsidiary undertaking of the company¹¹; and
- 988 (2) the price to be paid to the director for any shares in the company held by him is in excess of the price which could at the time have been obtained by other holders of like shares¹², or if any valuable consideration is given to the director by a person other than the company¹³, the excess or, as the case may be, the money value of the consideration is taken¹⁴ to have been a payment for loss of office¹⁵.

A resolution approving a payment for loss of office in connection with a transfer of shares¹⁶ must not be passed unless a memorandum setting out particulars of the proposed payment (including its amount) is made available to the members of the company whose approval is sought¹⁷:

- 989 (a) in the case of a written resolution¹⁸, by being sent or submitted to every eligible member¹⁹ at or before the time at which the proposed resolution is sent or submitted to him²⁰; or
- 990 (b) in the case of a resolution at a meeting, by being made available for inspection by members of the company both: (i) at the company's registered office²¹ for not less than 15 days ending with the date of the meeting²²; and (ii) at the meeting itself²³.

Neither the person making the offer, nor any associate of his²⁴, is entitled to vote on the resolution²⁵. However, where the resolution is proposed as a written resolution, they are entitled (if they would otherwise be so entitled) to be sent a copy of it²⁶, and at any meeting to consider the resolution they are entitled (if they would otherwise be so entitled) to be given notice of the meeting, to attend and speak and if present (in person or by proxy) to count towards the quorum²⁷.

If at a meeting to consider the resolution a quorum is not present, and after the meeting has been adjourned to a later date a quorum is again not present, the payment is²⁸ deemed to have been approved²⁹.

No approval is required³⁰ on the part of shareholders in a body corporate³¹ that either is not a UK-registered company³², or is a wholly-owned subsidiary³³ of another body corporate³⁴.

Exceptions to requirement for approval for payment for loss of office.

582. Exceptions to requirement for approval for payment for loss of office.

Approval is not required under the provisions¹ that govern payments made to the director² of a company for loss of office for a payment made in good faith³:

- 991 (1) in discharge of an existing legal obligation⁴;
- 992 (2) by way of damages for breach of such an obligation⁵;
- 993 (3) by way of settlement or compromise of any claim arising in connection with the termination of a person's office or employment⁶; or
- 994 (4) by way of pension in respect of past services⁷.

A payment part of which falls within one or more of these categories⁸ and part of which does not is treated as if the parts were separate payments⁹.

Nor is such approval required¹⁰ if: (a) the payment in question is made by the company or any of its subsidiaries¹¹; and (b) the amount or value of the payment, together with the amount or value of any other relevant payments¹², does not exceed £200¹³.

1 le, in relation to the requirement of members' approval for payment for loss of office made by the company, under the Companies Act 2006 s 217 (see PARA 579) and, in relation to such payments on a transfer of undertaking or property, under s 218 (see PARA 580) and, in relation to the requirement of shareholders' approval for such payments in connection with a share transfer, under s 219 (see PARA 581): see s 220(1). 3 Companies Act 2006 s 220(1).

4 Companies Act 2006 s 220(1)(a). Head (1) in the text may apply, for example, to contractual payments due under service agreements between the company and its managing director: see Taupo Totara Timber Co Ltd v Rowe [1978] AC 537, [1977] 3 All ER 123, PC (sum contractually payable on retirement).

In relation to a payment within s 217 (payment by company) (see PARA 579), an existing legal obligation means an obligation of the company, or any body corporate associated with it, that was not entered into in connection with, or in consequence of, the event giving rise to the payment for loss of office: s 220(2). As to the meaning of 'body corporate' for the purposes of the Companies Acts see PARA 1 note 5; and as to the meaning of bodies corporate which are 'associated' for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 10 (ss 154-259) (see PARA 478 et seq) see PARA 553 note 4.

In relation to a payment within s 218 (payment in connection with transfer of undertaking or property) (see PARA 580) or s 219 (payment in connection with transfer of shares) (see PARA 581) an existing legal obligation means an obligation of the person making the payment that was not entered into for the purposes of, in connection with or in consequence of, the transfer in question: s 220(3).

In the case of a payment within both s 217 and s 218, or within both s 217 and s 219, s 220(2) applies and not s 220(3): s 220(4).

5 Companies Act 2006 s 220(1)(b). See note 4. If the director's service agreement contains inflation-proofing of his salary, this may be taken into account in arriving at any damages: Re Crowther & Nicholson Ltd (1981) 125 Sol Jo 529. 11 Companies Act 2006 s 221(1)(a). As to the meaning of 'subsidiary' see PARA 25.

12 For this purpose, 'other relevant payments' are payments for loss of office in relation to which the following conditions are met (s 221(2)):

191 (1) where the payment in question is one to which s 217 (payment by company) (see PARA 579) applies, the conditions are that the other payment was or is paid: (a) by the company making the payment in question or any of its subsidiaries (s 221(3)(a)); (b) to the director to whom that payment is made (s 221(3)(b)); and (c) in connection with the same event (s 221(3)(c));

192 (2) where the payment in question is one to which s 218 (payment in connection with transfer of undertaking or property) (see PARA 580) or s 219 (payment in connection with transfer of shares) (see PARA 581) applies, the conditions are that the other payment was (or is) paid in connection with the same transfer: (a) to the director to whom the payment in question was made (s 221(4)(a)); and (b) by the company making the payment or any of its subsidiaries (s 221(4)(b)).

13 Companies Act 2006 s 221(1)(b). As to the Secretary of State's power by order to substitute for any sum of money specified in Pt 10 (see PARA 478 et seq) a larger sum specified in the order see PARA 564 note 6.

Members/E. PAYMENT FOR LOSS OF OFFICE/583. Civil consequences of payments for loss of office made without required approval.

583. Civil consequences of payments for loss of office made without required approval.

If a payment for loss of office¹ is made in contravention of the restriction imposed on such payments being made by a company² without members' approval³, it is held by the recipient on trust for the company making the payment⁴, and any director⁵ who authorised the payment is jointly and severally liable to indemnify the company that made the payment for any loss resulting from it⁶.

If a payment is made in contravention of the restriction imposed on such payments being made on a transfer of undertaking or property without members' approval⁷, it is held by the recipient on trust for the company whose undertaking or property is or is proposed to be transferred⁸.

If a payment is made in contravention of the restriction imposed on such payments being made in connection with a share⁹ transfer without shareholders' approval¹⁰, it is held by the recipient on trust for persons who have sold their shares as a result of the offer made¹¹, and the expenses incurred by the recipient in distributing that sum amongst those persons must be borne by him and not retained out of that sum¹².

(viii) Contracts involving Limited Company with Sole Member

584. Contracts with a sole member who is also a director.

Where a limited company¹ having only one member² enters into a contract with the sole member of the company³, and the sole member is also a director of the company⁴, and where the contract is not entered into in the ordinary course of the company's business⁵, the company must, unless the contract is in writing, ensure that the terms of the contract are either: (1) set out in a written memorandum⁶; or (2) recorded in the minutes of the first meeting of the directors of the company⁷ following the making of the contract⁸.

If a company fails to comply with this restriction⁹, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default¹⁰, and a person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale¹¹.

Nothing in the provisions which set out this restriction¹² is to be read as excluding the operation of any other enactment¹³ or rule of law applying to contracts between a company and a director of that company¹⁴. Failure to comply with the restriction¹⁵ in relation to a contract does not, however, affect the validity of that contract¹⁶.

(ix) Directors' Liabilities for Breach of Duty

A. LIABILITIES OF DIRECTORS

585. Directors' liability to company.

A company's directors¹, acting as such within their powers² and within the powers of the company³ and without fraud, negligence or breach of fiduciary duty, incur no personal liability⁴. Where, however, they expend the property of the company in a manner which is ultra vires the company, as, for example, in paying a dividend out of capital⁵, or returning capital without legal reduction of capital⁶, or making unauthorised investments⁷, there is a liability on them to recoup any loss, and, if they occasion damage to the company by negligence, they may be liable to the extent of the damage caused⁸. If they dispose of the company's assets in breach of their fiduciary duties they may be treated as having committed a breach of trust and a director who is himself the recipient of assets holds them upon a trust for the company⁹.

A director who signed various stock transfers whereby shares held by the company as trustee for a number of pension funds were transferred to another company of which he was also a director, without the authority of the board of directors, and as a result of the transfer the company suffered loss, was in breach of duty and liable to the company for the loss as he was exercising his powers for an improper purpose¹⁰. If a company is the victim of a conspiracy by its directors who force it to do something illegal, it is not to be regarded as a party thereto by reason of the directors' knowledge, but may sue them in conspiracy for any loss it suffers¹¹. The claim may be brought by the company, but, where the cause of action arises from an actual or proposed act or omission involving negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust by a director of the company, any member of the company may take action, with the permission of the court¹². It may be possible for the company to ratify conduct by a director amounting to a breach of duty, in which case no liability arises¹³.

Proceedings may be taken in the winding up of a company against the directors for negligence, default, breach of duty, and breach of trust¹⁴.

A claim may be made by the company or on behalf of the company (for example, by a liquidator) but, if the company has been dissolved, the liability of the directors is extinguished by that dissolution, unless the dissolution is set aside by the court¹⁵.

586. Breach of trust by directors.

Although the directors of a company¹ are not properly speaking trustees, they have always been considered and treated as trustees of company money or property which comes into their hands or which is under their control². A director who has misapplied or retained or become liable or accountable for any money or property of the company is treated as having committed a breach of trust and must make good the money or property so misapplied and account for any gains made by him³.

Where the loss arises from the unauthorised application of the company's property, the measure of compensation is the value of the company's property which has been misapplied and the director may be held liable even though he has not himself received any of the misapplied property⁴. If improper dividends are paid (on the basis that either statute or common law has been breached), the entire amount is recoverable from the directors⁵. If, on the other hand, a dividend could lawfully be declared, and the directors declare an excessive dividend, the directors are liable only for the excess, being the unlawful part⁶. If a director is the recipient of company assets obtained in breach of his fiduciary duties, he holds those assets on trust for the company as a result of his pre-existing trustee-like responsibilities to the company⁷. In this way, the underlying basis of the liability of a director who exploits, after his resignation, a maturing business opportunity of the company is that the opportunity is to be treated as if it were the property of the company in relation to which the director had fiduciary duties; by seeking to exploit the opportunity after resignation, he is appropriating to himself that property, and he is just as accountable as a trustee who retires without properly accounting for trust property⁸.

Where the director's breach of fiduciary duty does not involve any use of the company's assets or property, so that the question is not one of a specific fund or asset being returned to the company, his liability is a personal liability in equity to account to the company for unauthorised profits made by him which are treated as taken for and on behalf of the company⁹.

A director may also be liable to pay equitable compensation to a company where, as a result of a breach of fiduciary duty on his part, the company has suffered loss¹⁰.

Where the money of the company has been applied for purposes which the company cannot sanction, the directors must replace it, however honestly they may have acted¹¹.

A director is liable for the acts of his co-directors, if, knowing that they intend to commit a breach of trust, he does not, by applying for an injunction or otherwise¹², take steps to prevent it. A managing director is equally responsible although required 'to act under the orders and directions of the board'¹³. However, a director is not so liable where he does not know of the breach of trust before or at its occurrence, for example, by his absence from a board meeting, and does not expressly or tacitly concur in its continuance¹⁴. If he is in fact acting on the instructions of a third party, he will be fixed with that person's knowledge of the transaction¹⁵. Merely attending a director's meeting which confirms the illegal acts of a past meeting is not necessarily sufficient to fix responsibility¹⁶. The liability of directors participating in breaches of trust and in respect of secret profits is joint and several¹⁷.

The estate of a deceased director has always been liable for his breaches of trust¹⁸; and, since 25 July 1934¹⁹, all causes of action subsisting against a deceased person at his death generally survive against his estate²⁰.

587. Liability of persons sharing in breach of trust by directors.

All persons dealing with a director¹, knowing that he is committing a breach of trust in the transaction, must repay the loss to the company with interest².

In a claim based on knowing receipt of trust funds, the test for knowledge in such a claim is simply whether the defendant's knowledge makes it unconscionable for him to retain the benefit of the receipt³. A third party who dishonestly procures or assists the directors in a breach of their fiduciary duties is liable; and for the most part dishonesty is to be equated with conscious impropriety⁴. A fraudulent breach of trust is established in such cases where a person is proved to have acted in a way that was contrary to normally acceptable standards of honest conduct, and was conscious of (or deliberately turned a blind eye to) those elements of the transaction in question that made his participation fall below those standards; but it is not necessary to establish that the person in question knew or gave any thought to what amounted to normally acceptable standards of conduct⁵.

A director who is in partnership is liable as regards his separate estate for the property of a company which has come into the hands of his firm and which is misappropriated by his firm with his concurrence⁶.

not regard as dishonest what he knows would offend the normally accepted standards of honest conduct). COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(ix) Directors' Liabilities for Breach of Duty/A. LIABILITIES OF DIRECTORS/588. Directors' liability for breach of duty in tort.

588. Directors' liability for breach of duty in tort.

A company's directors¹ are not liable for the company's torts unless they themselves committed or authorised², directed or procured the commission of the tortious act³; the mere fact that its directors are the sole directors and shareholders will not automatically render them liable for torts committed by the company⁴. Nor is a governing or managing director automatically so liable⁵. Such liability is not automatic; if the tort involved required some particular state of mind or knowledge on the part of the tortfeasor, the director could not be made liable without proof that he himself had that state of mind or knowledge⁶. However, the suggestion that he must, to be liable, in every case act deliberately or recklessly is not justified⁷.

A director is not liable as joint tortfeasor with the company, on the basis that he authorised, directed or procured the wrongful act, if he does no more than carry out his constitutional role in the governance of the company⁸.

A director cannot escape liability for deceit on the ground that his act was committed on behalf of the company⁹; but he will not be liable for negligent misstatement where the claimant cannot establish any assumption of responsibility on the part of the director on which the claimant could reasonably rely¹⁰.

Where the director is liable personally for the commission of a tort, his liability depends upon the usual principles and does not derive from his status as director, regardless of the fact that others (such as a company) may be liable also for the same tort, depending on the circumstances¹¹.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(ix) Directors' Liabilities for Breach of Duty/A. LIABILITIES OF DIRECTORS/589. Directors' liability for false statements etc in offer documents etc.

589. Directors' liability for false statements etc in offer documents etc.

Directors¹ may incur liability to persons who subscribe for shares or debentures of the company in reliance on offer documents which contain material misrepresentations of fact².

They may also incur liability by reason of false reports made by them to the company with the intention of attracting investors, and acted on by a subsequent investor to his damage³.

A director is not liable for untrue representations made to the shareholders in the balance sheets of the company if he honestly believed the representations to be true, and acted without negligence⁴. Where a company is formed to take over an existing business which turns out to be ruinous, the directors will not be responsible for making the purchase unless the ruinous nature of the business must have been obvious to any person acting with an ordinary degree of prudence, on the same principle that protects an agent purchasing by authority of his principal⁵. Shareholders will be liable in damages to persons to whom they have sold their shares on the faith of fraudulent statements made on their behalf by a director authorised to negotiate on their behalf ⁶.

A director who has in fact retired is not liable for subsequent statements or acts, although he may know that his name is appearing on a report which is impugned⁷.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(ix) Directors' Liabilities for Breach of Duty/A. LIABILITIES OF DIRECTORS/590. Directors' liability to creditors.

590. Directors' liability to creditors.

A company's directors¹ are not trustees for the creditors, present² or future³, of the company, even as regards one to whom the company stands in a fiduciary relationship⁴. The creditors, therefore, except as holders of security on any property of the company, and for the purpose of realising their security, have no right of interference with the company or its affairs, and have no remedy against a director for negligence in the conduct of its business⁵ or for breach of contract by the company⁶. A creditor cannot obtain an injunction against either the company or its directors in respect of ultra vires acts⁷. However, the rule making the directors liable for acts ultra vires the company operates to preserve the capital of the company and make it available for payment of creditors⁸.

Directors may, however, be liable to third persons for breach of warranty of authority to act on behalf of the company⁹; and they are also jointly and severally liable, if a public company of which they are directors enters into transactions before the company has been issued by the registrar with a certificate that it may do business and exercise borrowing powers¹⁰ and then fails to comply with its obligations in that connection within 21 days from being called upon to do so, to indemnify the other party to the transaction in respect of any loss or damage suffered by him by reason of such failure by the company¹¹.

Directors are not liable in negligence to the company's creditors unless particular circumstances exist, for example, by way of agreement or a contractual guarantee¹².

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(ix) Directors' Liabilities for Breach of Duty/A. LIABILITIES OF DIRECTORS/592. Directors' right to contribution.

592. Directors' right to contribution.

A director¹ is entitled to contribution from such of his co-directors as have concurred in a transaction ultra vires the company in respect of which money has been recovered from him². This is an equitable right quite apart from contract³, and is available against the estate of a deceased director who was liable to contribute⁴.

Shareholders who receive illegal payments knowingly, being constructive trustees for the company, must indemnify directors who are called upon to repay, or must themselves repay, if sued directly⁵. A director who has had the sole benefit of the breach of trust may not claim contribution against his co-directors⁶.

In a claim for contribution the defendant is not estopped from disputing the validity of the judgment in the claim against the claimant⁷.

Directors who have concurred in the cancellation of the shares of a co-director in pursuance of an agreement ultra vires the company, although they may be liable to the company, are not liable to their co-director for contribution towards his liability for costs⁸.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(ix) Directors' Liabilities for Breach of Duty/A. LIABILITIES OF DIRECTORS/593. Ratification of acts giving rise to liability.

593. Ratification of acts giving rise to liability.

Under the Companies Act 2006¹, a company² may ratify conduct³ by a director⁴ amounting to negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust⁵ in relation to the company⁶. However, any conduct so authorised must be bona fide and honest and not likely to jeopardise the company's solvency or cause loss to its creditors⁷.

The decision of the company to ratify such conduct must be made by resolution of the members of the company⁸. Where the resolution is proposed as a written resolution⁹ neither the director (if a member of the company) nor any member connected with him¹⁰ is an eligible member¹¹. Where the resolution is proposed at a meeting, it is passed only if the necessary majority is obtained disregarding votes in favour of the resolution by the director (if a member of the company) and any member connected with him¹².

Nothing in these provisions¹³ affects the validity of a decision taken by unanimous consent of the members of the company¹⁴, or any power of the directors to agree not to sue, or to settle or release a claim made by them on behalf of the company¹⁵.

Nor do these provisions¹⁶ affect any other enactment¹⁷ or rule of law imposing additional requirements for valid ratification or any rule of law as to acts that are incapable of being ratified by the company¹⁸.

B. STATUTORY PROTECTION FROM CERTAIN LIABILITIES

594. Avoidance of exemptions from directors' liability.

Any provision¹ that purports to exempt a director² of a company (to any extent) from any liability that would otherwise attach to him in connection with any negligence, default³, breach of duty or breach of trust⁴ in relation to the company is void⁵.

Any provision by which a company, directly or indirectly, provides an indemnity (to any extent) for a director of the company, or of an associated company⁶, against any liability attaching to him in connection with any negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust in relation to the company of which he is a director, is also void⁷, except as permitted by the provisions which allow a company to provide insurance against any such liability⁸, or to provide qualifying third party indemnity⁹, or to provide qualifying pension scheme indemnity¹⁰.

1 The Companies Act 2006 s 232 applies to any provision, whether contained in a company's articles or in any contract with the company or otherwise: s 232(3). The words 'or otherwise' must be construed eiusdem generis with the preceding words, the genus being any arrangement between the company and its officers: Burgoine v Waltham Forest London Borough Council [1997] 2 BCLC 612 (decided under the Companies Act 1985 s 310: see now the Companies Act 2006 ss 232, 532, 533; and see also PARAS 951-952). Nothing in the Companies Act 2006 s 232 prevents a company's articles from making such provision as has previously been lawful for dealing with conflicts of interest: s 232(4). As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16. As to the meaning of references to a company's 'articles' see PARA 228 note 2. As to model articles of association prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, and their application generally, see PARA 228 et seq. Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'limited company', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230. 4 The Companies Act 2006 contains for the first time a statutory statement of directors' duties (see Pt 10 Ch 2 (ss 170-181); and PARA 532 et seq); and the extent to which these general duties may be modified is limited to modifications permitted by the relevant duty (see eg s 173(2)(b) (conduct authorised by the company's constitution); and PARA 547) and by s 180 (which provides that, where the need to avoid conflicts of interest is complied with by directors' authorisation, the transaction or arrangement is not liable to be set aside by virtue of any common law rule or equitable principle requiring the consent or approval of the members of the company, subject to any enactment, or provision of the company's constitution, requiring such consent or approval: see PARA 551). Movitex Ltd v Bulfield [1988] BCLC 104 (which considered the scope available under the then-existing statutory provisions to modify directors' obligations) needs to be considered now in the light of the statutory framework provided by the Companies Act 2006. As to directors' fiduciary duties owed to the company generally see PARA 544 et seq.

The repeal of the Companies Act 1985 ss 306, 307 and of the Insolvency Act 1986 s 75 (provisions relating to unlimited liability of directors and others) does not affect the operation of those provisions in relation to liabilities arising before 1 October 2009 or in connection with the holding of an office to which a person was appointed before that date on the understanding that their liability would be unlimited: see the Companies Act 2006 (Consequential Amendments, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2009, SI 2009/1941, art 9.

7 Companies Act 2006 s 232(2). See note 1. Under the Companies Act 1985 s 310 (see now the Companies Act 2006 s 232; and see also PARAS 951-952), the prohibition was held to apply only to indemnities given by the company concerned and not to indemnities given by third parties (see Burgoine v Waltham Forest London Borough Council [1997] 2 BCLC 612); but that loophole has now been closed by the Companies Act 2006 s 232(2). See also note 6.

The Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, provide that a relevant director of the company or an associated company may be indemnified out of the company's assets against:

193 (1) any liability incurred by that director in connection with any negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust in relation to the company or an associated company (Sch 1 art 52(1)(a); Sch 2 art 38(1)(a); Sch 3 art 85(1)(a));

194 (2) any liability incurred by that director in connection with the activities of the company or an associated company in its capacity as a trustee of an occupational pension scheme as defined in the Companies Act 2006 s 235(6) (see PARA 596) (Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 art 52(1)(b); Sch 2 art 38(1)(b); Sch 3 art 85(1)(b));

- 195 (3) any other liability incurred by that director as an officer of the company or an associated company (Sch 1 art 52(1)(c); Sch 2 art 38(1)(c); Sch 3 art 85(1)(c)).

However, these provisions do not authorise any indemnity which would be prohibited or rendered void by any provision of the Companies Acts or by any other provision of law: Sch 1 art 52(2); Sch 2 art 38(2); Sch 3 art 85(2). For these purposes, companies are 'associated' if one is a subsidiary of the other or both are subsidiaries of the same body corporate; and a 'relevant director' means any director or former director of the company or an associated company: Sch 1 art 52(3); Sch 2 art 38(3); Sch 3 art 85(3). There is no equivalent provision made in the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, but Schedule, Table A art 118 provides for every director or other officer or auditor of the company to be indemnified against any liability incurred by him in defending any proceedings, whether civil or criminal, in which judgment is given in his favour or in which he is acquitted or in connection with any application in which relief is granted to him by the court from liability for negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust in relation to the affairs of the company: see PARA 596.

The statutory prohibition¹ on a company², either directly or indirectly, providing an indemnity (to any extent) for a director³ of the company, or of an associated company⁴, against any liability attaching to him in connection with any negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust in relation to the company of which he is a director, is subject to the proviso that this provision⁵ does not prevent a company from purchasing and maintaining for a director of the company, or of an associated company, insurance against any such liability⁶.

The model articles of association that have been prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 (ie the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229: see PARA 228 et seq) provide that directors may decide to purchase and maintain insurance, at the expense of the company, for the benefit of any relevant director in respect of any relevant loss: reg 2, Sch 1 art 53(1); reg 3, Sch 2 art 39(1); reg 4, Sch 3 art 86(1). For these purposes, a 'relevant director' means any director or former director of the company or an associated company; a 'relevant loss' means any loss or liability which has been or may be incurred by a relevant director in connection with that director's duties or powers in relation to the company, any associated company or any pension fund or employees' share scheme of the company or associated company, and companies are 'associated' if one is a subsidiary of the other or both are subsidiaries of the same body corporate: Sch 1 art 53(2); Sch 2 art 39(2); Sch 3 art 86(2). Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'limited company', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230. No provision is made therein which is equivalent exactly to that made in the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, but see PARA 596 note 10.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(ix) Directors' Liabilities for Breach of Duty/B. STATUTORY PROTECTION FROM CERTAIN LIABILITIES/596. Exception for provision of qualifying indemnities.

596. Exception for provision of qualifying indemnities.

The statutory prohibition¹ on a company², either directly or indirectly, providing an indemnity (to any extent) for a director³ of the company, or of an associated company⁴, against any liability attaching to him in connection with any negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust in relation to the company of which he is a director, is subject to the proviso that this provision⁵ does not apply to:

- 995 (1) qualifying third party indemnity provision⁶; or
- 996 (2) qualifying pension scheme indemnity provision⁷.

For the purposes of head (1) above, 'third party indemnity provision' means provision for indemnity against liability incurred by the director to a person other than the company or an associated company⁸; and such provision is 'qualifying third party indemnity provision' if the following requirements are met⁹, namely that the provision must not provide any indemnity against¹⁰: (a) any liability of the director to pay a fine imposed in criminal proceedings¹¹, or a sum payable to a regulatory authority by way of a penalty in respect of non-compliance with any requirement of a regulatory nature (however arising)¹²; or (b) any liability incurred by the director in defending criminal proceedings in which he is convicted¹³, or in defending civil proceedings brought by the company, or an associated company, in which judgment is given against him¹⁴, or in connection with an application for relief¹⁵ in which the court refuses to grant him relief¹⁶.

For the purposes of head (2) above, 'pension scheme indemnity provision' means a provision indemnifying a director of a company that is a trustee of an occupational pension scheme¹⁷ against liability incurred in connection with the company's activities as trustee of the scheme¹⁸; and such provision is a 'qualifying pension scheme indemnity provision' if the following requirements are met¹⁹, namely that the provision must not provide any indemnity against²⁰: (i) any liability of the director to pay a fine imposed in criminal proceedings²¹, or a sum payable to a regulatory authority by way of a penalty in respect of non-compliance with any requirement of a regulatory nature (however arising)²²; or (ii) any liability incurred by the director in defending criminal proceedings in which he is convicted²³.

A qualifying indemnity provision²⁴ must be disclosed in the directors' report²⁵.

Cf the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, reg 2, Schedule, Table A art 118, which provides that, subject to the provisions of the Companies Acts, but without prejudice to any indemnity to which a director may otherwise be entitled, every director or other officer or auditor of the company must be indemnified out of the assets of the company against any liability incurred by him in defending any proceedings, whether civil or criminal, in which judgment is given in his favour or in which he is acquitted or in connection with any application in which relief is granted to him by the court from liability for negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust in relation to the affairs of the company. This article may be so framed as to cover proceedings for liability for ultra vires acts: Viscount of the Royal Court of Jersey v Shelton [1986] 1 WLR 985, PC (disapproving dictum of Lindley LJ in Cullerne v London and Suburban General Permanent Building Society (1890) 25 QBD 485 at 488, CA, and applying Re Claridge's Patent Asphalte Co Ltd [1921] 1 Ch 543). A director's expenses of defending himself against an allegation that he did something which he did not in fact do and which it was not his duty to do are not incurred by him as such and are therefore not recoverable under an indemnity covering 'any act done by him as director', or under the general law: Tomlinson v Scottish Amalgamated Silks Ltd (liquidators) 1935 SC (HL) 1. 597. Required disclosure of qualifying indemnity provision.

The Companies Act 2006¹ requires disclosure in the directors' report² of any qualifying third party indemnity provision³, and any qualifying pension scheme indemnity provision⁴. Such provision is referred for these purposes as 'qualifying indemnity provision'⁵.

If, when a directors' report is approved⁶, any qualifying indemnity provision (whether made by the company or otherwise) is in force for the benefit of one or more directors of the company, the report must state that such provision is in force⁷; and if at any time during the financial year to which a directors' report relates any such provision was in force for the benefit of one or more persons who were then directors of the company, the report must state that such provision was in force⁸.

If when a directors' report is approved qualifying indemnity provision made by the company is in force for the benefit of one or more directors of an associated company⁹, the report must state that such provision is in force¹⁰; and if at any time during the financial year to which a directors' report relates any such provision was in force for the benefit of one or more persons who were then directors of an associated company, the report must state that such provision was in force¹¹.

598. Copy of qualifying indemnity provision must be available for inspection.

A company¹ must keep available for inspection²: (1) a copy of the qualifying indemnity provision³; or (2) if the provision is not in writing, a written memorandum setting out its terms⁴. The copy and memorandum must be kept available for inspection either at the company's registered office⁵, or at a place specified in regulations⁶.

The copy or memorandum must be retained by the company for at least one year from the date of termination or expiry of the provision and must be kept available for inspection during that time⁷.

The company must give notice to the registrar of companies⁸: (a) of the place at which the copy or memorandum is kept available for inspection⁹; and (b) of any change in that place¹⁰, unless it has at all times been kept at the company's registered office¹¹.

If default is made in complying with any of the requirements so to keep any qualifying indemnity provision available for inspection¹², or to keep it available in the proper place¹³, or to retain it for the proper length of time¹⁴, or if default is made for 14 days in complying with the requirement to give notice to the registrar of companies¹⁵, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default¹⁶. A person guilty of such an offence is liable (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale¹⁷ and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine¹⁸ not exceeding one-tenth of level 3 on the standard scale¹⁹.

1 le a company to which the Companies Act 2006 s 237 applies or, as the case may be, each of them: see s 237(2). The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 s 237 have effect where qualifying indemnity provision is made for a director of a company (s 237(1)), and they apply: (1) to the company of which he is a director (whether the provision is made by that company or an associated company) (s 237(1)(a)); and (2) where the provision is made by an associated company, to that company (s 237(1)(b)). 599. Members' right to inspect and request copy of qualifying indemnity provision.

Every copy or memorandum that is required to be kept pursuant to the duty of a company¹ to keep any qualifying indemnity provision² available for inspection³ must be open to inspection by any member of the company⁴ without charge⁵.

Any member of the company is entitled also, on request and on payment of such fee as may be prescribed⁶, to be provided with a copy of any such copy or memorandum⁷. The copy must be provided within seven days after the request is received by the company⁸.

If an inspection so required by a member of a company⁹ is refused, or if default is made in so providing a member with a copy or memorandum¹⁰, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default¹¹. A person guilty of such an offence is liable (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale¹² and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine¹³ not exceeding one-tenth of level 3 on the standard scale¹⁴.

In the case of any such refusal or default, the court¹⁵ may by order compel an immediate inspection or, as the case may be, direct that the copy required be sent to the person requiring it¹⁶.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(13) DIRECTORS/(ix) Directors' Liabilities for Breach of Duty/B. STATUTORY PROTECTION FROM CERTAIN LIABILITIES/600. Power of court to give relief against liability.

600. Power of court to give relief against liability.

If, in proceedings for negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust¹ against: (1) an officer of a company²; or (2) a person employed by a company as auditor³ (whether or not he is an officer of the company)⁴, it appears to the court⁵ hearing the case that the officer or person is or may be liable, but that he acted honestly and reasonably⁶ and that, having regard to all the circumstances of the case⁷, including those connected with his appointment, he ought fairly to be excused, the court may relieve him, either wholly or in part, from his liability on such terms as the court thinks fit⁸. The power to grant relief does not extend to relief against claims by third parties⁹, being limited to proceedings the essential nature of which is to enforce (at the suit of, or on behalf of, the company) the duties that a director owes to the company¹⁰.

Where such a case is being tried by a judge with a jury, the judge may, after hearing the evidence and if he is satisfied that the defendant ought¹¹ to be relieved either in whole or in part from the liability sought to be enforced against him, withdraw the case from the jury and forthwith direct judgment to be entered for the defendant on such terms as to costs or otherwise as the judge may think proper¹².

If any such officer or person as is mentioned in head (1) or head (2) above has reason to apprehend that a claim will or might be made against him in respect of negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust¹³, then he may apply to the court for relief¹⁴; and the court on any such application has the same power to relieve him as it would have had if it had been a court before which proceedings against him for negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust had been brought¹⁵.

Under the provisions described above, a director may be relieved against liability in respect of a transaction that is wholly ultra vires the company¹⁶ or where he has acted without obtaining¹⁷ or after ceasing to hold¹⁸ his qualification shares¹⁹.

As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16. As an officer of the company, an administrator could be protected under the Companies Act 2006 s 1157: Re Home Treat Ltd [1991] BCLC 705 (court protected the administrators by an order relieving them of any future claim against them) (case decided under the Companies Act 1985 s 727). As to administrators see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(3) (2004 Reissue) PARA 158 et seq. However, given that the statutory definition of 'shadow director', which is specified for the purposes of the Companies Act, is not incorporated by reference into the definition of 'officer' for those same purposes, it must follow that a shadow director cannot be relieved from liability under the statutory provisions: see Ultraframe (UK) Ltd v Fielding, Northstar Systems Ltd v Fielding [2005] EWHC 1638 (Ch) at [1452], [2005] All ER (D) 397 (Jul) at [1452] per Lewison J.

6 Failure to seek legal advice was held to be acting unreasonably in Re Duomatic Ltd [1969] 2 Ch 365, [1969] 1 All ER 161; as was the making of a payment which the directors had no power to make in Gibson's Executor v Gibson 1980 SLT 2, Ct of Sess. Questions of reasonableness may depend to some extent on past practice of the company: Re Duomatic Ltd at 375 and 170 per Buckley J.

The test of reasonableness is not subjective and it is questionable whether the test is subjective as regards honesty: Bairstow v Queens Moat Houses plc [2001] EWCA Civ 712 at [58], [2001] 2 BCLC 531 at [58] per Robert Walker LJ; cf Coleman Taymar Ltd v Oakes [2001] 2 BCLC 749 at 770 per Reid J; Re Produce Marketing Consortium Ltd [1989] 3 All ER 1 at 5-6, [1989] 1 WLR 745 at 749-751 per Knox J. The burden of proving honesty and reasonableness is on those seeking relief: Bairstow v Queens Moat Houses plc at [58] per Robert Walker LJ; Re Loquitur Ltd, IRC v Richmond at [228] per Etherton J; Re In a Flap Envelope Co Ltd, Willmott v Jenkin at [59] per Jonathan Crow. The requirements of honesty and reasonableness are not alternatives: PNC Telecom plc v Thomas (No 2) [2007] EWHC 2157 (Ch), [2008] 2 BCLC 95.

7 The test is whether the director had acted with the reasonable care and circumspection which could reasonably be expected of him in the circumstances: PNC Telecom plc v Thomas (No 2) [2007] EWHC 2157 (Ch), [2008] 2 BCLC 95. In general, the wishes of the members (or, if the company is insolvent, its creditors) must be taken into account: Re Barry and Staines Linoleum Ltd [1934] Ch 227.

8 Companies Act 2006 s 1157(1). For these purposes, 'liability' includes liability to account for profits: Coleman Taymar Ltd v Oakes [2001] 2 BCLC 749; and see First Global Media Group Ltd v Larkin [2003] EWCA Civ 1765, [2003] All ER (D) 293 (Nov); Queensway Systems Ltd (in liq) v Walker [2006] EWHC 2496 (Ch), [2007] 2 BCLC 577 (director authorised arrangements or transactions such that she was liable even for those sums paid to or for the benefit of others rather than herself). Relief may be so granted only by the court in which the pending proceedings are taken (Re Gilt Edge Safety Glass Ltd [1940] Ch 495, [1940] 2 All ER 237); and it would require an exceptional case for a court to conclude on an interim application that it was appropriate to grant relief (Equitable Life Assurance Society v Bowley [2003] EWHC 2263 (Comm), [2004] 1 BCLC 180). The court is reluctant to exercise its discretion at the expense of the company's creditors: Re Marini Ltd [2003] EWHC 334 (Ch), [2004] BCC 172; Inn Spirit Ltd v Burns [2002] EWHC 1731 (Ch) at [30], [2002] 2 BCLC 780 at [30] per Rimer J; and see Re Simmon Box (Diamonds) Ltd [2000] BCC 275 at 288 (revsd on other grounds Cohen v Selby [2001] 1 BCLC 176, sub nom Re Simmon Box (Diamonds) Ltd [2002] BCC 82, CA). There can be no question of relief where a director holds company funds as a constructive trustee (Guinness plc v Saunders [1990] 2 AC 663, [1990] 1 All ER 652, HL); or where he has been found guilty of dishonestly preparing false accounts (Bairstow v Queens Moat Houses plc [2001] EWCA Civ 712 at [63], [2001] 2 BCLC 531 at [63] per Robert Walker LJ); and it would require an extremely powerful case to persuade the court to exercise its discretion to relieve a director from liability if he has obtained a material personal benefit through a breach of duty (see Re In a Flap Envelope Co Ltd, Willmott v Jenkin [2003] EWHC 3047 (Ch) at [64], [2004] 1 BCLC 64 at [64] per Jonathan Crow). Relief is not available to a director against whom a liquidator has sought a contribution in the insolvent liquidation of the company under the Insolvency Act 1986 s 214 (see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(4) (2004 Reissue) PARA 914): Re Produce Marketing Consortium Ltd [1989] 3 All ER 1, [1989] 1 WLR 745; Re Brian D Pierson (Contractors) Ltd [2001] 1 BCLC 275 at 308-309 per Hazel Williamson QC. Where, as is usually the case, a director is paid for his services, the court is less disposed to give him relief than it would be to give it to a person acting gratuitously: National Trustees Co of Australasia v General Finance Co of Australasia [1905] AC 373 at 381, PC. See also Re Welfab Engineers Ltd [1990] BCLC 833 (directors who were alleged to have breached their duty by selling company's assets at an undervalue were held not to have acted in breach of that duty and, even if they had, it was a case where, having acted honestly and reasonably, they ought to be excused under the Companies Act 2006 s 1157) (case decided under the Companies Act 1985 s 727).

Similarly, s 532 (voidness of provisions protecting auditors from liability) (see PARA 951) does not prevent a company from indemnifying an auditor against any liability incurred by him in connection with an application under s 1157 in which relief is granted to him by the court: see s 533; and PARA 952.

(14) COMPANY SECRETARY AND OTHER OFFICERS

601. Requirement for company to have secretary.

A private company¹ is not required to have a secretary². In the case of a private company without a secretary³: (1) anything authorised or required to be given or sent to, or served on, the company⁴ by being sent to its secretary, may be given or sent to, or served on, the company itself⁵ and, if addressed to the secretary, must be treated as addressed to the company⁶; and (2) anything else required or authorised to be done by or to the secretary of the company may be done by or to a director⁷, or to a person authorised generally or specifically in that behalf by the directors⁸.

A public company⁹ must have a secretary¹⁰.

Where, in the case of any company, the office of secretary is vacant, or there is for any other reason no secretary capable of acting, anything required or authorised to be done by or to the secretary may be done either by or to an assistant or deputy secretary (if any)¹¹ or, if there is no assistant or deputy secretary or none capable of acting, by or to any person authorised generally or specifically in that behalf by the directors¹².

The secretary should always be appointed by the company under a written agreement specifying the general conditions of service, including the term of office and the period of notice for its termination¹³. Apart from any written agreement, he holds his office on such conditions of service as may be implied from the articles of association or the practice of the company¹⁴ or of other like companies and subject to reasonable notice on either side¹⁵.

A provision requiring or authorising a thing to be done by or to a director and the secretary of a company is not satisfied by its being done by or to the same person acting both as director and as, or in place of, the secretary¹⁶.

As to the date of incorporation see PARA 119 note 7; and as to incorporation by registration under the Companies Act 2006 see PARA 111 et seq.

The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, reg 2, Schedule, Table A art 99 provides that, subject to the provisions of the Companies Acts, the secretary must be appointed by the directors for such term, at such remuneration and upon such conditions as they may think fit; and any secretary so appointed may be removed by them. However, the model articles of association prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 (see PARA 228 et seq) do not make equivalent provision.

602. Direction requiring public company to appoint secretary.

If it appears to the Secretary of State¹ that a public company² is in breach of the requirement to have a secretary³, the Secretary of State may give the company a direction⁴, which must state that the company appears to be in breach of that requirement⁵, and must specify⁶:

- 997 (1) what the company must do in order to comply with the direction⁷; and
- 998 (2) the period within which it must do so⁸.

The direction must also inform the company of the consequences of failing to comply⁹.

Where the company is in breach of the requirement to have a secretary¹⁰, it must comply with the direction by making the necessary appointment¹¹, and by giving notice of it¹², before the end of the period specified in the direction¹³. If the company has already made the necessary appointment, it must comply with the direction by giving notice of it¹⁴ before the end of the period specified in the direction¹⁵.

If a company fails to comply with a direction so given¹⁶, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default¹⁷. A person guilty of such an offence is liable (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale¹⁸ and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine¹⁹ not exceeding one-tenth of level 5 on the standard scale²⁰.

603. Qualifications required of secretaries of public companies.

A company's articles of association¹ may make provision for the secretary² and other officers of the company³ to be appointed by the directors⁴.

It is the duty of the directors of a public company⁵ to take all reasonable steps to secure that the secretary (or each joint secretary) of the company is a person who appears to them to have the requisite knowledge and experience to discharge the functions of secretary of the company⁶, and has one or more of the following qualifications⁷, namely:

- 999 (1) that he has held the office of secretary of a public company for at least three of the five years immediately preceding his appointment as secretary⁸; or
- 1000 (2) that he is a member of a specified body⁹; or
- 1001 (3) that he is a barrister, advocate or solicitor called or admitted in any part of the United Kingdom¹⁰; or
- 1002 (4) that he is a person who, by virtue of his holding or having held any other position or his being a member of any other body, appears to the directors to be capable of discharging the functions of secretary of the company¹¹.

604. Nature of employment of secretary.

The secretary, being an agent only¹, is in the same position as any other agent of a company². If his dealings are such that his company is not bound by them, he may himself be liable, either as principal or on the ground of breach of warranty of authority³. Whereas it has formerly been held that he had no authority by virtue of his position to make representations to induce persons to contract with the company, his functions being ministerial only⁴, his status has now greatly increased⁵. The secretary regularly makes representations on behalf of the company and enters into contracts on its behalf which come within the day-to-day running of the company's business; he signs contracts connected with the administrative side of a company's affairs; and all these matters are now within his ostensible authority⁶. However, he is not, whilst merely performing the duties appropriate to his office, a party to the carrying on of the business of the company, so as to make him responsible without more for fraudulent trading⁷.

He has no power, without the resolution of the directors, to call a meeting of the company⁸ or to commence proceedings on behalf of the company⁹; nor may he alter the register of members¹⁰; but any such act may be ratified by the directors¹¹.

A secretary may not make a secret profit in connection with the affairs of the company¹².

A secretary is normally an employee so as to be entitled to preferential payment in a winding up¹³.

5 Before the Companies Act 1948 (see s 177(1) (repealed)), it was not obligatory for a company to have a secretary at all. The Combined Code on Corporate Governance (June 2008) (published by the Financial Reporting Council) provides that, under the direction of the chairman, the company secretary's responsibilities include ensuring good information flows within the board and its committees and between senior management and non-executive directors, as well as facilitating induction and assisting with professional development as required. The company secretary should be responsible for advising the board through the chairman on all governance matters: Supporting Principles to Main Principle A.5 (Information and professional development). All directors should have access to the advice and services of the company secretary, who is responsible to the board for ensuring that board procedures are complied with. Both the appointment and removal of the company secretary should be a matter for the board as a whole: Code Provision A.5.3. While it is expected that companies will comply wholly or substantially with its provisions, it is recognised that non-compliance may be justified in particular circumstances if good governance can be achieved by other means. A condition of non-compliance is that the reasons for it should be explained to shareholders, who may wish to discuss the position with the company and whose voting intentions may be influenced as a result. This 'comply or explain' approach has been in operation since the Code's beginnings in 1992: see Preamble para 2.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(14) COMPANY SECRETARY AND OTHER OFFICERS/605. Register of secretaries.

605. Register of secretaries.

A company¹ must keep a register of its secretaries².

The register must contain the required particulars³ of the person who is, or persons who are, the secretary or joint secretaries of the company⁴. Accordingly, a company's register of secretaries must contain the following particulars in the case of an individual⁵: (1) name⁶ and any former name⁷; (2) address⁸. In the case of a body corporate⁹, or a firm¹⁰ that is a legal person under the law by which it is governed, a company's register of secretaries must contain the following particulars¹¹:

- 1003 (a) corporate or firm name¹²;
- 1004 (b) registered or principal office¹³;
- 1005 (c) in the case of an EEA company¹⁴ to which the First Company Law Directive¹⁵ applies, particulars of¹⁶: (i) the register in which the company file¹⁷ is kept (including details of the relevant state)¹⁸; and (ii) the registration number in that register¹⁹;
- 1006 (d) in any other case, particulars of²⁰: (i) the legal form of the company or firm and the law by which it is governed²¹; and (ii) if applicable, the register in which it is entered (including details of the state) and its registration number in that register²².

However, if all the partners in a firm are joint secretaries, it is sufficient to state the particulars that would be required if the firm were a legal person and the firm had been appointed secretary²³.

The register must be kept available for inspection either at the company's registered office²⁴, or at a place specified in regulations²⁵. The company must give notice to the registrar of companies²⁶ of the place at which the register is kept available for inspection²⁷, and of any change in that place²⁸, unless it has at all times been kept at the company's registered office²⁹.

The register must be open to the inspection of any member of the company³⁰ without charge³¹, and to the inspection of any other person on payment of such fee as may be prescribed³².

If default is made in complying with the requirements to keep a register³³, or to maintain the required particulars to be contained therein³⁴, or to keep the register available for inspection³⁵, or if default is made for 14 days in complying with the giving of notice to the registrar of the place where inspection may be made³⁶, or if an inspection³⁷ is refused, an offence is committed by the company, and by every officer of the company who is in default³⁸. A person guilty of such an offence is liable (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale³⁹ and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine⁴⁰ not exceeding one-tenth of level 5 on the standard scale⁴¹. In the case of a refusal of inspection of the register, the court⁴² may by order compel an immediate inspection of it⁴³.

1 As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

2 Companies Act 2006 s 275(1). As to whether a company is required to have a secretary see PARA 601. On and after 1 October 2009, the register of directors and secretaries kept by a company under the Companies Act 1985 s 288(1) (repealed) was to be treated as two separate registers, namely a register of directors kept under and for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 s 162 (see PARA 499), and a register of secretaries kept under and for the purposes of s 275: see the Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 8, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2008, SI 2008/2860, art 5, Sch 2 para 25. As to the meaning of 'director' under the Companies Acts see PARA 478.

The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 ss 275, 277-279 apply to unregistered companies by virtue of the Unregistered Companies Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2436, reg 3, Sch 1 para 8, but with the Companies Act 2006 s 275 as modified thereby: see PARA 1666. As to the meaning of 'unregistered company' see PARA 1665.

3 Ie as specified in the Companies Act 2006 s 277 (particulars of secretaries to be registered: individuals) (see the text and notes 5-8), s 278 (particulars of secretaries to be registered: corporate secretaries and firms) (see the text and notes 9-23) and s 279 (particulars of secretaries to be registered: power to make regulations): see s 275(2). The Secretary of State may make provision by regulations amending s 277 or s 278, so as to add to or remove items from the particulars required to be contained in a company's register of secretaries: s 279(1). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6. As to the making of regulations under the Companies Act 2006 generally see ss 1288-1292. Regulations under s 279 are subject to affirmative resolution procedure (ie the regulations must not be made unless a draft of the statutory instrument containing them has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament): see ss 279(2), 1290. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made under s 279. As to a company's duty to notify the registrar of changes in particulars contained in the register see PARA 606.

The statement of proposed officers that is required to be delivered in accordance with s 9(1), (4) (see PARA 111) to the registrar of companies must contain the required particulars (ie those same particulars that are required to be stated in the company's register of secretaries) of (in the case of a company that is to be a private company) any person who is (or any persons who are) to be the first secretary (or joint secretaries) of the company and (in the case of a company that is to be a public company) the person who is (or the persons who are) to be the first secretary (or joint secretaries) of the company: see s 12; and PARA 112.

5 Companies Act 2006 s 277(1). See note 3.

6 For these purposes, 'name' means a person's Christian name (or other forename) and surname, except that in the case of a peer, or an individual usually known by a title, the title may be stated instead of his Christian name (or other forename) and surname or in addition to either or both of them: Companies Act 2006 s 277(2). See note 3.

7 Companies Act 2006 s 277(1)(a). For these purposes, a 'former name' means a name by which the individual was formerly known for business purposes; and, where a person is or was formerly known by more than one such name, each of them must be stated: s 277(3). However, it is not necessary for the register to contain particulars of a former name in the following cases: (1) in the case of a peer or an individual normally known by a British title, where the name is one by which the person was known previous to the adoption of or succession to the title (s 277(4)(a)); (2) in the case of any person, where the former name either was changed or disused before the person attained the age of 16 years, or has been changed or disused for 20 years or more (s 277(4)(b)). See note 3.

8 Companies Act 2006 s 277(1)(b). The address required to be stated in the register is a service address, which may be stated to be 'The company's registered office': s 277(5). See note 3. As to a company's registered office see PARA 129. As to requirements relating to service addresses generally see PARA 673.

In the case of an existing company, the relevant existing address of a secretary is deemed, on and after 1 October 2009, to be a service address, and any entry in the company's register of secretaries stating that address is treated, on and after that date, as complying with the obligation in the Companies Act 2006 s 277(1)(b) to state a service address: Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 8, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2008, SI 2008/2860, art 5, Sch 2 para 27(1). The relevant existing address is the address that immediately before 1 October 2009 appeared in the company's register of directors and secretaries as having been notified to the company under the Companies Act 1985 s 290(1A) (repealed) (service address notified by individual applying for confidentiality order in respect of usual residential address) or, if no such address appeared, the address that immediately before that date appeared in the company's register of directors and secretaries as the secretary's usual residential address: Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 8, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2008, SI 2008/2860, Sch 2 para 27(2). Any notification of a change of a relevant existing address occurring before 1 October 2009 that is received by the company on or after that date is treated as being or, as the case may be, including notification of a change of service address: Sch 2 para 27(3). However, the operation of Sch 2 para 27 does not give rise to any duty to notify the registrar under the Companies Act 2006 s 167 (duty to notify registrar of changes in particulars contained in register) (see PARA 514): Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 8, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2008, SI 2008/2860, Sch 2 para 27(4). As to the meaning of 'existing company' for these purposes see PARA 18 note 2. As to the company's register of directors and secretaries see note 3.

The registrar of companies may make such entries in the register of companies as appear to be appropriate having regard to Sch 2 para 27 and the information appearing on the register immediately before 1 October 2009 or notified to the registrar in accordance with Sch 2 para 31(2) (effect of repealed provisions): Sch 2 para 32(1). In particular, the registrar may record as a service address a relevant existing address (within the meaning of Sch 2 para 27) or, in the case of a company formed and registered on an application to which Sch 2 para 2(3) applies (see PARA 24 note 4), an address notified to the registrar in connection with that application as a secretary's usual residential address: Sch 2 para 32(2). Any notification of a change of a relevant existing address occurring before 1 October 2009 that is received by the registrar on or after that date is treated as being or, as the case may be, including notification of a change of service address: Sch 2 para 32(4). 606. Duty to notify registrar of changes.

A company¹ must, within the period of 14 days from²: (1) a person becoming or ceasing to be its secretary or one of its joint secretaries³; or (2) the occurrence of any change in the particulars contained in its register of secretaries⁴, give notice to the registrar of companies⁵ of the change and of the date on which it occurred⁶.

Notice of a person having become secretary, or one of joint secretaries, of the company must be accompanied by a consent by that person to act in the relevant capacity⁷.

If default is made in complying with these requirements⁸, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default⁹. A person guilty of such an offence is liable (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale¹⁰ and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine¹¹ not exceeding one-tenth of level 5 on the standard scale¹².

7 Companies Act 2006 s 276(2). The Secretary of State may make provision by regulations requiring a statement or notice sent to the registrar of companies under s 276 (notice of a person having become secretary or one of joint secretaries) that relates (wholly or partly) to a person disqualified under Pt 40 (ss 1182-1191) (see PARA 1617 et seq) or a person who is subject to a disqualification order or disqualification undertaking under the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986 (see PARA 1578 et seq) to be accompanied by an additional statement stating that the person has obtained permission from a court to act in the capacity in question: see the Companies Act 2006 s 1189; and PARA 1621.

607. Officers of the company.

Prior to the Companies Act 1948¹, there was no statutory definition of 'officer', but the following were held to be officers of a company: its secretary²; its auditors when appointed as such³, but not a person casually employed by the directors to prepare a balance sheet⁴; a solicitor when remunerated by fixed salary, but not when employed in the ordinary way⁵; persons whose duty it is to invest the company's money and hold the investments⁶; a liquidator⁷; and an administrator appointed under the Insolvency Act 1986⁸. The following have been held not to be officers: trustees of the company⁹; trustees of a debenture trust deed¹⁰; bankers¹¹; experts employed to investigate and report on the management of the company¹²; and the editor or chief reporter of a newspaper¹³.

In the Companies Acts¹⁴, 'officer', in relation to a body corporate¹⁵, includes a director¹⁶, manager or secretary¹⁷. 'Manager' means, in everyday language, a person who has the management of the whole affairs of the company¹⁸. It connotes a person holding, whether de jure or de facto, a position in or with the company of a nature charging him with the duty of managing the affairs of the company for the company's benefit¹⁹. It does not include a local manager²⁰.

610. Manager.

If a manager¹ commits such a breach of his duty as to cause a loss to the company, he is liable in damages²; and a de facto manager is also liable to penalties wherever the 'manager' is made liable by the Companies Acts³. A manager who takes a secret commission may be dismissed⁴. A secretary⁵ who has in fact acted as manager is liable for negligence in preparing balance sheets and accounts whereby he has caused dividends to be paid out of capital⁶.

611. Solicitor.

A solicitor is not ordinarily an officer of a company¹; but, if he is paid by way of salary and has certain duties to perform, he may be an officer². It is not within the province of the company's solicitor to make any representations to possible investors as to the financial state of the company³.

In the case of the formation of a particular company, a solicitor is not the company's agent, but the agent of the promoter, to whom he must look for payment⁴. The company cannot become liable to the solicitor by ratifying his acts, as it cannot ratify acts done before it was incorporated⁵; but it may become liable if the contract is novated⁶. If a solicitor charges the company for his professional services in the formation of the company, he cannot also charge the vendors on the sale of the business to the company⁷. An agreement made before the company is formed does not give him any right to employment⁸. The appointment of a solicitor is sometimes provided for in the company's articles⁹, but the articles themselves do not constitute a contract with him¹⁰.

A company's solicitor cannot set off an unliquidated claim for his costs against calls made in respect of shares held by him in the company¹¹.

He has no lien on the registers or books of the company, which must be kept at the company's office or otherwise under the control of the company¹², but he may have a lien on documents which the company does not need for the conduct of its business. A winding up will not displace this lien¹³. He cannot, however, assert such a lien as would prejudice the conduct of the winding up¹⁴; nor has he a lien for costs incurred in business that he knows to be ultra vires¹⁵; nor may he assert a lien against a third party¹⁶.

(i) Resolutions

A. IN GENERAL

612. General requirements of the Companies Act 2006.

Part 13 of the Companies Act 2006¹ governs resolutions and meetings of a company². Amongst other things, these provisions implement the European Parliament and EC Council Directive³ which governs the exercise of certain shareholder rights attached to voting shares in relation to general meetings of companies incorporated in a member state and admitted to trading on a regulated market in a member state⁴.

The provisions of Part 13 are mandatory except where it is stated that the matter is subject to contrary provision in a company's articles⁵. In particular, a resolution of the members⁶ (or of a class of members⁷) must be passed in accordance with the procedure that is laid down in the Companies Act 2006⁸.

The rights conferred by Part 13 may be exercised⁹ by beneficial owners and nominees¹⁰.

7 As to classes of shares and of rights attached to shares see PARA 1057 et seq.

8 See the Companies Act 2006 s 281; and PARA 617. A resolution of the members (or of a class of members) of a private company must be passed either as a written resolution in accordance with Pt 13 Ch 2 (ss 288-300) (see PARA 623 et seq), or at a meeting of the members to which the provisions of Pt 13 Ch 3 (ss 301-335) (see PARA 632 et seq) apply: see s 281(1); and PARA 617. A resolution of the members (or of a class of members) of a public company must be passed at a meeting of the members to which the provisions of Pt 13 Ch 3 and, where relevant, Pt 13 Ch 4 (ss 336-340) (see PARAS 630, 643-644) apply: see s 281(2); and PARA 617. B. TYPES OF RESOLUTION

613. Ordinary resolutions.

An 'ordinary resolution'¹ of the members² (or of a class of members³) of a company⁴ means a resolution that is passed by a simple majority⁵.

A written resolution is passed by a simple majority if it is passed by members representing a simple majority of the total voting rights of eligible members⁶.

A resolution passed at a meeting on a show of hands is passed by a simple majority if it is passed by a simple majority of the votes cast by those entitled to vote⁷.

A resolution passed on a poll taken at a meeting⁸ is passed by a simple majority if it is passed by members representing a simple majority of the total voting rights of members who (being entitled to do so) vote in person, by proxy or in advance⁹ on the resolution¹⁰.

Anything that may be done by ordinary resolution may also be done by special resolution¹¹.

614. Special resolutions.

A 'special resolution'¹ of the members² (or of a class of members³) of a company⁴ means a resolution passed by a majority of not less than 75 per cent⁵.

A written resolution is passed by a majority of not less than 75 per cent if it is passed by members representing not less than 75 per cent of the total voting rights of eligible members⁶.

Where a resolution of a private company⁷ is passed as a written resolution, the resolution is not a special resolution unless it stated that it was proposed as a special resolution⁸, and, if the resolution so stated, it may only be passed as a special resolution⁹.

A resolution passed at a meeting on a show of hands is passed by a majority of not less than 75 per cent if it is passed by not less than 75 per cent of the votes cast by those entitled to vote¹⁰.

A resolution passed on a poll taken at a meeting¹¹ is passed by a majority of not less than 75 per cent if it is passed by members representing not less than 75 per cent of the total voting rights of the members who (being entitled to do so) vote in person, by proxy or in advance¹² on the resolution¹³.

Where a resolution is passed at a meeting, the resolution is not a special resolution unless the notice of the meeting included the text of the resolution and specified the intention to propose the resolution as a special resolution¹⁴ and, if the notice of the meeting so specified, the resolution may only be passed as a special resolution¹⁵.

C. PASSING RESOLUTIONS

617. Manner of passing resolutions.

The Companies Act 2006 provides for two types of resolution: the ordinary resolution¹; and the special resolution². Extraordinary resolutions are no longer provided for under the Companies Act 2006³ but any reference to an extraordinary resolution in a provision of a company's memorandum⁴ or articles⁵, or in a provision of a contract, continues to have effect⁶.

A resolution of the members⁷ (or of a class of members⁸) of a private company⁹ must be passed either as a written resolution¹⁰, or at a meeting of the members¹¹.

A resolution of the members (or of a class of members) of a public company¹² must be passed at a meeting of the members¹³.

Where a provision of the Companies Acts requires a resolution of a company, or of the members (or a class of members) of a company¹⁴, and does not specify what kind of resolution is required¹⁵, what is required is an ordinary resolution unless the company's articles require a higher majority (or unanimity)¹⁶.

1 See the Companies Act 2006 s 282; and PARA 613.

2 See the Companies Act 2006 s 283; and PARA 614.

3 As they were under the Companies Act 1985 s 378 (repealed): see PARA 615.

4 As to the memorandum see PARA 104.

5 As to a company's articles of association see PARA 228 et seq.

6 See the Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 3, Consequential Amendments, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2007, SI 2007/2194, art 9, Sch 3 para 23; and PARA 615. Under the Companies Act 1985 s 379A (repealed), private companies also were allowed the choice of varying or dispensing with certain requirements relating to shares and governance by resolution ('elective resolution').

7 As to the meaning of 'member' see PARA 321.

8 As to classes of shares and of rights attached to shares see PARA 1057 et seq.

9 As to the meaning of 'private company' see PARA 102. As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

10 Companies Act 2006 s 281(1)(a). The text refers to a written resolution passed in accordance with Pt 13 Ch 2 (ss 288-300) (see PARA 623 et seq): see s 281(1)(a). As to voting on a resolution see PARA 653. A provision of the articles of a private company is void in so far as it would have the effect that a resolution that is required by or otherwise provided for in an enactment could not be proposed and passed as a written resolution: see s 300; and PARA 623 note 4. As to the meaning of references to a company's 'articles' see PARA 228 note 2. As to the meaning of 'enactment' see PARA 17 note 2.

Nothing in Pt 13 Ch 1 (ss 281-287) affects: (1) any provision of a company's articles requiring an objection to a person's entitlement to vote on a resolution to be made in accordance with the articles, and for the determination of any such objection to be final and conclusive (s 287(a)); or (2) the grounds on which such a determination may be questioned in legal proceedings (s 287(b)).

Nothing in Pt 13 (ss 281-361) affects any enactment or rule of law as to things done otherwise than by passing a resolution, as to circumstances in which a resolution is or is not treated as having been passed, or as to cases in which a person is precluded from alleging that a resolution has not been duly passed: s 281(4).

11 Companies Act 2006 s 281(1)(b). The text refers to a resolution passed at a meeting of the members to which the provisions of Pt 13 Ch 3 (ss 301-335) (see PARA 632 et seq) apply: see s 281(1)(b). See note 10.

12 As to the meaning of 'public company' see PARA 102.

13 Companies Act 2006 s 281(2). The text refers to a resolution passed at a meeting of the members to which the provisions of Pt 13 Ch 3 (see PARA 632 et seq) and, where relevant, Pt 13 Ch 4 (ss 336-340) (see PARAS 630, 643-644) apply: see s 281(2). See note 10.

619. Chairman's declaration that resolution is carried on a show of hands.

On a vote on a resolution¹ at a meeting² on a show of hands³, a declaration by the chairman⁴ that the resolution either has or has not been passed⁵, or passed with a particular majority⁶, is conclusive evidence of that fact without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of or against the resolution⁷. However, any formalities, such as the showing of hands⁸, must be complied with, even on an unopposed motion⁹.

An entry in respect of such a declaration in minutes of the meeting¹⁰ is also conclusive evidence of that fact without such proof¹¹.

However, these provisions do not have effect if a poll is demanded¹² in respect of the resolution (and the demand is not subsequently withdrawn)¹³.

620. Special notice of certain resolutions.

Where, by any provision of the Companies Acts¹, special notice is required of a resolution², the resolution is not effective unless notice of the intention to move it has been given to the company³ at least 28 days before the meeting at which it is moved⁴. The company must, where practicable, give its members⁵ notice of any such resolution in the same manner and at the same time as it gives notice of the meeting⁶; or, where that is not practicable, the company must give its members notice at least 14 days before the meeting⁷, either by advertisement in a newspaper having an appropriate circulation⁸ or in any other manner allowed by the company's articles⁹. This provision does not confer upon an individual member the right to compel inclusion of an item in the agenda; it merely deals with the question of notice to the members¹⁰. If, after notice of the intention to move such a resolution has been given to the company, a meeting is called for a date 28 days or less after the notice has been given, the notice is deemed to have been properly given, though not given within the time required¹¹.

622. Amendments to resolutions.

Any amendment fairly arising on a resolution¹ which is specified in the notice of meeting and within the scope of the notice may be proposed and passed at the meeting, and a chairman has no right to refuse to put such an amendment². However, in the case of a special resolution³ (and, by analogy, of an extraordinary resolution⁴, if it applies) an amendment can be put to and voted on at a meeting properly only if the amendment involves no departure from the substance of the resolution as notified to the shareholders; and in deciding whether there is complete identity between the substance of the resolution as passed and the substance of the intended resolution as notified there is no room for the application of the de minimis principle⁵.

Provision for the procedure that applies where an amendment to a resolution is proposed may be made in a company's articles of association⁶.

It is usual for a resolution or an amended resolution to be moved by one voter and seconded by another; but, if the chairman chooses, he may put it to the vote without these formalities⁷.

6 As to model articles of association prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, and their application generally, see PARA 228 et seq. Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'limited company', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102.

Accordingly, an ordinary resolution to be proposed at a general meeting may be amended by ordinary resolution if notice of the proposed amendment is given to the company (or, in the case of a public company, to the company secretary) in writing by a person entitled to vote at the general meeting at which it is to be proposed not less than 48 hours before the meeting is to take place (or such later time as the chairman of the meeting may determine), and if the proposed amendment does not, in the reasonable opinion of the chairman of the meeting, materially alter the scope of the resolution: Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 art 47(1); Sch 2 art 33(1); Sch 3 art 40(1). As to ordinary resolutions see PARA 613. As to meetings of the company generally see PARA 629 et seq. As to notice see PARA 632 et seq. As to the chairman see PARA 648. As to the company secretary see PARA 601 et seq.

A special resolution to be proposed at a general meeting may be amended by ordinary resolution, if the chairman of the meeting proposes the amendment at the general meeting at which the resolution is to be proposed, and if the amendment does not go beyond what is necessary to correct a grammatical or other non-substantive error in the resolution: Sch 1 art 47(2); Sch 2 art 33(2); Sch 3 art 40(2).

If the chairman of the meeting, acting in good faith, wrongly decides that an amendment to a resolution is out of order, the chairman's error does not invalidate the vote on that resolution: Sch 1 art 47(3); Sch 2 art 33(3); Sch 3 art 40(3).

D. WRITTEN RESOLUTIONS

623. Meaning of 'written resolution' and general provisions.

In the Companies Acts¹, a 'written resolution' means a resolution² of a private company³ proposed and passed in accordance with the statutory provisions⁴. However, neither a resolution⁵ removing a director⁶ before the expiration of his period of office⁷, nor a resolution⁸ removing an auditor⁹ before the expiration of his term of office¹⁰, may be passed as a written resolution¹¹.

A resolution may be proposed as a written resolution either by the directors of a private company¹², or by the members¹³ of a private company¹⁴.

A written resolution of a private company has effect as if passed (as the case may be) either by the company in general meeting¹⁵, or by a meeting of a class of members of the company¹⁶.

In relation to a resolution proposed as a written resolution of a private company, the eligible members¹⁷ are the members who would have been entitled to vote on the resolution on the circulation date of the resolution¹⁸. If the persons entitled to vote on a written resolution change during the course of the day that is the circulation date of the resolution, the eligible members are the persons entitled to vote on the resolution at the time that the first copy of the resolution is sent or submitted to a member for his agreement¹⁹.

1 As to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

2 As to the manner of passing resolutions see PARA 617.

3 As to the meaning of 'private company' see PARA 102. As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 288(1). The text refers to a resolution proposed and passed in accordance with Pt 13 Ch 2 (ss 288-300): see s 288(1). A provision of the articles of a private company is void in so far as it would have the effect that a resolution that is required by or otherwise provided for in an enactment could not be proposed and passed as a written resolution: s 300. As to the meaning of references to a company's 'articles' see PARA 228 note 2. As to the meaning of 'enactment' see PARA 17 note 2.

Where a company has given an electronic address in any document containing or accompanying a proposed written resolution, it is deemed to have agreed that any document or information relating to that resolution may be sent by electronic means to that address (subject to any conditions or limitations specified in the document): s 298(1). For this purpose, 'electronic address' means any address or number used for the purposes of sending or receiving documents or information by electronic means: s 298(2). As to documents or information sent or supplied by electronic means see PARA 679 note 3.

Where a company sends either a written resolution, or a statement relating to a written resolution, to a person by means of a website, the resolution or statement is not validly sent for the purposes of Pt 13 Ch 2 unless the resolution is available on the website throughout the period beginning with the circulation date and ending on the date on which the resolution lapses under s 297 (see PARA 627): see s 299(1), (2). References in Pt 13 (ss 281-361) to the circulation date of a written resolution are to the date on which copies of it are sent or submitted to members in accordance with Pt 13 Ch 2 (or if copies are sent or submitted to members on different days, to the first of those days): s 290.

624. Circulation of written resolutions proposed by directors.

Where a resolution¹ is proposed as a written resolution² by the directors³ of the company⁴, the company must send or submit a copy of the resolution to every eligible member⁵. The company must do so:

- 1012 (1) by sending copies at the same time (so far as reasonably practicable) to all eligible members in hard copy form, in electronic form or by means of a website⁶;
or
- 1013 (2) if it is possible to do so without undue delay, by submitting the same copy to each eligible member in turn (or different copies to each of a number of eligible members in turn)⁷, or by sending copies to some members in accordance with head (1) above and submitting a copy or copies to other members in accordance with head (2) above⁸. The copy of the resolution must be accompanied by a statement informing the member: (a) how to signify agreement to the resolution⁹; and (b) as to the date by which the resolution must be passed if it is not to lapse¹⁰.

In the event of default in complying with these requirements¹¹, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default¹²; and a person guilty of such an offence is liable

(on conviction on indictment) to a fine and (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum¹³.

The validity of the resolution, if passed, is not affected by any such failure to comply¹⁴.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(i) Resolutions/D. WRITTEN RESOLUTIONS/625. Members' power to require circulation of written resolution and accompanying statement.

625. Members' power to require circulation of written resolution and accompanying statement.

The members¹ of a private company² may require the company to circulate a resolution³ that may properly be moved and is proposed to be moved as a written resolution⁴.

Any resolution may properly be moved as a written resolution unless: (1) it would, if passed, be ineffective (whether by reason of inconsistency with any enactment⁵ or the company's constitution⁶ or otherwise)⁷; (2) it is defamatory of any person⁸; or (3) it is frivolous or vexatious⁹.

Where the members require a company to circulate a resolution, they may require the company to circulate with it a statement of not more than 1,000 words on the subject matter of the resolution¹⁰.

A company is required to circulate the resolution and any accompanying statement once it has received requests that it do so from members representing not less than the requisite percentage of the total voting rights of all members entitled to vote on the resolution¹¹. A request may be in hard copy form or in electronic form¹², must identify the resolution and any accompanying statement¹³, and must be authenticated by the person or persons making it¹⁴.

A company that is so required¹⁵ to circulate a resolution must send or submit to every eligible member¹⁶ a copy of the resolution¹⁷, and a copy of any accompanying statement¹⁸. The company must do so: (a) by sending copies at the same time (so far as reasonably practicable) to all eligible members in hard copy form, in electronic form or by means of a website¹⁹; or (b) if it is possible to do so without undue delay, by submitting the same copy to each eligible member in turn (or different copies to each of a number of eligible members in turn)²⁰, or by sending copies to some members in accordance with head (a) above and submitting a copy or copies to other members in accordance with head (b) above²¹. The company must send or submit the copies (or, if copies are sent or submitted to members on different days, the first of those copies) not more than 21 days after it becomes subject to the requirement²² to circulate the resolution²³. The copy of the resolution must be accompanied by guidance as to how to signify agreement to the resolution²⁴, and the date by which the resolution must be passed if it is not to lapse²⁵.

In the event of default in complying with these requirements²⁶, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default²⁷; and a person guilty of such an offence is liable (on conviction on indictment) to a fine and (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum²⁸.

The validity of the resolution, if passed, is not affected by any such failure to comply²⁹.

The expenses of the company in complying with the requirement to circulate such a resolution³⁰ must be paid by the members who requested the circulation of the resolution unless the company resolves otherwise³¹. Unless the company has previously so resolved, it is not bound so to comply³² unless there is deposited with or tendered to it a sum reasonably sufficient to meet its expenses in doing so³³.

As to eligible members in relation to a resolution proposed as a written resolution of a private company see PARA 623.

Where a resolution is proposed as a written resolution of a private company whose effect would be to appoint a person as auditor in place of a person (the 'outgoing auditor') whose term of office has expired, or is to expire, at the end of the period for appointing auditors, the company must, if certain conditions are met, send a copy of the proposed resolution to the person proposed to be appointed and to the outgoing auditor, and the outgoing auditor may, within 14 days after receiving the notice, make with respect to the proposed resolution representations to the company and request their circulation to members of the company: see s 514(4); and PARA 939. The company must circulate the representations together with the copy or copies of the resolution circulated in accordance with s 293 (see s 514(5); and PARA 939); and, in such circumstances, the period allowed under s 293(3) (see the text and notes 22-23) for service of copies of the proposed resolution is 28 days instead of 21 days, and the provisions of s 293(5), (6) (offences) (see the text and notes 26-28) apply in relation to a failure to comply with s 514(5) as in relation to a default in complying with s 293 (see s 514(6); and PARA 939).

627. Procedure for signifying agreement to written resolution; period before lapse.

A member¹ signifies his agreement to a proposed written resolution² when the company³ receives from him (or from someone acting on his behalf) an authenticated document⁴: (1) identifying the resolution to which it relates⁵; and (2) indicating his agreement to the resolution⁶. The document must be sent to the company in hard copy form or in electronic form⁷.

A member's agreement to a written resolution, once signified, may not be revoked⁸.

A written resolution is passed when the required majority of eligible members⁹ have signified their agreement to it¹⁰.

A proposed written resolution lapses if it is not passed before the end of the period specified for this purpose in the company's articles¹¹ or (if none is specified) the period of 28 days beginning with the circulation date¹². The agreement of a member to a written resolution is ineffective if signified after the expiry of that period¹³.

A. IN GENERAL

629. General meetings and annual general meetings.

General meetings of the members of a company¹ may be convened at any time². Where a public company³ is required (either by statute or by the company's constitution⁴) to hold such a meeting periodically, the term 'annual general meeting (AGM)' is often used⁵.

A company's articles of association⁶ usually contain provisions as to the meetings of the company⁷.

1 As to who qualifies as a member of a company see PARA 321. As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

2 For example, where the net assets of a public company are half or less of its called up share capital, the directors must, not later than 28 days from the earliest day on which that fact is known to a director of the company, call a general meeting of the company for a date not later than 56 days from that day to consider whether any, and if so what, steps should be taken to deal with the situation: see the Companies Act 2006 s 656(1)-(3); and PARA 1054. As to the meaning of 'called up share capital' see PARA 1045. A company's meetings are governed generally by Pt 13 (ss 281-361) (see PARA 617 et seq). Apart from any special provision, directors cannot postpone an ordinary meeting: Smith v Paringa Mines Ltd [1906] 2 Ch 193.

- 3 As to the meaning of 'public company' see PARA 102.
- 4 As to the meaning of references to a company's constitution see PARA 227.
- 5 See the Companies Act 2006 s 336; and PARA 630.
- 6 As to model articles of association prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, and their application generally, see PARA 228 et seq. Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230.
- 7 In the model articles, particular provision is made in relation to:
 - 196 (1) attendance and speaking at general meetings (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 arts 37, 40; Sch 2 arts 23, 26; Sch 3 arts 29, 32; the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, reg 2, Schedule, Table A art 44; and PARA 645);
 - 197 (2) the quorum required for a general meeting (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 art 38; Sch 2 art 24; Sch 3 art 30; the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 40; and PARA 646);
 - 198 (3) the chairing of a general meeting (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 art 39; Sch 2 art 25; Sch 3 art 31; the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A arts 42, 43; and PARA 648);
 - 199 (4) the adjournment of a general meeting (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 art 41; Sch 2 art 27; Sch 3 art 33; the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 41; and PARA 650);
 - 200 (5) voting at a general meeting (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 arts 42-47; Sch 2 arts 28-33; Sch 3 arts 34-42; the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A arts 46-63; and PARA 653 et seq).

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(ii) Meetings of the Company/A. IN GENERAL/630. Requirement to hold annual general meeting.

630. Requirement to hold annual general meeting.

Every public company¹ must hold a general meeting² as its annual general meeting in each period of six months beginning with the day following its accounting reference date³ (in addition to any other meetings held during that period)⁴.

Every private company⁵ that is a traded company⁶ must hold a general meeting as its annual general meeting in each period of nine months beginning with the day following its accounting reference date (in addition to any other meetings held during that period)⁷.

If such a private or public company fails to comply with this requirement⁸, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default⁹; and a person guilty of such an offence is liable (on conviction on indictment) to a fine and (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum¹⁰.

However, if a company fails so to comply¹¹ as a result of giving notice¹² of an alteration of its accounting reference date¹³, specifying a new accounting reference date¹⁴, and stating that the current accounting reference period¹⁵ or the previous accounting reference period is to be shortened¹⁶, that company is to be treated as if it had complied with the requirement to hold an annual general meeting¹⁷ if it holds a general meeting as its annual general meeting within three months of giving that notice¹⁸.

1 As to the meaning of 'public company' see PARA 102. As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

2 As to meetings of the company generally see PARA 629 et seq.

3 As to the accounting reference date see PARA 712.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 336(1). As to the formalities required of a notice calling an annual general meeting of a public company see s 337(1), (3); and PARA 636. As to calling an annual general meeting by shorter notice than that required by s 307(2) (see PARA 632) or by the company's articles (as the case may be), if all the members entitled to attend and vote at the meeting agree to the shorter notice, see s 337(2); and PARA 632. As to the meaning of references to a company's 'articles' see PARA 228 note 2.

5 As to the meaning of 'private company' see PARA 102.

6 In the Companies Act 2006 Pt 13 (ss 281-361), 'traded company' means a company any shares of which carry rights to vote at general meetings, and are admitted to trading on a regulated market in an EEA State by or with the consent of the company: s 360C (added by SI 2009/1632). As to the meaning of 'share' see PARA 1042. As to the meaning of 'regulated market' see PARA 334 note 11. As to the meaning of 'EEA State' see PARA 29 note 5. As to rights attached to classes of shares generally see PARA 1057 et seq.

7 Companies Act 2006 s 336(1A) (added by SI 2009/1632). The need for private companies generally to have annual general meetings (AGMs) otherwise is optional: see the Companies Act 2006 s 288; and PARA 623.

The repeal of the Companies Act 1985 s 366 (duty to hold annual general meeting) does not affect any provision of a private company's memorandum or articles that expressly requires the company to hold an annual general meeting; and any such provision continues to have such effect as it had immediately before 1 October 2007: see the Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 3, Consequential Amendments, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2007, SI 2007/2194, art 9, Sch 3 para 32(1), (2). Provision specifying that one or more directors are to retire at an annual general meeting of the company is not provision expressly requiring the company to hold an annual general meeting (see Sch 3 para 32(3)); and a company is not to be treated as one whose articles expressly require it to hold an annual general meeting if immediately before 1 October 2007 there was in force in relation to the company a resolution under the Companies Act 1985 s 366A (repealed) (election to dispense with annual general meetings) (see the Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 3, Consequential Amendments, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2007, SI 2007/2194, Sch 3 para 32(4) (added by SI 2007/3495)).

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(ii) Meetings of the Company/A. IN GENERAL/631. Application of general provisions to class meetings.

631. Application of general provisions to class meetings.

The statutory provisions that govern resolutions at a company's general meeting¹ apply (with necessary modifications) in relation to a meeting of holders of a class of shares² as they apply in relation to a general meeting³. However, certain of those provisions⁴ do not apply in relation to a meeting of holders of a class of shares⁵ and certain other provisions⁶ (in addition to those mentioned in relation to a meeting of holders of a class of shares)⁷ do not apply in relation to a meeting in connection with the variation of rights attached to a class of shares (a 'variation of class rights meeting')⁸.

The quorum for a variation of class rights meeting is⁹:

- 1014 (1) for a meeting other than an adjourned meeting¹⁰, two persons present¹¹ holding at least one-third in nominal value of the issued shares¹² of the class in question (excluding any shares of that class held as treasury shares)¹³;
- 1015 (2) for an adjourned meeting, one person present¹⁴ holding shares of the class in question¹⁵.

At a variation of class rights meeting, any holder of shares of the class in question present may demand a poll¹⁶.

The statutory provisions that govern resolutions at a company's general meeting¹⁷ also apply (with necessary modifications) in relation to a meeting of a class of members of a company¹⁸ without a share capital¹⁹ as they apply in relation to a general meeting²⁰. However, certain of those provisions²¹ do not apply in relation to a meeting of a class of members²² and certain other provisions²³ (in addition to those mentioned in relation to a meeting of a class of members)²⁴ do not apply in relation to a meeting in connection with the variation of rights attached to a class of members (a 'variation of class rights meeting')²⁵. For these purposes, the quorum for a variation of class rights meeting is²⁶:

- 1016 (a) for a meeting other than an adjourned meeting, two members of the class present (in person or by proxy) who together represent at least one-third of the voting rights of the class²⁷;
- 1017 (b) for an adjourned meeting, one member of the class present (in person or by proxy)²⁸.

At a variation of class rights meeting, any member present (in person or by proxy) may demand a poll²⁹.

The provisions that require the results of a poll taken at a meeting³⁰ to be made available on a website³¹, apply (with any necessary modifications) in relation to a meeting of holders of a class of shares of a quoted company³² or traded company in connection with the variation of the rights attached to such shares³³ as they apply in relation to a general meeting of the company³⁴; and the provisions that govern the procedure when an independent report on such a poll is required³⁵ apply (with any necessary modifications) in relation to a meeting of holders of a class of shares of a quoted company in connection with the variation of the rights attached to such shares as they apply in relation to a general meeting of the company³⁶.

The provisions of the model articles of association that relate to the general meetings of a public company³⁷ apply, with any necessary modifications, to meetings of the holders of any class of shares³⁸.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(ii) Meetings of the Company/B. NOTICE OF GENERAL MEETINGS/632. Meetings convened by notice.

B. NOTICE OF GENERAL MEETINGS

632. Meetings convened by notice.

A meeting is convened by notice to the members¹; and this notice must comply with the requirements of the Companies Acts².

A general meeting³ of a private company⁴ that is not a traded company⁵ (other than an adjourned meeting⁶) must be called by notice of at least 14 days⁷. A general meeting of a public company⁸ that is not a traded company⁹ (other than an adjourned meeting) must be called by notice of¹⁰:

- 1018 (1) in the case of an annual general meeting, at least 21 days¹¹; and
- 1019 (2) in any other case, at least 14 days¹².

However, the company's articles may require a longer period of notice than that so specified in relation to either a private or a public company¹³; and a general meeting may be called by shorter notice than that otherwise required if shorter notice is agreed by the members¹⁴.

1 As to who qualifies as a member of a company see PARA 321. As to the service of notice on members of a company generally see PARA 324.

2 A company's meetings are governed generally by the Companies Act 2006 Pt 13 (ss 281-361) (see PARA 617 et seq). As to the manner in which notice may be given see PARA 634; as to the persons entitled to notice see PARA 635; and as to the contents of such notice see PARA 636.

3 As to the requirement to hold general meetings of the company see PARA 629.

4 As to the meaning of 'private company' see PARA 102. As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

5 The Companies Act 2006 s 307 applies to: (1) a general meeting of a company that is not a traded company (s 307(A1)(a) (s 307(A1), (A2) added by SI 2009/1632)); and (2) a general meeting of a traded company that is an opted-in company (as defined by the Companies Act 2006 s 971(1): see PARA 1509 note 2), where the meeting is held to decide whether to take any action that might result in the frustration of a takeover bid for the company, or where the meeting is held by virtue of s 969 (power of offeror to require general meeting to be held: see PARA 1509) (s 307(A1)(b) (as so added)). For corresponding provision in relation to general meetings of traded companies (other than meetings within s 307(A1)(b) (see head (2) above)), see s 307A (see PARA 633): s 307(A2) (as so added). As to the meaning of 'traded company' for these purposes see PARA 630 note 6. As to the application of the provisions of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 13 Ch 3 (ss 301-335) (see PARA 633 et seq) to class meetings see PARA 631.

6 As to the adjournment of general meetings of the company see PARA 650.

7 Companies Act 2006 s 307(1). Any reference in s 307(1) to a period of notice is to a period of the specified length excluding the day of the meeting, and excluding the day on which the notice is given: s 360(1), (2). As to the period of notice required for general meetings of a traded company see PARA 633.

Although the model articles of association that have been prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 (see PARA 228 et seq) do not make explicit provision for the calling of meetings by notice, the default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 (ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805), which have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006 (see PARA 230), make provision in reg 2, Schedule, Table A art 38. Accordingly, general meetings must be called by at least 14 clear days' notice but a general meeting may be called by shorter notice if is so agreed by a majority in number of the members having a right to attend and vote being a majority together holding not less than 90% in nominal value of the shares giving that right: Table A art 38 (amended in relation to private companies limited by shares by SI 2007/2541). In relation to companies which are not private companies limited by shares, an annual general meeting must be called by at least 21 clear days' notice (other meetings requiring only the 14 days' notice); and an annual general meeting may be called by shorter notice if is so agreed by all the members entitled to attend and vote thereat; for other meetings, a majority in number of the members having a right to attend and vote is required, being a majority together holding not less than 95% (cf note 14) in nominal value of the shares giving that right: see the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 38 (as so amended). As to accidental failures to give notice of a general meeting etc see PARA 638. As to the giving of notice generally see PARA 324 et seq.

The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but art 38 is applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital) and Table E (regulations for the management of an unlimited company having a share capital). However, Table C applies Table A art 38 with the modifications that the words 'of the total voting rights at the meeting of all the members' are substituted for 'in nominal value of the shares giving that right' (see Table C art 5); and Table E applies Table A art 38 with the modification that general meetings must be called by at least seven clear days' notice (rather than by at least 14 clear days' notice) (see Table E art 2). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares' and 'unlimited company' see PARA 102. As to the meanings of 'company having a share capital' and 'share capital' see PARA 1042.

8 As to the meaning of 'public company' see PARA 102.

9 See note 5.

10 Companies Act 2006 s 307(2). Any reference in s 307(2) to a period of notice is to a period of the specified length excluding the day of the meeting, and excluding the day on which the notice is given: s 360(1), (2). The Companies Act 2006 does not define specifically when notice is given; but as to the deemed delivery of documents and information see s 1147; and PARA 687.

12 Companies Act 2006 s 307(2)(b).

13 Companies Act 2006 s 307(3). The text refers to a period of notice that may be specified that is longer than that specified in either s 307(1) (see the text and notes 4-7) or s 307(2): see s 307(3). An annual general meeting of a public company that is not a traded company may be called by shorter notice than that required by s 307(2) or by the company's articles (as the case may be), if all the members entitled to attend and vote at the meeting agree to the shorter notice: s 337(2) (amended by SI 2009/1632). As to the meaning of references to a company's 'articles' see PARA 228 note 2. As to the meaning of 'member' see PARA 321.

14 Companies Act 2006 s 307(4). The shorter notice must be agreed to by a majority in number of the members having a right to attend and vote at the meeting, being a majority who: (1) together hold not less than the requisite percentage in nominal value of the shares giving a right to attend and vote at the meeting (excluding any shares in the company held as treasury shares) (s 307(5)(a)); or (2) in the case of a company not having a share capital, together represent not less than the requisite percentage of the total voting rights at that meeting of all the members (s 307(5)(b)). The requisite percentage is (in the case of a private company) 90% or such higher percentage (not exceeding 95%) as may be specified in the company's articles or (in the case of a public company) 95% (cf note 7): s 307(6). However, neither s 307(5) nor s 307(6) applies to an annual general meeting of a public company (see instead s 337(2); and note 10): s 307(7). As to the meaning of 'treasury share' see PARA 1251. As to the nominal value of shares see PARA 1042.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(ii) Meetings of the Company/B. NOTICE OF GENERAL MEETINGS/633. Period of notice required for general meeting of traded company.

633. Period of notice required for general meeting of traded company.

A general meeting of a traded company¹ must be called by notice of²:

- 1020 (1) at least 14 days, in a case where the following conditions are met³: (a) that the general meeting is not an annual general meeting ('Condition A')⁴; (b) that the company offers the facility for members to vote by electronic means⁵ accessible to all members who hold shares that carry rights to vote at general meetings ('Condition B')⁶; (c) that a special resolution reducing the period of notice to not less than 14 days has been passed ('Condition C')⁷;
- 1021 (2) in any other case, at least 21 days⁸.

The company's articles may require a longer period of notice than that specified in heads (1) and (2) above⁹. Where a general meeting is adjourned, the adjourned meeting may be called by shorter notice than required by heads (1) and (2) above¹⁰; but, in the case of an adjournment for lack of a quorum, this provision applies only if no business is to be dealt with at the adjourned meeting the general nature of which was not stated in the notice of the original meeting¹¹; and only if the adjourned meeting is to be held at least ten days after the original meeting¹².

As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16. As to the requirement to hold general meetings of the company see PARA 629. Nothing in the Companies Act 2006 s 307A applies in relation to a general meeting of a kind mentioned in s 307(A1)(b) (certain meetings regarding takeover of opted-in company) (see PARA 632 note 5): s 307A(8) (s 307A added by SI 2009/1632).

2 Companies Act 2006 s 307A(1) (as added: see note 1). Any reference in s 307A(1) to a period of notice is to a period of the specified length excluding the day of the meeting, and excluding the day on which the notice is given: s 360(1), (2) (s 360(1) amended by SI 2009/1632). The Companies Act 2006 does not define specifically when notice is given; but as to the deemed delivery of documents and information see s 1147; and PARA 687. As to the manner in which notice may be given see PARA 634; as to the persons entitled to notice see PARA 635; and as to the contents of such notice see PARA 636. As to the service of notice on members of a company generally see PARA 324.

3 Companies Act 2006 s 307A(1)(a) (as added: see note 1).

4 Companies Act 2006 s 307A(1)(a), (2) (as added: see note 1). As to annual general meetings of the company see PARA 629.

5 Nothing in the Companies Act 2006 Pt 13 is to be taken to preclude the holding and conducting of a meeting in such a way that persons who are not present together at the same place may by electronic means attend and speak and vote at it: s 360A(1) (s 360A added by SI 2009/1632). In the case of a traded company, the use of electronic means for the purpose of enabling members to participate in a general meeting may be made subject only to such requirements and restrictions as are both necessary to ensure the identification of those taking part and the security of the electronic communication, and proportionate to the achievement of those objectives: Companies Act 2006 s 360A(2) (as so added). Nothing in s 360A(2) affects any power of a company to require reasonable evidence of the entitlement of any person who is not a member to participate in the meeting: s 360A(3) (as so added).

6 Companies Act 2006 s 307A(1)(a), (3) (as added: see note 1). Condition B is met if there is a facility, offered by the company and accessible to all such members, to appoint a proxy by means of a website: see s 307A(1)(a), (3) (as so added).

Any provision of a traded company's articles is void in so far as it would have the effect of:

- 201 (1) imposing a restriction on a right of a member to participate in and vote at a general meeting of the company unless the member's shares have (after having been acquired by the member and before the meeting) been deposited with, or transferred to, or registered in the name of another person (s 360B(1)(a) (s 360B added by SI 2009/1632)); or
- 202 (2) imposing a restriction on the right of a member to transfer shares in the company during the period of 48 hours before the time for the holding of a general meeting of the company if that right would not otherwise be subject to that restriction (Companies Act 2006 s 360B(1)(b) (as so added)).

A traded company must determine the right to vote at a general meeting of the company by reference to the register of members as at a time (determined by the company) that is not more than 48 hours before the time for the holding of the meeting: s 360B(2) (as so added). In calculating the period mentioned in s 360B(1)(b), (2), no account is to be taken of any part of a day that is not a working day: s 360B(3) (as so added). As to the meaning of 'working day' see PARA 145 note 16. Nothing in s 360B affects: (a) the operation of Pt 22 (ss 791-828) (information about interests in a company's shares) (see PARA 436 et seq), the Companies Act 1985 Pt XV (ss 454-457) (see PARAS 1548-1550) (orders imposing restrictions on shares), or any provision in a company's articles relating to the application of any provision of either of those Parts (Companies Act 2006 s 360B(4)(a) (as so added)); or (b) the validity of articles prescribed, or to the same effect as articles prescribed, under s 19 (power of Secretary of State to prescribe model articles) (see PARA 228 et seq) (s 360B(4)(b) (as so added)). The Companies Act 1985 ss 454-457, which apply for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 22, are restated in ss 797-802: see PARA 446 et seq.

7 Companies Act 2006 s 307A(1)(a), (4) (as added: see note 1). Condition C requires that a special resolution reducing the period of notice to not less than 14 days has been passed either at the immediately preceding annual general meeting, or at a general meeting held since that annual general meeting: see s 307A(1)(a), (4) (as so added). In the case of a company which has not yet held an annual general meeting, condition C is that a special resolution reducing the period of notice to not less than 14 days has been passed at a general meeting: s 307A(1)(a), (5) (as so added). Any references in s 307A(4), (5) to: (1) a period of notice is to a period of the specified length excluding the day of the meeting, and excluding the day on which the notice is given (s 360(1), (2) (s 360(1) amended by SI 2009/1632)); and (2) to annual general meetings and general meetings include ones held before 3 August 2009 (reg 23).

8 Companies Act 2006 s 307A(1)(b) (as added: see note 1).

9 Companies Act 2006 s 307A(6) (as added: see note 1).

10 Companies Act 2006 s 307A(7) (as added: see note 1).

11 Companies Act 2006 s 307A(7)(a) (as added: see note 1).

12 Companies Act 2006 s 307A(7)(b) (as added: see note 1). Any reference in s 307A(7)(b) to a period of notice is to a period of the specified length excluding the day of the meeting, and excluding the day on which the notice is given: s 360(1), (2) (s 360(1) amended by SI 2009/1632).

634. Manner in which notice may be given.

Notice of a general meeting of a company¹ must be given in hard copy form², in electronic form³, or by means of a website⁴, or partly by one such means and partly by another⁵. Where a company has given an electronic address⁶ in a notice calling a meeting, it is deemed to have agreed that any document or information relating to proceedings at the meeting may be sent by electronic means to that address (subject to any conditions or limitations specified in the notice)⁷.

For the purpose of calling a meeting of the holders of bearer debentures⁸, in the absence of special provision, notice by advertisement is sufficient⁹. Such a notice will be deemed to have been given on the date of the publication of the advertisement¹⁰.

1 As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16. As to the requirement to hold general meetings of the company see PARA 629. As to meetings convened by notice see PARA 632 et seq; as to the persons entitled to notice see PARA 635; and as to the contents of such notice see PARA 636. As to the service of notice on members of a company generally see PARA 324.

3 Companies Act 2006 s 308(b). As to documents or information sent or supplied in electronic form (or by electronic means) see PARA 679.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 308(c). Notice of a meeting is not validly given by a company by means of a website unless (s 309(1)): (1) when the company notifies a member of the presence of the notice on the website the notification states that it concerns a notice of a company meeting, specifies the place, date and time of the meeting and (in the case of a public company) states whether the meeting will be an annual general meeting (s 309(2)); and (2) the notice is available on the website throughout the period beginning with the date of that notification and ending with the conclusion of the meeting (s 309(3)). As to documents or information sent or supplied by a company on a website see PARA 683.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(ii) Meetings of the Company/B. NOTICE OF GENERAL MEETINGS/635. Persons entitled to notice.

635. Persons entitled to notice.

Subject to any enactment¹, and to any provision of the articles², notice of a general meeting of a company³ must be sent to every member of the company⁴, and to every director⁵.

1 As to the meaning of 'enactment' see PARA 17 note 2.

2 Companies Act 2006 s 310(4). As to the meaning of references to a company's 'articles' see PARA 228 note 2. As to the application of the provisions of Pt 13 Ch 3 (ss 301-335) (see PARA 632 et seq) to class meetings see PARA 631. As to the enjoyment and exercise by nominated persons of members' rights conferred by the Companies Act 2006 s 310 see s 145(3)(d); and PARA 374.

Model articles have been made for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 and intended for adoption by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1; and PARA 228 et seq) and by public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3; and PARA 228 et seq). As to the meanings of 'company limited by shares', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. Accordingly, where those articles are adopted, it is provided that transmitters do not have the right to attend or vote at a general meeting (or, in the case of a private company, agree to a proposed written resolution) in respect of shares to which they are entitled, by reason of the holder's death or bankruptcy or otherwise, unless they become the holders of those shares: Sch 1 art 27(3); Sch 3 art 66(2).

The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230. Accordingly, subject to the provisions of the articles and to any restrictions imposed on any shares, notice of a meeting must be given to all the members, to all persons entitled to a share in consequence of the death or bankruptcy of a member and to the directors and auditors: Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, reg 2, Schedule Table A art 38. Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but art 38 is applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital) and Table E (regulations for the management of an unlimited company having a share capital). However, Table C applies Table A art 38 with the modification that the notice must be given simply to all the members and to the directors and auditors (see Table C art 5). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee' and 'unlimited company' see PARA 102. As to the meanings of 'company having a share capital' and 'share capital' see PARA 1042.

3 As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16. As to the requirement to hold general meetings of the company see PARA 629. As to meetings convened by notice see PARAS 632 et seq; as to the manner in which notice may be given see PARA 634; and as to the contents of such notice see PARA 636. As to the service of notice on members of a company generally see PARA 324. As to accidental failures to give notice of a general meeting etc see PARA 638. As to the giving of notice generally see PARA 324.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 310(1)(a). As to the meaning of 'member of a company' see PARA 321. For these purposes, the reference to members includes any person who is entitled to a share in consequence of the death or bankruptcy of a member, if the company has been notified of their entitlement (s 310(2)); and this reference to the bankruptcy of a member includes the sequestration of the estate of a member (s 310(3)). For the purpose of serving notices of meetings, whether under the Companies Act 2006 s 310(1), any other enactment, a provision in the articles of association or any other instrument, a participating issuer may determine that persons entitled to receive such notices are those persons entered on the relevant register of securities at the close of business on a day determined by him: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 41(3) (amended by SI 2009/1889). The day so determined by a participating issuer may not be more than 21 days before the day that the notices of the meeting are sent: Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, reg 41(4). These provisions are without prejudice to the protection afforded by Sch 4 para 5(3) (see PARA 340) to a participating issuer which is a company and by Sch 4 paras 13(4), 15(3) (see PARA 425) to a participating issuer: reg 41(5). As to the meaning of 'participating issuer' see PARA 421 text and note 9. As to the meaning of 'register of securities' see PARA 421 note 3. As to the meaning of 'company' for these purposes see PARA 340 note 1. As to the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, generally see PARA 420.

5 Companies Act 2006 s 310(1)(b). As to the meaning of 'director' under the Companies Acts see PARA 478.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(ii) Meetings of the Company/B. NOTICE OF GENERAL MEETINGS/636. Contents of notice.

636. Contents of notice.

Notice of a general meeting of a company¹ must state the time and date of the meeting², and the place of the meeting³, and must⁴ state the general nature of the business to be dealt with at the meeting⁵. A notice calling an annual general meeting of a public company or a private company that is a traded company⁶ must state that the meeting is an annual general meeting⁷. Notice of a general meeting of a traded company must also include:

- 1022 (1) a statement giving the address of the website on which the information required of traded companies⁸ in advance of a general meeting is published⁹;
- 1023 (2) a statement that the right to vote at the meeting is determined by reference to the register of members, and a statement of the time when that right¹⁰ will be determined¹¹;
- 1024 (3) a statement of the procedures with which members must comply in order to be able to attend and vote at the meeting (including the date by which they must comply)¹²;
- 1025 (4) a statement giving details of any forms to be used for the appointment of a proxy¹³;
- 1026 (5) where the company offers the facility for members to vote in advance¹⁴ or by electronic means¹⁵, a statement of the procedure for doing so (including the date by which it must be done, and details of any forms to be used)¹⁶; and
- 1027 (6) a statement of the right of members to ask questions¹⁷ at meetings¹⁸.

Provisions in the articles requiring special business to be specially notified¹⁹ and any other directions in the articles as to content must be followed²⁰.

If the notice is misleading, the court will restrain the holding of the meeting²¹, or restrain the directors from acting on resolutions passed on insufficient notice, until confirmed by the company at a meeting properly notified²². The transaction of business which has not been sufficiently notified or which is substantially different from that notified is invalid²³, but want of notice of some of the business does not invalidate such business as has been properly notified²⁴. Amendments fairly arising on a proposed resolution may be passed²⁵; thus a meeting summoned to pass a special resolution to wind up may appoint a different liquidator from the one named in the notice convening the meeting²⁶; but, in the case of a special resolution, an amendment can properly be put to and voted on at a meeting only if the amendment involves no departure whatever from the substance of the resolution as notified to the shareholders²⁷.

A notice of a meeting to pass a resolution 'with such amendments and alterations as shall be determined at the meeting' enables substantial alteration to be made, although the business is special business, the general nature of which is required by the articles to be notified²⁸; but, in the case of a notice of intention to propose a special resolution, nothing is achieved by the addition of such words²⁹.

Unequivocal notice must be given of a resolution involving the pecuniary advantage of a director³⁰. A notice not stating the particulars of the advantage is insufficient and the consequent resolutions are void³¹. A notice stating that the meeting will be asked to ratify an act of the directors, which (while beyond the powers of the directors) is intra vires the company³², is sufficient³³, although it does not say why such ratification is required³⁴.

1 As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16. As to the requirement to hold general meetings of the company see PARA 629. As to meetings convened by notice see PARAS 632 et seq; as to the manner in which notice may be given see PARA 634; and as to the persons entitled to notice see PARA 635. As to the service of notice on members of a company generally see PARA 324. As to accidental failures to give notice of a general meeting etc see PARA 638. As to the giving of notice generally see PARA 324.

3 Companies Act 2006 s 311(1)(b). In the absence of fraud, the place of meeting is entirely at the discretion of the directors: Martin v Walker (1918) 145 LT Jo 377.

4 In relation to a company other than a traded company, the Companies Act 2006 s 311(2) has effect subject to any provision of the company's articles: s 311(2) (amended by SI 2009/1632). As to the meaning of 'traded company' for these purposes see PARA 630 note 6.

5 Companies Act 2006 s 311(2) (as amended: see note 4).

Although the model articles of association that have been prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 (see PARA 228 et seq) do not make explicit provision for the giving of notice of meetings, the default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 (ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805), which have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006 (see PARA 230), do make provision in reg 2, Schedule, Table A art 38. Accordingly, such notice must specify the time and place of the meeting and the general nature of the business to be transacted: Table A art 38 (amended in relation to private companies limited by shares by SI 2007/2541). See also the text and notes 30-34. In the case of an annual general meeting held otherwise than in relation to a private company limited by shares, the notice must specify the meeting as such: see the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 38 (as so amended). The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but art 38 is applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital) and Table E (regulations for the management of an unlimited company having a share capital). However, Table C applies Table A art 38 with the modification that the notice must be given simply to all the members and to the directors and auditors (see Table C art 5). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'private company' and 'unlimited company' see PARA 102. As to the meanings of 'company having a share capital' and 'share capital' see PARA 1042.

6 As to the meaning of 'traded company' for these purposes see PARA 630 note 6.

7 Companies Act 2006 s 337(1) (amended by SI 2009/1632). Where a notice calling an annual general meeting of a traded company is given more than six weeks before the meeting, the notice must include (if the company is a public company) a statement of the right under the Companies Act 2006 s 338 (see PARA 643) to require the company to give notice of a resolution to be moved at the meeting and (whether or not the company is a public company) a statement of the right under s 338A (see PARA 644) to require the company to include a matter in the business to be dealt with at the meeting: s 337(3) (added by SI 2009/1632). Any reference in the Companies Act 2006 s 337(3) to a period of notice is to a period of the specified length excluding the day of the meeting, and excluding the day on which the notice is given: s 360(1), (2) (s 360(1) amended by SI 2009/1632).

8 The information required by the Companies Act 2006 s 311A: see s 311(3)(a) (s 311(3) added by SI 2009/1632). Accordingly, a traded company must ensure that the following information relating to a general meeting of the company is made available on a website (Companies Act 2006 s 311A(1) (s 311A added by SI 2009/1632)):

- 203 (1) the matters set out in the notice of the meeting (Companies Act 2006 s 311A(1)(a) (as so added));
- 204 (2) the total numbers of shares in the company, and shares of each class, in respect of which members are entitled to exercise voting rights at the meeting (s 311A(1)(b) (as so added));
- 205 (3) the totals of the voting rights that members are entitled to exercise at the meeting in respect of the shares of each class (s 311A(1)(c) (as so added));
- 206 (4) members' statements, members' resolutions and members' matters of business received by the company after the first date on which notice of the meeting is given (s 311A(1)(d) (as so added)).

The amounts mentioned in head (2) and head (3) above must be ascertained at the latest practicable time before the first date on which notice of the meeting is given: s 311A(6) (as so added). As to the meaning of 'share' see PARA 1042. As to rights attached to classes of shares generally see PARA 1057 et seq.

The information must be made available on a website that is maintained by or on behalf of the company, and which identifies the company: s 311A(2) (as so added). Access to the information on the website, and the ability to obtain a hard copy of the information from the website, must not be conditional on payment of a fee or otherwise restricted (s 311A(3) (as so added)); and the information: (a) must be made available (in the case of information required by heads (1) to (3) above) on or before the first date on which notice of the meeting is given and (in the case of information required by head (4) above), as soon as reasonably practicable (s 311A(4) (a) (as so added)); and (b) must be kept available throughout the period of two years beginning with the date on which it is first made available on a website in accordance with s 311A (s 311A(4)(b) (as so added)). However, a failure to make information available throughout the period specified in head (b) above is disregarded if the information is made available on the website for part of that period, and if the failure is wholly attributable to circumstances that it would not be reasonable to have expected the company to prevent or avoid: s 311A(5) (as so added). If the requirements of s 311A are not complied with as respects any meeting, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default (s 311A(8) (as so added)); and a person guilty of such an offence is liable (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale (s 311A(9) (as so added)). Failure to comply with s 311A does not affect the validity of the meeting or of anything done at the meeting: s 311A(7) (as so added). As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 607; and as to the meaning of 'officer in default' see PARA 315. As to the meaning of the 'standard scale' see PARA 1622 note 5.

A notice specifying the business as 'to elect directors' was held to have sufficiently specified the general nature of the business to elect directors up to the number permitted by the articles in Choppington Collieries Ltd v Johnson [1944] 1 All ER 762, CA. In Robert Batcheller & Sons Ltd v Batcheller [1945] Ch 169, [1945] 1 All ER 522 (overruled on another point by Grundt v Great Boulder Pty Gold Mines Ltd [1948] Ch 145, [1948] 1 All ER 21, CA), a reminder of a poll was held insufficient notice of a meeting. Where notice of a meeting is accompanied by a circular, the notice includes the circular: Tiessen v Henderson at 866-867 per Kekewich J; Re Moorgate Mercantile Holdings Ltd [1980] 1 All ER 40 at 54, [1980] 1 WLR 227 at 242 per Slade J (notices and circulars can and should be treated ordinarily as one document); Re RAC Motoring Services Ltd, Royal Automobile Club Ltd [2000] 1 BCLC 307 at 327 per Neuberger J. A circular to shareholders must give a fair, candid and reasonably full explanation of the purpose for which the meeting is called: Kaye v Croydon Tramways Co at 369-370, CA, per Lindley MR; Tiessen v Henderson at 866-867 per Kekewich J; Re Imperial Chemical Industries Ltd [1936] Ch 587 at 618, CA, per Clauson J (affd sub nom Carruth v Imperial Chemical Industries Ltd [1937] AC 707, [1937] 2 All ER 422, HL); Re RAC Motoring Services Ltd, Royal Automobile Club Ltd at 327-328 per Neuberger J; CAS (Nominees) Ltd v Nottingham Forest FC plc [2002] 1 BCLC 613 at 639 per Hart J. As to specifying the intention to pass a resolution as a special resolution see PARA 614. Whether it is necessary that the notice of a resolution to substitute new articles for the present articles should be accompanied by a circular explaining the alterations (or, alternatively, a copy of the proposed new articles) depends on the circumstances of the case and the particular nature of the alterations: see Young v South African and Australian Exploration and Development Syndicate [1896] 2 Ch 268; Normandy v Ind, Coope & Co Ltd at 97 per Kekewich J; Re North of Scotland and Orkney and Shetland Steam Navigation Co Ltd 1920 SC 94, Ct of Sess. Except in relation to notice given under s 304 (notice of meetings required by members) (see PARA 641) or s 305 (notice of meetings called by members) (see PARA 641), s 313(1) has effect subject to any provision of the company's articles: s 313(2). See also s 339 (public companies' duty to circulate members' resolutions for AGMs); and PARA 642. The Companies Act 2006 s 313 is derived from the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, reg 2, Schedule, Table A art 39, which provides that the accidental omission to give notice of a meeting to, or the non-receipt of notice of a meeting by, any person entitled to receive notice does not invalidate the proceedings at that meeting: see Table A art 39. See also Re West Canadian Collieries Ltd [1962] Ch 370, [1962] 1 All ER 26. As to the giving of notice to members generally see PARA 324. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but art 39 is applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital) and Table E (regulations for the management of an unlimited company having a share capital). C. PERSONS ENTITLED TO CALL MEETINGS

639. Power of court to order meeting.

If for any reason it is impracticable to call a meeting of a company¹ in any manner in which meetings of that company may be called², or to conduct the meeting in the manner prescribed by the articles³ or by the Companies Act 2006⁴, the court⁵ may, either of its own motion or on the application of any director of the company⁶, or on the application of a member of the company⁷ who would be entitled to vote at the meeting⁸, order a meeting of the company to be called, held and conducted in any manner the court thinks fit⁹.

Where such an order is made, the court may give such ancillary or consequential directions as it thinks expedient¹⁰; and such directions may include a direction that one member of the company present at the meeting be deemed to constitute a quorum¹¹. A meeting called, held and conducted in accordance with such an order¹² is deemed for all purposes to be a meeting of the company duly called, held and conducted¹³.

Directors' power to call general meetings.

640. Directors' power to call general meetings.

The Companies Act 2006 provides that the directors of a company¹ may call a general meeting of the company²; and the company's articles of association³ may make further provision⁴.

A meeting of the company called by a secretary⁵ without a resolution duly passed at a directors' meeting⁶ cannot pass effectual resolutions⁷; but the directors may, before the meeting, ratify the secretary's act⁸. A meeting of the company called by a de facto director⁹ and adopted by the other directors¹⁰, or one called by an acting quorum¹¹, may be good under the articles¹². Directors may by valid resolutions ratify any irregularity in the convening of a meeting committed by a de facto director¹³.

An administrator¹⁴ has power to call a meeting of members or creditors of the company¹⁵.

3 As to a company's articles of association generally see PARA 228 et seq.

4 The Companies Act 2006 s 302 is derived from the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, reg 2, Schedule, Table A art 37, which provides that the directors may call general meetings and, on the requisition of members pursuant to the provisions of the Companies Acts (see PARA 641), must forthwith proceed to convene a general meeting in accordance with those provisions; if there are not within the United Kingdom sufficient directors to call a general meeting, any director or any member of the company may call a general meeting: see Table A art 37 (amended by SI 2007/2541). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 1 note 5. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but art 37 is applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital) and Table E (regulations for the management of an unlimited company having a share capital). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares' and 'unlimited company' see PARA 102. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(ii) Meetings of the Company/C. PERSONS ENTITLED TO CALL MEETINGS/641. Members' power to require directors to call general meeting.

641. Members' power to require directors to call general meeting.

The members of a company¹ may require the directors² to call a general meeting of the company³; and the directors are required to call a general meeting once the company has received requests to do so from⁴: (1) members representing at least 5 per cent of such of the paid-up capital⁵ of the company as carries the right of voting at general meetings of the company⁶ (excluding any paid-up capital held as treasury shares)⁷; or (2) in the case of a company not having a share capital⁸, members who represent at least 5 per cent of the total voting rights of all the members having a right to vote at general meetings⁹.

A request must state the general nature of the business to be dealt with at the meeting¹⁰, and may include the text of a resolution¹¹ that may properly be moved and is intended to be moved at the meeting¹². A resolution may properly be moved at a meeting unless: (a) it would, if passed, be ineffective (whether by reason of inconsistency with any enactment¹³ or the company's constitution¹⁴ or otherwise)¹⁵; (b) it is defamatory of any person¹⁶; or (c) it is frivolous or vexatious¹⁷. A request may be in hard copy form or in electronic form¹⁸, and must be authenticated by the person or persons making it¹⁹.

Directors who are required in this way²⁰ to call a general meeting of the company must call a meeting²¹: (i) within 21 days from the date on which they become subject to the requirement²²; and (ii) to be held on a date not more than 28 days after the date of the notice convening the meeting²³. If the requests received by the company identify a resolution intended to be moved at the meeting, the notice of the meeting must include notice of the resolution²⁴; and the business that may be dealt with at the meeting includes a resolution of which notice is so given²⁵.

If the directors are required²⁶ to call a meeting²⁷, and if they do not do so in accordance with the statutory provisions²⁸, the members who requested the meeting, or any of them representing more than one half of the total voting rights of all of them, may themselves call a general meeting²⁹. The notice convening the meeting need not state the statutory authority under which it is convened, nor is it necessary for the notice to be signed by all those requesting it provided that documents accompanying the notice clearly indicate that the meeting is in fact being called by all of them³⁰; but any meeting must be called for a date not more than three months after the date on which the directors become subject to the requirement to call a meeting³¹; and the meeting must be called in the same manner, as nearly as possible, as that in which meetings are required to be called by directors of the company³². Where the requests received by the company included the text of a resolution intended to be moved at the meeting, the notice of the meeting must include notice of the resolution³³; and the business which may be dealt with at the meeting includes a resolution of which notice is so given³⁴. Any reasonable expenses incurred by the members requesting the meeting by reason of the failure of the directors duly to call a meeting must be reimbursed by the company³⁵; and any sum so reimbursed must be retained by the company out of any sums due or to become due from the company by way of fees or other remuneration in respect of the services of such of the directors as were in default³⁶.

The model articles of association of a public company³⁷ provide that if the company has fewer than two directors, and the director (if any) is unable or unwilling to appoint sufficient directors to make up a quorum or to call a general meeting to do so, then two or more members may call a general meeting (or instruct the company secretary³⁸ to do so) for the purpose of appointing one or more directors³⁹.

A meeting convened by request cannot transact any business other than that covered by the terms of the requisition⁴⁰, except where the directors have put forward resolutions with due notice given⁴¹.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(ii) Meetings of the Company/D. PROCEDURE AT GENERAL MEETINGS/642. Power of company members to require circulation of statement before meeting.

D. PROCEDURE AT GENERAL MEETINGS

642. Power of company members to require circulation of statement before meeting.

The members of a company¹ may require the company to circulate, to members of the company entitled to receive notice of a general meeting², a statement of not more than 1,000 words with respect to a matter referred to in a proposed resolution to be dealt with at that meeting³, or with respect to other business to be dealt with at that meeting⁴.

A company is required to circulate a statement once it has received requests to do so from: (1) members representing at least 5 per cent of the total voting rights of all the members who have a relevant right to vote⁵ (excluding any voting rights attached to any shares in the company held as treasury shares)⁶; or (2) at least 100 members who have a relevant right to vote and hold shares in the company on which there has been paid up an average sum, per member, of at least £100⁷. A request may be in hard copy form or in electronic form⁸, must identify the statement to be circulated⁹, must be authenticated by the person or persons making it¹⁰, and must be received by the company at least one week before the meeting to which it relates¹¹.

A company that is required in this way¹² to circulate a statement must send a copy of it to each member of the company entitled to receive notice of the meeting¹³ in the same manner as the notice of the meeting¹⁴, and at the same time as, or as soon as reasonably practicable after, it gives notice of the meeting¹⁵. In the event of default in complying with these requirements¹⁶, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default¹⁷; and a person guilty of such an offence is liable (on conviction on indictment) to a fine and (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum¹⁸.

The expenses of the company in complying with a request to circulate a members' statement¹⁹ need not be paid by the members who requested the circulation if the meeting to which the requests relate is an annual general meeting of a public company²⁰, and if requests sufficient to require the company to circulate the statement are received before the end of the financial year preceding the meeting²¹. Otherwise the expenses of the company in so complying²² must be paid by the members who requested the circulation of the statement unless the company resolves otherwise²³ and (unless the company has previously so resolved) it is not bound so to comply²⁴ unless there is deposited with or tendered to it, not later than one week before the meeting, a sum reasonably sufficient to meet its expenses in doing so²⁵.

A company is not required to circulate a members' statement in this way²⁶ if, on an application by the company or another person who claims to be aggrieved, the court²⁷ is satisfied that the rights so conferred²⁸ are being abused²⁹. The court may order the members who requested the circulation of the statement to pay the whole or part of the company's costs on such an application, even if they are not parties to the application³⁰.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(ii) Meetings of the Company/D. PROCEDURE AT GENERAL MEETINGS/643. Power of public company members to require circulation of resolution before AGM.

643. Power of public company members to require circulation of resolution before AGM.

The members of a public company¹ may require the company to give, to members of the company entitled to receive notice of the next annual general meeting², notice of a resolution³ which may properly be moved and is intended to be moved at the meeting⁴. A resolution may properly be moved at a meeting unless: (1) it would, if passed, be ineffective (whether by reason of inconsistency with any enactment⁵ or the company's constitution⁶ or otherwise)⁷; (2) it is defamatory of any person⁸; or (3) it is frivolous or vexatious⁹.

A company is required to give notice of a resolution once it has received requests that it do so from: (a) members representing at least 5 per cent of the total voting rights of all the members who have a right to vote on the resolution at the annual general meeting to which the requests relate¹⁰ (excluding any voting rights attached to any shares in the company held as treasury shares)¹¹; or (b) at least 100 members who have a right to vote on the resolution at the annual general meeting to which the requests relate and hold shares in the company on which there has been paid up an average sum, per member, of at least £100¹². A request may be in hard copy form or in electronic form¹³, must identify the resolution of which notice is to be given¹⁴, must be authenticated by the person or persons making it¹⁵, and must be received by the company not later than six weeks before the annual general meeting to which the requests relate¹⁶ or (if later) the time at which notice is given of that meeting¹⁷.

A company that is required in this way¹⁸ to give notice of a resolution must send a copy of it to each member of the company entitled to receive notice of the annual general meeting¹⁹ in the same manner as the notice of the meeting²⁰, and at the same time as, or as soon as reasonably practicable after, it gives notice of the meeting²¹. The business which may be dealt with at an annual general meeting includes a resolution of which notice is so given²². In the event of default in complying with these requirements²³, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default²⁴; and a person guilty of such an offence is liable (on conviction on indictment) to a fine and (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum²⁵.

The expenses of the company in complying with a request to circulate a members' resolution²⁶ need not be paid by the members who requested the circulation if requests sufficient to require the company to circulate it are received before the end of the financial year preceding the meeting²⁷. Otherwise, the expenses of the company in complying²⁸ must be paid by the members who requested the circulation of the resolution unless the company resolves otherwise²⁹, and (unless the company has previously so resolved) it is not bound to comply³⁰ unless there is deposited with or tendered to it, not later than six weeks before the annual general meeting to which the requests relate³¹, or (if later) the time at which notice is given of that meeting³², a sum reasonably sufficient to meet its expenses in doing so³³.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(ii) Meetings of the Company/D. PROCEDURE AT GENERAL MEETINGS/644. Power of traded company members to include additional business in AGM.

644. Power of traded company members to include additional business in AGM.

The members of a traded company¹ may request the company to include in the business to be dealt with at an annual general meeting² any matter (other than a proposed resolution³) which may properly be included in the business⁴. A matter may properly be included in the business at an annual general meeting unless it is defamatory of any person⁵, or it is frivolous or vexatious⁶. A company is required to include such a matter once it has received requests that it do so from: (1) members representing at least 5 per cent of the total voting rights of all the members who have a right to vote at the meeting⁷; or (2) at least 100 members who have a right to vote at the meeting and hold shares⁸ in the company on which there has been paid up an average sum, per member, of at least £100⁹.

A request may be in hard copy form or in electronic form¹⁰, must identify the matter to be included in the business¹¹, must be accompanied by a statement setting out the grounds for the request¹², and must be authenticated by the person or persons making it¹³. A request must be received by the company not later than six weeks before the meeting¹⁴ or (if later) the time at which notice is given of the meeting¹⁵.

A company that is required in this way¹⁶ to include any matter in the business to be dealt with at an annual general meeting must¹⁷: (a) give notice of it to each member of the company entitled to receive notice of the annual general meeting in the same manner as notice of the meeting¹⁸; and (b) publish it on the same website as that on which the company published the information required¹⁹ of a traded company in advance of a general meeting²⁰. In the event of default in complying with these requirements²¹, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default²²; and a person guilty of such an offence is liable (on conviction on indictment) to a fine and (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum²³.

The expenses of the company, in complying with a request to include a matter in the business to be dealt with at an annual general meeting²⁴, need not be paid by the members who requested the inclusion if requests sufficient to require the company to include the matter are received before the end of the financial year preceding the meeting²⁵. Otherwise, the expenses of the company in complying²⁶ must be paid by the members who requested the inclusion of the matter unless the company resolves otherwise²⁷ and (unless the company has previously so resolved) it is not bound to comply²⁸ unless there is deposited with or tendered to it, not later than six weeks before the annual general meeting to which the requests relate or (if later) the time at which notice is given of that meeting, a sum reasonably sufficient to meet its expenses in doing so²⁹.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(ii) Meetings of the Company/D. PROCEDURE AT GENERAL MEETINGS/645. Provision in articles for attendance and speaking at general meeting.

645. Provision in articles for attendance and speaking at general meeting.

The model articles of association¹ make provision in relation to attendance and speaking at a general meeting as follows².

Directors³ may attend and speak at general meetings, whether or not they are members (or shareholders, as the case may be)⁴. The chairman of the meeting⁵ may permit other persons who are not members of a private company limited by guarantee to attend and speak at a general meeting⁶; and, in other cases, the chairman may permit other persons who are not members or shareholders of the company, or who are not otherwise entitled to exercise the rights of members or shareholders in relation to general meetings, to attend and speak at such a meeting⁷.

A person is able to exercise the right to speak at a general meeting when that person is in a position to communicate to all those attending the meeting, during the meeting, any information or opinions which that person has on the business of the meeting⁸.

A person is able to exercise the right to vote at a general meeting when that person is able to vote, during the meeting, on resolutions put to the vote at the meeting⁹, and when that person's vote can be taken into account in determining whether or not such resolutions are passed at the same time as the votes of all the other persons attending the meeting¹⁰.

The directors may make whatever arrangements they consider appropriate to enable those attending a general meeting to exercise their rights to speak or vote at it¹¹.

In determining attendance at a general meeting, it is immaterial whether any two or more members attending it are in the same place as each other¹²; and two or more persons who are not in the same place as each other attend a general meeting if their circumstances are such that if they have (or were to have) rights to speak and vote at that meeting, they are (or would be) able to exercise them¹³.

1 As to a company's articles of association generally see PARA 228 et seq. As to model articles of association prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, and their application generally, see PARA 228 et seq. Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(ii) Meetings of the Company/D. PROCEDURE AT GENERAL MEETINGS/646. Quorum at meeting.

646. Quorum at meeting.

In the case of a company¹ limited either by shares² or by guarantee³ and having only one member⁴, one qualifying person⁵ present at a meeting⁶ is a quorum⁷. In any other case, subject to the provisions of the company's articles⁸, two qualifying persons⁹ present at a meeting are a quorum¹⁰, unless:

- 1031 (1) each is a qualifying person only because he is duly authorised¹¹ to act as the representative of a corporation¹² in relation to the meeting, and they are representatives of the same corporation¹³; or
- 1032 (2) each is a qualifying person only because he is appointed as proxy¹⁴ of a member in relation to the meeting, and they are proxies of the same member¹⁵.

For these purposes, a 'qualifying person' means: (a) an individual who is a member of the company¹⁶; (b) a person duly authorised¹⁷ to act as the representative of a corporation in relation to the meeting¹⁸; or (c) a person appointed as proxy of a member in relation to the meeting¹⁹.

If the quorum is not present within the prescribed time after the time appointed for the meeting, no business may be transacted, except as provided by the articles of the company²⁰. Where the number of shareholders is less than the requisite quorum, or where there is only one member of the class, the consent of all the members or the only member must be obtained²¹.

8 As to the meaning of references to a company's 'articles' see PARA 228 note 2. As to model articles of association prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, and their application generally, see PARA 228 et seq. Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230.

Accordingly, under the model articles, no business other than the appointment of the chairman of the meeting is to be transacted at a general meeting if the persons attending it do not constitute a quorum: Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 art 38; Sch 2 art 24; Sch 3 art 30. As to the notice required of general meetings see PARA 632; and as to the power of the court to call such a meeting see PARA 639. The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, provides that no business can be transacted at any meeting unless a quorum is present; and, except in the case of company with a single member, a quorum is specified for these purposes as being two persons entitled to vote upon the business to be transacted, each being a member or a proxy for a member or a duly authorised representative of a corporation: reg 2, Schedule, Table A art 40 (amended by SI 2007/2541). See further the text and notes 20-21; and as to adjournment of a meeting for want of a quorum see PARA 650. Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but art 40 is applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital) and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital). As to the meaning of 'unlimited company' see PARA 102. As to the meanings of 'company having a share capital' and 'share capital' see PARA 1042.

647. Whether one person can constitute a meeting.

Strictly speaking, one shareholder cannot form a meeting¹; the ordinary meaning of the word 'meeting', denoting a coming together of two or more persons, is well established in the context of companies². However, in circumstances where there is only one member of a class, the word 'meeting' could include the case of a single shareholder³; and the court, in exercising its power to convene a meeting of the company⁴, may convene a meeting to be attended by only one shareholder⁵.

However, see East v Bennett Bros Ltd [1911] 1 Ch 163 (where there was only one preference shareholder, and it was held that a provision in the constitution requiring the sanction of a meeting of the holders of preference shares should not be construed strictly, and written consent was enough); and, in Re MJ Shanley Contracting (in voluntary liquidation) (1979) 124 Sol Jo 239, it was held (distinguishing Neil McLeod & Sons Ltd, Petitioners 1967 SLT 46, Ct of Sess) that one shareholder could not constitute a meeting. In the latter case (doubted by Oliver J in the former) there were two persons actually present, one of whom also held a proxy; it was held that the necessary quorum of three was present.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(ii) Meetings of the Company/D. PROCEDURE AT GENERAL MEETINGS/648. Chairman of meeting.

648. Chairman of meeting.

The Companies Act 2006 provides that either a member of the company¹ or a proxy² may be elected to be the chairman of a general meeting³ by a resolution of the company⁴ passed at the meeting⁵. However, it would be exceptional for a member or a proxy to be so elected, and the position of chairman is normally dictated by the company's articles⁶, the statutory provision being subject to any provision of the articles that states who may or may not be chairman⁷.

The termination of the authority of a person to act as proxy does not affect the validity of anything he does as chairman of a meeting, unless the company receives notice of the termination before the commencement of the meeting: see s 330(2)(b); and PARA 665.

6 As to the meaning of references to a company's 'articles' see PARA 228 note 2. As to model articles of association prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, and their application generally, see PARA 228 et seq. Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. As to the meaning of 'share' see PARA 1042. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230.

Under the model articles prescribed for use under the Companies Act 2006, if the directors have appointed a chairman, the chairman must chair general meetings if present and willing to do so: Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 art 39(1); Sch 2 art 25(1); Sch 3 art 31(1). If the directors have not appointed a chairman (or if the chairman is unwilling to chair the meeting, or if he is not present within ten minutes of the time at which a meeting was due to start), the directors present or (if no directors are present) the meeting, must appoint a director or member (or shareholder, as the case may be) to chair the meeting, and the appointment of the chairman of the meeting must be the first business of the meeting: Sch 1 art 39(2); Sch 2 art 25(2); Sch 3 art 31(2). The person chairing a meeting in accordance with these provisions is referred to as the 'chairman of the meeting': Sch 1 art 39(3); Sch 2 art 25(3); Sch 3 art 31(3). As to directors of a company see PARA 478 et seq. As to shareholders of the company see PARA 321 et seq.

The provision made under the legacy articles differs slightly as the chairman, if any, of the board of directors (or in his absence some other director nominated by the directors) must preside as chairman of the meeting, but if neither the chairman nor such other director (if any) is present within 15 minutes after the time appointed for holding the meeting and willing to act, the directors present must elect one of their number to be chairman and, if there is only one director present and willing to act, he is to be chairman: see the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, reg 2, Schedule, Table A art 42. If no director is willing to act as chairman (or if no director is present within 15 minutes after the time appointed for holding the meeting) the members present and entitled to vote must choose one of their number to be chairman: Table A art 43. Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but arts 42, 43 are applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital) and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital). As to the meaning of 'unlimited company' see PARA 102. As to the meanings of 'company having a share capital' and 'share capital' see PARA 1042.

7 Companies Act 2006 ss 319(2), 328(2). Nothing in s 328 prevents a company's articles from conferring more extensive rights on members or proxies than are conferred by that section: s 331. As to a chairman's declaration that a resolution is carried on a show of hands see PARA 619; as to the chairman's powers regarding who may speak at a meeting see PARA 645; and as to the chairman's power to adjourn see PARA 650.

649. Casting vote of chairman at general meeting.

Where, immediately before 1 October 2007¹, the articles of a company² provided that, in the event of equality of votes on an ordinary resolution³, whether on a show of hands or on a poll, the chairman⁴ should have a casting vote in addition to any other vote that the chairman might have, then if that provision has not been removed by a subsequent alteration of the articles⁵, it continues to have effect⁶. If that provision has been removed by a subsequent alteration of the articles, the company may at any time restore that provision⁷.

The provision referred to in the text continues to have effect notwithstanding the Companies Act 2006 s 281(3) (where a provision of the Companies Acts requires a resolution of a company but does not specify what kind of resolution is required) (see PARA 617) and s 282 (ordinary resolutions) (see PARA 613): see the Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 3, Consequential Amendments, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2007, SI 2007/2194, Sch 3 para 23A(2) (as so added).

Nothing in Sch 3 para 23A applies in relation to a traded company as defined by the Companies Act 2006 s 360C (see PARA 630 note 6): see the Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 3, Consequential Amendments, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2007, SI 2007/2194, Sch 3 para 23A(4) (Sch 3 para 23A as so added; Sch 3 para 23A(4) added by SI 2009/1632).

The provision so restored has effect notwithstanding the Companies Act 2006 s 281(3) (see PARA 617) and s 282 (see PARA 613): see the Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 3, Consequential Amendments, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2007, SI 2007/2194, Sch 3 para 23A(3) (as so added). Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(ii) Meetings of the Company/D. PROCEDURE AT GENERAL MEETINGS/650. Adjournment of meeting.

650. Adjournment of meeting.

Except where empowered by the constitution of the company¹, a chairman² cannot adjourn a meeting of the company³, nor dissolve it, while any of the business for which it was called remains untransacted⁴; and, if he refuses to act, the meeting may elect another chairman. If he has the right, with the meeting's consent, to adjourn it, the majority of the members present at the meeting cannot compel him to do so, subject to any provision of the articles⁵. He cannot, however, adjourn or dissolve the meeting against the wish of the majority⁶, but he has prima facie authority to decide all incidental questions which arise and necessarily require decision at the time⁷. Where, however, there is a meeting at which the views of the majority cannot be validly ascertained, the chairman has a residual common law power to adjourn the meeting without its consent in order to give all persons entitled a reasonable opportunity of voting and speaking at the meeting⁸.

Where the business of a meeting has been completed with the exception of the taking of a poll⁹, the subsequent taking of the poll is part of the same meeting for the purposes of determining the validity of proxies¹⁰. Similarly, if a meeting is reconstituted subsequent to the taking of a poll on a motion for adjournment which is lost, the reconstituted meeting is the same meeting¹¹.

For the purposes of considering what business may be transacted at an adjourned meeting, the adjourned meeting must be considered as the original meeting¹²; but, where a resolution¹³ is passed at an adjourned meeting of a company¹⁴, the resolution is for all purposes treated as having been passed on the date on which it was in fact passed, and is not to be deemed passed on any earlier date¹⁵. A meeting of shareholders¹⁶ cannot by a majority refuse to hear the views of the minority, but, after a reasonable opportunity has been afforded for the expression of their views, it is competent for the chairman, with the meeting's consent, to declare the discussion closed and put the motion to the vote¹⁷.

1 As to the company's powers under its constitution see PARA 256 et seq; and see note 4.

2 As to the chairman of a meeting see PARA 648.

3 As to meetings of the company see PARA 629 et seq; and as to the power of the court to call such a meeting see PARA 639.

4 National Dwellings Society v Sykes [1894] 3 Ch 159. In the absence of special powers, the directors cannot postpone a meeting properly convened: Smith v Paranga Mines Ltd [1906] 2 Ch 193. Cf John v Rees [1970] Ch 345 at 381-382, [1969] 2 All ER 274 at 292 (where Megarry J suggested that a chairman has an inherent power to adjourn for serious disorder; such provision is now made in the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229); Byng v London Life Association Ltd [1990] Ch 170 at 186, [1989] 1 All ER 560 at 567, CA, per Browne-Wilkinson V-C. As to directors of a company see PARA 478 et seq.

Provision as to the adjournment of meetings is usually made under the company's articles of association. As to model articles of association prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, and their application generally, see PARA 228 et seq. Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. As to the meaning of 'share' see PARA 1042. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230.

Accordingly, if the persons attending a general meeting within half an hour of the time at which the meeting was due to start do not constitute a quorum, or if during a meeting a quorum ceases to be present, the chairman of the meeting must adjourn it: Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 art 41(1); Sch 2 art 27(1); Sch 3 art 33(1). The chairman of the meeting may adjourn a general meeting at which a quorum is present if the meeting consents to an adjournment, or if it appears to the chairman of the meeting that an adjournment is necessary to protect the safety of any person attending the meeting or ensure that the business of the meeting is conducted in an orderly manner: Sch 1 art 41(2); Sch 2 art 27(2); Sch 3 art 33(2). The chairman of the meeting must adjourn a general meeting if directed to do so by the meeting: Sch 1 art 41(3); Sch 2 art 27(3); Sch 3 art 33(3). When adjourning a general meeting, the chairman of the meeting must either specify the time and place to which it is adjourned or state that it is to continue at a time and place to be fixed by the directors, and have regard to any directions as to the time and place of any adjournment which have been given by the meeting: Sch 1 art 41(4); Sch 2 art 27(4); Sch 3 art 33(4). If the continuation of an adjourned meeting is to take place more than 14 days after it was adjourned, the company must give at least seven clear days' notice of it (that is, excluding the day of the adjourned meeting and the day on which the notice is given) to the same persons to whom notice of the company's general meetings is required to be given, and containing the same information which such notice is required to contain: Sch 1 art 41(5); Sch 2 art 27(5); Sch 3 art 33(5). No business may be transacted at an adjourned general meeting which could not properly have been transacted at the meeting if the adjournment had not taken place: Sch 1 art 41(6); Sch 2 art 27(6); Sch 3 art 33(6). As to the quorum at a meeting see PARA 646.

Under the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, if a quorum is not present within half an hour from the time appointed for the meeting, or if during a meeting such a quorum ceases to be present, the meeting must stand adjourned to the same day in the next week at the same time and place or to such time and place as the directors may determine: reg 2, Schedule, Table A art 41 (amended by SI 1985/1052). Cf Re Hartley Baird Ltd [1955] Ch 143, [1954] 3 All ER 695 (in default of such a provision, a quorum must be present when a meeting proceeds to business but not necessarily when a vote is taken). The chairman may, with the consent of a meeting at which a quorum is present (and must if so directed by the meeting), adjourn the meeting from time to time and from place to place, but no business is to be transacted at an adjourned meeting other than business which might properly have been transacted at the meeting had the adjournment not taken place: Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 45. When a meeting is adjourned for 14 days or more, at least seven clear days' notice must be given specifying the time and place of the adjourned meeting and the general nature of the business to be transacted; otherwise it is not necessary to give any such notice: Table A art 45. Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but arts 41, 45 are applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital) and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital). As to the meaning of 'unlimited company' see PARA 102. As to the meanings of 'company having a share capital' and 'share capital' see PARA 1042.

At a general meeting¹ of a traded company², the company must cause to be answered any question relating to the business being dealt with at the meeting put by a member³ attending the meeting⁴. However, no such answer need be given: (1) if to do so would interfere unduly with the preparation for the meeting⁵, or involve the disclosure of confidential information⁶; (2) if the answer has already been given on a website in the form of an answer to a question⁷; or (3) if it is undesirable in the interests of the company or the good order of the meeting that the question be answered⁸.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(ii) Meetings of the Company/E. EXERCISE OF VOTING RIGHTS/652. Exercise of voting rights generally.

E. EXERCISE OF VOTING RIGHTS

652. Exercise of voting rights generally.

Unless otherwise provided by a company's articles of association¹, a shareholder, even if a director, is not debarred from using his voting power to carry a resolution by reason of his having a particular interest in the subject matter of the vote²; but, if members holding a majority of the voting power use their votes for a corrupt purpose, such as obtaining an unfair advantage for themselves or another company in which they are shareholders, the resolutions will be set aside³. An agreement by a shareholder, although in a representative capacity, with the purchaser or the mortgagee of some of his shares that he will vote as the purchaser directs is good and will be enforced by a mandatory injunction⁴. Directors may legitimately use their influence with the shareholders as to the way in which they should vote⁵.

It is usual to provide in the articles of association that every member present in person has one vote on a show of hands and on a poll one vote for each share of which he is the holder⁶. If there is no such provision contained in the articles, the statutory rule relating to votes on a written resolution or on a resolution taken on a poll at the meeting prevails, being, in the case of a company having a share capital, that every member has one vote in respect of each share or each £10 of stock held by him, and that in any other case every member has one vote⁷.

It is sometimes provided that a person entitled by transmission may vote in respect of the shares to which he is so entitled, although not registered, if he satisfies the directors that he is so entitled⁸. It is doubtful whether, in the absence of any provision specifically giving the right to vote, a person entitled by transmission and not registered as a member is entitled to vote⁹.

Subject to any provision in the articles, a bankrupt is entitled to vote so long as the shares remain registered in his name, but he must exercise his votes in accordance with the directions of the persons beneficially entitled to his shares¹⁰.

During a state of war, the right of an alien enemy to vote is suspended and cannot be exercised by him¹¹.

Every registered holder is entitled to vote subject to any provision in the articles¹², as where the member must have been registered for a fixed term before voting¹³, or where a member is only allowed to vote in respect of preference shares held by him in certain cases¹⁴. Where under the articles there is no right to vote while any sum is due in respect of the shares¹⁵, a purchaser of a forfeited share cannot vote while calls, for which the former holder alone is liable, are unpaid¹⁶.

Where a company gave an undertaking to the court which involved the company in general meeting passing a resolution for the issue and allotment of shares, it was held that a shareholder voting against that resolution would not be in contempt of court¹⁷.

It is not unusual in private companies for the shareholders to enter into an agreement outside the articles relating to voting their shares¹⁸.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(ii) Meetings of the Company/E. EXERCISE OF VOTING RIGHTS/653. Voting on a resolution.

653. Voting on a resolution.

The Companies Act 2006 sets out general rules¹ for when members of a company² vote on a resolution³, as follows:

- 1033 (1) on a vote on a written resolution⁴ (in the case of a company having a share capital⁵) every member has one vote in respect of each share⁶ or each £10 of stock⁷ held by him⁸ and (in any other case) every member has one vote⁹;
- 1034 (2) on a vote on a resolution on a show of hands at a meeting¹⁰, each member present in person has one vote¹¹;
- 1035 (3) on a vote on a resolution on a poll taken at a meeting¹² (in the case of a company having a share capital) every member has one vote in respect of each share or each £10 of stock held by him¹³ and (in any other case) every member has one vote¹⁴.

These rules have effect subject to any provision of the company's articles¹⁵.

On a vote on a resolution on a show of hands at a meeting, every proxy present who has been duly appointed by one or more members entitled to vote on the resolution has one vote¹⁶. But this is subject to the provision¹⁷ that, on a vote on a resolution on a show of hands at a meeting, a proxy has one vote for and one vote against the resolution if¹⁸: (a) the proxy has been duly appointed by more than one member entitled to vote on the resolution¹⁹; and (b) the proxy has been instructed by one or more of those members to vote for the resolution and by one or more other of those members to vote against it²⁰. These provisions²¹ also have effect subject to any provision of the company's articles²². On a poll taken at a meeting of a company all or any of the voting rights of a member may be exercised by one or more duly appointed proxies²³.

In relation to a resolution required or authorised by an enactment²⁴, if a private company's articles provide that a member has a different number of votes in relation to a resolution when it is passed as a written resolution and when it is passed on a poll taken at a meeting²⁵, then: (i) the provision about how many votes a member has in relation to the resolution passed on a poll is void²⁶; and (ii) a member has the same number of votes in relation to the resolution when it is passed on a poll as the member has when it is passed as a written resolution²⁷.

In the case of joint holders of shares of a company, only the vote of the senior holder who votes (and any proxies duly authorised by him) may be counted by the company²⁸.

For the purposes of determining the entitlement of persons who are holding uncertificated securities to attend or vote at a meeting, and how many votes such persons may cast, the participating issuer may specify in the notice of the meeting a time, not more than 48 hours before the time fixed for the meeting, by which a person must be entered on the relevant register of securities in order to have the right to attend or vote at the meeting²⁹.

A resolution of the members of a company is validly passed at a general meeting if notice of the meeting and of the resolution is duly³⁰ given, and if the meeting is duly³¹ held and conducted³².

The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 (ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, which have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230) provide that a resolution put to the vote of a meeting is to be decided on a show of hands unless before, or on the declaration of the result of, the show of hands a poll is duly demanded by the persons specified in the articles for that purpose; a demand by a person as proxy for a member is the same as a demand by a member: see reg 2, Schedule, Table A art 46. Unless a poll is duly demanded, a declaration by the chairman that a resolution has been carried or carried unanimously, or by a particular majority, or lost, or not carried by a particular majority and an entry to that effect in the minutes of the meeting is conclusive evidence of the fact without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of or against the resolution: see Table A art 47. As to the right to make a demand for, and vote on, a poll see further PARA 655. As to voting by proxy see PARA 662 et seq.

Subject to any rights or restrictions attached to any shares, on a show of hands every member who (being an individual) is present in person or by proxy or (being a corporation) is present by a duly authorised representative or by proxy, unless the proxy (in either case) or the representative is himself a member entitled to vote, must have one vote and on a poll every member must have one vote for every share of which he is the holder: Table A art 54 (amended by SI 2007/2826). In the case of joint holders the vote of the senior who tenders a vote, whether in person or by proxy, must be accepted to the exclusion of the votes of the other joint holders; and seniority must be determined by the order in which the names of the holders stand in the register of members: Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 55. A member in respect of whom an order has been made by any court having jurisdiction (whether in the United Kingdom or elsewhere) in matters concerning mental disorder may vote, whether on a show of hands or on a poll, by his receiver, curator bonis or other person authorised in that behalf appointed by that court, and any such receiver, curator bonis or other person may, on a poll, vote by proxy; however, evidence to the satisfaction of the directors of the authority of the person claiming to exercise the right to vote must be deposited at the office, or at such other place as is specified in accordance with the articles for the deposit of instruments of proxy, not less than 48 hours before the time appointed for holding the meeting or adjourned meeting at which the right to vote is to be exercised and in default the right to vote is not to be exercisable: Table A art 56. No member may vote at any general meeting or at any separate meeting of the holders of any class of shares in the company, either in person or by proxy, in respect of any share held by him unless all moneys presently payable by him in respect of that share have been paid: Table A art 57. No objection may be raised to the qualification of any voter except at the meeting or adjourned meeting at which the vote objected to is tendered, and every vote not disallowed at the meeting must be valid; any objection made in due time must be referred to the chairman whose decision is final and conclusive: Table A art 58. On a poll, votes may be given either personally or by proxy; a member may appoint more than one proxy to attend on the same occasion: Table A art 59. As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 1 note 5.

The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but arts 46-47, 54-59 are applied by Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital) and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital). Table A arts 46-47, 56 only are applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), although Table A art 46 is amended in respect of who may duly demand a poll (see Table C art 7) and it is provided that, on a show of hands, every member present in person or by proxy has one vote and that, on a poll, every member present in person or by proxy has one vote (see Table C art 8 (amended by SI 2008/739)). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'limited company' and 'unlimited company' see PARA 102.

The provision made in the model articles of association that have been prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 (see PARA 228 et seq) is less detailed (but specific provision for the declaration of a result is made in s 320 which is derived in part from the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A arts 46, 47). Different versions of model articles are prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. As to the meaning of 'share' see PARA 1042. Accordingly, under these model articles, a resolution put to the vote of a general meeting must be decided on a show of hands unless a poll is duly demanded in accordance with the articles: Sch 1 art 42; Sch 2 art 28; Sch 3 art 34. No voting rights attached to a share may be exercised at any general meeting of a public company, at any adjournment of it, or on any poll called at or in relation to it, unless all amounts payable to the company in respect of that share have been paid: Sch 3 art 41. No objection may be raised to the qualification of any person voting at a general meeting except at the meeting or adjourned meeting at which the vote objected to is tendered, and every vote not disallowed at the meeting is valid (Sch 1 art 43(1); Sch 2 art 29(1); Sch 3 art 35(1)); and any such objection must be referred to the chairman of the meeting, whose decision is final (Sch 1 art 43(2); Sch 2 art 29(2); Sch 3 art 35(2)). A poll on a resolution may be demanded either in advance of the general meeting where it is to be put to the vote, or at a general meeting, either before a show of hands on that resolution or immediately after the result of a show of hands on that resolution is declared: Sch 1 art 44(1); Sch 2 art 30(1); Sch 3 art 36(1). A poll may be demanded by the chairman of the meeting, the directors, two or more persons having the right to vote on the resolution, or a person or persons representing not less than one tenth of the total voting rights of all the members (or shareholders, as the case may be) having the right to vote on the resolution: Sch 1 art 44(2); Sch 2 art 30(2); Sch 3 art 36(2). See further PARA 655.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(ii) Meetings of the Company/E. EXERCISE OF VOTING RIGHTS/654. Voting on a show of hands.

654. Voting on a show of hands.

Under the model articles of association¹, a resolution put to the vote of a general meeting² must be decided on a show of hands unless a poll is demanded in accordance with the articles³. An entry in respect of a chairman's declaration that a resolution is carried on a show of hands in the minutes of the meeting is conclusive evidence of that fact⁴. Even when it is to be conclusive, it may be disputed where it is inaccurate on the face of it⁵, or where fraud is shown⁶; otherwise it cannot be disputed⁷. The chairman's ruling that a resolution has been passed by show of hands cannot be challenged if not challenged at the time⁸. If his decision is challenged, it is his duty to take steps to ascertain the true numbers⁹. If there is only a mistake and no fraud, the proper course is to call another meeting¹⁰. If votes are improperly excluded, the court will intervene on proper evidence¹¹.

Where there are two resolutions before a meeting of shareholders, the chairman may, it seems¹², put the resolutions to the meeting en bloc if no shareholder requires them to be put separately and there is a right to a poll¹³; but at a general meeting of a public company a motion for the appointment of two or more persons as directors is not, in general, to be made¹⁴.

1 As to the model articles of association prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, and their application generally, see PARA 228 et seq. Different versions of model articles have been so prescribed for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. As to the meaning of 'share' see PARA 1042. The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 ('legacy articles'), ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, be used by companies for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(ii) Meetings of the Company/E. EXERCISE OF VOTING RIGHTS/655. Right to demand a poll.

655. Right to demand a poll.

At common law, a person entitled to vote at a meeting¹ has a right to demand a poll².

A provision of a company's articles³ is void in so far as it would have the effect of either⁴:

1036 (1) excluding the right to demand a poll at a general meeting on any question other than the election of the chairman of the meeting⁵ or the adjournment of the meeting⁶; or

1037 (2) making ineffective a demand for a poll on any such question which is made⁷:

68. (a) by not less than five members⁸ having the right to vote on the resolution⁹; or

69. (b) by a member or members representing not less than 10 per cent of the total voting rights of all the members having the right to vote on the resolution (excluding any voting rights attached to any shares¹⁰ in the company held as treasury shares)¹¹; or

70. (c) by a member or members holding shares¹² in the company conferring a right to vote on the resolution, being shares on which an aggregate sum has been paid up equal to not less than 10 per cent of the total sum paid up¹³ on all the shares conferring that right (excluding any shares in the company conferring a right to vote on the resolution which are held as treasury shares)¹⁴.

The appointment of a proxy to vote¹⁵ on a matter at a meeting of a company authorises the proxy to demand, or join in demanding, a poll on that matter¹⁶.

The right may be exercised at different times depending on the articles¹⁷; where the articles provide that a resolution is to be decided on a show of hands unless a poll is demanded 'before or on the declaration' of the result of the show of hands¹⁸, a poll may be validly demanded without going through the formality of a show of hands¹⁹. The demand may be made privately to the chairman and by him communicated to the meeting²⁰. If the chairman refuses a poll on a motion for adjournment which he has declared carried, the court will not interfere²¹. Unless the articles state the place and time for taking the poll²², the chairman may direct the manner of taking it²³; but, where a poll is required to be taken 'immediately at the meeting'²⁴, the poll must be taken as soon as practicable in all the circumstances²⁵.

3 As to the meaning of references to a company's 'articles' see PARA 228 note 2. As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16. As to savings regarding provisions of a company's articles that relate to a person's entitlement to vote on a resolution see the Companies Act 2006 s 287; and PARA 617 note 10.

The default articles prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 (ie the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, which have not been revoked and may, in their amended form, continue to be used by companies after the commencement of the Companies Act 2006: see PARA 230) provide that the demand for a poll may, before the poll is taken, be withdrawn but only with the consent of the chairman and a demand so withdrawn must not be taken to have invalidated the result of a show of hands declared before the demand was made: Table A art 48. A poll must be taken as the chairman directs and he may appoint scrutineers (who need not be members) and fix a time and place for declaring the result of the poll; the result of the poll is deemed to be the resolution of the meeting at which the poll was demanded: Table A art 49. A poll demanded on the election of a chairman or on a question of adjournment must be taken forthwith; and a poll demanded on any other question must be taken either forthwith or at such time and place as the chairman directs not being more than 30 days after the poll is demanded: Table A art 51. The demand for a poll does not prevent the continuance of a meeting for the transaction of any business other than the question on which the poll was demanded; if a poll is demanded before the declaration of the result of a show of hands and the demand is duly withdrawn, the meeting must continue as if the demand had not been made: Table A art 51. No notice need be given of a poll not taken forthwith if the time and place at which it is to be taken are announced at the meeting at which it is demanded; in any other case at least seven clear days' notice must be given specifying the time and place at which the poll is to be taken: Table A art 52.

The Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A provides regulations for the management of a company limited by shares but arts 48-49, 51, 52 are applied by Table C (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital), Table D Pt III (regulations for the management of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital) and Table E (an unlimited company having a share capital). As to the meanings of 'company limited by guarantee', 'company limited by shares', 'limited company' and 'unlimited company' see PARA 102.

Similar provision is made in the model articles of association that have been prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 (see PARA 228 et seq). Different versions of model articles are prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 for use by private companies limited by shares (see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1), private companies limited by guarantee (see reg 3, Sch 2), and public companies (see reg 4, Sch 3). As to the meanings of 'private company' and 'public company' see PARA 102. As to the meaning of 'share' see PARA 1042. Accordingly, under these model articles, a demand for a poll may be withdrawn if the poll has not yet been taken, and if the chairman of the meeting consents to the withdrawal: Sch 1 art 44(3); Sch 2 art 30(3); Sch 3 art 36(3). Polls must be taken immediately and in such manner as the chairman of the meeting directs (Sch 1 art 44(4); Sch 2 art 30(4)), except that, in relation to public companies only, it is specified that polls at general meetings must be taken when, where and in such manner as the chairman of the meeting directs, and that this is subject to the articles (Sch 3 art 37(1)). In the latter case only, the chairman of the meeting may appoint scrutineers (who need not be members) and decide how and when the result of the poll is to be declared (Sch 3 art 37(2)); and the result of a poll must be the decision of the meeting in respect of the resolution on which the poll was demanded (Sch 3 art 37(3)). A poll on the election of the chairman of the meeting, or on a question of adjournment, must be taken immediately (Sch 3 art 37(4)); other polls must be taken within 30 days of their being demanded (Sch 3 art 37(5)). A demand for a poll does not prevent a general meeting from continuing, except as regards the question on which the poll was demanded: Sch 3 art 37(6). No notice need be given of a poll not taken immediately if the time and place at which it is to be taken are announced at the meeting at which it is demanded (Sch 3 art 37(7)); in any other case, at least seven days' notice must be given specifying the time and place at which the poll is to be taken (Sch 3 art 37(8)).

Nothing in s 329 prevents a company's articles from conferring more extensive rights on members or proxies than are conferred by that section: s 331. Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(ii) Meetings of the Company/E. EXERCISE OF VOTING RIGHTS/656. Voting on poll.

656. Voting on poll.

On a poll¹ taken at a general meeting of a company², a member³ entitled to more than one vote need not, if he votes, use all his votes or cast all the votes he uses in the same way⁴.

A company's articles⁵ may contain provision to the effect that on a vote on a resolution⁶ on a poll taken at a meeting, the votes may include votes cast in advance⁷. In the case of a traded company⁸, any such provision in relation to voting at a general meeting may be made subject only to such requirements and restrictions as are both necessary to ensure the identification of the person voting, and proportionate to the achievement of that objective⁹. Any provision of a company's articles is void in so far as it would have the effect of requiring any document casting a vote in advance to be received by the company or another person earlier than the following time¹⁰: (1) in the case of a poll taken more than 48 hours after it was demanded, 24 hours before the time appointed for the taking of the poll¹¹; (2) in the case of any other poll, 48 hours before the time for holding the meeting or adjourned meeting¹².

Where two resolutions before a meeting have been separately voted upon and a poll has been demanded, each must be put to the poll separately¹³; but resolutions may be put en bloc if there is a right to demand a poll and no member objects¹⁴. If, after a rightful demand for a poll, the poll is not taken, the resolution is void¹⁵. A poll is part of the meeting, and, for the purpose of taking it, the meeting continues until the poll is closed¹⁶. In a poll of members of a company present at a meeting there is no confidentiality which prevents the company from knowing how votes are cast¹⁷.

Where a poll is taken at a general meeting of a quoted company¹⁸ that is not a traded company, the company must ensure that the following information is made available on a website¹⁹:

- 1038 (a) the date of the meeting²⁰;
- 1039 (b) the text of the resolution or, as the case may be, a description of the subject matter of the poll²¹;
- 1040 (c) the number of votes cast in favour²²; and
- 1041 (d) the number of votes cast against²³.

Where a poll is taken at a general meeting of a traded company, the company must ensure that the following information is made available on a website²⁴:

- 1042 (i) the date of the meeting²⁵;
- 1043 (ii) the text of the resolution or, as the case may be, a description of the subject matter of the poll²⁶;
- 1044 (iii) the number of votes validly cast²⁷;
- 1045 (iv) the proportion of the company's issued share capital²⁸ represented by those votes²⁹;
- 1046 (v) the number of votes cast in favour³⁰;
- 1047 (vi) the number of votes cast against³¹; and
- 1048 (vii) the number of abstentions (if counted)³².

In the event of default in complying with the requirements regarding making such information available³³, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default³⁴; and a person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale³⁵. Failure to comply with these requirements³⁶ does not affect the validity of either the poll, or the resolution or other business (if passed or agreed to) to which the poll relates³⁷.

Where a poll is held, the date of the resolution is that on which the result of the poll is announced³⁸.

The Secretary of State may by regulations limit the types of company to which some or all of the provisions of Pt 13 Ch 5 (ss 341-354) apply, or extend some or all of the provisions of Pt 13 Ch 5 to additional types of company: s 354(1). Regulations under s 354 extending the application of any provision of Pt 13 Ch 5 are subject to affirmative resolution procedure (ie the regulations must not be made unless a draft of the statutory instrument containing them has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament): see ss 354(2), 1290. Any other regulations under s 354 are subject to negative resolution procedure (ie the statutory instrument containing the regulations is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament): ss 354(3), 1289. Regulations under s 354 may amend the provisions of Pt 13 Ch 5 (apart from s 354), repeal and re-enact provisions of Pt 13 Ch 5 with modifications of form or arrangement, whether or not they are modified in substance, and contain such consequential, incidental and supplementary provisions (including provisions amending, repealing or revoking enactments) as the Secretary of State thinks fit: s 354(4). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6 et seq. As to the making of regulations under the Companies Act 2006 generally see ss 1288-1292. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations have been made in exercise of the power conferred by s 354.

19 Companies Act 2006 s 341(1) (amended by SI 2009/1632). The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 s 353 (requirements as to website availability) (see PARAS 656, 658) apply: s 341(2). Accordingly, for the purposes of s 341, the information must be made available on a website that is maintained by or on behalf of the company, and identifies the company in question: s 353(1), (2). Access to the information on the website, and the ability to obtain a hard copy of the information from the website, must not be conditional on the payment of a fee or otherwise restricted (s 353(3)); and the information: (1) must be made available as soon as reasonably practicable (s 353(4)(a)); and (2) must be kept available throughout the period of two years beginning with the date on which it is first made available on a website in accordance with s 353 (s 353(4)(b)). A failure to make information available on a website throughout the period specified in s 353(4)(b) is disregarded if the information is made available on the website for part of that period, and if the failure is wholly attributable to circumstances that it would not be reasonable to have expected the company to prevent or avoid: s 353(5).

657. Members' power to demand independent report on poll.

The members of a quoted company¹ may require the directors² to obtain an independent report on any poll taken, or to be taken, at a general meeting of the company³.

The directors are required to obtain an independent report if they receive requests to do so from⁴: (1) members representing at least 5 per cent of the total voting rights of all the members who have a right to vote on the matter to which the poll relates⁵ (excluding any voting rights attached to any shares⁶ in the company held as treasury shares)⁷; or (2) not less than 100 members who have a right to vote on the matter to which the poll relates and hold shares in the company on which there has been paid up an average sum, per member, of not less than £100⁸.

A request may be in hard copy form or in electronic form⁹, must identify the poll or polls to which it relates¹⁰, must be authenticated by the person or persons making it¹¹, and must be received by the company not later than one week after the date on which the poll is taken¹².

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(ii) Meetings of the Company/E. EXERCISE OF VOTING RIGHTS/658. Appointment of independent assessor to make report on poll.

658. Appointment of independent assessor to make report on poll.

Directors¹ who are required² to obtain an independent report on a poll or polls³ must appoint a person they consider to be appropriate (an 'independent assessor') to prepare a report for the company⁴ on it or them⁵. The appointment must be made within one week after the company being required to obtain the report⁶. The directors must not appoint a person who does not meet the independence requirement⁷ or who has another role in relation to any poll on which he is to report (including, in particular, a role in connection with collecting or counting votes or with the appointment of proxies)⁸. In the event of default in complying with these requirements⁹, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default¹⁰; and a person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale¹¹. If, at the meeting, no poll on which a report is required is taken¹², then the directors are not required to obtain a report from the independent assessor¹³, and his appointment ceases (but without prejudice to any right to be paid for work done before the appointment ceased)¹⁴.

Where an independent assessor has been appointed to report on a poll, the company must ensure that the following information is made available on a website¹⁵: (1) the fact of his appointment¹⁶; (2) his identity¹⁷; (3) the text of the resolution¹⁸ or, as the case may be, a description of the subject matter of the poll to which his appointment relates¹⁹; and (4) a copy of a report by him which complies with the statutory requirements²⁰. In the event of default in complying with these requirements²¹, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default²²; and a person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale²³. Failure to comply with these requirements²⁴ does not affect the validity of either the poll, or the resolution or other business (if passed or agreed to) to which the poll relates²⁵.

Where a partnership that is not a legal person under the law by which it is governed²⁶ is appointed as an independent assessor²⁷ then, unless a contrary intention appears, the appointment is an appointment of the partnership as such and not of the partners²⁸. Where the partnership ceases, the appointment is to be treated as extending to any partnership that succeeds to the practice of that partnership²⁹, or any other person who succeeds to that practice having previously carried it on in partnership³⁰.

1 As to the meaning of 'director' under the Companies Acts see PARA 478; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

2 Ie under the Companies Act 2006 s 342 (see PARA 657); see s 343(1). As to the application of the provisions of ss 342-351 in relation to a meeting of holders of a class of shares of a quoted company see s 352; and PARA 631.

3 As to the right to demand a poll, and as to voting on such a poll, see PARAS 655-656.

4 As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24.

The Secretary of State may by regulations limit the types of company to which some or all of the provisions of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 13 Ch 5 (ss 341-354) apply, or extend some or all of the provisions of Pt 13 Ch 5 to additional types of company: see s 354; and PARA 656 note 18.

5 Companies Act 2006 s 343(1).

7 Companies Act 2006 s 343(3)(a). The text refers to the independence requirement in s 344: s 343(3)(a). Accordingly, a person may not be appointed as an independent assessor:

207 (1) if he is an officer or employee of the company, or if he is a partner or employee of such a person, or a partnership of which such a person is a partner (s 344(1)(a));

- 208 (2) if he is an officer or employee of an associated undertaking of the company, or if he is a partner or employee of such a person, or a partnership of which such a person is a partner (s 344(1)(b)); and
- 209 (3) if there exists between the person or an associate of his, and the company or an associated undertaking of the company, a connection of any such description as may be specified by regulations made by the Secretary of State (s 344(1)(c)).

An auditor of the company is not regarded as an officer or employee of the company for this purpose: s 344(2). Regulations under s 344 are subject to negative resolution procedure (ie the statutory instrument containing the regulations is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament): see ss 344(4), 1289. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6. As to the making of regulations under the Companies Act 2006 generally see ss 1288-1292. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made under s 344. For these purposes, 'associated undertaking' means a parent undertaking or subsidiary undertaking of the company, or a subsidiary undertaking of a parent undertaking of the company; and 'associate' has the meaning given by s 345: see ss 344(3), 345(1). Accordingly, in relation to an individual, 'associate' means that individual's spouse or civil partner or minor child or step-child, any body corporate of which that individual is a director, and any employee or partner of that individual: s 345(2). In relation to a body corporate, 'associate' means any body corporate of which that body is a director, any body corporate in the same group as that body, and any employee or partner of that body or of any body corporate in the same group: s 345(3). In relation to a partnership that is a legal person under the law by which it is governed, 'associate' means any body corporate of which that partnership is a director, any employee or partner in that partnership, and any person who is an associate of a partner in that partnership: s 345(4). In relation to a partnership that is not a legal person under the law by which it is governed, 'associate' means any person who is an associate of any of the partners: s 345(5). For the purposes of s 345, in relation to a limited liability partnership, for 'director' read 'member': s 345(6). As to the effect of appointing a partnership as assessor see the text and notes 26-30. As to the meaning of 'body corporate' for the purposes of the Companies Acts see PARA 1 note 5. As to the meaning of 'officer' generally see PARA 607. As to the meanings of 'parent undertaking', 'subsidiary' and 'subsidiary undertaking' in the Companies Acts see PARA 26. Accordingly, for the purposes of s 351, the information must be made available on a website that is maintained by or on behalf of the company, and identifies the company in question: s 353(1), (2). Access to the information on the website, and the ability to obtain a hard copy of the information from the website, must not be conditional on the payment of a fee or otherwise restricted (s 353(3)); and the information: (1) must be made available as soon as reasonably practicable (s 353(4)(a)); and (2) must be kept available throughout the period of two years beginning with the date on which it is first made available on a website in accordance with s 353 (s 353(4)(b)). A failure to make information available on a website throughout the period specified in s 353(4)(b) is disregarded if the information is made available on the website for part of that period, and if the failure is wholly attributable to circumstances that it would not be reasonable to have expected the company to prevent or avoid: s 353(5).

29 Companies Act 2006 s 346(3)(a). For these purposes a partnership is to be regarded as 'succeeding' to the practice of another partnership only if the members of the successor partnership are substantially the same as those of the former partnership; and a partnership or other person is to be regarded as succeeding to the practice of a partnership only if it or he succeeds to the whole or substantially the whole of the business of the former partnership: s 346(4).

30 Companies Act 2006 s 346(3)(b). Where the partnership ceases and the appointment is not treated under s 346(3) as extending to any partnership or other person, the appointment may with the consent of the company be treated as extending to a partnership, or other person, who succeeds to the business of the former partnership or such part of it as is agreed by the company is to be treated as comprising the appointment: s 346(5). As to the meaning of 'company' under the Companies Acts see PARA 24; and as to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16. The Secretary of State may by regulations limit the types of company to which some or all of the provisions of Pt 13 Ch 5 (ss 341-354) apply, or extend some or all of the provisions of Pt 13 Ch 5 to additional types of company: see s 354; and PARA 656 note 18.

659. Rights of independent assessor.

Where an independent assessor has been appointed to report on a poll¹, he is entitled to attend both the meeting at which the poll may be taken², and any subsequent proceedings in connection with the poll³. He is also entitled to be provided by the company with a copy of the notice of the meeting⁴, and any other communication provided by the company in connection with the meeting to persons who have a right to vote on the matter to which the poll relates⁵. The rights so conferred⁶ are only to be exercised to the extent that the independent assessor considers necessary for the preparation of his report⁷.

The independent assessor is entitled to access to the company's records⁸ relating to any poll on which he is to report⁹, and relating to the meeting at which the poll or polls may be, or were, taken¹⁰.

The independent assessor may require anyone who at any material time was: (1) a director or secretary of the company¹¹; (2) an employee of the company¹²; (3) a person holding or accountable for any of the company's records¹³; (4) a member of the company¹⁴; or (5) an agent of the company¹⁵, to provide him with information or explanations for the purpose of preparing his report¹⁶. A statement made by a person in response to such a requirement¹⁷ may not be used in evidence against him in criminal proceedings except proceedings for an offence¹⁸ relating to the provision of such information¹⁹; and a person is not so required²⁰ to disclose information in respect of which a claim to legal professional privilege²¹ could be maintained in legal proceedings²². However, a person who fails to comply with such a requirement to disclose information²³ without delay commits an offence unless it was not reasonably practicable for him to provide the required information or explanation²⁴; and a person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale²⁵. A person who knowingly or recklessly makes to an independent assessor a statement (oral or written) that both conveys (or purports to convey) any information or explanations which the independent assessor either requires²⁶ or is entitled so to require²⁷, and is misleading, false or deceptive in a material particular²⁸, commits an offence²⁹; and a person who is guilty of such an offence is liable (on conviction on indictment) to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or a fine (or both)³⁰ and (on summary conviction) to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 12 months³¹ or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum³² (or both)³³.

Content and publication of independent report on poll.

660. Content and publication of independent report on poll.

The report of the independent assessor¹ on a poll taken, or to be taken, at a general meeting of a quoted company² must state his opinion whether³:

- 1049 (1) the procedures adopted in connection with the poll or polls were adequate⁴;
- 1050 (2) the votes cast⁵ (including proxy votes⁶) were fairly and accurately recorded and counted⁷;
- 1051 (3) the validity of members' appointments of proxies was fairly assessed⁸;
- 1052 (4) the notice of the meeting complied with the statutory requirements⁹ relating to the right to appoint a proxy¹⁰;
- 1053 (5) the statutory requirements¹¹ relating to company-sponsored invitations to appoint a proxy were complied with in relation to the meeting¹².

The report must give his reasons for the opinions stated¹³; and, if he is unable to form an opinion on any of those matters, the report must record that fact and state the reasons for it¹⁴. The report also must state the name of the independent assessor¹⁵.

Representation of corporations at meetings.

F. CORPORATE REPRESENTATION AT MEETINGS

661. Representation of corporations at meetings.

If a corporation¹, whether or not a company within the meaning of the Companies Act 2006², is a member of a company³, it may by resolution of its directors⁴ or other governing body⁵, authorise a person or persons to act as its representative or representatives at any meeting of the company⁶.

A person authorised by a corporation is entitled to exercise (on behalf of the corporation) the same powers as the corporation could exercise if it were an individual member of the company⁷; but, where a corporation authorises more than one person, this is subject to the following provisos⁸:

- 1054 (1) on a vote on a resolution on a show of hands at a meeting of the company⁹, each authorised person has the same voting rights as the corporation would be entitled to¹⁰;
- 1055 (2) where head (1) above does not apply¹¹, and more than one authorised person purport to exercise a power¹² in respect of the same shares¹³: (a) if they purport to exercise the power in the same way as each other, the power is treated as exercised in that way¹⁴; (b) if they do not purport to exercise the power in the same way as each other, the power is treated as not exercised¹⁵.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(ii) Meetings of the Company/G. PROXIES/662. Appointment of proxy to exercise rights at a meeting.

G. PROXIES

662. Appointment of proxy to exercise rights at a meeting.

There is no common law right on the part of a member of a company to vote by proxy¹.

However, statute provides that a member of a company² is entitled to appoint another person as his proxy to exercise all or any of his rights to attend and to speak and vote at a meeting of the company³. In the case of a company having a share capital⁴, a member may appoint more than one proxy in relation to a meeting, provided that each proxy is appointed to exercise the rights attached to a different share⁵ or shares held by him, or (as the case may be) to a different £10, or multiple of £10, of stock⁶ held by him⁷.

In every notice calling a meeting of a company⁸ there must appear, with reasonable prominence, a statement informing the member of his rights⁹ to appoint proxies¹⁰, and any more extensive rights conferred by the company's articles¹¹ to appoint more than one proxy¹². Failure to comply with this requirement as to notice¹³ does not affect the validity of the meeting or of anything done at the meeting¹⁴; but if this provision¹⁵ is not complied with as respects any meeting, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default¹⁶; and a person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale¹⁷.

A proxy must vote in accordance with any instructions given by the member by whom the proxy is appointed¹⁸. A vote by a proxy holder 'for self and proxies' is good for all the votes he represents¹⁹. The appointment of a proxy to vote on a matter at a meeting of a company authorises the proxy to demand, or join in demanding, a poll on that matter²⁰; and a proxy may be elected to be the chairman of a general meeting by a resolution of the company passed at the meeting²¹.

The form of proxy is generally given in the articles of association²². When attestation is required, a proxy holder cannot be the attesting witness to his own proxy form²³. Where the article setting out the form of proxy is merely directory, the fact that the form refers to a particular meeting does not prevent the execution of a general form of proxy²⁴. The proxy form, when signed by the member, may have blanks for the date of execution and the day of the meeting provided that some person duly authorised by him fills in the blanks²⁵.

Where the articles require that the instrument of proxy of a corporation must be under its common seal, this requirement only applies to such corporations as have a common seal²⁶.

In cases where the articles may and do provide that a proxy must be a member, it is no objection to a proxy duly lodged that an unqualified person is named, provided that the qualification exists when the proxy is lodged and continues when it is used; and that the proxy cannot be objected to if he is sufficiently described for all business purposes, as for instance a member for the time being of a specified firm²⁷.

20 See the Companies Act 2006 s 329; and PARA 655. 21 See the Companies Act 2006 s 328; and PARA 648. As to company resolutions and the general requirements that apply to them see PARA 617.

22 Under the model articles of association that have been prescribed for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, proxies may only validly be appointed by a notice in writing (a 'proxy notice') which:

210 (1) states the name and address of the member (or shareholder, as the case may be) appointing the proxy (Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, Sch 1 art 45(1)(a); Sch 2 art 31(1)(a); Sch 3 art 38(1)(a));

211 (2) identifies the person appointed to be that member's (or shareholder's) proxy and the general meeting in relation to which that person is appointed (Sch 1 art 45(1)(b); Sch 2 art 31(1)(b); Sch 3 art 38(1)(b));

212 (3) is signed by or on behalf of the member (or shareholder) appointing the proxy, or is authenticated in such manner as the directors may determine (Sch 1 art 45(1)(c); Sch 2 art 31(1)(c); Sch 3 art 38(1)(c)); and

213 (4) is delivered to the company in accordance with the articles and any instructions contained in the notice of the general meeting to which they relate (Sch 1 art 45(1)(d); Sch 2 art 31(1)(d); Sch 3 art 38(1)(d)).

The company may require proxy notices to be delivered in a particular form, and may specify different forms for different purposes: Sch 1 art 45(2); Sch 2 art 31(2); Sch 3 art 38(2). Proxy notices may specify how the proxy appointed under them is to vote (or that the proxy is to abstain from voting) on one or more resolutions: Sch 1 art 45(3); Sch 2 art 31(3); Sch 3 art 38(3). Unless a proxy notice indicates otherwise, it must be treated as allowing the person appointed under it as a proxy discretion as to how to vote on any ancillary or procedural resolutions put to the meeting, and appointing that person as a proxy in relation to any adjournment of the general meeting to which it relates as well as the meeting itself: Sch 1 art 45(4); Sch 2 art 31(4); Sch 3 art 38(4). As to adjourned meetings of the company see PARA 650. As to the procedure that applies to voting on poll see PARA 656. As to a company's directors see PARA 478 et seq; and as to a company's shareholders see PARA 321 et seq.

Any notice of a general meeting of a public company must specify the address or addresses ('proxy notification address') at which the company or its agents will receive proxy notices relating to that meeting, or any adjournment of it, delivered in hard copy or electronic form: Sch 3 art 39(1). A proxy notice must be delivered to a proxy notification address not less than 48 hours before the general meeting or adjourned meeting to which it relates (Sch 3 art 39(3)); but (in the case of a poll taken more than 48 hours after it is demanded) the notice must be delivered to a proxy notification address not less than 24 hours before the time appointed for the taking of the poll (Sch 3 art 39(4)) and (in the case of a poll not taken during the meeting but taken not more than 48 hours after it was demanded) the proxy notice must be delivered either in accordance with Sch 3 art 39(3), or at the meeting at which the poll was demanded to the chairman, secretary or any director (Sch 3 art 39(5)). As to documents or information sent or supplied in hard copy form see PARA 678; and as to documents or information sent or supplied in electronic form see PARA 679.

A person who is entitled to attend, speak or vote (either on a show of hands or on a poll) at a general meeting remains so entitled in respect of that meeting or any adjournment of it, even though a valid proxy notice has been delivered to the company by or on behalf of that person: Sch 1 art 46(1); Sch 2 art 32(1); Sch 3 art 39(2). An appointment under a proxy notice may be revoked by delivering to the company (or, in the case of a public company, to a proxy notification address) a notice in writing given by or on behalf of the person by whom or on whose behalf the proxy notice was given: Sch 1 art 46(2); Sch 2 art 32(2); Sch 3 art 39(6). A notice revoking a proxy appointment only takes effect if it is delivered before the start of the meeting or adjourned meeting to which it relates (Sch 1 art 46(3); Sch 2 art 32(3); Sch 3 art 39(7)); or (in the case of a poll not taken on the same day as the meeting of a public company or such an adjourned meeting) before the time appointed for taking the poll to which it relates (see Sch 3 art 39(7)). If a proxy notice is not signed or executed by the person appointing the proxy, it must be accompanied by written evidence of the authority of the person who executed it to execute it on the appointor's behalf: Sch 1 art 46(4); Sch 2 art 32(4); Sch 3 art 39(8).

Where a company is still using the prescribed legacy articles of association, the form of notice that is required for the appointment of a proxy is set out in the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 60 (amended by SI 2000/3373; SI 2007/2541). Where it is desired to afford members an opportunity of instructing the proxy how he is to act, the form of notice that is required for the appointment of a proxy is set out in the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 61 (amended by SI 2000/3373; SI 2007/2541). In either case, the form may be as near thereto as circumstances allow or may be in any other form which is usual or which the directors may approve: see the Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A arts 60, 61. The appointment of a proxy and any authority under which it is executed or a copy of such authority certified notarially or in some other way approved by the directors may (Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 62 (amended by SI 2000/3373)):

- 214 (a) in the case of an instrument in writing, be deposited at the office or at such other place within the United Kingdom as is specified in the notice convening the meeting or in any instrument of proxy sent out by the company in relation to the meeting not less than 48 hours before the time for holding the meeting or adjourned meeting at which the person named in the instrument proposes to vote (Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 62(a) (amended by SI 2000/3373)); or
- 215 (b) in the case of an appointment contained in an electronic communication, where an address has been specified for the purpose of receiving electronic communications, in the notice convening the meeting, or in any instrument of proxy sent out by the company in relation to the meeting, or in any invitation contained in an electronic communication to appoint a proxy issued by the company in relation to the meeting, be received at such address not less than 48 hours before the time for holding the meeting or adjourned meeting at which the person named in the appointment proposes to vote (Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 62(aa) (added by SI 2000/3373));
- 216 (c) in the case of a poll taken more than 48 hours after it is demanded, be deposited or received as aforesaid after the poll has been demanded and not less than 24 hours before the time appointed for the taking of the poll (Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 62(b) (amended by SI 2000/3373)); or
- 217 (d) where the poll is not taken forthwith but is taken not more than 48 hours after it was demanded, be delivered at the meeting at which the poll was demanded to the chairman or to the secretary or to any director (Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 62(c)); and an appointment of proxy which is not deposited, delivered or received in a manner so permitted is invalid (Table A art 62 (as so amended)). See also Re Waxed Papers Ltd [1937] 2 All ER 481, CA (where the form of proxy enabled the holder to vote as and when he chose); Oliver v Dalglish [1963] 3 All ER 330, [1963] 1 WLR 1274 (proxy not invalidated by misprint or palpable mistake on face of instrument of proxy). A vote given or poll demanded by proxy or by the duly authorised representative of a corporation is valid notwithstanding the previous determination of the authority of the person voting or demanding a poll unless notice of the determination was received by the company at the office or at such other place at which the instrument of proxy was duly deposited (or, where the appointment of the proxy was contained in an electronic communication, at the address at which such appointment was duly received) before the commencement of the meeting or adjourned meeting at which the vote is given or the poll demanded or (in the case of a poll taken otherwise than on the same day as the meeting or adjourned meeting) the time appointed for taking the poll: Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 63 (amended by SI 2000/3373). For these purposes, 'address', in relation to electronic communications, includes any number or address used for the purposes of such communications: Companies (Tables A to F) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/805, Schedule, Table A art 62 (as so amended).

663. Company-sponsored invitations to appoint proxies.

The directors of a company¹ may pay out of the company's funds the cost of printing and stamping proxy papers² and of posting them to the members³, if, in so doing, they are acting in good faith in the interests of the company⁴. If, for the purposes of a meeting⁵, there are issued at the company's expense⁶ invitations to members⁷ to appoint as proxy a specified person or a number of specified persons, the invitations must be issued to all members entitled to vote at the meeting⁸. If this requirement⁹ is contravened as respects a meeting, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default¹⁰; and a person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale¹¹. However, there is no such contravention¹² if there is issued to a member at his request a form of appointment naming the proxy, or a list of persons willing to act as proxy¹³, and if the form or list is available on request to all members entitled to vote at the meeting¹⁴.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(ii) Meetings of the Company/G. PROXIES/664. Notice required of appointment of proxy etc.

664. Notice required of appointment of proxy etc.

It is usual to provide in a company's articles of association¹ that a proxy² should be lodged a specified time before the meeting³ or adjourned meeting⁴ at which it is proposed to be used⁵. Any provision of a company's articles⁶ (including, for these purposes, the articles of a traded company⁷) is void in so far as it would have the effect of requiring either the appointment of a proxy⁸, or any document necessary to show the validity of (or otherwise relating to) the appointment of a proxy, to be received by the company or another person earlier than the following time⁹:

- 1056 (1) in the case of a meeting or adjourned meeting¹⁰, 48 hours before the time for holding the meeting or adjourned meeting¹¹;
- 1057 (2) in the case of a poll taken more than 48 hours after it was demanded¹², 24 hours before the time appointed for the taking of the poll¹³;
- 1058 (3) in the case of a poll taken not more than 48 hours after it was demanded, the time at which it was demanded¹⁴.

In the case of a traded company, the appointment of a person as proxy for a member must be notified to the company in writing¹⁵; and, where such an appointment is made, the company may require reasonable evidence of:

- 1059 (a) the identity of the member and of the proxy¹⁶;
- 1060 (b) the member's instructions (if any) as to how the proxy is to vote¹⁷; and
- 1061 (c) where the proxy is appointed by a person acting on behalf of the member, authority of that person to make the appointment¹⁸.

However, the company may not require to be provided with anything else relating to the appointment¹⁹.

Where a company has given an electronic address²⁰ either in an instrument of proxy sent out by the company in relation to the meeting²¹, or in an invitation to appoint a proxy issued by the company in relation to the meeting²², it is deemed to have agreed that any document or information relating to proxies²³ for that meeting may be sent by electronic means to that address (subject to any conditions or limitations specified in the notice)²⁴.

A traded company must provide an electronic address²⁵ for the receipt of any document or information relating to proxies for a general meeting²⁶; and the company must provide the address either by giving it when sending out an instrument of proxy for the purposes of the meeting or issuing an invitation to appoint a proxy for those purposes²⁷, or by ensuring that it is made available, throughout the period beginning with the first date on which notice of the meeting is given and ending with the conclusion of the meeting, on the same website on which the other information that such a company is required²⁸ to publish is made available²⁹. The company is deemed to have agreed that any document or information relating to proxies for the meeting may be sent by electronic means to the address provided (subject to any limitations specified by the company when providing the address)³⁰.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(ii) Meetings of the Company/G. PROXIES/665. Notice required of termination of proxy's authority.

665. Notice required of termination of proxy's authority.

The termination of the authority of a person to act as proxy¹ does not affect²:

- 1062 (1) whether he counts in deciding whether there is a quorum at a meeting³;
- 1063 (2) the validity of anything he does as chairman of a meeting⁴; or
- 1064 (3) the validity of a poll demanded by him at a meeting⁵, unless the company receives notice of the termination before the commencement of the meeting⁶.

The termination of the authority of a person to act as proxy does not affect the validity of a vote given by that person⁷ unless the company receives notice of the termination⁸:

- 1065 (a) before the commencement of the meeting or adjourned meeting⁹ at which the vote is given¹⁰; or
- 1066 (b) in the case of a poll taken more than 48 hours after it is demanded, before the time appointed for taking the poll¹¹.

If the company's articles require or permit members to give notice of termination to a person other than the company¹², the references above to the company receiving notice have effect as if they were or (as the case may be) included a reference to that person¹³.

The provisions given in heads (1) and (2) and in heads (a) and (b) above have effect subject to any provision of the company's articles which has the effect of requiring notice of termination to be received by the company or another person at a time earlier than that so specified¹⁴; but this is subject to the proviso¹⁵ that any provision of the company's articles is void in so far as it would have the effect of requiring notice of termination to be received by the company or another person earlier than the following time¹⁶:

- 1067 (i) in the case of a meeting or adjourned meeting, 48 hours before the time for holding the meeting or adjourned meeting¹⁷;
- 1068 (ii) in the case of a poll taken more than 48 hours after it was demanded, 24 hours before the time appointed for the taking of the poll¹⁸;
- 1069 (iii) in the case of a poll taken not more than 48 hours after it was demanded, the time at which it was demanded¹⁹.

Ordinarily a proxy may be revoked at any time before it is used, and, if two are given, the later one revokes the earlier one. Under a provision of the company's articles of association that provides for notice of revocation²⁰, where the meeting is adjourned for the purpose solely of taking a poll²¹, notice of the revocation must be given before the original meeting²². A shareholder²³ by attending in person at such an adjourned meeting and voting thereat revokes a proxy given by him²⁴.

666. Decisions reached without meetings.

The members of a company, as a body, may in general act only by means of passing resolutions¹. Where each and every shareholder assents to or sanctions an act which is intra vires the company, that will constitute an effective act by the company². It is not necessary for the members to meet together or to give their assent simultaneously³. Assent can be oral, in writing or, it seems, by conduct⁴, but actual assent must be sought⁵. Further, where it is shown that all members who have a right to attend and vote at a general meeting of the company assent to any matter which a general meeting of the company could carry into effect, that assent is as binding as a resolution in general meeting would be⁶. A similar position obtains in the case of resolutions by classes of members⁷. However, the principle cannot be used to override statutory provisions whose purpose extends beyond the protection of the class which has purported to waive the provision⁸.

COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(iv) Decisions by the Sole Member of Limited Company/667. Recording of decisions by the sole member.

(iv) Decisions by the Sole Member of Limited Company

667. Recording of decisions by the sole member.

Where a company¹ limited by shares² or by guarantee³ has only one member⁴, and he takes any decision that may be taken by the company in general meeting⁵, and has effect as if agreed by the company in general meeting⁶, he must, unless that decision is taken by way of a written resolution⁷, provide the company with details of that decision⁸.

If the sole member fails to comply with this requirement⁹, he commits an offence¹⁰; and a person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 2 on the standard scale¹¹. Failure by the sole member to comply with this requirement¹² does not affect the validity of any such decision¹³.

The provisions of Pt 13 Ch 6 (ss 355-359) (see also PARAS 668-669) apply (with necessary modifications) in relation to resolutions and meetings of holders of a class of shares and (in the case of a company without a share capital) a class of members, as they apply in relation to resolutions of members generally and to general meetings: s 359. As to the meaning of 'company having a share capital' see PARA 1042. As to the meaning of 'class of share' see PARA 1057. Records of Resolutions and Meetings etc/668. Records of resolutions, meetings of the company etc.

(v) Company's Records of Resolutions and Meetings etc

668. Records of resolutions, meetings of the company etc.

Every company¹ must keep records comprising:

- 1070 (1) copies of all resolutions² of members³ passed otherwise than at general meetings⁴;
- 1071 (2) minutes of all proceedings of general meetings⁵; and
- 1072 (3) details provided to the company⁶ of decisions made by a sole member⁷.

The records must be kept for at least ten years from the date of the resolution, meeting or decision (as appropriate)⁸.

If a company fails to comply with this requirement⁹, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default¹⁰; and a person guilty of such an offence is liable (on summary conviction) to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale¹¹ and (for continued contravention) a daily default fine¹² not exceeding one-tenth of level 3 on the standard scale¹³.

Where such records are retained in this way¹⁴:

- 1073 (a) the record of a resolution passed otherwise than at a general meeting, if purporting to be signed by a director¹⁵ of the company or by the company secretary¹⁶, is evidence of the passing of the resolution¹⁷;
- 1074 (b) where there is a record of a written resolution of a private company¹⁸, the requirements of the Companies Act 2006 with respect to the passing of the resolution¹⁹ are deemed to be complied with unless the contrary is proved²⁰;
- 1075 (c) the minutes of proceedings of a general meeting, if purporting to be signed by the chairman of that meeting²¹ or by the chairman of the next general meeting, are evidence²² of the proceedings at the meeting²³;
- 1076 (d) where there is a record of proceedings of a general meeting of a company, then, until the contrary is proved, the meeting is deemed duly held and convened²⁴, all proceedings at the meeting are deemed to have duly taken place²⁵, and all appointments at the meeting are deemed valid²⁶.

A listed company must notify a Regulatory Information Service (RIS)²⁷ as soon as possible after a general meeting of all resolutions passed by the company other than resolutions concerning ordinary business passed at an annual general meeting²⁸.

669. Inspection of records of resolutions and meetings.

The records that must be kept by a company¹, comprising:

- 1077 (1) copies of all resolutions² of members³ passed otherwise than at general meetings⁴;
- 1078 (2) minutes of all proceedings of general meetings⁵; and
- 1079 (3) details provided to the company⁶ of decisions made by a sole member⁷, and relating to the previous ten years⁸, must be kept available for inspection either at the company's registered office⁹, or at a place specified in regulations¹⁰. The company must give notice to the registrar of companies¹¹ of the place at which the records are kept available for inspection¹², and of any change in that place¹³, unless they have at all times been kept at the company's registered office¹⁴. The records must be open to the inspection of any member of the company without charge¹⁵; and any member may require a copy of any of the records on payment of such fee as may be prescribed¹⁶.

If default is made for 14 days in complying with the giving of notice to the registrar of the place where inspection may be made¹⁷, or if an inspection¹⁸ is refused, or if a copy duly requested¹⁹ is not sent, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default²⁰. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(15) RESOLUTIONS AND MEETINGS OF THE COMPANY/(v) Company's Records of Resolutions and Meetings etc/670. Privilege for published reports of meetings.

670. Privilege for published reports of meetings.

For the purposes of defamation proceedings¹, the publication² of a fair and accurate report of proceedings at a general meeting of a United Kingdom public company³ is subject to a statutory defence of qualified privilege⁴ unless the publication is shown to be made with malice⁵.

However, in defamation proceedings in respect of the publication of such a report or statement, the statutory defence of qualified privilege is not available if the claimant shows that the defendant⁶: (1) was requested by him to publish in a suitable manner⁷ a reasonable letter or statement by way of explanation or contradiction⁸; and (2) refused or neglected to do so⁹. Nor is the statutory defence available to protect the publication of matter the publication of which is prohibited by law¹⁰.

1 As to defamation proceedings generally see LIBEL AND SLANDER.

2 For these purposes, 'publication' and 'publish', in relation to a statement, have the meaning they have for the purposes of the law of defamation generally (see LIBEL AND SLANDER vol 28 (Reissue) PARA 60 et seq); see the Defamation Act 1996 s 17(1); and PARA 299.

3 For these purposes, 'United Kingdom public company' means: (1) a public company within the meaning of the Companies Act 2006 s 4(2) (see PARA 102); or (2) a body corporate incorporated by or registered under any other statutory provision, or by royal charter, or formed in pursuance of letters patent (see PARAS 1-2); see the Defamation Act 1996 Sch 1 para 13(4); and PARA 299. As to meetings of the company generally see PARA 629 et seq.

4 It is under the Defamation Act 1996 s 15 (see LIBEL AND SLANDER vol 28 (Reissue) PARAS 131-132). The protection afforded by s 15 (see LIBEL AND SLANDER vol 28 (Reissue) PARAS 131-132) does not apply to the publication to the public, or a section of the public, of matter which is not of public concern and the publication of which is not for the public benefit: see s 15(3); and PARA 299. Publication of a report of charges against a company's officers is not for the public benefit: Ponsford v Financial Times Ltd and Hart (1900) 16 TLR 248 (although whether this authority still stands today is debatable). See further LIBEL AND SLANDER vol 28 (Reissue) PARAS 294, 297. As to the defence of qualified privilege generally see LIBEL AND SLANDER vol 28 (Reissue) PARA 109 et seq.

5 See the Defamation Act 1996 s 15(1), Sch 1 para 13(1); and PARA 299. As to malice sufficient to defeat a defence raised in defamation proceedings see LIBEL AND SLANDER vol 28 (Reissue) PARA 149 et seq.

6 See the Defamation Act 1996 s 15(2); and PARA 299.

7 For this purpose, 'in a suitable manner' means in the same manner as the publication complained of or in a manner that is adequate and reasonable in the circumstances: see the Defamation Act 1996 s 15(2); and PARA 299. The terms of the letter or statement which the claimant requires must be sent by him to the defendant as part of the request: see Khan v Ahmed [1957] 2 QB 149, [1957] 2 All ER 385 (a decision on an earlier similar provision under the Defamation Act 1952).

8 See the Defamation Act 1996 s 15(2)(a); and PARA 299.

9 See the Defamation Act 1996 s 15(2)(b); and PARA 299.

10 See the Defamation Act 1996 s 15(4)(a); and PARA 299.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(16) COMPANY COMMUNICATIONS AND RECORDS/(i) Service of Documents; Notice/671. Service of documents on a company.

(16) COMPANY COMMUNICATIONS AND RECORDS

(i) Service of Documents; Notice

671. Service of documents on a company.

A document may be served on a company registered under the Companies Act 2006¹ by leaving it at, or sending it by post² to, the company's registered office³. Further provision as to service and other matters is made in the company communications provisions⁴.

A document may be served on an overseas company⁵ whose particulars are registered under the Companies Act 2006⁶:

1080 (1) by leaving it at, or sending it by post to, the registered address⁷ of any person resident in the United Kingdom⁸ who is authorised to accept service of documents on the company's behalf⁹; or 1081 (2) if there is no such person, or if any such person refuses service or service cannot for any other reason be effected, by leaving it at or sending by post to any place of business of the company in the United Kingdom¹⁰.

Where a company registered in Scotland or Northern Ireland carries on business in England and Wales¹¹, the process of any court in England and Wales may be served on the company by leaving it at, or sending it by post to, the company's principal place of business in England and Wales, addressed to the manager or other head officer¹² in England and Wales of the company¹³. Where process is served on a company under this provision, the person issuing out the process must send a copy of it by post to the company's registered office¹⁴.

1 As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24. As to the companies formed and registered under the Companies Act 2006 see PARA 102 et seq.

2 Where an Act authorises or requires any document to be served by post (whether the expression 'serve' or the expression 'give' or 'send' or any other expression is used) then, unless the contrary intention appears, the service is deemed to be effected by properly addressing, pre-paying and posting a letter containing the document and, unless the contrary is proved, to have been effected at the time at which the letter would be delivered in the ordinary course of post: see the Interpretation Act 1978 s 7; and STATUTES vol 44(1) (Reissue) PARA 1388. As to proof of posting and proof of delivery see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARAS 945, 946. A requirement to send a document by post is not confined to sending it by the Post Office postal system: see the Postal Services Act 2000 s 127(4), Sch 8 Pt 1; and POST OFFICE.

3 Companies Act 2006 s 1139(1). As to the company's registered office see PARA 129. Non-compliance with the statutory provision does not, however, necessarily constitute such an irregularity in the proceedings as to render them a nullity and entitle the defendant to have them set aside: Singh v Atombrook Ltd [1989] 1 All ER 385, [1989] 1 WLR 810, CA (no reason why 'may' should be read as 'must'), distinguishing Vignes v Stephen Smith & Co Ltd (1909) 53 Sol Jo 716 (in so far as this decision was to be taken as an authority that this provision requires service only at the registered office).

In civil proceedings a company may be served by any method permitted under the CPR Pt 6, or by any of the methods of service permitted under the Companies Act 2006: see CPR 6.3.2 (Pt 6 substituted by SI 2008/2178; CPR 6.3.2 amended by SI 2009/2092). As to service of documents in civil proceedings generally see CPR Pt 6; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 138 et seq.

Subject to a company's articles of association, anything sent or supplied by or to the company under the articles may be sent or supplied in any way in which the Companies Act 2006 provides for documents or information which are authorised or required by any provision of that Act to be sent or supplied by or to the company: see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1 Pt 5 (art 48); reg 3, Sch 2 Pt 4 (art 34); reg 4, Sch 3 Pt 5 (art 79); and PARA 528. As to a company's articles of association generally see PARA 228 et seq.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 1139(5). As to the company communications provisions see s 1143; and PARA 677.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(16) COMPANY COMMUNICATIONS AND RECORDS/(i) Service of Documents; Notice/672. Service of documents on directors, secretaries and others.

672. Service of documents on directors, secretaries and others.

The following provisions apply to:

- 1082 (1) a director¹ or secretary² of a company³;
- 1083 (2) in the case of an overseas company⁴ whose particulars are registered under the Companies Act 2006⁵, a person holding any such position as may be specified⁶ for these purposes⁷;
- 1084 (3) a person appointed in relation to a company as:
 - 41 71. (a) a judicial factor (in Scotland)⁸;
 - 72. (b) an interim manager appointed⁹ under the Charities Act 1993¹⁰; or
 - 73. (c) a manager appointed¹¹ under the Companies (Audit, Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004¹².
- 42

These provisions apply whatever the purpose of the document in question¹³. They are not restricted to service for purposes arising out of or in connection with the appointment or position mentioned in heads (1) to (3) above or in connection with the company concerned¹⁴.

A document may be served on such a person as is mentioned above by leaving it at, or sending it by post¹⁵ to, the person's registered address¹⁶. If notice of a change of that address is given to the registrar¹⁷, a person may validly serve a document at the address previously registered until the end of the period of 14 days beginning with the date on which notice of the change is registered¹⁸. However, service may not be effected by virtue of these provisions at an address:

- 1085 (i) if notice has been registered of the termination of the appointment in relation to which the address was registered and the address is not a registered address of the person concerned in relation to any other appointment¹⁹;
- 1086 (ii) in the case of a person holding any such position as is mentioned in head (2) above, if the overseas company has ceased to have any connection with the United Kingdom²⁰ by virtue of which it is required²¹ to register particulars²².

Nothing in these provisions must be read as affecting any enactment²³ or rule of law under which permission is required for service out of the jurisdiction²⁴.

Further provision as to service and other matters is made in the company communications provisions²⁵.

673. Requirements relating to service addresses.

Any obligation under the Companies Acts¹ to give a person's² address is, unless otherwise expressly provided, to give a service address for that person³. In the Companies Acts a 'service address', in relation to a person, means an address at which documents may be effectively served on that person⁴. The Secretary of State⁵ may by regulations specify conditions with which a service address must comply⁶; and the regulations so made require that the service address be a place where: (1) the service of documents can be effected by physical delivery⁷; and (2) the delivery of documents is capable of being recorded by the obtaining of an acknowledgement of delivery⁸.

(ii) Company Records

674. Form of company records.

'Company records' means¹:

- 1087 (1) any register, index, accounting records, agreement, memorandum, minutes or other document required by the Companies Acts² to be kept by a company³; and
- 1088 (2) any register kept by a company of its debenture holders⁴.

Company records may be kept in hard copy or electronic form⁵, and may be arranged in such manner as the directors⁶ of the company think fit⁷, provided the information in question is adequately recorded for future reference⁸. Where the records are kept in electronic form, they must be capable of being reproduced in hard copy form⁹.

If a company fails to comply with these provisions¹⁰, an offence is committed by every officer¹¹ of the company who is in default¹².

1 lie in the Companies Act 2006 Pt 37 (ss 1134-1157). The provisions of ss 1134, 1135 and s 1138 (see PARA 674-675) apply to any register, record or index required to be kept by any person in accordance with the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, as they apply to any register, record or index required by the Companies Acts to be kept by a company, and to an Operator and its officers as they apply to a company and its officers: reg 23(4), Sch 4 para 18 (amended by SI 2009/1889). As to the meaning of 'operator' see PARA 421 note 1. As to the meaning of 'officer' (in relation to an operator or a participating issuer) see PARA 421 note 4. As to the entries to be made generally in registers regarding uncertificated securities see PARA 340.

5 Companies Act 2006 s 1135(1)(a).

6 As to the meaning of 'director' see PARA 478.

7 Companies Act 2006 s 1135(1)(b).

Under the Companies Act 1985, all proceedings at meetings of a company's directors and (where applicable) managers had to be entered in books; and a collection of loose leaves fastened together between two covers but readily detachable was held not to be a 'book' for that purpose: see Hearts of Oak Assurance Co Ltd v James Flower & Sons [1936] Ch 76; and see now the Companies Act 2006 s 248 (cited in PARA 530), s 355 (cited in PARA 631).

8 Companies Act 2006 s 1135(1). Any provision of an instrument made by a company before 12 February 1979 that requires a register of holders of the company's debentures to be kept in hard copy form is to be read as requiring it to be kept in hard copy or electronic form: s 1135(5). As to the location of company records see PARA 676.

10 lie with the Companies Act 2006 s 1135: see the text to notes 5-10.

11 As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 607.

12 Companies Act 2006 s 1135(3). A person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale and, for continued contravention, a daily default fine not exceeding one-tenth of level 3 on the standard scale: s 1135(4). As to the standard scale and as to the meaning of 'daily default fine' see PARA 1622.

675. Duty to take precautions against falsification.

Where company records¹ are kept otherwise than in bound books, adequate precautions must be taken to guard against falsification², and to facilitate the discovery of falsification³.

If a company⁴ fails to comply with this provision, an offence is committed by every officer⁵ of the company who is in default⁶.

1 As to the meaning of 'company records' see PARA 674. The Companies Act 2006 s 1138 does not apply to the documents required to be kept under s 228 (copy of director's service contract or memorandum of its terms: see PARA 525) (s 1138(4)(a)), or s 237 (qualifying indemnity provision: see PARA 598) (s 1138(4)(b)). The provisions of s 1138 apply to any register, record or index required to be kept by any person in accordance with the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, as they apply to any register, record or index required by the Companies Acts to be kept by a company, and to an operator and its officers as they apply to a company and its officers: reg 23(4), Sch 4 para 18 (amended by SI 2009/1889). An officer of a participating issuer is in default in complying with, or in contravention of, the Companies Act 2006 s 1138, as applied by the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, Sch 4 para 18, if, and only if, he knowingly and wilfully authorised or permitted the default or contravention: Sch 4 para 20 (amended by SI 2009/1889). An officer of an operator is in default in complying with, or in contravention of, the Companies Act 2006 s 1138, as applied by the Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3755, Sch 4 para 18, if, and only if, he knowingly and wilfully authorised or permitted the default or contravention: Sch 4 para 21 (amended by SI 2009/1889). As to the meaning of 'operator' see PARA 421 note 1. As to the meaning of 'officer' (in relation to an operator or a participating issuer) see PARA 421 note 4. As to the entries to be made generally in registers regarding uncertificated securities see PARA 340.

A person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale and, for continued contravention, a daily default fine not exceeding one-tenth of level 3 on the standard scale: s 1138(3). See note 1. As to the standard scale and as to the meaning of 'daily default fine' see PARA 1622.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(16) COMPANY COMMUNICATIONS AND RECORDS/(ii) Company Records/676. Inspection of company records.

676. Inspection of company records.

The Secretary of State¹ may make provision by regulations² specifying places other than a company's registered office³ at which company records⁴ required to be kept available for inspection under a relevant provision⁵ may be so kept in compliance with that provision⁶. The regulations:

1089 (1) may specify a place by reference to the company's principal place of business, the part of the United Kingdom in which the company is registered⁷, the place at which the company keeps any other records available for inspection or in any other way⁸;

1090 (2) may provide that a company does not comply with a relevant provision by keeping company records available for inspection at a place specified in the regulations unless conditions specified in the regulations are met⁹;

- 1091 (3) need not specify a place in relation to each relevant provision¹⁰;
 1092 (4) may specify more than one place in relation to a relevant provision¹¹.

A requirement under a relevant provision to keep company records available for inspection is not complied with by keeping them available for inspection at a place specified in the regulations unless all the company's records subject to the requirement are kept there¹².

The Secretary of State may also make provision by regulations¹³ as to the obligations of a company that is required by any provision of the Companies Acts to keep available for inspection any company records¹⁴, or to provide copies of any company records¹⁵. A company that fails to comply with the regulations is treated as having refused inspection or, as the case may be, having failed to provide a copy¹⁶. The regulations may;

- 1093 (a) make provision as to the time, duration and manner of inspection, including the circumstances in which and extent to which the copying of information is permitted in the course of inspection¹⁷; and 1094 (b) define what may be required of the company as regards the nature, extent and manner of extracting or presenting any information for the purposes of inspection or the provision of copies¹⁸.
 1095 (c) where there is power to charge a fee, make provision as to the amount of the fee and the basis of its calculation¹⁹.

Nothing in any provision of the Companies Act 2006 or in the regulations is to be read as preventing a company from affording more extensive facilities than are required by the regulations²⁰, or where a fee may be charged, from charging a lesser fee than that prescribed²¹ or none at all²².

A private company²³ must make its company records available for inspection by a person on a day which has been specified by that person (the 'specified day') provided that the specified day is a working day²⁴ and that person gives the company the required notice of the specified day²⁵. A public company²⁶ must make its company records available for inspection for at least two hours between 9 am and 5 pm on each working day²⁷.

A company is not required for the purposes of inspection of a company record to present information in that record in a different order, structure or form from that set out in that record²⁸. A company must permit a person to make a copy of the whole or any part of a company record in the course of inspection at the location at which the record is made available for inspection²⁹ and any time during which the record is made available for inspection³⁰, but a company is not required to assist that person in making his copy of that record³¹. Where a company is requested to provide a copy of a company record in hard copy form³², the company must provide that copy in hard copy form³³. Where a person requests a company to provide a copy of a company record in electronic form³⁴, the company must provide that copy in such electronic form as the company decides³⁵; but where a company keeps a company record in hard copy form only, it is not required to provide a copy of that record in electronic form³⁶. A company is not required to present information in a copy of a company record that it provides in a different order, structure or form from that set out in the record³⁷.

The right of inspection ceases when the company is being wound up³⁸. The inspection may be made, under proper restrictions, by an agent of the member desiring inspection³⁹.

The specified place in respect of the relevant provisions listed in s 1136(2) is a place that is situated in the part of the United Kingdom in which the company is registered, must be the same place for all the relevant provisions, and must have been notified to the registrar as being the company's alternative inspection location: Companies (Company Records) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3006, reg 3. A. INTRODUCTION

677. Application of the provisions.

The 'company communications provisions'¹ have effect for the purposes of any provision of the Companies Acts² that authorises or requires documents or information to be sent or supplied by or to a company³. The company communications provisions have effect subject to any requirements imposed, or contrary provision made, by or under any enactment⁴. In particular, in their application in relation to documents or information to be sent or supplied to the registrar⁵, they have effect subject to the provisions of the Companies Act 2006⁶ relating to the registrar⁷.

1 In the Companies Act 2006 ss 1144-1148, Schs 4, 5: see PARAS 678-687.

2 As to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

3 Companies Act 2006 s 1143(1). As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24.

Subject to a company's articles of association, anything sent or supplied by or to the company under the articles may be sent or supplied in any way in which the Companies Act 2006 provides for documents or information which are authorised or required by any provision of that Act to be sent or supplied by or to the company: see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1 Pt 5 (art 48); reg 3, Sch 2 Pt 4 (art 34); reg 4, Sch 3 Pt 5 (art 79); and PARA 528. As to a company's articles of association generally see PARA 228 et seq.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 1143(2). For these purposes, provision is not to be regarded as contrary to the company communications provisions by reason only of the fact that it expressly authorises a document or information to be sent or supplied in hard copy form, in electronic form or by means of a website: s 1143(4). As to documents or information sent or supplied in hard copy form see PARA 678; and as to documents or information sent or supplied in electronic form see PARA 679. As to the meaning of 'enactment' see PARA 17 note 2.

5 As to the meaning of 'registrar' see PARA 131 note 2.

B. DOCUMENTS ETC SENT TO COMPANY

678. Sending or supplying documents or information to a company in hard copy form.

Documents¹ or information (other than documents or information that are to be sent or supplied by one company² to another³) to be sent or supplied to a company in hard copy form⁴ must be sent or supplied in accordance with the following provisions⁵.

A document or information is validly sent or supplied to a company if it is sent or supplied in hard copy form in the following manner⁶. A document or information in hard copy form may be sent or supplied by hand or by post⁷:

1096 (1) to an address⁸ specified by the company for the purpose⁹;

1097 (2) to the company's registered office¹⁰;

1098 (3) to an address to which any provision of the Companies Acts authorises the document or information to be sent or supplied¹¹.

A document or information sent or supplied by a person to a company in hard copy form is sufficiently authenticated if it is signed by the person sending or supplying it¹². However, where a document or information is sent or supplied by one person on behalf of another, nothing in this provision¹³ affects any provision of the company's articles¹⁴ under which the company may require reasonable evidence of the authority of the former to act on behalf of the latter¹⁵.

1 In the company communications provisions, 'document' includes summons, notice, order or other legal process and registers: Companies Act 2006 s 1148(1). As to the meaning of the 'company communications provisions' and as to their application see PARA 677 et seq.

2 In the company communications provisions, 'company' includes any body corporate: Companies Act 2006 s 1148(1). As to the meaning of 'body corporate' see PARA 1 note 5. As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 678 note 2.

3 See the Companies Act 2006 s 1144(3), Sch 4 para 1(2). References in the company communications provisions to documents or information being sent or supplied by or to a company include references to documents or information being sent or supplied by or to the directors of a company acting on behalf of the company: s 1148(3). As to the meaning of 'director' see PARA 478.

4 The following provisions apply for the purposes of the Companies Acts: Companies Act 2006 s 1168(1). A document or information is sent or supplied in hard copy form if it is sent or supplied in a paper copy or similar form capable of being read; and references to 'hard copy' have a corresponding meaning: s 1168(2). For the purposes of s 1168, a document or information can be read only if: (1) it can be read with the naked eye; or (2) to the extent that it consists of images (for example photographs, pictures, maps, plans or drawings), it can be seen with the naked eye: s 1168(6). These provisions apply whether the provision of the Companies Acts in question uses the words 'sent' or 'supplied' or uses other words (such as 'deliver', 'provide', 'produce' or, in the case of a notice, 'give') to refer to the sending or supplying of a document or information: Companies Act 2006 s 1168(7). As to the sending or supply of documents or information in electronic form see PARA 679. As to the sending or supply of documents or information otherwise than in hard copy form or electronic form see PARA 680.

5 See the Companies Act 2006 s 1144(1), Sch 4 para 1(1). As to provision made in the model forms of articles of association as to means of communication to be used see the Companies (Model Articles) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3229, reg 2, Sch 1 Pt 5 art 48 (for a private company limited by shares), reg 3, Sch 2 Pt 4 art 34 (for a private company limited by guarantee), and reg 4, Sch 3 Pt 5 art 79 (for a public company). As to the model forms of articles of association see PARA 228 et seq.

6 See the Companies Act 2006 Sch 4 para 2.

7 See the Companies Act 2006 Sch 4 para 3(1). For these purposes, a person sends a document or information by post if he posts a prepaid envelope containing the document or information: Sch 4 para 3(2). As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 311 note 2. As to the service of documents by post generally see PARA 671 note 2.

8 In the company communications provisions, 'address' includes a number or address used for the purposes of sending or receiving documents or information by electronic means: Companies Act 2006 s 1148(1). As to documents or information sent or supplied by electronic means see PARA 679 note 3.

9 Companies Act 2006 Sch 4 para 4(1).

10 Companies Act 2006 Sch 4 para 4(2). As to a company's registered office see PARA 129.

11 Companies Act 2006 Sch 4 para 4(3). References in the company communications provisions to provisions of the Companies Acts authorising or requiring a document or information to be sent or supplied include all such provisions, whatever expression is used, and references to documents or information being sent or supplied must be construed accordingly: s 1148(2). As to the meaning of the 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

12 See the Companies Act 2006 s 1146(1), (2).

14 As to the meaning of 'articles' see PARA 228 note 2.

Sending or supplying documents or information to a company in electronic form.

679. Sending or supplying documents or information to a company in electronic form.

Documents¹ or information (other than documents or information that are to be sent or supplied by one company to another²) to be sent or supplied to a company in electronic form³ must be sent or supplied in accordance with the following provisions⁴.

A document or information is validly sent or supplied to a company if it is sent or supplied in electronic form as follows⁵. A document or information may only be sent or supplied to a company in electronic form if: (1) the company has agreed (generally or specifically) that the document or information may be sent or supplied in that form (and has not revoked that agreement)⁶; or (2) the company is deemed to have so agreed by a provision in the Companies Acts⁷. Where the document or information is sent or supplied by electronic means⁸, it may only be sent or supplied to an address⁹ specified for the purpose by the company (generally or specifically)¹⁰, or deemed by a provision in the Companies Acts to have been so specified¹¹. Where the document or information is sent or supplied in electronic form by hand or by post, it must be sent or supplied to an address to which it could be validly sent if it were in hard copy form¹².

Where a document or information is sent or supplied by a person¹³ to a company¹⁴ in electronic form, it is sufficiently authenticated: (a) if the identity of the sender is confirmed in a manner specified by the company¹⁵; or (b) where no such manner has been specified by the company, if the communication contains or is accompanied by a statement of the identity of the sender and the company has no reason to doubt the truth of that statement¹⁶. Where a document or information is sent or supplied by one person on behalf of another, nothing in this provision¹⁷ affects any provision of the company's articles¹⁸ under which the company may require reasonable evidence of the authority of the former to act on behalf of the latter¹⁹.

1 As to the meaning of 'document' see PARA 678 note 1.

2 See the Companies Act 2006 s 1144(3), Sch 4 para 1(2). As to the meaning of references to documents or information being sent or supplied by or to a company see PARA 678 note 4. As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 678 note 2. The Companies Act 2006 ss 1144, 1146, Sch 4 form part of the company communications provisions; as to the meaning of the 'company communications provisions' and as to their application see PARA 677.

3 The following provisions apply for the purposes of the Companies Acts: Companies Act 2006 s 1168(1). A document or information is sent or supplied in electronic form if it is sent or supplied: (1) by electronic means (for example, by e-mail or fax); or (2) by any other means while in an electronic form (for example, sending a disk by post); and references to 'electronic copy' have a corresponding meaning: s 1168(3). A document or information is sent or supplied by electronic means if it is: (a) sent initially and received at its destination by means of electronic equipment for the processing (which expression includes digital compression) or storage of data; and (b) entirely transmitted, conveyed and received by wire, by radio, by optical means or by other electromagnetic means; and references to 'electronic means' have a corresponding meaning: s 1168(4). A document or information authorised or required to be sent or supplied in electronic form must be sent or supplied in a form, and by a means, that the sender or supplier reasonably considers will enable the recipient to read it, and to retain a copy of it: s 1168(5). For the purposes of s 1168, a document or information can be read only if: (i) it can be read with the naked eye; or (ii) to the extent that it consists of images (for example photographs, pictures, maps, plans or drawings), it can be seen with the naked eye: s 1168(6). These provisions apply whether the provision of the Companies Acts in question uses the words 'sent' or 'supplied' or uses other words (such as 'deliver', 'provide', 'produce' or, in the case of a notice, 'give') to refer to the sending or supplying of a document or information: Companies Act 2006 s 1168(7). As to the sending or supply of documents or information in hard copy form see PARA 678. As to the sending or supply of documents or information otherwise than in hard copy form or electronic form see PARA 680.

C. DOCUMENTS ETC SENT BY COMPANY

681. Documents or information sent or supplied by a company in hard copy form.

Documents¹ or information to be sent or supplied by a company² in hard copy form³ must be sent or supplied in accordance with the following provisions⁴.

A document or information is validly sent or supplied by a company if it is sent or supplied in hard copy form as follows⁵. A document or information in hard copy form must be handed to the intended recipient⁶, or sent or supplied by hand or by post⁷:

- 1099 (1) to an address specified for the purpose by the intended recipient⁸;
- 1100 (2) to a company at its registered office⁹;
- 1101 (3) to a person¹⁰ in his capacity as a member of the company¹¹ at his address as shown in the company's register of members¹²;
- 1102 (4) to a person in his capacity as a director¹³ of the company at his address as shown in the company's register of directors¹⁴;
- 1103 (5) to an address to which any provision of the Companies Acts¹⁵ authorises the document or information to be sent or supplied¹⁶.

Where the company is unable to obtain any such address, the document or information may be sent or supplied to the intended recipient's last address known to the company¹⁷.

Where a member of a company or a holder of a company's debentures¹⁸ has received a document or information from the company otherwise than in hard copy form, he is entitled to require the company to send him a version of the document or information in hard copy form¹⁹. The company must send the document or information in hard copy form within 21 days of receipt of the request from the member or debenture holder²⁰, and may not make a charge for providing the document or information in that form²¹. If a company fails to comply with this provision²², an offence is committed by the company and every officer²³ of it who is in default²⁴.

COMPANIES ACTS/(16) COMPANY COMMUNICATIONS AND RECORDS/(iii) The Company Communications Provisions/C. DOCUMENTS ETC SENT BY COMPANY/682. Documents or information sent or supplied by a company in electronic form.

682. Documents or information sent or supplied by a company in electronic form.

Documents¹ or information to be sent or supplied by a company² in electronic form³ must be sent or supplied in accordance with the following provisions⁴.

A document or information is validly sent or supplied by a company if it is sent in electronic form as follows⁵. A document or information may only be sent or supplied by a company in electronic form:

- 1104 (1) to a person⁶ who has agreed (generally or specifically) that the document or information may be sent or supplied in that form (and has not revoked that agreement)⁷; or
- 1105 (2) to a company that is deemed to have so agreed by a provision in the Companies Acts⁸.

Where the document or information is sent or supplied by electronic means, it may only be sent or supplied to an address⁹ specified for the purpose by the intended recipient (generally or specifically)¹⁰, or, where the intended recipient is a company, deemed by a provision of the Companies Acts to have been so specified¹¹. Where the document or information is sent or supplied in electronic form by hand or by post¹², it must be handed to the intended recipient¹³ or sent or supplied to an address to which it could be validly sent if it were in hard copy form¹⁴.

Where a member of a company or a holder of a company's debentures has received a document or information from the company otherwise than in hard copy form, he is entitled to require the company to send him a version of the document or information in hard copy form¹⁵.

1 As to the meaning of 'document' see PARA 678 note 1.

2 The provisions referred to in the Companies Act 2006 s 1144(2) apply in relation to documents or information that are to be sent or supplied by one company to another: s 1144(3). Documents or information communicated by a company via website.

683. Documents or information communicated by a company via website.

Documents¹ or information to be sent or supplied by a company² on a website³ must be sent or supplied in accordance with the following provisions⁴.

A document or information is validly sent or supplied by a company if it is made available on a website as follows⁵. A document or information may only be sent or supplied by the company to a person⁶ by being made available on a website if the person has agreed (generally or specifically) that the document or information may be sent or supplied to him in that manner⁷, or is taken⁸ to have so agreed⁹, and has not revoked that agreement¹⁰.

A document or information authorised or required to be sent or supplied by means of a website must be made available in a form, and by a means, that the company reasonably considers will enable the recipient to read it¹¹, and to retain a copy of it¹². The company must notify the intended recipient of the presence of the document or information on the website¹³, the address of the website¹⁴, the place on the website where it may be accessed¹⁵, and how to access the document or information¹⁶. The document or information is taken to be sent on the date on which such notification is sent¹⁷ or, if later, the date on which the document or information first appears on the website after that notification is sent¹⁸.

The company must make the document or information available on the website throughout the period specified by any applicable provision of the Companies Acts¹⁹ or, if no such period is specified, the period of 28 days beginning with the date on which the notification²⁰ is sent to the person in question²¹. For these purposes, a failure to make a document or information available on a website throughout this period²² must be disregarded if it is made available on the website for part of that period²³, and the failure to make it available throughout that period is wholly attributable to circumstances that it would not be reasonable to have expected the company to prevent or avoid²⁴.

Where a member of a company or a holder of a company's debentures has received a document or information from the company otherwise than in hard copy form, he is entitled to require the company to send him a version of the document or information in hard copy form²⁵.

7 Companies Act 2006 Sch 5 para 9(a). Where an agreement between a person and a company has been entered into for the purposes of the Companies Act 1985 s 238(4B) (repealed) (sending or supply of copies of accounts and reports by means of website), s 251(2B) (repealed) (sending of summary financial statement by means of website), or s 369(4B) or s 379A(2C) (both repealed) (notice of meeting given by means of website), any such agreement that was in force immediately before 20 January 2007 has effect on and after that date, in relation to the matters to which it relates, as an agreement under the Companies Act 2006 Sch 5 para 9(a): Companies Act 2006 (Commencement No 1, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2006, SI 2006/3428, art 8(1), Sch 5 para 5(1), (2).

8 Ie under the Companies Act 2006 Sch 5 para 10 (Sch 5 para 9(b)(i)) or para 11 (Sch 5 para 9(b)(ii)). In the case of a document or information to be sent or supplied to a person:

218 (1) as a member of the company (Sch 5 para 10(1)(a)); or

219 (2) as a person nominated by a member in accordance with the company's articles to enjoy or exercise all or any specified rights of the member in relation to the company (Sch 5 para 10(1)(b)); or

220 (3) as a person nominated by a member under s 146 (see PARA 375) to enjoy information rights (Sch 5 para 10(1)(c)), to the extent that the members of the company have resolved that the company may send or supply documents or information to members by making them available on a website (Sch 5 para 10(2)(a)), or the company's articles contain provision to that effect (Sch 5 para 10(2)(b)), a person in relation to whom the following conditions are met is taken to have agreed that the company may send or supply documents or information to him in that manner (Sch 5 para 10(2)). The conditions are that: (a) the person has been asked individually by the company to agree that the company may send or supply documents or information generally, or the documents or information in question, to him by means of a website (Sch 5 para 10(3)(a)); and (b) the company has not received a response within the period of 28 days beginning with the date on which the company's request was sent (Sch 5 para 10(3)(b)). A person is not taken to have so agreed if the company's request did not state clearly what the effect of a failure to respond would be (Sch 5 para 10(4)(a)), or was sent less than 12 months after a previous request made to him for these purposes in respect of the same or a similar class of documents or information (Sch 5 para 10(4)(b)). Part 3 Ch 3 (ss 29-30) (resolutions affecting a company's constitution: see PARA 231) applies to a resolution under Sch 5 para 10: Sch 5 para 10(5). In the case of a document or information to be sent or supplied to a person as holder of a company's debentures (Sch 5 para 11(1)), to the extent that the relevant debenture holders have duly resolved that the company may send or supply documents or information to them by making them available on a website (Sch 5 para 11(2)(a)), or the instrument creating the debenture in question contains provision to that effect (Sch 5 para 11(2)(b)), a debenture holder in relation to whom the following conditions are met is taken to have agreed that the company may send or supply documents or information to him in that manner (Sch 5 para 11(2)). The conditions are that: (i) the debenture holder has been asked individually by the company to agree that the company may send or supply documents or information generally, or the documents or information in question, to him by means of a website (Sch 5 para 11(3)(a)); and (ii) the company has not received a response within the period of 28 days beginning with the date on which the company's request was sent (Sch 5 para 11(3)(b)). A person is not taken to have so agreed if the company's request did not state clearly what the effect of a failure to respond would be (Sch 5 para 11(4)(a)), or was sent less than 12 months after a previous request made to him for these purposes in respect of the same or a similar class of documents or information (Sch 5 para 11(4)(b)). For the purposes of Sch 5 para 11: (A) the relevant debenture holders are the holders of debentures of the company ranking pari passu for all purposes with the intended recipient (Sch 5 para 11(5)(a)); and (B) a resolution of the relevant debenture holders is duly passed if they agree in accordance with the provisions of the instruments creating the debentures (Sch 5 para 11(5)(b)). Communications Provisions/C. DOCUMENTS ETC SENT BY COMPANY/687. Deemed delivery of documents and information.

687. Deemed delivery of documents and information.

The following provisions apply in relation to documents¹ and information sent or supplied by a company². These provisions have effect subject to:

- 1110 (1) in their application to documents or information sent or supplied by a company to its members³, any contrary provision of the company's articles⁴;
- 1111 (2) in their application to documents or information sent or supplied by a company to its debenture⁵ holders, any contrary provision in the instrument constituting the debentures⁶;
- 1112 (3) in their application to documents or information sent or supplied by a company to a person⁷ otherwise than in his capacity as a member or debenture holder, any contrary provision in an agreement between the company and that person⁸.

Where the document or information is sent by post⁹ (whether in hard copy or electronic form¹⁰) to an address¹¹ in the United Kingdom¹², and the company is able to show that it was properly addressed, prepaid and posted¹³, it is deemed to have been received by the intended recipient 48 hours after it was posted¹⁴. Where the document or information is sent or supplied by electronic means¹⁵, and the company is able to show that it was properly addressed¹⁶, it is deemed to have been received by the intended recipient 48 hours after it was sent¹⁷. Where the document or information is sent or supplied by means of a website, it is deemed to have been received by the intended recipient when the material was first made available on the website¹⁸, or, if later, when the recipient received (or is deemed to have received) notice of the fact that the material was available on the website¹⁹.

In calculating a period of hours for the purposes of these provisions, no account must be taken of any part of a day that is not a working day²⁰.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(17) CONTROL OF POLITICAL DONATIONS AND EXPENDITURE MADE BY COMPANY/688. Donations and expenditure to which the statutory restrictions apply.

(17) CONTROL OF POLITICAL DONATIONS AND EXPENDITURE MADE BY COMPANY

688. Donations and expenditure to which the statutory restrictions apply.

Part 14 of the Companies Act 2006¹ has effect for controlling: (1) political donations² made by companies³ to political parties, to other political organisations and to independent election candidates; and (2) political expenditure⁴ incurred by companies⁵.

Part 14 applies to a political party if: (a) it is registered under Part II of the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000⁶; or (b) it carries on, or proposes to carry on, activities for the purposes of or in connection with the participation of the party in any election or elections to public office held in a member state other than the United Kingdom⁷.

Part 14 applies to an organisation⁸ (a 'political organisation') if it carries on, or proposes to carry on, activities that are capable of being reasonably regarded as intended: (i) to affect public support for a political party to which, or an independent election candidate to whom, Part 14 applies; or (ii) to influence voters in relation to any national or regional referendum held under the law of the United Kingdom or another member state⁹.

Part 14 applies to an independent election candidate at any election to public office held in the United Kingdom or another member state¹⁰.

Any reference in Part 14¹¹ to a political party, political organisation or independent election candidate, or to political expenditure, is to a party, organisation, independent candidate or expenditure to which Part 14 applies¹².

¹ ie the Companies Act 2006 Pt 14 (ss 362-379): see also PARAS 689-692.

The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 14 apply to unregistered companies by virtue of the Unregistered Companies Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2436, reg 3, Sch 1 para 9: see PARA 1666. As to the meaning of 'unregistered company' see PARA 1665.

2 The following provisions have effect for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 14 (ss 362-378) as regards the meaning of 'political donation': s 364(1). In relation to a political party or other political organisation (1) 'political donation' means anything that in accordance with the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000 ss 50-52 (see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS) (a) constitutes a donation for the purposes of Pt IV Ch I (ss 50-53) (control of donations to registered parties) (see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS); or (b) would constitute such a donation reading references in those provisions to a registered party as references to any political party or other political organisation; and (2) s 53 (see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS) applies, in the same way, for the purpose of determining the value of a donation: Companies Act 2006 s 364(2).

In relation to an independent election candidate (i) 'political donation' means anything that, in accordance with the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000 ss 50-52, would constitute a donation for the purposes of Pt 4 Ch 1 reading references in those sections to a registered party as references to the independent election candidate; and (ii) s 53 applies, in the same way, for the purpose of determining the value of a donation: Companies Act 2006 s 364(3).

For the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 s 364, the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000 ss 50, 53 (definition of 'donation' and value of donations) (see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS) is treated as if the amendments to those provisions made by the Electoral Administration Act 2006 (which remove from the definition of 'donation' loans made otherwise than on commercial terms) had not been made: Companies Act 2006 s 364(4).

3 As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24.

4 In the Companies Act 2006 Pt 14 (ss 362-379) 'political expenditure', in relation to a company, means expenditure incurred by the company on (1) the preparation, publication or dissemination of advertising or other promotional or publicity material (a) of whatever nature; and (b) however published or otherwise disseminated, that, at the time of publication or dissemination, is capable of being reasonably regarded as intended to affect public support for a political party or other political organisation, or an independent election candidate; or (2) activities on the part of the company that are capable of being reasonably regarded as intended (a) to affect public support for a political party or other political organisation, or an independent election candidate; or (b) to influence voters in relation to any national or regional referendum held under the law of a member state: s 365(1). For the purposes of Pt 14 a political donation does not count as political expenditure: s 365(2).

689. Authorisation required for donations or expenditure.

A company¹ must not: (1) make a political donation² to a political party or other political organisation, or to an independent election candidate³; or (2) incur any political expenditure⁴, unless the donation or expenditure is authorised in accordance with the provisions below⁵, or is otherwise exempt from the requirement for authorisation⁶.

The donation or expenditure must be authorised: (a) in the case of a company that is not a subsidiary⁷ of another company, by a resolution of the members of the company; (b) in the case of a company that is a subsidiary of another company by: (i) a resolution of the members of the company; and (ii) a resolution of the members of any relevant holding company⁸. No resolution is required on the part of a company that is a wholly-owned subsidiary of a UK-registered company⁹.

The resolution or resolutions required¹⁰ must comply with the provision below on the form of the authorising resolution¹¹, and must be passed before the donation is made or the expenditure incurred¹².

A resolution conferring authorisation for the purposes of Part 14 of the Companies Act 2006¹³ may relate to the company passing the resolution, one or more subsidiaries of that company, or the company passing the resolution and one or more subsidiaries of that company¹⁴. A resolution may be expressed to relate to all companies that are subsidiaries of the company passing the resolution either at the time the resolution is passed, or at any time during the period for which the resolution has effect, without identifying them individually¹⁵.

The resolution may authorise donations or expenditure under one or more of the following heads: (A) donations to political parties or independent election candidates; (B) donations to political organisations other than political parties; (C) political expenditure¹⁶. The resolution must specify a head or heads, in the case of a resolution that is expressed to relate to all companies that are subsidiaries of the company passing the resolution, for all of the companies to which it relates taken together; and in the case of any other resolution, for each company to which it relates¹⁷. The resolution must be expressed in general terms conforming with heads (A) to (C) above and must not purport to authorise particular donations or expenditure¹⁸.

For each of the specified heads the resolution must authorise donations or, as the case may be, expenditure up to a specified amount in the period for which the resolution has effect¹⁹. The resolution must specify such amounts in the case of a resolution under heads (A) and (B) above, for all of the companies to which it relates taken together; and in the case of any other resolution, for each company to which it relates²⁰.

A resolution conferring authorisation for the purposes of Part 14 has effect for a period of four years beginning with the date on which it is passed unless the directors²¹ determine, or the articles²² require, that it is to have effect for a shorter period beginning with that date²³. The power of the directors to make such a determination²⁴ is subject to any provision of the articles that operates to prevent them from doing so²⁵.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(17) CONTROL OF POLITICAL DONATIONS AND EXPENDITURE MADE BY COMPANY/690. Liability of directors in case of unauthorised donation or expenditure.

690. Liability of directors in case of unauthorised donation or expenditure.

Where a company¹ has made a political donation² or incurred political expenditure³ without the authorisation required by Part 14 of the Companies Act 2006⁴, the directors⁵ in default are jointly and severally liable (1) to make good to the company the amount of the unauthorised donation or expenditure, with interest⁶; and (2) to compensate the company for any loss or damage sustained by it as a result of the unauthorised donation or expenditure having been made⁷.

The directors in default are (a) those who, at the time the unauthorised donation was made or the unauthorised expenditure was incurred, were directors of the company by which the donation was made or the expenditure was incurred; and (b) where that company was a subsidiary of a relevant holding company⁸, and the directors of the relevant holding company failed to take all reasonable steps to prevent the donation being made or the expenditure being incurred, the directors of the relevant holding company⁹.

Where only part of a donation or expenditure was unauthorised, the above provision¹⁰ applies only to so much of it as was unauthorised¹¹.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(17) CONTROL OF POLITICAL DONATIONS AND EXPENDITURE MADE BY COMPANY/691. Enforcement of directors' liabilities in respect of unauthorised political donations and political expenditure by shareholder action.

691. Enforcement of directors' liabilities in respect of unauthorised political donations and political expenditure by shareholder action.

Any liability¹ of a director² is enforceable (1) in the case of a liability of a director of a company³ to that company, by proceedings brought⁴ in the name of the company by an authorised group⁵ of its members; (2) in the case of a liability of a director of a holding company⁶ to a subsidiary⁷, by proceedings brought⁸ in the name of the subsidiary by an authorised group of members of the subsidiary, or an authorised group of members of the holding company⁹. This is in addition to the right of the company to which the liability is owed to bring proceedings itself to enforce the liability¹⁰.

A group of members may not bring proceedings under the above provision¹¹ in the name of a company unless (a) the group has given written notice to the company stating the cause of action and a summary of the facts on which the proceedings are to be based; the names and addresses of the members comprising the group; and the grounds on which it is alleged that those members constitute an authorised group¹²; and (b) not less than 28 days have elapsed between the date of the giving of the notice to the company and the bringing of the proceedings¹³.

Where such a notice is given to a company, any director of the company may apply to the court within the period of 28 days beginning with the date of the giving of the notice for an order directing that the proposed proceedings not be brought, on one or more of the following grounds (i) that the unauthorised amount has been made good to the company; (ii) that proceedings to enforce the liability have been brought, and are being pursued with due diligence, by the company¹⁴; (iii) that the members proposing to bring these proceedings¹⁵ do not constitute an authorised group¹⁶.

The members by whom proceedings are brought under the above provision¹⁷ owe to the company in whose name they are brought the same duties in relation to the proceedings as would be owed by the company's directors if the proceedings were being brought by the company; but proceedings to enforce any such duty may be brought by the company only with the permission of the court¹⁸. Such proceedings¹⁹ may not be discontinued or settled by the group except with the permission of the court, which may be given on such terms as the court thinks fit²⁰.

In relation to proceedings brought under the above provision²¹ in the name of a company (the 'company') by an authorised group (the 'group')²², the group may apply to the court for an order directing the company to indemnify the group in respect of costs incurred or to be incurred by the group in connection with the proceedings, and the court may make such an order on such terms as it thinks fit²³. The group is not entitled to be paid any such costs out of the assets of the company except by virtue of such an order²⁴.

If no such order has been made with respect to the proceedings, then (A) if the company is awarded costs in connection with the proceedings, or it is agreed that costs incurred by the company in connection with the proceedings should be paid by any defendant, the costs are paid to the group; and (B) if any defendant is awarded costs in connection with the proceedings, or it is agreed that any defendant should be paid costs incurred by him in connection with the proceedings, the costs are paid by the group²⁵.

Where proceedings have been brought under the above provision²⁶ in the name of a company by an authorised group, the group is entitled to require the company to provide it with all information relating to the subject matter of the proceedings that is in the company's possession or under its control or which is reasonably obtainable by it²⁷. If the company, having been required by the group to do so, refuses to provide the group with all or any of that information, the court may, on an application made by the group, make an order directing the company, and any of its officers or employees specified in the application, to provide the group with the information in question in such form and by such means as the court may direct²⁸.

692. Exemptions.

A donation to a trade union¹, other than a contribution to the union's political fund², is not a political donation³ for the purposes of Part 14 of the Companies Act 2006⁴. A trade union is not a political organisation⁵ for the purposes of the provision on political expenditure⁶.

A subscription⁷ paid to a trade association⁸ for membership of the association is not a political donation for the purposes of Part 14⁹.

An all-party parliamentary group¹⁰ is not a political organisation for the purposes of Part 14¹¹.

Authorisation under Part 14¹² is not needed for political expenditure that is exempt by virtue of an order¹³ of the Secretary of State¹⁴. An order may confer an exemption in relation to (1) companies¹⁵ of any description or category specified in the order; or (2) expenditure of any description or category so specified (whether framed by reference to goods, services or other matters in respect of which such expenditure is incurred or otherwise), or both¹⁶. If or to the extent that expenditure is exempt from the requirement of authorisation under Part 14 by virtue of such an order¹⁷, it is disregarded in determining what donations are authorised by any resolution of the company passed for the purposes of Part 14¹⁸.

Authorisation under Part 14 is not needed for a donation except to the extent that the total amount of (a) that donation¹⁹; and (b) other relevant donations²⁰ made in the period of 12 months ending with the date on which that donation is made, exceeds £5,000²¹. If or to the extent that a donation is exempt by virtue of this provision²² from the requirement of authorisation under Part 14, it is disregarded in determining what donations are authorised by any resolution passed for the purposes of Part 14²³.

1 'Trade union' has the meaning given by the Trade Union and Labour Relations (Consolidation) Act 1992 s 1 (see EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 846) or the Industrial Relations (Northern Ireland) Order 1992, SI 1992/807 (NI 5), art 3: Companies Act 2006 s 374(3).

The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 ss 374-378 apply to unregistered companies by virtue of the Unregistered Companies Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2436, reg 3, Sch 1 para 9, but with the Companies Act 2006 s 377 as modified thereby: see PARA 1666. As to the meaning of 'unregistered company' see PARA 1665.

2 'Political fund' means the fund from which payments by a trade union in the furtherance of political objects are required to be made by virtue of the Trade Union and Labour Relations (Consolidation) Act 1992 s 82(1)(a) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 935): Companies Act 2006 s 374(3).

12 As to such authorisation see PARA 689.

13 Ie an order under the Companies Act 2006 s 377: see s 377(1).

14 Companies Act 2006 s 377(1). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6. As to the making of orders and regulations under the Companies Act 2006 generally see ss 1288-1292. An order under s 377 is subject to affirmative resolution procedure (ie the order must not be made unless a draft of the statutory instrument containing it has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament): see ss 377(4), 1290. In exercise of the powers conferred by s 377, the Secretary of State has made the Companies (Political Expenditure Exemption) Order 2007, SI 2007/2081. Accordingly, political expenditure is exempt from the need for authorisation under the Companies Act 2006 Pt 14 if it is:

221 (1) political expenditure incurred in respect of the preparation, publication or dissemination of news material, where that material contains matter which would render that preparation, publication or dissemination on the part of the company an activity on the part of the company that is capable of being reasonably regarded as intended: (a) to affect public support for a political party or other political organisation, or an independent election candidate; or (b) to influence voters in relation to any national or regional referendum held under the law of a member State (Companies (Political Expenditure Exemption) Order 2007, SI 2007/2081, arts 2(a), 3(1));

222 (2) incurred by any company whose ordinary course of business includes, or is proposed to include, the publication or dissemination to the public, or any part of the public, of news material, or the preparation of such material for publication or dissemination to the public, or any part of the public (arts 2(b), 4(1)).

For these purposes, 'news material' means material relating to news, public and political affairs, public and political events, or views, opinion or comment on such news, affairs or events: see art 1(2). For the purposes of head (2), it is irrelevant by which means or modes the news material is to be prepared, published or disseminated, and it is irrelevant where the public, or any part of the public, to which such material is published or disseminated is located or the identity or description of the public or any part of it: art 4(2).

(i) In general

A. GENERAL PROVISION MADE FOR COMPANIES AND GROUPS

693. Application of provisions regarding accounts and reports.

Accounts may be prepared under the Companies Act regime or according to international accounting standards (IAS), now known as the International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS)¹. This title deals largely with the Companies Act regime.

The requirements of Part 15 of the Companies Act 2006² as to accounts and reports apply in relation to each financial year of a company³. In certain respects different provisions apply to different kinds of company⁴. The main distinctions for this purpose are: (1) between companies subject to the small companies regime⁵ and companies that are not subject to that regime⁶; and (2) between quoted companies and companies that are not quoted⁷. There are also distinctions between private and public companies⁸.

1 Under European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 1606/2002 (OJ L243, 11.9.2002, p 1) on the application of international accounting standards, the application of IAS to the consolidated accounts of listed companies is mandatory, and the option of applying IAS to other types of company is permitted. See further PARA 22. For the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 15 (ss 380-474), 'international accounting standards' means the international accounting standards, within the meaning of the IAS Regulation, adopted from time to time by the European Commission in accordance with that Regulation; and 'IAS Regulation' means European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 1606/2002 (OJ L243, 11.9.2002, p 1): see the Companies Act 2006 s 474(1).

2 Ie the Companies Act 2006 Pt 15: see PARA 694 et seq.

3 Companies Act 2006 s 380(1). As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24; and as to the special provision that is made in relation to banking and insurance companies and groups, partnerships, limited liability partnerships and investment companies see PARA 701 et seq. As to a company's financial year see PARA 711.

The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 s 380 apply to unregistered companies by virtue of the Unregistered Companies Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2436, reg 3, Sch 1 para 10: see PARA 1666. As to the meaning of 'unregistered company' see PARA 1665.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 380(2). In Pt 15, where provisions do not apply to all kinds of company: (1) provisions applying to companies subject to the small companies regime appear before the provisions applying to other companies; (2) provisions applying to private companies appear before the provisions applying to public companies; and (3) provisions applying to quoted companies appear after the provisions applying to other companies: s 380(4). As to private and public companies see PARA 102. As to quoted and unquoted companies see PARA 77.

5 As to the small companies regime see PARA 694.

6 Companies Act 2006 s 380(3)(a). As to companies that are not subject to the small companies regime see PARA 695.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(18) ACCOUNTS AND REPORTS/ (i) In general/A. GENERAL PROVISION MADE FOR COMPANIES AND GROUPS/694. Small companies and groups.

694. Small companies and groups.

Regulations made under the Companies Act 2006 specify the form and content of the accounts and directors' report of companies subject to the small companies regime¹. The small companies regime applies to a company² for a financial year³ in relation to which the company qualifies as small and is not excluded from the regime⁴.

A company qualifies as small in relation to its first financial year if the qualifying conditions are met in that year⁵. A company qualifies as small in relation to a subsequent financial year: (1) if the qualifying conditions are met in that year and the preceding financial year; (2) if the qualifying conditions are met in that year and the company qualified as small in relation to the preceding financial year; (3) if the qualifying conditions were met in the preceding financial year and the company qualified as small in relation to that year⁶. The qualifying conditions are met by a company in a year in which it satisfies two or more of the following requirements:

- 1113 (a) the turnover is not more than £6.5 million⁷;
- 1114 (b) the balance sheet total is not more than £3.26 million⁸;
- 1115 (c) the number of employees is not more than 50⁹.

A parent company qualifies as a small company in relation to a financial year only if the group headed by it qualifies as a small group¹⁰. A group qualifies as small in relation to the parent company's first financial year if the qualifying conditions are met in that year¹¹. A group qualifies as small in relation to a subsequent financial year of the parent company: (i) if the qualifying conditions are met in that year and the preceding financial year; (ii) if the qualifying conditions are met in that year and the group qualified as small in relation to the preceding financial year; (iii) if the qualifying conditions were met in the preceding financial year and the group qualified as small in relation to that year¹². The qualifying conditions are met by a group in a year in which it satisfies two or more of the following requirements:

- 1116 (A) the aggregate turnover is not more than £6.5 million net or £7.8 million gross¹³;
- 1117 (B) the aggregate balance sheet total is not more than £3.26 million net or £3.9 million gross¹⁴;
- 1118 (C) the aggregate number of employees is not more than 50¹⁵.

The small companies regime does not apply to a company that is, or was at any time within the financial year to which the accounts relate:

- 1119 (aa) a public company¹⁶;
- 1120 (bb) a company that is an authorised insurance company¹⁷, a banking company¹⁸, an e-money issuer¹⁹, a MiFID investment firm²⁰ or a UCITS management company²¹, or a company that carries on insurance market activity²²; or
- 1121 (cc) a member of an ineligible group²³.

1 See the Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409; and PARA 871 et seq. The regulations continue the implementation of EEC Council Directive 78/660 on the annual accounts of certain types of companies (the 'Fourth Directive') (OJ L222, 14.8.1978, p 1) and EEC Council Directive 83/349 on consolidated accounts (the 'Seventh Directive') (OJ L193, 18.7.1983, p 1).

2 As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24; and as to the special provision that is made in relation to banking and insurance companies and groups, partnerships, limited liability partnerships and investment companies see PARA 701 et seq.

3 As to a company's financial year see PARA 711.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 381 (amended by SI 2008/393).

The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 ss 381-384 apply to unregistered companies by virtue of the Unregistered Companies Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2436, reg 3, Sch 1 para 10, but with the modifications to the Companies Act 2006 s 383 as specified thereby: see PARA 1666. As to the meaning of 'unregistered company' see PARA 1665.

5 Companies Act 2006 s 382(1). Section 382 is subject to s 383 (parent companies: see the text and notes 10-15): s 382(7).

6 Companies Act 2006 s 382(2). See note 5.

7 For a period that is a company's financial year but not in fact a year the maximum figures for turnover must be proportionately adjusted: Companies Act 2006 s 382(4). For the purposes of Pt 15 (ss 380-474), 'turnover', in relation to a company, means the amounts derived from the provision of goods and services falling within the company's ordinary activities, after deduction of: (1) trade discounts; (2) value added tax; and (3) any other taxes based on the amounts so derived: s 474(1).

8 The 'balance sheet total' means the aggregate of the amounts shown as assets in the company's balance sheet: Companies Act 2006 s 382(5). As to the meaning of 'balance sheet' see PARA 715.

9 Companies Act 2006 s 382(3) (amended by SI 2008/393). See note 5. The number of employees means the average number of persons employed by the company in the year (Companies Act 2006 s 382(6)), determined as follows:

223 (1) find for each month in the financial year the number of persons employed under contracts of service by the company in that month (whether throughout the month or not) (s 382(6)(a));

224 (2) add together the monthly totals (s 382(6)(b)); and

225 (3) divide by the number of months in the financial year (s 382(6)(c)).

10 Companies Act 2006 s 383(1). As to the meaning of 'parent company' see PARA 26 note 2. For the purposes of Pt 15, 'group' means a parent undertaking and its subsidiary undertakings: s 474(1). As to the meanings of 'parent undertaking' and 'subsidiary undertaking' see PARA 26; and as to the meaning of 'undertaking' see PARA 26 note 2.

13 The aggregate figures are ascertained by aggregating the relevant figures determined in accordance with the Companies Act 2006 s 382 (see the text and notes 5-9) for each member of the group: s 383(5). In relation to the aggregate figures for turnover and balance sheet total:

226 (1) 'net' means after any set-offs and other adjustments made to eliminate group transactions (a) in the case of Companies Act accounts, in accordance with regulations under s 404 (see PARA 784); (b) in the case of IAS accounts, in accordance with international accounting standards (s 383(6)); and 227 (2) 'gross' means without those set-offs and other adjustments (s 383(6)).

A company may satisfy any relevant requirement on the basis of either the net or the gross figure: s 383(6). As to the meanings of 'Companies Act accounts' and 'IAS accounts' see PARAS 717, 776; and as to the meaning of 'international accounting standards' see PARA 693 note 1.

The figures for each subsidiary undertaking must be those included in its individual accounts for the relevant financial year, that is: (i) if its financial year ends with that of the parent company, that financial year; and (ii) if not, its financial year ending last before the end of the financial year of the parent company: s 383(7). If those figures cannot be obtained without disproportionate expense or undue delay, the latest available figures must be taken: s 383(7). As to the meaning of 'individual accounts' see PARA 716.

14 See note 13.

15 Companies Act 2006 s 383(4) (amended by SI 2008/393). See note 13.

16 As to the meaning of 'public company' see PARA 102.

17 As to the meaning of 'authorised insurance company' see PARA 704 note 4.

18 As to the meaning of 'banking company' see PARA 701 note 1.

19 For the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 15, 'e-money issuer' means a person who has permission under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt IV (ss 40-55) to carry on the activity of issuing electronic money within the meaning of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (Regulated Activities) Order 2001, SI 2001/544, art 9B (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARAS 96, 348 et seq): Companies Act 2006 s 474(1).

20 For the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 15, 'MiFID investment firm' means an investment firm (within the meaning of EC Directive 2004/39 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 21 April 2004 on markets in financial instruments, art 4.1.1), other than: (1) a company to which that Directive does not apply by virtue of art 2; (2) a company which is an exempt investment firm within the meaning of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (Markets in Financial Instruments) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/126, reg 4A(3); and (3) any other company which fulfils all the requirements set out in reg 4C(3) (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS): Companies Act 2006 s 474(1) (definition added by SI 2007/2932).

21 For the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 15, 'UCITS management company' has the meaning given by the Glossary forming part of the Handbook made by the Financial Services Authority under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000: Companies Act 2006 s 474(1). As to the Financial Services Authority see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 4 et seq; and as to the Authority's Handbook of Rules and Guidance generally see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 22.

22 As to the meaning of 'insurance market activity' see PARA 701 note 4.

23 Companies Act 2006 s 384(1) (amended by SI 2007/2932). A group is ineligible if any of its members is: (1) a public company; (2) a body corporate (other than a company) whose shares are admitted to trading on a regulated market in an EEA state; (3) a person (other than a small company) who has permission under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt IV (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 348 et seq) to carry on a regulated activity; (4) a small company that is an authorised insurance company, a banking company, an e-money issuer, a MiFID investment firm or a UCITS management company; or (5) a person who carries on insurance market activity: Companies Act 2006 s 384(2) (amended by SI 2007/2932). A company is a small company for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 s 384(2) if it qualified as small in relation to its last financial year ending on or before the end of the financial year to which the accounts relate: s 384(3). As to the meaning of 'body corporate' see PARA 1 note 5. As to the meaning of 'share' see PARA 1042. As to the meaning of 'EEA state' see PARA 29 note 5. As to the meaning of 'regulated market' see PARA 334 note 11. For the purposes of Pt 15, 'regulated activity' has the meaning given in the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 22 (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 84), except that it does not include activities of the kind specified in any of the following provisions of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (Regulated Activities) Order 2001, SI 2001/544, namely: art 25A (arranging regulated mortgage contracts); art 25B (arranging regulated home reversion plans); art 25C (arranging regulated home purchase plans); art 39A (assisting administration and performance of a contract of insurance); art 53A (advising on regulated mortgage contracts); art 53B (advising on regulated home reversion plans); art 53C (advising on regulated home purchase plans); art 21 (dealing as agent), art 25 (arranging deals in investments) or art 53 (advising on investments) where the activity concerns relevant investments that are not contractually based investments (within the meaning of art 3); or art 64 (agreeing to carry on a regulated activity of the kind mentioned above): Companies Act 2006 s 474(1).

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(18) ACCOUNTS AND REPORTS/ (i) In general/A. GENERAL PROVISION MADE FOR COMPANIES AND GROUPS/695. Medium-sized companies and groups.

695. Medium-sized companies and groups.

Regulations made under the Companies Act 2006 specify the form and content of the accounts and reports of large and medium-sized companies¹.

A company² qualifies as medium-sized in relation to its first financial year³ if the qualifying conditions are met in that year⁴. A company qualifies as medium-sized in relation to a subsequent financial year: (1) if the qualifying conditions are met in that year and the preceding financial year; (2) if the qualifying conditions are met in that year and the company qualified as medium-sized in relation to the preceding financial year; (3) if the qualifying conditions were met in the preceding financial year and the company qualified as medium-sized in relation to that year⁵. The qualifying conditions are met by a company in a year in which it satisfies two or more of the following requirements:

- 1122 (a) the turnover is not more than £25.9 million⁶;
- 1123 (b) the balance sheet total is not more than £12.9 million⁷;
- 1124 (c) the number of employees is not more than 250⁸.

A parent company qualifies as a medium-sized company in relation to a financial year only if the group headed by it qualifies as a medium-sized group⁹. A group qualifies as medium-sized in relation to the parent company's first financial year if the qualifying conditions are met in that year¹⁰. A group qualifies as medium-sized in relation to a subsequent financial year of the parent company: (i) if the qualifying conditions are met in that year and the preceding financial year; (ii) if the qualifying conditions are met in that year and the group qualified as medium-sized in relation to the preceding financial year; (iii) if the qualifying conditions were met in the preceding financial year and the group qualified as medium-sized in relation to that year¹¹. The qualifying conditions are met by a group in a year in which it satisfies two or more of the following requirements:

- 1125 (A) the aggregate turnover is not more than £25.9 million net or £31.1 million gross¹²;
- 1126 (B) the aggregate balance sheet total is not more than £12.9 million net or £15.5 million gross¹³;
- 1127 (C) the aggregate number of employees is not more than 250¹⁴.

A company is not entitled to take advantage of any of the provisions of Part 15 of the Companies Act 2006¹⁵ relating to companies qualifying as medium-sized if it was at any time within the financial year in question:

- 1128 (aa) a public company¹⁶;
- 1129 (bb) a company that has permission under Part 4 of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000¹⁷ to carry on a regulated activity¹⁸, or that carries on insurance market activity¹⁹; or
- 1130 (cc) a member of an ineligible group²⁰.

1 See the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410; and PARA 873 et seq. These regulations apply to companies that not subject to the small companies regime, as to which see PARA 694. The regulations continue the implementation of EEC Council Directive 78/660 on the annual accounts of certain types of companies (the 'Fourth Directive') (OJ L222, 14.8.1978, p 1) and EEC Council Directive 83/349 on consolidated accounts (the 'Seventh Directive') (OJ L193, 18.7.1983, p 1). They also continue the implementation of EEC Council Directive 86/635 on the annual accounts and consolidated accounts of banks and other financial institutions (the 'Bank Accounts Directive') (OJ L372, 31.12.1986, p 1), and EEC Council Directive 91/674 on the annual accounts and consolidated accounts of insurance undertakings (the 'Insurance Accounts Directive') (OJ L374, 31.12.1991, p 7). As to banking and insurance see further the Bank Accounts Directive (Miscellaneous Banks) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/567; the Insurance Accounts Directive (Miscellaneous Insurance Undertakings) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/565; and PARA 701 et seq. See also the Partnerships (Accounts) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/569.

2 As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24; and as to the special provision that is made in relation to banking and insurance companies and groups, partnerships, limited liability partnerships and investment companies see PARA 701 et seq.

3 As to a company's financial year see PARA 711.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 465(1). Section 465 is subject to s 466 (parent companies: see the text and notes 9-14): s 465(7).

The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 ss 465-467 apply to unregistered companies by virtue of the Unregistered Companies Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2436, reg 3, Sch 1 para 10: see PARA 1666. As to the meaning of 'unregistered company' see PARA 1665.

12 The aggregate figures are ascertained by aggregating the relevant figures determined in accordance with the Companies Act 2006 s 465 (see the text and notes 2-8) for each member of the group: s 466(5). In relation to the aggregate figures for turnover and balance sheet total:

231 (1) 'net' means after any set-offs and other adjustments made to eliminate group transactions: (a) in the case of Companies Act accounts, in accordance with regulations under s 404 (see PARA 784); (b) in the case of IAS accounts, in accordance with international accounting standards (s 466(6)); and

232 (2) 'gross' means without those set-offs and other adjustments (s 466(6)).

A company may satisfy any relevant requirement on the basis of either the net or the gross figure: s 466(6). As to the meanings of 'Companies Act accounts' and 'IAS accounts' see PARAS 717, 776; and as to the meaning of 'international accounting standards' see PARA 693 note 1.

The figures for each subsidiary undertaking must be those included in its individual accounts for the relevant financial year, that is: (i) if its financial year ends with that of the parent company, that financial year; and (ii) if not, its financial year ending last before the end of the financial year of the parent company: s 466(7). If those figures cannot be obtained without disproportionate expense or undue delay, the latest available figures must be taken: s 466(7). As to the meaning of 'subsidiary undertaking' see PARA 26; and as to the meaning of 'undertaking' see PARA 26 note 2. As to the meaning of 'individual accounts' see PARA 716.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(18) ACCOUNTS AND REPORTS/ (i) In general/A. GENERAL PROVISION MADE FOR COMPANIES AND GROUPS/696. Quoted and unquoted companies.

696. Quoted and unquoted companies.

For the purposes of Part 15 of the Companies Act 2006¹ a company² is a quoted company in relation to a financial year³ if it is a quoted company immediately before the end of the accounting reference period by reference to which that financial year was determined⁴. A 'quoted company' means a company whose equity share capital⁵: (1) has been included in the official list⁶ in accordance with the provisions of Part 6 of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000⁷; (2) is officially listed in an EEA state⁸; or (3) is admitted to dealing on either the New York Stock Exchange or the exchange known as Nasdaq⁹.

An 'unquoted company' means a company that is not a quoted company¹⁰.

1 Ie the Companies Act 2006 Pt 15 (ss 380-474).

2 As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24; and as to the special provision that is made in relation to banking and insurance companies and groups, partnerships, limited liability partnerships and investment companies see PARA 701 et seq.

3 As to a company's financial year see PARA 711.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 385(1). As to a company's accounting reference period see PARA 712.

The Secretary of State may by regulations amend or replace the provisions of s 385(1), (2) so as to limit or extend the application of some or all of the provisions of Pt 15 that are expressed to apply to quoted companies: s 385(4). Regulations under s 385 extending the application of any such provision are subject to affirmative resolution procedure (ie the regulations must not be made unless a draft of the statutory instrument containing them has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament) (ss 385(5), 1290), but any other regulations under s 385 are subject to negative resolution procedure (ie the statutory instrument containing the regulations is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament) (ss 385(6), 1289). At the date at which this volume states the law, no regulations had been made under s 385. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6.

The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 s 385 apply to unregistered companies by virtue of the Unregistered Companies Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2436, reg 3, Sch 1 para 10: see PARA 1666. As to the meaning of 'unregistered company' see PARA 1665.

5 As to the meaning of 'equity share capital' see PARA 1047.

697. Accounting standards.

'Accounting standards' means statements of standard accounting practice issued by such body or bodies as may be prescribed by regulations¹; and references to accounting standards applicable to a company's annual accounts² are to such standards as are, in accordance with their terms, relevant to the company's circumstances and to the accounts³. The prescribed body is the Accounting Standards Board⁴.

1 Companies Act 2006 s 464(1). Such regulations may contain such transitional and other supplementary and incidental provisions as appear to the Secretary of State to be appropriate: s 464(3). As to the regulations that have been made see the Accounting Standards (Prescribed Body) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/651 (and see the text and note 4). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6.

The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 s 464 apply to unregistered companies by virtue of the Unregistered Companies Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2436, reg 3, Sch 1 para 10, but with the modifications as specified thereby: see PARA 1666. As to the meaning of 'unregistered company' see PARA 1665.

2 As to the meaning of 'annual accounts' see PARA 715. As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24; and as to the special provision that is made in relation to banking and insurance companies and groups, partnerships, limited liability partnerships and investment companies see PARA 701 et seq.

COMPANIES ACTS/(18) ACCOUNTS AND REPORTS/ (i) In general/A. GENERAL PROVISION MADE FOR COMPANIES AND GROUPS/698. Supervision of accounts and reports.

698. Supervision of accounts and reports.

The Secretary of State¹ may make an order appointing a body (the 'prescribed body') to exercise the functions of:

- 1131 (1) keeping under review periodic accounts and reports² that are produced by issuers³ of transferable securities⁴ and are required to comply with certain accounting requirements⁵; and
- 1132 (2) informing the Financial Services Authority⁶, if the prescribed body thinks fit, of any conclusions reached by it in relation to any such accounts or report⁷.

A body may be appointed if it is a body corporate or an unincorporated association which appears to the Secretary of State: (a) to have an interest in, and to have satisfactory procedures directed to, monitoring compliance by issuers of transferable securities with the accounting requirements in relation to periodic accounts and reports produced by such issuers; and (b) otherwise to be a fit and proper body to be appointed⁸. However, where the order is to contain certain requirements or provisions⁹, the Secretary of State may not appoint a body unless, in addition, it appears to him that the body would, if appointed, exercise its functions as a prescribed body in accordance with any such requirements or provisions¹⁰.

A body may be appointed either generally or in respect of any particular class or classes of issuers or any particular class or classes of periodic accounts or reports, and different bodies may be appointed in respect of different classes¹¹. Where a body is so appointed, and the Financial Services Authority requests the body to exercise its functions¹² in relation to any particular issuer of transferable securities in relation to whom those functions would not otherwise be exercisable, the body is to exercise those functions in relation to that issuer as well¹³.

If the prescribed body is an unincorporated association, any relevant proceedings¹⁴ may be brought by or against that body in the name of any body corporate whose constitution provides for the establishment of the body¹⁵.

Where an appointment is revoked, the revoking order may make such provision as the Secretary of State thinks fit with respect to pending proceedings¹⁶.

The prescribed body has power to require any document, information or explanations that it may reasonably require for the purposes of its functions¹⁷.

The prescribed body is the Financial Reporting Review Panel¹⁸.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6.

2 'Periodic' accounts and reports means accounts and reports which are required by Part 6 rules to be produced periodically: Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 14(12) (amended by the Companies Act 2006 Sch 15 Pt 2 paras 13, 14; and by SI 2008/948). 'Part 6 rules' has the meaning given by the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 103(1) (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 385); Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 14(12) (amended by the Companies Act 2006 Sch 15 Pt 2 paras 13, 14; and by SI 2005/1433; SI 2008/948).

The Financial Reporting Review Panel is established under the articles of association of the Financial Reporting Council Limited (see PARA 699 note 2).

The Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 extends the supervisory system relating to the accounts of listed companies (administered by the Financial Reporting Review Panel) to a wider class of accounts and reports and to a wider class of issuers.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(18) ACCOUNTS AND REPORTS/ (i) In general/A. GENERAL PROVISION MADE FOR COMPANIES AND GROUPS/699. Grants to bodies concerned with accounting standards etc.

699. Grants to bodies concerned with accounting standards etc.

The Secretary of State¹ may make grants to any body carrying on activities concerned with any of the following matters²:

- 1133 (1) issuing accounting standards³;
- 1134 (2) issuing standards in respect of matters to be contained in reports required to be produced by auditors or company directors⁴;
- 1135 (3) investigating departures from standards within head (1) or head (2) or from the accounting requirements of the Companies Act 2006 or any requirements of directly applicable Community legislation relating to company accounts⁵;
- 1136 (4) taking steps to secure compliance with such standards or requirements⁶;
- 1137 (5) keeping under review periodic accounts and reports that are produced by issuers of listed securities⁷ and are required to comply with any accounting requirements imposed by listing rules⁸;
- 1138 (6) establishing, maintaining or carrying out certain arrangements⁹;
- 1139 (7) exercising certain functions¹⁰ of the Secretary of State¹¹;
- 1140 (8) carrying out investigations into public interest cases¹² arising in connection with the performance of accountancy functions¹³ by members of professional accountancy bodies¹⁴;
- 1141 (9) holding disciplinary hearings relating to members of such bodies following the conclusion of such investigations¹⁵;
- 1142 (10) deciding whether (and, if so, what) disciplinary action should be taken against members of such bodies to whom such hearings related¹⁶;
- 1143 (11) supervising the exercise by such bodies of regulatory functions¹⁷ in relation to their members¹⁸;
- 1144 (12) exercising functions of the Independent Supervisor¹⁹;
- 1145 (13) establishing, maintaining or carrying out certain arrangements²⁰;
- 1146 (14) issuing standards to be applied in actuarial work²¹;
- 1147 (15) issuing standards in respect of matters to be contained in reports or other communications required to be produced or made by actuaries or in accordance with standards within head (14)²²;
- 1148 (16) investigating departures from standards within head (14) or head (15)²³;
- 1149 (17) taking steps to secure compliance with standards within head (14) or head (15)²⁴;
- 1150 (18) carrying out investigations into public interest cases arising in connection with the performance of actuarial functions by members of professional actuarial bodies²⁵;
- 1151 (19) holding disciplinary hearings relating to members of professional actuarial bodies following the conclusion of investigations within head (18)²⁶;
- 1152 (20) deciding whether (and, if so, what) disciplinary action should be taken against members of professional actuarial bodies to whom hearings within head (19) related²⁷;
- 1153 (21) supervising the exercise by professional actuarial bodies of regulatory functions²⁸ in relation to their members²⁹;
- 1154 (22) overseeing or directing any of the matters mentioned above³⁰.

A grant may be made to a body falling within these provisions in respect of any of its activities³¹.

For the purpose of meeting any part of the expenses of a grant-aided body³², the Secretary of State may by regulations provide for a levy to be payable to that body by bodies or persons which are specified, or are of a description specified, in the regulations³³.

A body to whom a grant has been paid by the Secretary of State³⁴, is not liable in damages in respect of certain acts or omissions occurring during the period of 12 months beginning with the date on which the grant was paid³⁵.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6.

2 Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 16(1). For the purposes of s 16, a body is to be regarded as carrying on any subsidiary activities of the body; and a body's 'subsidiary activities' are activities carried on by any of its subsidiaries or by any body established under its constitution or under the constitution of such a subsidiary: s 16(4). 'Subsidiary' has the meaning given by the Companies Act 2006 s 1159 (see PARA 25): Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 16(5) (amended by SI 2009/1941). The functions noted in the text are carried out by the Financial Reporting Council (FRC) through its operating bodies (the Accounting Standards Board, the Auditing Practices Board, the Board for Actuarial Standards, the Professional Oversight Board, the Financial Reporting Review Panel and the Accountancy and Actuarial Discipline Board). HM Government has indicated that, as a market-led regulator, the FRC should in future be funded largely by market participants (ie not by grant as envisaged by the Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004): see 471 HC Official Report (6th series), 6 February 2008, written ministerial statements col 66WS.

Because the Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 ss 16-18 govern the operation and funding of bodies concerned with accounting standards, rather than the conduct of companies generally, they are not regarded as 'company law' provisions under the statutory scheme mentioned in PARA 9 note 1.

3 Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 16(2)(a). As to accounting standards see PARA 697.

4 Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 16(2)(b). For these purposes, 'company' means a company as defined in the Companies Act 2006 s 1(1) (see PARA 24): Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 16(5) (amended by SI 2009/1941). 11 Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 16(2)(g) (amended by the Companies Act 2006 Sch 14 para 1).

12 'Public interest cases' means matters which raise or appear to raise important issues affecting the public interest: Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 16(5).

13 'Accountancy functions' means functions performed as an accountant, whether in the capacity of auditor or otherwise: Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 16(5).

14 Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 16(2)(h). 'Professional accountancy body' means:

233 (1) a supervisory body which is recognised for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 42 (see PARA 975); or

234 (2) a qualifying body, as defined by s 1220 (see PARA 998), which enforces rules as to the performance of accountancy functions by its members, and references to the members of professional accountancy bodies include persons who, although not members of such bodies, are subject to their rules in performing accountancy functions: Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 16(5) (amended by the Companies Act 2006 Sch 14 para 1).

15 Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 16(2)(i).

16 Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 16(2)(j).

17 'Regulatory functions', in relation to professional accountancy bodies, means any of the following functions: (1) investigatory or disciplinary functions exercised by such bodies in relation to the performance by their members of accountancy functions; (2) the setting by such bodies of standards in relation to the performance by their members of accountancy functions; and (3) the determining by such bodies of requirements in relation to the education and training of their members: Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 16(5).

24 Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 16(2)(o) (as added: see note 22).

25 Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 16(2)(p) (as added: see note 22). 'Professional actuarial body' means the Institute of Actuaries; and the 'members' of a professional actuarial body include persons who, although not members of the body, are subject to its rules in performing actuarial functions: Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 16(5) (amended by the Companies Act 2006 s 1274).

26 Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 16(2)(q) (as added: see note 22).

27 Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 16(2)(r) (as added: see note 22).

28 'Regulatory functions', in relation to professional actuarial bodies, means any of the following functions: (1) investigatory or disciplinary functions exercised by such bodies in relation to the performance by their members of actuarial functions; (2) the setting by such bodies of standards in relation to the performance by their members of actuarial functions; and (3) the determining by such bodies of requirements in relation to the education and training of their members: Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 16(5) (amended by the Companies Act 2006 s 1274).

31 Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 16(3).

32 For these purposes, 'grant-aided body' means a body to whom the Secretary of State has paid, or is proposing to pay, grant under s 16 (see the text and notes 1-31); and any expenses of any body carrying on subsidiary activities of the grant-aided body (see note 2) are to be regarded as expenses of the grant-aided body: Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 17(2).

33 See the Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 17 (amended by the Companies Act 2006 s 1275). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made.

34 See under the Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 16 (see the text and notes 1-31).

35 See the Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 18(1). The exemption applies to anything done, or omitted to be done, for the purposes of or in connection with the carrying on of any activities of the body concerned with any of the matters set out in s 16(2) (see heads (1)-(22) in the text), or the purported carrying on of any such activities, but it does not apply: (1) if the act or omission is shown to have been in bad faith; or (2) so as to prevent an award of damages in respect of the act or omission on the grounds that it was unlawful as a result of the Human Rights Act 1998 s 6(1) (acts of public authorities incompatible with Convention rights: see JUDICIAL REVIEW vol 61 (2010) PARA 650; CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS): see the Companies (Audit Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 s 18(2)-(4).

General power to make further provision about accounts and reports.

700. General power to make further provision about accounts and reports.

The Secretary of State¹ may make provision by regulations about:

- 1155 (1) the accounts and reports that companies² are required to prepare;
- 1156 (2) the categories of companies required to prepare accounts and reports of any description;
- 1157 (3) the form and content of the accounts and reports that companies are required to prepare;
- 1158 (4) the obligations of companies and others as regards: (a) the approval of accounts and reports; (b) the sending of accounts and reports to members and others; (c) the laying of accounts and reports before the company in general meeting³; (d) the delivery of copies of accounts and reports to the registrar⁴; and (e) the publication of accounts and reports⁵.

The regulations may amend Part 15 of the Companies Act 2006⁶ by adding, altering or repealing provisions⁷.

The regulations may create criminal offences in cases corresponding to those in which an offence is created by an existing provision of this Part⁸. The regulations may provide for civil penalties in certain circumstances⁹.

Regulations that:

235 (1) restrict the classes of company which have the benefit of any exemption, exception or special provision;

236 (2) require additional matter to be included in a document of any class; or

237 (3) otherwise render the requirements of Pt 15 more onerous, are subject to affirmative resolution procedure (ie the regulations must not be made unless a draft of the statutory instrument containing them has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament): ss 473(3), 1290. Otherwise, the regulations are subject to negative resolution procedure (ie the statutory instrument containing the regulations is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament): ss 473(4), 1289.

8 Companies Act 2006 s 468(4). The maximum penalty for any such offence may not be greater than is provided in relation to an offence under the existing provision: s 468(4).

9 Companies Act 2006 s 468(5). Regulations providing for civil penalties may be made in circumstances corresponding to those within s 453(1) (civil penalty for failure to file accounts and reports: see PARA 884), and the provisions of s 453(2)-(5) apply in relation to any such penalty: s 468(5).

B. SPECIAL PROVISION MADE FOR CERTAIN TYPES OF COMPANY AND GROUP

(A) BANKING AND INSURANCE COMPANIES AND GROUPS

701. Special provisions for banking and insurance companies.

The directors of a banking company¹ must prepare its individual accounts² in accordance with special statutory provisions³; and there are also special statutory provisions in accordance with which the directors of an insurance company⁴ must prepare its individual accounts⁵. Accounts so prepared must contain a statement that they are prepared in accordance with the special provisions relating to banking companies or to insurance companies, as the case may be⁶.

1 For the purposes of the Companies Acts, 'banking company' means a person who has permission under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt IV (ss 40-55) (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 348 et seq) to accept deposits, other than: (1) a person who is not a company; and (2) a person who has such permission only for the purpose of carrying on another regulated activity in accordance with permission under that Part: Companies Act 2006 s 1164(1), (2). The definition in s 1164(2) must be read with the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 22, any relevant order under s 22, and Sch 2 (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARAS 84-85): Companies Act 2006 s 1164(3). As to the meaning of 'regulated activity' see PARA 694 note 23. As to the meaning of 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16. As to the meaning of 'director' see PARA 478.

2 As to the meaning of 'individual accounts' see PARA 716.

3 See the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, reg 5, Sch 2. See also the Bank Accounts Directive (Miscellaneous Banks) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/567.

4 For the purposes of the Companies Acts, 'insurance company' means:

238 (1) an authorised insurance company (Companies Act 2006 s 1165(1), (3)(a)); or

239 (2) any other person (whether incorporated or not) who: (a) carries on insurance market activity; or (b) may effect or carry out contracts of insurance under which the benefits provided by that person are exclusively or primarily benefits in kind in the event of accident to or breakdown of a vehicle (s 1165(1), (3)(b)), and 'authorised insurance company' means a person (whether incorporated or not) who has permission under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt IV (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 348 et seq) to effect or carry out contracts of insurance (Companies Act 2006 s 1165(1), (2)). Neither expression includes a friendly society within the meaning of the Friendly Societies Act 1992 (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 50 (2008) PARAS 2082-2083): Companies Act 2006 s 1165(4).

'Insurance market activity' has the meaning given in the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 316(3) (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 743): Companies Act 2006 s 1165(1), (7).

References in s 1165 to contracts of insurance and to the effecting or carrying out of such contracts must be read with the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 22, any relevant order under s 22, and Sch 2 (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARAS 84-85): Companies Act 2006 s 1165(1), (8).

SPECIAL PROVISION MADE FOR CERTAIN TYPES OF COMPANY AND GROUP/(A) Banking and Insurance Companies and Groups/702. Special provisions for banking and insurance groups.

702. Special provisions for banking and insurance groups.

The directors¹ of the parent company² of a banking group³ preparing Companies Act group accounts must do so in accordance with special statutory provisions⁴; and there are also special statutory provisions in accordance with which the directors of the parent company of an insurance group⁵ must prepare Companies Act group accounts⁶.

Accounts so prepared must contain a statement that they are prepared in accordance with the special statutory provisions relating to banking groups or to insurance groups, as the case may be⁷.

1 As to the meaning of 'director' see PARA 478.

2 As to the meaning of 'parent company' see PARA 26 note 2.

3 For the purposes of the Companies Acts, references to a 'banking group' are references to a group where the parent company is a banking company or where: (1) the parent company's principal subsidiary undertakings are wholly or mainly credit institutions; and (2) the parent company does not itself carry on any material business apart from the acquisition, management and disposal of interests in subsidiary undertakings; and for these purposes, 'group' means a parent undertaking and its subsidiary undertakings: Companies Act 2006 s 1164(1), (4). For the purposes of s 1164(4): (a) a parent company's principal subsidiary undertakings are the subsidiary undertakings of the company whose results or financial position would principally affect the figures shown in the group accounts; and (b) the management of interests in subsidiary undertakings includes the provision of services to such undertakings: s 1164(5). As to the meaning of 'banking company' see PARA 701 note 1. As to the meaning of 'subsidiary undertaking' see PARA 26; and as to the meaning of 'undertaking' see PARA 26 note 2. As to the meaning of 'credit institution' see PARA 146 note 22. As to group accounts see PARA 775 et seq. As to the meaning of 'Companies Acts' see PARA 16.

SPECIAL PROVISION MADE FOR CERTAIN TYPES OF COMPANY AND GROUP/(A) Banking and Insurance Companies and Groups/704. Power to make provision for banking partnerships.

704. Power to make provision for banking partnerships.

The Secretary of State¹ may by regulations apply to banking partnerships², subject to such exceptions, adaptations and modifications as he considers appropriate, the statutory provisions relating to accounts³ which apply to banking companies⁴.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6.

2 For these purposes, a 'banking partnership' means a partnership which has permission under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt IV (ss 40-55) (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 348 et seq): Companies Act 2006 s 470(2). However, a partnership is not a banking partnership if it has permission to accept deposits only for the purpose of carrying on another regulated activity in accordance with that permission: s 470(2). As to the meaning of 'regulated activity' see PARA 694 note 23. Expressions used in s 470 that are also used in the provisions regulating activities under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 have the same meaning as they do in those provisions: Companies Act 2006 s 470(3). See the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 22, orders made under that provision, and Sch 2 (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARAS 84-85); applied by the Companies Act 2006 s 470(3).

3 Ie the provisions of the Companies Act 2006 Pt 15 (ss 380-474) and of regulations made under Pt 15.

4 Companies Act 2006 s 470(1). Such regulations are subject to affirmative resolution procedure (ie the regulations must not be made unless a draft of the statutory instrument containing them has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament): ss 470(4), 1290. As to the meaning of 'banking company' see PARA 701 note 1. At the date at which this volume states the law, no regulations had been made under s 470.

Preparation of accounts of qualifying partnerships.

(B) PARTNERSHIPS

705. Preparation of accounts of qualifying partnerships.

Special provision is made in relation to qualifying partnerships¹, the effect of which is to apply the statutory provisions relating to accounts², with modifications, to such partnerships³.

1 A partnership which is formed under the law of any part of the United Kingdom is a 'qualifying partnership' if each of its members is: (1) a limited company; or (2) an unlimited company, or a Scottish partnership, each of whose members is a limited company: Partnerships (Accounts) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/569, regs 2(1), 3(1). Where the members of a qualifying partnership include:

240 (a) an unlimited company, or a Scottish partnership, each of whose members is a limited company; or

- 241 (b) a member of another partnership each of whose members is: (i) a limited company; or (ii) an unlimited company, or a Scottish partnership, each of whose members is a limited company, any reference to the members of the qualifying partnership includes a reference to the members of that company, or other partnership: reg 3(2). Any reference in reg 3(1) or reg 3(2) to a limited company, an unlimited company, or a partnership includes a reference to any comparable undertaking incorporated in or formed under the law of any country or territory outside the United Kingdom: reg 3(4). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 1 note 5. For these purposes, 'limited company' means a company limited by shares or limited by guarantee: reg 2(1). As to the meanings of 'company limited by shares' and 'company limited by guarantee' see PARA 102.

For these purposes, any reference to the members of a qualifying partnership is to be construed, in relation to a limited partnership, as a reference to its general partner or partners: reg 2(2). 'Limited partnership' means a partnership formed in accordance with the Limited Partnerships Act 1907 (see PARTNERSHIP vol 79 (2008) PARA 218 et seq); and 'general partner' has the same meaning as in the Limited Partnerships Act 1907 (see PARTNERSHIP vol 79 (2008) PARA 219); Partnerships (Accounts) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/569, reg 2(1).

The requirements of the Partnerships (Accounts) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/569, apply without regard to any change in the members of a qualifying partnership which does not result in it ceasing to be such a partnership: reg 3(3).

Special provision where the company is an investment company.

(D) INVESTMENT COMPANIES

707. Special provision where the company is an investment company.

The general provisions applicable to a revaluation reserve¹ do not apply to the amount of any profit or loss arising from a determination of the value of any investments of an investment company² on any basis applicable to investments falling to be included in either of the statutory balance sheet formats³ under the alternative accounting rules⁴.

Any provisions made⁵ in the case of an investment company in respect of the diminution in value of any fixed asset investments⁶ need not be charged to the company's profit and loss account⁷ provided they are:

- 1159 (1) charged against any reserve account to which any amount so excluded from the general provisions applicable to a revaluation reserve has been credited; or
- 1160 (2) shown as a separate item in the company's balance sheet under the sub-heading 'other reserves'⁸.

Any distribution made by an investment company which reduces the amount of its net assets⁹ to less than the aggregate of its called up share capital¹⁰ and undistributable reserves¹¹ must be disclosed in a note to the company's accounts¹².

¹ I.e. the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section C para 35: see PARA 722.

² For these purposes, a company is to be treated as an investment company in relation to any financial year of the company if: (1) during the whole of that year it was an investment company as defined in the Companies Act 2006 s 833 (see PARA 1394); and (2) it was not at any time during that year prohibited from making a distribution by virtue of s 832 due to either or both of the conditions specified in s 832(5)(a) or (b) (see PARA 1394): Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 5 para 75(3). As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24. As to a company's financial year see PARA 711.

³ I.e. under item B III: see PARAS 730-731.

⁴ Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 5 para 74(1). As to the alternative accounting rules see PARA 722.

⁵ I.e. by virtue of the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section B para 19(1) or (2): see PARA 720.

⁶ For these purposes, 'fixed asset investment' means any asset falling to be included under any item shown in the company's balance sheet under the sub-division 'investments' under the general item 'fixed assets': Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 5 para 74(3). As to the meaning of 'balance sheet' see PARA 715. As to the meaning of 'fixed assets' see PARA 720 note 2.

⁷ As to the meaning of 'profit and loss account' see PARA 715.

⁸ Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 5 para 74(2).

9 For these purposes, a company's net assets are the aggregate of its assets less the aggregate of its liabilities (including any provision for liabilities within the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 9 para 2 (see PARA 1393) that is made in Companies Act accounts and any provision that is made in IAS accounts): Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 5 para 75(2). As to the meanings of 'Companies Act accounts' and 'IAS accounts' see PARAS 717, 776.

10 As to the meaning of 'called up share capital' see PARA 1048.

11 For these purposes, 'undistributable reserves' has the meaning given by the Companies Act 2006 s 831(4) (see PARA 170 note 5): Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 5 para 75(2).

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(18) ACCOUNTS AND REPORTS/(ii) Accounting Records/708. Duty to keep accounting records.

(ii) Accounting Records

708. Duty to keep accounting records.

Every company¹ must keep adequate accounting records². 'Adequate accounting records' means records that are sufficient: (1) to show and explain the company's transactions; (2) to disclose with reasonable accuracy, at any time, the financial position of the company at that time; and (3) to enable the directors³ to ensure that any accounts required to be prepared comply with the statutory requirements⁴.

Accounting records must, in particular, contain:

- 1161 (a) entries from day to day of all sums of money received and expended by the company and the matters in respect of which the receipt and expenditure takes place; and
- 1162 (b) a record of the assets and liabilities of the company⁵.

If the company's business involves dealing in goods, the accounting records must contain:

- 1163 (i) statements of stock held by the company at the end of each financial year of the company⁶;
- 1164 (ii) all statements of stocktakings from which any statement of stock as is mentioned in head (i) has been or is to be prepared; and
- 1165 (iii) except in the case of goods sold by way of ordinary retail trade, statements of all goods sold and purchased, showing the goods and the buyers and sellers in sufficient detail to enable all these to be identified⁷.

A parent company⁸ that has a subsidiary undertaking⁹ in relation to which the above requirements do not apply must take reasonable steps to secure that the undertaking keeps such accounting records as to enable the directors of the parent company to ensure that any accounts required to be prepared¹⁰ comply with the statutory requirements¹¹.

If a company fails to comply with any provision relating to the duty to keep accounting records¹², an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default¹³. It is a defence for a person charged with such an offence to show that he acted honestly and that in the circumstances in which the company's business was carried on the default was excusable¹⁴.

1 As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24; and as to the special provision that is made in relation to banking and insurance companies and groups, partnerships, limited liability partnerships and investment companies see PARA 701 et seq.

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(18) ACCOUNTS AND REPORTS/(ii) Accounting Records/709. Where and for how long records to be kept.

709. Where and for how long records to be kept.

A company's accounting records¹ must be kept at its registered office² or such other place as the directors³ think fit, and must at all times be open to inspection by the company's officers⁴.

If accounting records are kept at a place outside the United Kingdom⁵, accounts and returns with respect to the business dealt with in the accounting records so kept must be sent to, and kept at, a place in the United Kingdom, and must at all times be open to such inspection⁶. The accounts and returns to be sent to the United Kingdom must be such as to: (1) disclose with reasonable accuracy the financial position of the business in question at intervals of not more than six months; and (2) enable the directors to ensure that the accounts required to be prepared⁷ comply with the statutory requirements⁸.

Accounting records that a company is required⁹ to keep must be preserved by it:

- 1166 (a) in the case of a private company¹⁰, for three years from the date on which they are made;
- 1167 (b) in the case of a public company¹¹, for six years from the date on which they are made¹².

If a company fails to comply with any of the requirements as to keeping of accounting records¹³, an offence is committed by every officer of the company who is in default¹⁴. It is a defence for a person charged with such an offence to show that he acted honestly and that in the circumstances in which the company's business was carried on the default was excusable¹⁵.

An officer of a company commits an offence if he: (i) fails to take all reasonable steps for securing compliance by the company with the provision relating to the period for which records are to be preserved¹⁶; or (ii) intentionally causes any default by the company under that provision¹⁷.

710. Inspection of accounting records.

In view of the statutory duties imposed on directors in relation to accounts¹, directors have long had a common law right to inspect all the company's documents² and they have a statutory right of inspection conferred by the Companies Act 2006³.

As a rule shareholders have no right to inspect the company's books of account unless the articles so provide⁴. Beneficiaries of shares held by directors as trustees cannot require the trustee directors to disclose information obtained by them in the exercise of their powers of inspection as directors⁵.

Absent members of a company are affected by the information furnished by the directors at a general meeting and are bound by the proceedings as to matters within its competence⁶.

(iii) Financial Year and Accounting Reference Periods

711. Company's financial year.

A company's 'financial year' is determined as follows¹.

Its first financial year begins with the first day of its first accounting reference period²; and ends with the last day of that period or such other date, not more than seven days before or after the end of that period, as the directors may determine³.

Subsequent financial years begin with the day immediately following the end of the company's previous financial year; and end with the last day of its next accounting reference period or such other date, not more than seven days before or after the end of that period, as the directors may determine⁴.

In relation to an undertaking⁵ that is not a company, references in the Companies Act 2006 to its financial year are to any period in respect of which a profit and loss account⁶ of the undertaking is required to be made up (by its constitution⁷ or by the law under which it is established), whether that period is a year or not⁸.

The directors of a parent company⁹ must secure that, except where in their opinion there are good reasons against it, the financial year of each of its subsidiary undertakings¹⁰ coincides with the company's own financial year¹¹.

COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(18) ACCOUNTS AND REPORTS/(iii) Financial Year and Accounting Reference Periods/712. Accounting reference periods and accounting reference date.

712. Accounting reference periods and accounting reference date.

A company's accounting reference periods are determined according to its accounting reference date in each calendar year¹.

The accounting reference date of a company incorporated in Great Britain² before 1 April 1996 is the date specified by notice given³ within nine months of incorporation to the registrar⁴. Failing such notice, the accounting reference date of such a company is:

- 1168 (1) in the case of a company incorporated before 1 April 1990, 31 March; and
- 1169 (2) in the case of a company incorporated on or after 1 April 1990, the last day of the month in which the anniversary of its incorporation falls⁵.

The accounting reference date of a company incorporated in Great Britain on or after 1 April 1996 and before the commencement of the Companies Act 2006, or incorporated after the commencement of that Act, is the last day of the month in which the anniversary of its incorporation falls⁶.

A company's first accounting reference period is the period of more than six months, but not more than 18 months, beginning with the date of its incorporation and ending with its accounting reference date⁷. Its subsequent accounting reference periods are successive periods of 12 months beginning immediately after the end of the previous accounting reference period and ending with its accounting reference date⁸.

In certain circumstances, a company may alter its accounting reference date⁹.

713. Alteration of accounting reference date.

A company¹ may by notice given to the registrar² specify a new accounting reference date³ having effect in relation to: (1) the company's current accounting reference period⁴ and subsequent periods⁵; or (2) the company's previous accounting reference period⁶ and subsequent periods⁷.

The notice must state whether the current or previous accounting reference period:

- 1170 (a) is to be shortened, so as to come to an end on the first occasion on which the new accounting reference date falls or fell after the beginning of the period; or
- 1171 (b) is to be extended, so as to come to an end on the second occasion on which that date falls or fell after the beginning of the period⁸.

A notice extending a company's current or previous accounting reference period is not effective if given less than five years after the end of an earlier accounting reference period of the company that was extended under these provisions⁹; but this does not apply: (i) to a notice given by a company that is a subsidiary undertaking¹⁰ or parent undertaking¹¹ of another EEA undertaking¹² if the new accounting reference date coincides with that of the other EEA undertaking or, where that undertaking is not a company, with the last day of its financial year¹³; or (ii) where the company is in administration¹⁴; or (iii) where the Secretary of State¹⁵ directs that it should not apply, which he may do with respect to a notice that has been given or that may be given¹⁶.

An accounting reference period may not be extended so as to exceed 18 months and a notice under these provisions is ineffective if the current or previous accounting reference period as extended in accordance with the notice would exceed that limit¹⁷.

Interpretation of references to 'annual accounts', 'balance sheet' and 'profit and loss account'.

715. Interpretation of references to 'annual accounts', 'balance sheet' and 'profit and loss account'.

For the purposes of Part 15 of the Companies Act 2006¹, 'annual accounts' of a company², in relation to a financial year³, means: (1) the company's individual accounts for that year⁴; and (2) any group accounts prepared by the company for that year⁵. This is subject to the provision that allows an option to omit the individual profit and loss account from annual accounts where information is given in group accounts⁶.

In the case of an unquoted company⁷, its 'annual accounts and reports' for a financial year are: (a) its annual accounts⁸; (b) the directors' report⁹; and (c) the auditor's report on those accounts and the directors' report (unless the company is exempt from audit)¹⁰. In the case of a quoted company¹¹, its 'annual accounts and reports' for a financial year are: (i) its annual accounts¹²; (ii) the directors' remuneration report¹³; (iii) the directors' report¹⁴; and (iv) the auditor's report on those accounts, on the auditable part of the directors' remuneration report and on the directors' report¹⁵.

References in Part 15 of the Companies Act 2006 to a company's 'annual accounts', or to a 'balance sheet' or 'profit and loss account'¹⁶, include notes to the accounts giving information which is required by any provision of the Act or international accounting standards, and required or allowed by any such provision to be given in a note to company accounts¹⁷.

717. Applicable accounting framework.

A company's individual accounts¹ may be prepared in accordance with the relevant provision of the Companies Act 2006² ('Companies Act individual accounts'), or in accordance with international accounting standards ('IAS individual accounts')³. Where the directors⁴ of a company prepare IAS individual accounts, they must state in the notes to the accounts that the accounts have been prepared in accordance with international accounting standards⁵.

After the first financial year⁶ in which the directors of a company prepare IAS individual accounts (the 'first IAS year'), all subsequent individual accounts of the company must be prepared in accordance with international accounting standards unless there is a relevant change of circumstance⁷. There is a relevant change of circumstance if, at any time during or after the first IAS year:

- 1174 (1) the company becomes a subsidiary undertaking⁸ of another undertaking that does not prepare IAS individual accounts⁹;
- 1175 (2) the company ceases to be a subsidiary undertaking¹⁰;
- 1176 (3) the company ceases to be a company with securities admitted to trading on a regulated market¹¹ in an EEA state¹²; or
- 1177 (4) a parent undertaking¹³ of the company ceases to be an undertaking with securities admitted to trading on a regulated market in an EEA state¹⁴.

If, having changed to preparing Companies Act individual accounts following a relevant change of circumstance, the directors again prepare IAS individual accounts for the company, the above provisions¹⁵ apply again as if the first financial year for which such accounts are again prepared were the first IAS year¹⁶.

(a) General Principles

718. Accounting principles.

Companies Act individual accounts¹ must comply with the statutory provisions² as to the form and content of the balance sheet and profit and loss account³, and additional information to be provided by way of notes to the accounts⁴.

The amounts to be included in respect of all items shown in a company's accounts must be determined in accordance with the principles below⁵. If, however, it appears to the directors⁶ of a company that there are special reasons for departing from any of those principles in preparing the company's accounts in respect of any financial year⁷, they may do so, but particulars of the departure, the reasons for it and its effect must be given in a note to the accounts⁸.

The principles determining the amounts to be so included are:

- 1178 (1) the company is to be presumed to be carrying on business as a going concern⁹;
 1179 (2) accounting policies must be applied consistently within the same accounts and from one financial year to the next¹⁰;
 1180 (3) the amount of any item must be determined on a prudent basis, and in particular:
 43
 74. (a) only profits realised¹¹ at the balance sheet date¹² are to be included in the profit and loss account¹³; and
 75. (b) all liabilities which have arisen in respect of the financial year to which the accounts relate or a previous financial year are to be taken into account, including those which only became apparent between the balance sheet date and the date on which it is signed¹⁴ on behalf of the board of directors¹⁵;
 1181 (4) all income and charges relating to the financial year to which the accounts relate are to be taken into account, without regard to the date of receipt or payment¹⁶;
 1182 (5) in determining the aggregate amount of any item, the amount of each individual asset or liability that falls to be taken into account must be determined separately¹⁷.

3 As to the meanings of 'balance sheet' and 'profit and loss account' see PARA 715.

4 See the Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, reg 3(1); and the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, reg 3(1). The Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, reg 3(1) is subject to reg 4 (see PARAS 879), and does not apply to banking companies or insurance companies: see reg 3(1). As to banking companies and insurance companies see PARA 701 et seq. As to notes to the accounts see PARA 738 et seq.

The profit and loss account of a company that falls within the Companies Act 2006 s 408 (individual profit and loss account where group accounts are prepared: see PARA 778) need not contain the information specified in the Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 3 paras 59-61 or the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 3 paras 65-69 (information supplementing the profit and loss account: see PARA 750): Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, reg 3(2); Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, reg 3(2).

Accounts are treated as having complied with any provision of the Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 if they comply instead with the corresponding provision of the Large and Medium-Sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1: see the Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, reg 3(3); and PARA 728 note 9.

720. Rules for determining particular fixed asset items and current assets.

Subject to any provision for depreciation or diminution in value made in accordance with the following provisions¹, the amount to be included in respect of any fixed asset² must be its purchase price or production cost³. In the case of any fixed asset which has a limited useful economic life, the amount of its purchase price or production cost, or, where it is estimated that any such asset will have a residual value at the end of the period of its useful economic life, its purchase price or production cost less that estimated residual value, must be reduced by provisions for depreciation calculated to write off that amount systematically over the period of the asset's useful economic life⁴.

Where certain fixed asset investments⁵ have diminished in value, provisions for diminution in value may be made in respect of them and the amount to be included in respect of them may be reduced accordingly⁶; and any such provisions which are not shown in the profit and loss account⁷ must be disclosed, either separately or in aggregate, in a note to the accounts⁸. Provisions for diminution in value must be made in respect of any fixed asset which has diminished in value if the reduction in its value is expected to be permanent, whether its useful economic life is limited or not, and the amount to be included in respect of it must be reduced accordingly⁹; and any such provisions which are not shown in the profit and loss account must be disclosed, either separately or in aggregate, in a note to the accounts¹⁰. Where the reasons for which any provision was so made¹¹ have ceased to apply to any extent, that provision must be written back to the extent that it is no longer necessary¹²; and any amounts so written back which are not shown in the profit and loss account must be disclosed, either separately or in aggregate, in a note to the accounts¹³.

Notwithstanding that an item in respect of 'development costs' is included under 'fixed assets' in the statutory balance sheet formats¹⁴, an amount may only be included in a company's balance sheet¹⁵ in respect of development costs in special circumstances¹⁶. If any amount is included in a company's balance sheet in respect of development costs, the following information must be given in a note to the accounts:

- 1183 (1) the period over which the amount of those costs originally capitalised¹⁷ is being or is to be written off; and
- 1184 (2) the reasons for capitalising the development costs in question¹⁸.

The application of the rules as to fixed assets¹⁹ in relation to goodwill, in any case where goodwill is treated as an asset, is subject to the following provisions²⁰. The amount of the consideration for any goodwill acquired by a company must be reduced by provisions for depreciation calculated to write off that amount systematically over a period chosen by the directors of the company²¹; the period chosen must not exceed the useful economic life of the goodwill in question²². In any case where any goodwill acquired by a company is shown or included as an asset in the company's balance sheet, the period chosen for writing off the consideration for that goodwill and the reasons for choosing that period must be disclosed in a note to the accounts²³.

The amount to be included in respect of any current asset must be its purchase price or production cost²⁴. If, however, the net realisable value of any current asset is lower than its purchase price or production cost, the amount to be included in respect of that asset must be the net realisable value²⁵.

721. Miscellaneous and supplementary provisions.

Where the amount repayable on any debt owed by a company¹ is greater than the value of the consideration received in the transaction giving rise to the debt, the amount of the difference may be treated as an asset². Where any such amount is so treated, it must be written off by reasonable amounts each year and must be completely written off before repayment of the debt; and if the current amount is not shown as a separate item in the company's balance sheet³, it must be disclosed in a note to the accounts⁴.

Assets which fall to be included amongst the fixed assets⁵ of a company under the item 'tangible assets'⁶, or amongst the current assets⁷ of a company under the item 'raw materials and consumables'⁸, may be included at a fixed quantity and value, if they are of a kind which are constantly being replaced, where their overall value is not material to assessing the company's state of affairs and their quantity, value and composition are not subject to material variation⁹.

The purchase price¹⁰ of an asset must be determined by adding to the actual price paid any expenses incidental to its acquisition¹¹. The production cost of an asset must be determined by adding to the purchase price of the raw materials and consumables used the amount of the costs incurred by the company which are directly attributable to the production of that asset¹². In addition there may be included in the production cost of an asset:

- 1185 (1) a reasonable proportion of the costs incurred by the company which are only indirectly attributable to the production of that asset, but only to the extent that they relate to the period of production; and
- 1186 (2) interest on capital borrowed to finance the production of that asset, to the extent that it accrues in respect of the period of production, provided, however, in a case within head (2) above that the inclusion of the interest in determining the cost of that asset and the amount of the interest so included is disclosed in a note to the accounts¹³. In the case of current assets, distribution costs may not be included in production costs¹⁴.

Where there is no record of the purchase price or production cost of any asset of a company or of any price, expenses or costs relevant for determining its purchase price or production cost¹⁵, or any such record cannot be obtained without unreasonable expense or delay, its purchase price or production cost must be taken¹⁶ to be the value ascribed to it in the earliest available record of its value made on or after its acquisition or production by the company¹⁷.

The purchase price or production cost of any assets which fall to be included under any item shown in a company's balance sheet under the general item 'stocks'¹⁸, and any assets which are fungible assets¹⁹ (including investments), may be determined by the application of any of the following methods in relation to any such assets of the same class; and the method chosen must be one which appears to the directors to be appropriate in the circumstances of the company²⁰. Those methods are: (a) the method known as 'first in, first out' (FIFO); (b) the method known as 'last in, first out' (LIFO); (c) a weighted average price; and (d) any other method similar to any of those methods²¹.

- 243 (2) the amount shown in respect of that item differs materially from the relevant alternative amount given below, the amount of that difference must be disclosed in a note to the accounts: Sch 1 Pt 2 Section B para 28(3). Subject to Sch 1 Pt 2 Section B para 28(5), the relevant alternative amount, in relation to any item shown in a company's balance sheet, is the amount which would have been shown in respect of that item if assets of any class included under that item at an amount determined by any method permitted by Sch 1 Pt 2 Section B para 28 had instead been included at their replacement cost as at the balance sheet date: Sch 1 Pt 2 Section B para 28(4). The relevant alternative amount may be determined by reference to the most recent actual purchase price or production cost before the balance sheet date of assets of any class included under the item in question instead of by reference to their replacement cost as at that date, but only if the former appears to the directors of the company to constitute the more appropriate standard of comparison in the case of assets of that class: Sch 1 Pt 2 Section B para 28(5). (c) Alternative Accounting Rules

722. Alternative accounting rules.

The alternative accounting rules¹ provide an alternative to the historical cost accounting rules², which (with certain omissions³) are referred to below as the 'depreciation rules'; and subsequent references to the historical cost accounting rules do not include the depreciation rules as they apply⁴ below⁵.

The alternative accounting rules provide that, subject to certain qualifications⁶, the amounts to be included in respect of assets of any description mentioned below⁷ may be determined on any basis so mentioned⁸. Intangible fixed assets⁹, other than goodwill, may be included at their current cost¹⁰. Tangible fixed assets may be included at a market value determined as at the date of their last valuation or at their current cost¹¹. Fixed asset investments of any description falling to be included under either of the statutory balance sheet formats¹² may be included either at a market value determined as at the date of their last valuation, or at a value determined on any basis which appears to the directors to be appropriate in the circumstances of the company¹³; but in the latter case particulars of the method of valuation adopted and of the reasons for adopting it must be disclosed in a note to the accounts¹⁴. Current asset¹⁵ investments of any description falling to be included under either of the statutory balance sheet formats¹⁶ may be included at their current cost¹⁷. Stocks may be included at their current cost¹⁸.

With respect to any determination of the value of an asset of a company on any basis mentioned in the alternative accounting rules¹⁹, the amount of any profit or loss arising from that determination (after allowing, where appropriate, for any provisions for depreciation or diminution in value made otherwise than by reference to the value so determined and any adjustments of any such provisions made in the light of that determination) must be credited or, as the case may be, debited to a separate reserve (the 'revaluation reserve')²⁰. The amount of the revaluation reserve must be shown in the company's balance sheet under a separate sub-heading in the position given for the item 'revaluation reserve' in the statutory balance sheet formats²¹, but need not be shown under that name²². An amount may be transferred:

- 1187 (1) from the revaluation reserve: (a) to the profit and loss account²³, if the amount was previously charged to that account or represents realised profit²⁴; or (b) on capitalisation²⁵;

1188 (2) to or from the revaluation reserve in respect of the taxation relating to any profit or loss credited or debited to the reserve, and the revaluation reserve must be reduced to the extent that the amounts transferred to it are no longer necessary for the purposes of the valuation method used²⁶. The revaluation reserve must not otherwise²⁷ be reduced²⁸. The treatment for taxation purposes of amounts credited or debited to the revaluation reserve must be disclosed in a note to the accounts²⁹.

1 The 'alternative accounting rules' are the rules set out in the Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section C and the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section C: see the text and notes 2-29; and PARAS 723-724.

INDIVIDUAL ACCOUNTS EXCLUDING BANKING AND INSURANCE COMPANIES/(B) Accounting Principles and Rules/(c) Alternative Accounting Rules/723. Application of the depreciation rules.

723. Application of the depreciation rules.

Where the value of any asset of a company¹ is determined on any basis mentioned in the alternative accounting rules², that value must be, or (as the case may require) must be the starting point for determining, the amount to be included in respect of that asset in the company's accounts, instead of its purchase price³ or production cost or any value previously so determined for that asset; and the depreciation rules⁴ apply accordingly in relation to any such asset with the substitution for any reference to its purchase price or production cost of a reference to the value most recently determined for that asset on any basis mentioned in the alternative accounting rules⁵.

The amount of any provision for depreciation required in the case of any fixed asset⁶ by the depreciation rules as so applied⁷ is referred to below as the 'adjusted amount', and the amount of any provision which would be so required in the case of that asset according to the historical cost accounting rules⁸ is referred to as the 'historical cost amount'⁹.

In the case of any fixed asset, the amount of any provision for depreciation in respect of that asset:

- 1189 (1) included in any item shown in the profit and loss account¹⁰ in respect of amounts written off assets of the description in question; or
- 1190 (2) taken into account in stating any item so shown which is required by the notes on the statutory profit and loss account formats¹¹ to be stated after taking into account any necessary provisions for depreciation or diminution in value of assets, may be the historical cost amount instead of the adjusted amount, provided that the amount of any difference between the two is shown separately in the profit and loss account or in a note to the accounts¹².

Where the amounts to be included in respect of assets covered by any items shown in a company's accounts have been determined on any basis mentioned in the alternative accounting rules¹, the items affected and the basis of valuation adopted in determining the amounts of the assets in question in the case of each such item must be disclosed in a note to the accounts². In the case of each balance sheet³ item affected (except stocks) either the comparable amounts determined according to the historical cost accounting rules⁴, or the differences between those amounts and the corresponding amounts actually shown in the balance sheet in respect of that item, must be shown separately in the balance sheet or in a note to the accounts⁵.

(d) Fair Value Accounting

725. Inclusion of financial instruments at fair value.

Certain financial instruments (including derivatives)¹ may be included at fair value in a company's accounts². However, this does not apply to a financial instrument if the fair value of that financial instrument cannot be reliably determined³.

Where a financial instrument is valued in accordance with these provisions, a change in the value of the financial instrument must be included in the profit and loss account⁴.

Financial instruments that, under international accounting standards⁵, may be included in accounts at fair value, may be so included, provided that the disclosures required by such accounting standards are made⁶.

1 For these purposes, references to 'derivatives' include commodity-based contracts that give either contracting party the right to settle in cash or in some other financial instrument, except where such contracts: (1) were entered into for the purpose of, and continue to meet, the company's expected purchase, sale or usage requirements; (2) were designated for such purpose at their inception; and (3) are expected to be settled by delivery of the commodity: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 8 para 1; Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 10 para 2. 'Financial instrument', 'derivative' and 'commodity-based contracts' have the same meanings as they have in EEC Council Directive 78/660 on the annual accounts of certain types of companies (the 'Fourth Directive') (OJ L222, 14.8.1978, p 1): see the Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 8 para 2; and the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 10 para 3.

As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24; and as to the special provision that is made in relation to banking and insurance companies and groups, partnerships, limited liability partnerships and investment companies see PARA 701 et seq.

The provisions of the Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section D para 36(1) and the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section D para 36(1) do not apply to financial instruments that constitute liabilities unless: (1) they are held as part of a trading portfolio; (2) they are derivatives; or (3) they are financial instruments falling within the Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section D para 36(4) or the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section D para 36(4) (see below): Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section D para 36(2); Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section D para 36(2). Nor do the provisions apply to the following, unless they are financial instruments falling within the Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section D para 36(4) or the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section D para 36(4) (see below): (a) financial instruments (other than derivatives) held to maturity; (b) loans and receivables originated by the company and not held for trading purposes; (c) interests in subsidiary undertakings, associated undertakings and joint ventures; (d) equity instruments issued by the company; (e) contracts for contingent consideration in a business combination; or (f) other financial instruments with such special characteristics that the instruments, according to generally accepted accounting principles or practice, should be accounted for differently from other financial instruments: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section D para 36(3); Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section D para 36(3). These provisions apply notwithstanding the Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section A para 13 and the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section A para 13 (see PARA 718 head (3)): Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section D para 40(2); Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section D para 40(2).

Where the financial instrument accounted for is a hedging instrument under a hedge accounting system that allows some or all of the change in value not to be shown in the profit and loss account, or the change in value relates to an exchange difference arising on a monetary item that forms part of a company's net investment in a foreign entity, the amount of the change in value must be credited to or (as the case may be) debited from a separate reserve (the 'fair value reserve'): Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section D para 40(3); Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section D para 40(3). Where the instrument accounted for is an available for sale financial asset, and is not a derivative, the change in value may be credited to or (as the case may be) debited from the fair value reserve: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section D para 40(4); Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section D para 40(4). The fair value reserve must be adjusted to the extent that the amounts shown in it are no longer necessary for the purposes of the Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section D para 40(3), (4) or the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section D para 40(3), (4): Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section D para 41(1); Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section D para 41(1). The treatment for taxation purposes of amounts credited or debited to the fair value reserve must be disclosed in a note to the accounts: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section D para 41(2); Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 2 Section D para 41(2). As to notes to the accounts see PARA 738 et seq.

726. Determination of fair value.

The 'fair value' of a financial instrument is its value determined in accordance with the following provisions¹.

If a reliable market can readily be identified for the financial instrument, its fair value is to be determined by reference to its market value². If a reliable market cannot readily be identified for the financial instrument but can be identified for its components or for a similar instrument, its fair value is determined by reference to the market value of its components or of the similar instrument³. If neither of these provisions applies, the fair value of the financial instrument is a value resulting from generally accepted valuation models and techniques⁴, and any valuation models and techniques used for these purposes must ensure a reasonable approximation of the market value⁵.

(C) FORM AND CONTENT OF COMPANIES ACT INDIVIDUAL ACCOUNTS

(a) In general

728. Required form and content of Companies Act individual accounts.

Companies Act individual accounts¹ must comprise:

- 1191 (1) a balance sheet² as at the last day of the financial year³; and
- 1192 (2) a profit and loss account⁴.

The accounts must, in the case of the balance sheet, give a true and fair view⁵ of the state of affairs of the company⁶ as at the end of the financial year and, in the case of the profit and loss account, give a true and fair view of the profit or loss of the company for the financial year⁷.

The accounts must comply with provision made by the Secretary of State⁸ by regulations⁹ as to:

- 1193 (a) the form and content of the balance sheet and profit and loss account¹⁰; and
- 1194 (b) additional information to be provided by way of notes to the accounts¹¹.

If compliance with the regulations, and any other provision made by or under the Companies Act 2006 as to the matters to be included in a company's individual accounts or in notes to those accounts, would not be sufficient to give a true and fair view, the necessary additional information must be given in the accounts or in a note to them¹². If in special circumstances compliance with any of those provisions is inconsistent with the requirement to give a true and fair view, the directors¹³ must depart from that provision to the extent necessary to give a true and fair view; but particulars of any such departure, the reasons for it and its effect must be given in a note to the accounts¹⁴.

The provisions of the Companies Act 2006 s 396 apply to unregistered companies by virtue of the Unregistered Companies Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2436, reg 3, Sch 1 para 10, but with the modifications as specified thereby: see PARA 1666. As to the meaning of 'unregistered company' see PARA 1665. Where an overseas company, or a credit or financial institution to which the Companies Act 2006 s 1050 applies (see PARA 1831), is not required to prepare and disclose accounts under parent law, s 396 is also applied with modifications: see the Overseas Companies Regulations 2009, SI 2009/1801, regs 38, 53; and PARA 1830 et seq. As to the meaning of 'overseas company' see PARA 1824.

⁴ Companies Act 2006 s 396(1)(b). As to the meaning of 'profit and loss account' see PARA 715.

⁵ As to the need to give a true and fair view see also PARA 714.

6 As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24; and as to the special provision that is made in relation to banking and insurance companies and groups, partnerships, limited liability partnerships and investment companies see PARA 701 et seq.

7 Companies Act 2006 s 396(2).

8 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 6.

9 Companies Act 2006 s 396(3). As to the regulations that have been made see the Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409; and the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410.

Companies Act individual accounts under the Companies Act 2006 s 396 must comply with the provisions of the Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 or the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 (see PARA 729 et seq) as to the form and content of the balance sheet and profit and loss account, and additional information to be provided by way of notes to the accounts: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, reg 3(1); Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, reg 3(1). As to notes to the accounts see PARA 738 et seq.

Accounts are treated as having complied with any provision of the Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 if they comply instead with the corresponding provision of the Large and Medium-Sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, reg 3(3).

Halsbury's Laws of England/COMPANIES (VOLUME 14 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-692; VOLUME 15 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 693-1841)/2. COMPANIES REGULATED BY THE COMPANIES ACTS/(18) ACCOUNTS AND REPORTS/(iv) Annual Accounts/B. INDIVIDUAL ACCOUNTS EXCLUDING BANKING AND INSURANCE COMPANIES/(C) Form and Content of Companies Act Individual Accounts/(a) In general/729. General rules relating to accounts.

729. General rules relating to accounts.

Subject to the detailed provisions relating to the form, content and format of company accounts¹, every balance sheet² of a company must show the items listed in either of the balance sheet formats³, and every profit and loss account⁴ of a company must show the items listed in any one of the profit and loss account formats⁵; and the items must be in the order and under the headings and sub-headings given in the format used⁶.

Where, in accordance with these provisions, a company's balance sheet or profit and loss account for any financial year⁷ has been prepared by reference to one of the formats, the directors⁸ of the company must use the same format in preparing the Companies Act individual accounts⁹ for subsequent financial years unless in their opinion there are special reasons for a change¹⁰. Particulars of any such change must be given in a note to the accounts in which the new format is first used, and the reasons for the change must be explained¹¹.

Any item required to be shown in a company's balance sheet or profit and loss account may be shown in greater detail than required by the particular format used¹². A company's balance sheet or profit and loss account may include an item representing or covering the amount of any asset or liability, income or expenditure not otherwise covered by any of the items listed in the format used, but none of the following may be treated as assets in any balance sheet: (1) preliminary expenses; (2) expenses of, and commission on, any issue of shares or debentures; and (3) costs of research¹³.

Where the special nature of a company's business requires it, the directors of the company must adapt the arrangement, headings and sub-headings otherwise required in respect of items given an Arabic number in the balance sheet or profit and loss account format used¹⁴. Items to which Arabic numbers are given in any of the balance sheet or profit and loss account formats may be combined if:

- 1195 (a) their individual amounts are not material to assessing the state of affairs or profit or loss of the company for the financial year in question; or
- 1196 (b) the combination facilitates that assessment, but where head (b) above applies, the individual amounts of any items which have been combined must be disclosed in a note to the accounts¹⁵.

The directors must not include a heading or sub-heading corresponding to an item in the balance sheet or profit and loss account format used if there is no amount to be shown for that item for the financial year to which the balance sheet or profit and loss account relates¹⁶.

Every profit and loss account of a company must show the amount of the company's profit or loss on ordinary activities before taxation¹⁷.

For every item shown in a company's balance sheet or profit and loss account, the corresponding amount for the immediately preceding financial year must also be shown¹⁸. Where that corresponding amount is not comparable with the amount to be shown for the item in question in respect of the financial year to which the balance sheet or profit and loss account relates, the former amount may be adjusted and particulars of the non-comparability and of any adjustment must be disclosed in a note to the accounts¹⁹.

Amounts in respect of items representing assets or income may not be set off against amounts in respect of items representing liabilities or expenditure (as the case may be), or vice versa²⁰.

The company's directors must, in determining how amounts are presented within items in the profit and loss account and balance sheet, have regard to the substance of the reported transaction or arrangement, in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles or practice²¹.

A statement of the amount of debentures outstanding made in a balance sheet is a sufficient acknowledgment of the debt due under the debentures within the meaning of the Limitation Act 1980 s 30(2) (see LIMITATION PERIODS vol 68 (2008) PARA 1185): Re Atlantic and Pacific Fibre Importing and Manufacturing Co Ltd [1928] Ch 836; and see Jones v Bellegrove Properties Ltd [1949] 1 All ER 498 (affd [1949] 2 KB 700, [1949] 2 All ER 198, CA) (where parol evidence was admitted to dissect a debit entry 'sundry creditors' so as to constitute that entry a sufficient acknowledgment to a member-creditor). See also Re Gee & Co (Woolwich) Ltd [1975] Ch 52, [1974] 1 All ER 1149 (where the accounts were adopted at a general meeting attended by or by the representatives of every member of the company, all the members must be taken to have agreed to the directors' written acknowledgement of the debt). No such acknowledgment is, however, made unless the debt appears in the balance sheet as a debt existing at the time it was signed: Consolidated Agencies Ltd v Bertram Ltd [1965] AC 470, [1964] 3 All ER 282, PC. A statement made in a balance sheet signed by the directors relating to arrears of their own remuneration is not a sufficient acknowledgment to prevent the operation of the Limitation Act 1980: Re Coliseum (Barrow) Ltd [1930] 2 Ch 44. 1 As to small companies and groups see PARA 694. As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24; and as to the special provision that is made in relation to banking and insurance companies and groups, partnerships, limited liability partnerships and investment companies see PARA 701 et seq.

2 As to the meaning of 'balance sheet' see PARA 715.

3 As to the general rules relating to the statutory formats see PARA 729.

4 Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats: Format 1).

5 This item may be shown at item A or included under item C II 3: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (1). As to the meaning of 'called up share capital' see PARA 1048.

6 As to the meaning of 'fixed assets' see PARA 720 note 2.

7 Amounts representing goodwill must only be included to the extent that the goodwill was acquired for valuable consideration: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (2).

8 Amounts in respect of concessions, patents, licences, trade marks and similar rights and assets must only be included in a company's balance sheet under this item if either: (1) the assets were acquired for valuable consideration and are not required to be shown under goodwill; or (2) the assets in question were created by the company itself: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (3).

9 As to the meaning of 'share' see PARA 1042.

10 As to the meaning of 'group undertaking' see PARA 27 note 9; and as to the meaning of 'undertaking' see PARA 26 note 2.

For these purposes, 'participating interest' means an interest held by an undertaking in the shares of another undertaking which it holds on a long term basis for the purpose of securing a contribution to its activities by the exercise of control or influence arising from or related to that interest: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 8 para 8(1). The reference in Sch 8 para 8(1) to an interest in shares includes:

244 (1) an interest which is convertible into an interest in shares; and

245 (2) an option to acquire shares or any such interest, and an interest or option falls within head (1) or head (2) notwithstanding that the shares to which it relates are, until the conversion or the exercise of the option, unissued: Sch 8 para 8(3). For these purposes, an interest held on behalf of an undertaking is to be treated as held by it: Sch 8 para 8(4).

A holding of 20% or more of the shares of the undertaking is to be presumed to be a participating interest unless the contrary is shown: Sch 8 para 8(2).

In the balance sheet and profit and loss formats set out in Sch 1 Pt 1 and Sch 4 Pt 1 (see PARA 730), 'participating interest' does not include an interest in a group undertaking: Sch 8 para 8(5). For the purposes of Sch 8 para 8 as it applies in relation to the expression 'participating interest', in those formats as they apply in relation to group accounts and in Sch 6 para 19 (group accounts: undertakings to be accounted for as associated undertakings: see PARA 791) the references in Sch 8 para 8(1)-(4) to the interest held by, and the purposes and activities of, the undertaking concerned are to be construed as references to the interest held by, and the purposes and activities of, the group (within the meaning of Sch 6 para 1: see PARA 785): Sch 8 para 8(6).

11 Where amounts in respect of own shares held are included under either of item B III 4 or item C III 2, the nominal value of such shares must be shown separately: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (4).

12 As to the meaning of 'current assets' see PARA 720 note 2.

13 The amount falling due after more than one year must be shown separately for each item included under debtors unless the aggregate amount of debtors falling due after more than one year is disclosed in the notes to the accounts: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (5). As to notes to the accounts see PARA 738 et seq.

14 See note 5. See also note 16.

15 See note 11.

16 This item may alternatively be included under item C II 3: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (6).

17 There must be shown separately:

246 (1) the amount of any convertible loans; and

247 (2) the amount for creditors in respect of taxation and social security, and payments received on account of orders must be included in so far as they are not shown as deductions from stocks: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (7). Accruals and deferred income may be shown under item J or included under item E 4 or item H 4, or both (as the case may require): Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (7).

18 In determining the amount to be shown under this item, any prepayments and accrued income must be taken into account wherever shown: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (8).

19 See note 17.

20 References to provisions for liabilities are references to any amount retained as reasonably necessary for the purpose of providing for any liability the nature of which is clearly defined and which is either likely to be incurred, or certain to be incurred but uncertain as to amount or as to the date on which it will arise: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, reg 12, Sch 7 Pt 1 para 2; Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, reg 12, Sch 9 Pt 1 para 2.

21 See note 17.

22 The amount of allotted share capital and the amount of called up share capital which has been paid up must be shown separately: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (9). As to the meaning of 'allotted share capital' see PARA 1091; and as to the meaning of 'called up share capital' see PARA 1048.

4 Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats: Format 2).

5 This item may be shown at item A or included under item C II 3: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (1). As to the meaning of 'called up share capital' see PARA 1048.

6 As to the meaning of 'fixed assets' see PARA 720 note 2.

7 Amounts representing goodwill must only be included to the extent that the goodwill was acquired for valuable consideration: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (2).

8 Amounts in respect of concessions, patents, licences, trade marks and similar rights and assets must only be included in a company's balance sheet under this item if either: (1) the assets were acquired for valuable consideration and are not required to be shown under goodwill; or (2) the assets in question were created by the company itself: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (3).

9 As to the meaning of 'share' see PARA 1042.

10 As to the meaning of 'group undertaking' see PARA 27; and as to the meaning of 'participating interest' see PARA 730 note 10.

11 Where amounts in respect of own shares held are included under either of item B III 4 or item C III 2, the nominal value of such shares must be shown separately: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (4).

12 As to the meaning of 'current assets' see PARA 720 note 2.

13 The amount falling due after more than one year must be shown separately for each item included under debtors unless the aggregate amount of debtors falling due after more than one year is disclosed in the notes to the accounts: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (5). As to notes to the accounts see PARA 738 et seq.

14 See note 5. See also note 16.

15 See note 11.

16 This item may alternatively be included under item C II 3: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (6).

17 The amount of allotted share capital and the amount of called up share capital which has been paid up must be shown separately: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (9). As to the meaning of 'allotted share capital' see PARA 1091; and as to the meaning of 'called up share capital' see PARA 1048.

18 As to provisions for liabilities see PARA 730 note 20.

19 Amounts falling due within one year and after one year must be shown separately for each of these items and for the aggregate of all of these items unless the aggregate amount of creditors falling due within one year and the aggregate amount of creditors falling due after more than one year is disclosed in the notes to the accounts: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (10).

20 There must be shown separately:

248 (1) the amount of any convertible loans; and

249 (2) the amount for creditors in respect of taxation and social security, and payments received on account of orders must be included in so far as they are not shown as deductions from stocks: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (7). Accruals and deferred income may be shown under item D or within item C 4 under Liabilities: Small Companies and Groups (Accounts and Directors' Report) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/409, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (7).

1 As to large and medium-sized companies and groups see PARA 695. As to the meaning of 'company' see PARA 24; and as to the special provision that is made in relation to banking and insurance companies and groups, partnerships, limited liability partnerships and investment companies see PARA 701 et seq.

2 As to the meaning of 'balance sheet' see PARA 715.

3 As to the general rules relating to the statutory formats see PARA 729.

4 Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats: Format 1).

5 This item may be shown at either item A or item C II 5: see the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (1). As to the meaning of 'called up share capital' see PARA 1048.

6 As to the meaning of 'fixed assets' see PARA 720 note 2.

7 Amounts in respect of assets are only to be included in a company's balance sheet under this item if either: (1) the assets were acquired for valuable consideration and are not required to be shown under goodwill; or (2) the assets in question were created by the company itself: Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (2).

8 Amounts representing goodwill are only to be included to the extent that the goodwill was acquired for valuable consideration: Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (3).

9 As to the meaning of 'share' see PARA 1042. As to the meaning of 'group undertaking' see PARA 27; and as to the meaning of 'undertaking' see PARA 26 note 2.

10 For these purposes, 'participating interest' means an interest held by an undertaking in the shares of another undertaking which it holds on a long term basis for the purpose of securing a contribution to its activities by the exercise of control or influence arising from or related to that interest: Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 10 para 11(1). The reference in Sch 10 para 11(1) to an interest in shares includes:

250 (1) an interest which is convertible into an interest in shares; and

251 (2) an option to acquire shares or any such interest,

and an interest or option falls within head (1) or head (2) notwithstanding that the shares to which it relates are, until the conversion or the exercise of the option, unissued: Sch 10 para 11(3). For these purposes, an interest held on behalf of an undertaking is to be treated as held by it: Sch 10 para 11(4).

A holding of 20% or more of the shares of the undertaking is to be presumed to be a participating interest unless the contrary is shown: Sch 10 para 11(2).

In the balance sheet and profit and loss formats set out in Sch 1, 'participating interest' does not include an interest in a group undertaking: Sch 10 para 11(5). For the purpose of Sch 10 para 11 as it applies in relation to the expression 'participating interest', in those formats as they apply in relation to group accounts and in Sch 6 para 19 (group accounts: undertakings to be accounted for as associated undertakings: see PARA 791) the references in Sch 10 para 11(1)-(4) to the interest held by, and the purposes and activities of, the undertaking concerned are to be construed as references to the interest held by, and the purposes and activities of, the group (within the meaning of Sch 6 para 1: see PARA 785): Sch 10 para 11(6).

11 The nominal value of the shares held must be shown separately: Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (4).

12 As to the meaning of 'current assets' see PARA 720 note 2.

13 The amount falling due after more than one year must be shown separately for each item included under debtors: Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (5).

14 See note 5.

15 This item may be shown at either item C II 6 or item D: see the Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (6).

16 See note 11.

17 See note 15.

18 The amount of any convertible loans must be shown separately: Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (7). As to the meaning of 'debenture' see PARA 1299.

19 Payments received on account of orders must be shown for each of items E 3 and H 8, in so far as they are not shown as deductions from stocks: Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (8).

20 The amount for creditors in respect of taxation and social security must be shown separately from the amount for other creditors: Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (9).

21 The two positions given for this item at item E 9 and item H 9 are an alternative to the position at item J, but if the item is not shown in a position corresponding to that at item J it may be shown in either or both of the other two positions (as the case may require): Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (10).

22 In determining the amount to be shown for this item any amounts shown under 'prepayments and accrued income' must be taken into account wherever shown: Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (11).

23 See note 18.

24 See note 19.

25 See note 20.

26 See note 21.

27 As to provisions for liabilities see PARA 730 note 20.

28 See note 21.

29 The amount of allotted share capital and the amount of called up share capital which has been paid up must be shown separately: Large and Medium-sized Companies and Groups (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/410, Sch 1 Pt 1 Section B (Balance sheet formats) note (12). As to the meaning of 'allotted share capital' see PARA 1091; and as to the meaning of 'called up share capital' see PARA 1048.
